"Pour Mouth Monty" — he choker on gratitude. As he reaches for his first (and his 10th) piece of chicken, he murmurs brokenly "where could you find a company that would give . . . where's the meat? Who took all the white meat?"

MUSCLE MAN

"Athletic Abner" — He sat on the second - string bench in high school, but at the office picnic he's strictly varsity. "Let's play baseball, let's play football," he urges. But he's a good sport. He doesn't mind limping home with a broken bone as long as everyone else does too.

"Cheerleader Charlie"—"Attaboy, attaboy, have a good time." he shouts, patting everybody on the back in turn. Just to be sure that no one is left out he tries to make it known he pats himself on the back also.

"Gracious Gertrude"—It seems only patriotic to the sultry stenographer that she should go behind the nearest sand dune and listen to each office husband explain why his wife doesn't understand him.

"Practical Pete"—He's the top steward. "We already run out of mustard," he remarks. "This could be a grievance case."

"Penny - pinching Penelope" —"I'm not hungry," she says fastidiously. "But if there are any leftovers I'd like to take them home to our dog." She wraps up enough chicken to provide her husband with free lunches for three weeks.

"Ambitious Albert"—Beer in hand, he fires the boss with folmy eye and for five straight hours tells him, "Now if I were running the business, I'd . . ."

Arviligjuar Eskimos of Pelly Bay Have High Suicide Rate

By ARCH MacKENZIE

OTTAWA (CP)—Far from the pressures of modern civilization, the Arviligjuar Eskimos of Pelly Bay have a suicide rate 60 times greater than Canada as a whole.

Turkel - born Aseen Balikci, now a Canadian citizen seeking his doctorate in anthropology at Columbia University, sought to know why. He made trips in 1959 and 1960 to Pelly Bay, on the Arctic coast, 1,300 miles north of the Lakehead.

The Arviligjuarmiut — people of the big one with the whale — were largely pagan until the arrival of a Roman Catholic missionary in 1936. The rifle did not replace the bow and arrow until the present century. The social fabric included wife-sharing, infanticide and belief in the shaman, who cured the sick, called the seal or caribou and regulated the tribal taboos.

Fifty cases of successful, attempted or contemplated suicide were reported in the general area in 50 years. Mr. Balikci discussed this tendency to suicide in a paper to the Canadian Political Science Associat i o n part of which is reproduced in "north," a magazine published by the northern affairs department.

While the Pelly Bay Eskimo tended to be a rugged individualist in most ways and a good family man, there was evidence of "deep - seated inhibitions and anxieties."

Until a few years ago girl babies often were killed. This created a shortage of women. A man would fight another to gain a wife; and then live in constant fear while away hunting that some other man take possession of her.

The Pelly Bay Eskimo also was fearful of witchcraft and of breaking taboos.

The Arviligjuar Eskimo, like his brothers, is the thinly scattered parent Netsilik tribe, has close ties with only a small group of relatives. When a relative dies, illness strikes or some personal disaster occurs, a member of the group is prone to seek death by gunfire, hanging, strangulation or drowning.

Mr. Balikci estimates the Arviligjuarmiut now number about 120 compared with a 50-year average since 1900 of 90. Twenty-three of these people committed suicide according to collected data and another nine planned or attempted it during the 50 years.

The other cases studied by Mr. Balikci—12 successful and six attempted — were among members of related groups.

Taking only the 32 Arviligjuarmiut cases, Mr. Balikci works out a suicide rate of 575 per 100,000 living members compared with the 1930 United States rate of 16.8 suicides per 100,000—30 times lower. Canada's suicide rate in 1959 was 9.4 per 100,000.

His study disproves the general assumption that Eskimo suicides are mostly among the elderly who feel themselves a dead weight and that they are forced to seek endlessly for game in this harsh land. Only four of the 32 cases involved elderly Eskimos.

One of the suicides was a 10 year-old boy. Thirty - four were married and had children. Some received assistance in drying by strangulation; some were dismantled by relatives or friends.

Mr. Balikci says anthropologists may never know—because younger Eskimos are largely ignorant of the ancient tribal taboos and religion — whether suicide was tied to a belief that the manner of death influenced the quality of after-life.

COLD WEATHER AHEAD — Below-normal temperatures are predicted for most of Ontario and Quebec in the 30-day outlook of the United States weather bureau during October. British Columbia and Alberta will have warmer than normal readings.

The outlook, based on long-range predictions, is not a specific forecast and a change in weather pattern may produce major errors.

Eastern Canada will have heavy precipitation during the month. (CP Newsmap.)

Supermarkets Get Lion's Share of Business From Families on Shop Tours

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Most Canadian families buy their groceries on Friday and Saturday, and the supermarkets get the lion's share of the business.

This is one indication of buying habits uncovered in the Canadian Consumer Survey of 1961, a study conducted in 14 cities from St. John's, Nfld., to Victoria and published by the Canadian Daily Newspaper Publishers Association.

CDNPA sent out thousands of questionnaires. After processing 56,000 replies and making 10,000,000 tabulations, the researchers came up with facts on the buying habits of Canadians and their brand preferences.

Replies indicated that 75 per cent of Canadian households buy groceries in supermarkets. Only 20 per cent go to independent grocers.

Forty per cent load up the market baskets on Friday, while 23 per cent buy on Saturday. Only one per cent let their shopping go until Monday.

TWO-CAR FAMILIES

Researchers found that 62 per cent of urban families have cars, with 12 per cent owning a second car. When Canadians buy gasoline, more than two-thirds pay cash. The rest use oil-company credit cards.

Television sets are in 93 per cent of the homes checked but evidently few are held by viewers that they take their meals in front of the set. Replies indicated that only about 13 per cent buy frozen prepared-or TV-dinners.

The questionnaires turned up many regional differences. For instance, 91 per cent of households buy molasses in the Atlantic Provinces where bread and molasses still is a treat.

Only 33 per cent of Ontario households buy it.

Quebec, which produces much of the country's maple syrup, apparently also leads in its consumption with 54 per cent of households buying it. The national average is 40 per cent.

PREFER TEA BAGS

In British Columbia only 18 per cent of households buy rain-coats, the lowest in Canada. In the Atlantic Provinces, the figure is 31 per cent.

Canadians show a distinct preference for tea bags or balls. Only 20 per cent reported purchases of packaged tea but 85 per cent bought it in bags or balls. The percentages add to more than 100 because some households bought both varieties.

A mere six per cent bought instant tea but 76 per cent purchased instant coffee.

Somewhat more liberal liquor laws and availability of beer in grocery stores apparently had little affect on sale of soft drinks in Quebec. In purchases of pop, that province was right at the top.

But the fried-potato wagons so familiar in Quebec may have a depressing effect on sales of potato chips. Only 41 per cent of Quebec households bought packaged potato chips compared with a national average of 60 per cent.

BUY COLD REMEDIES

Quebecers were well above the national average in purchases of chest rubs, cough drops and syrups, cold tablets, nose drops and sprays and vitamins. But returns from English - speaking households in Montreal and Quebec were closer to the national average on most of these items.

One question for men only was "Do you buy hats?" Across the country 57 per cent said yes. Quebec was high with 71 per cent. In B.C. only 36 per cent bought hats. Again, in Quebec, the French-speaking households pulled up the provincial average.

Another men-only question—"Do you buy cigarettes?"—was answered in the affirmative by 69 per cent of those quizzed. Most of those who smoked "tailor - maides" preferred the straight-type Virginia cigarette to the blended American-type smoke.

Eighteen per cent across Canada said they rolled their own. Averages ranged from the high of 22 per cent in B.C. to 15 per cent in Ontario.

BEANS POPULAR

While the survey showed up many regional differences, it also showed that there is no variation in Canadian tastes for some items. Canned baked beans, catsup and peanut butter are universally liked and purchases in all regions are close to the national averages.

The survey, which covers buying habits and brand preferences over a wide range of consumer products, including foods, drugs, cosmetics, wearing apparel, household appliances and automotive products, is regarded as a source of valuable merchandising data for advertising and sales executives.

The questionnaires were distributed and picked up by the circulation departments and carrier boys of newspaper members of CDNPA. The processing and tabulations were carried out by McDonald Research Limited.

Fire is Dangerous To Everyone!

Fire Department Always Ready to Help

OCTOBER 8-14, 1961

Won't you help your Fire Department to help you?

We are at your service at all times and are more than willing to come at a moment's notice for any service that is needed with regard to the prevention of fires.

Therefore if you wish your home or business place to be inspected at any time we are only too glad to respond. We would rather have you call for precention measures than for us to come too late to extinguish the fire you did not have us prevent.

The death toll is rising each year and the property damage is increasing and most of this is caused by carelessness.

Won't you try to protect your property and loved ones by practising fire prevention not only during Fire Prevention Week but the whole year through?

There are more children losing theid lives each year. Please do not leave your children without a reliable baby sitter. Free instructive Baby Sitter pamphlets may be obtained by calling your Fire Department. Do have one mailed to you or stop in and pick one up.

Please obey this year's slogan "Don't give fire a place to start."

Your Fire Chief.

DON'T GIVE FIRE A PLACE TO START!

Check Conditions in Your Home With these Dangers and Remedies

1. Ensure adequate wiring.
2. Never overload circuits.
3. Keep non-poisonous, non-toxic fire extinguishers in various parts of the house.
4. Keep furnaces and oil burners in good condition.
5. Have chimneys and pipes cleaned regularly.
6. Have broken electrical fixtures repaired promptly by an expert.
7. Replace frayed electrical cords.
8. Avoid use of inflammable cleaning fluids.
9. Keep oily or paint rags in tightly covered metal containers.
10. Keep vent, heating unit, and lint catcher of clothes drier free of lint and avoid putting foam rubber articles in drier.
11. Avoid smoking in bed.

Baby Sitting Short Course

Here for parent and for the sitter are standard rules for the work:

1. The sitter should have a sense of responsibility and should like the children and preferably live in the neighborhood.
2. Instructions should be given in writing as well as orally—Where you are going and telephone number, or the name and number of someone to call in an emergency. Your telephone number and location of telephone. Emergency telephone numbers for Fire, Police, Doctor. How to call the fire department. Location of exits. How to control the furnace or stove. Leave a flashlight in case of power failure.

Guide to the sitter in emergency:
Get the children safely out. Even if it's cold don't wait to dress them. Wrap them in a blanket.
Even the smell of smoke or gas is enough warning to call the fire department, or summon help. Be sure to say exactly where you are. If you can, turn on the front [illegible] to attract attention.
[illegible]ter the house.
Smoke or gas from a very [illegible]e may be fatal. If [illegible]e trapped inside, remember that the air near the floor is usually better in a smoke-filled room.
Inside don't turn on or off any electric switches. This may create a spark, ignite gas vapors and cause explosion.

Believe New Attendance Record Was Set As Plowing Match Ends With Ideal Day

Besting a field of 11 competitors, Owen Sound Mayor W. A. Forsyth proved himself the best mayor plowman Saturday as he captured the J. D. Thomas Mayors' Challenge Trophy to wind up the 1961 International Plowing Match. Mayor William Shannon of Marmora was second.

Favored by ideal fall weather, the big plowing match north of Belleville possibly set an all-time attendance record for the four-day event. Local officials said the attendance for the match topped the 100,000 mark.

"It is difficult to get an accurate figure of the total attendance due to the number of passes and the number of public and high school children getting in free, but I would say we reached the 100,000 magic," stated treasurer Ben Bleecker.

Mr. Bleecker said the attendance on Saturday exceeded all expectations, and was considerably above the attendance for Thursday and Friday.

HIGH SCHOOL CONTEST

The inter-secondary school competition which saw 18 high school teams from all parts of Southern Ontario entered was also a feature of the closing day of the match.

Winners in the inter-secondary high school competition were the Waterford District High School of Kenneth Gibson and Neil Lemery, both of R.R. Waterford.

The Quinte Secondary School team of Kenneth Chase and Frederick C. Phillips, Picton, fourth and Moira Secondary School plowmen Wayne Tummon and Lloyd Spencer were sixth.

Saturday's crowd at the International was the biggest for the four day match with the "Tented City" name being the big drawing card for the majority of those in attendance.

All day long the "Tented City" was packed. During the afternoon parade the crowd was ten to twelve deep along many sections of the parade route.

DISMANTLE "CITY"

Today "Tented City", which last week was thronged with close to 100,000 persons, is fast disappearing as the various exhibitors complete the dismantling of tents and buildings which housed exhibits and demonstrations.

And so the 1961 presentation of the International Plowing Match has gone into history.

Competing in the mayor's contest were H. M. Reed of Fort William, D. E. Spence of Tweed; Michael Perunack of Welland; H. J. McFarland of Picton; F. W. Rutherford of Campbellford, W. A. Forsyth of Owen Sound, Cecil E. Bateman of Stirling, Aid. Ross Bailey, representing Mayor A. M. Haig, of Belleville, Vincent Barrie of St. Thomas, Harry Sweetman of Deseronto; and William Shannon of Marmora.

Govt. Leaders Of West Indies Are Satisfied

LONDON (Reters)—West Indian government leaders here home Saturday following what they termed an "extremely successful conference" here on the future of the West Indies federation and the island of Jamaica.

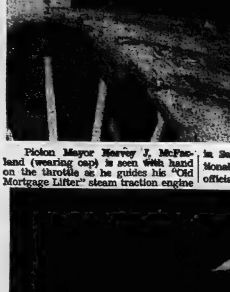
Federal Prime Minister Sir Grantley Adams and Jamaican Premier Norman Manley left on the same plane after meetings with British Colonial Secretary Iain Macleod.

Jamaica, largest and wealthiest island in the federation, voted itself out of the West Indian group in a Sept. 19 referendum.

Mr. Macleod commended on the London meetings by saying "we achieved exactly what we wanted to achieve."

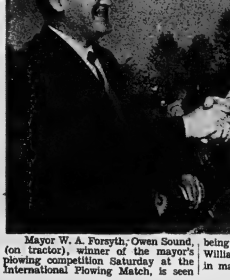
He added that Britain would act as sponsor for Jamaica's membership as a sovereign state in the Commonwealth and the United Nations.

Jamaica's pending independence leaves the older, poorer West Indies islands in a precarious economic situation.



The future of the federation rest on whether Trinidad is willing to take over as the leading island in the group or accedes like Jamaica.

CALLS ON CHINA



HONG KONG (Reuters)—Sir Harold Caccia, former British ambassador to the United States left Hong Kong today with his wife for an 18-day visit to Communist China.

Pictou Mayor Murray J. McFarland (wearing cap) is seen with hand on the throttle as he guides his "Old Mortgage Lifter" steam traction engine in Saturday's parade at the International. Dr. J. Russell Scott was the official whistle tooter.

The oldest person attending the International Plowing Match, north of Belleville last week, was Mrs. Wilson Seeley of Ivanhoe, who will be celebrating her 98th birthday in December. Mrs. Seeley, who last year motored to Saskatchewan to visit her daughter, is seen speaking to Mr. Alston Campbell, Ontario Plowman's Association president.

Mayor W. A. Forsyth, Owen Sound, (on tractor), winner of the mayor's plowing competition Saturday at the International Plowing Match, is seen being congratulated by Marmora Reeve William Shannon, who finished second in match.

THE PAST AND THE PRESENT — Miss Gladys Fahey of The Ontario Intelligencer staff, shows the Maltese Cross badge of the 49th Hastings Rifles Regiment. The badges with helmets were discovered in an attic of a city house. They are reputed to be 60 years old. They are now being worn by the Hasty Pees Regimental Band.

Found in an Attic

'49th Rifle Regt.' Helmets Complete Novel Uniform

The nattily-garbed drum and bugle band of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment holds a unique but proud record.

They were the cynosure of all eyes and the target of fine tribute at the regimental reunion held here over the holiday weekend.

It is the only band or unit of its kind in Canada, perhaps the Commonwealth, to wear the full regalia, down to the last detail, of the infantry regiments of 100 years ago.

They present a novel but colorful spectacle with white pith spiked helmets, scarlet jackets, blue trousers with striped sides, and jackboots.

The "49th," with the 16th Prince Edward Regiment, were the parent bodies of the famous Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment which wrote a blazing history in World War II.

In passing it should be mentioned the "Maltese Cross" is the regulation insignia of all rifle regiments. The Hasty Pees' regiment badge which combines the "Cross" of the 49th and the wreath of the 16th Regiment, is the only infantry regiment in the Commonwealth to include the Maltese Cross in its regimental insignia.

The white spiked helmets of the band are not new, nor of recent design. They were worn by members of the 49th, Hastings Rifles long before the turn of the century.

FOUND IN ATTIC

cident in an old house being demolished here sometime in early June. A member of the Belleville Fire Department named John MacKay recognized the helmets, when brought out from an attic in the building. They had been placed in the old structure, it is presumed after the demobilization of the 49th Regiment.

Some forty helmets were uncovered and only one was unfit for "rehabilitation". Most of them have initials of former wearers inscribed on the inside. Some bear the date 1901, others earlier dates. All of them carried the Maltese Cross Badge of the rifle regiment.

The discovery of the helmets moved a real "find" for the band and the regiment. Hasty Pees commanding officer Lt. Col. Angus Duffy said the regiment had combed England and other parts of the Commonwealth to get helmets of a similar nature, to no avail.

"The trousers" he said, "will be altered to the requirements of those used in the period of the uniforms".

The helmets and other old time regalia played no small part in the band winning top honors in a band competition held this summer in Gannanoque.

The unit under Drum Major G. Crawford has rounded into one of the best of its kind in this part of Ontario. The colorful appearance, tuneful rataplanning renditions and marching efficiently has brought much public demand.

Soccer Fans Riot In Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — Soccer fans angered by a referee's decision staged a wild stone-throwing melee at Varsity Stadium Sunday.

The outburst came after Montreal Castalia took the second game of the Eastern Canada Professional Soccer League final 3-1 from Toronto Italia.

Castalia defeated Italia 3-0 here Sunday to win the President's Cup, taking the best-of-three final 3-0. One game was tied.

Police reinforcements finally got things under control. George Kovacs, 24, and Attilo Boccherotto, 36, were charged with obstructing police and creating a disturbance.

American College Football

The two-point conversion was the key to Saturday's top college United States football games.

A gamble that failed, a two-point pass by Southern Methodist Mornals with only seconds left, enabled top-ranked Iowa to escape with a 15-14 decision.

Maryland, again emerging as a football power, made a two-point conversion to beat Syracuse 29-28 in the day's top upset.

Among the other top 10 teams listed in the Associated Press current poll, unscored-tested Mississippi loosed a devastating attack for a 33-0 victory over ambitious and second-ranked Florida State; Michigan State No. 6, broke open a tight game with a four-yard touchdown run in a 33-8 conquest of Stanford; Ohio State, No. 8, waited until the last quarter to abandon its fancy tactics for a more orthodox offense that brought a 13-3 decision over tough UCLA; and ninth-ranked Michigan used a bruising line to grind Army into submission 36-6.

RE-ELECT CANADIAN

PRAGUE (Reuters) — John A. MacAulay of Winnipeg was re - elected president of the board of governors of the League of Red Cross Societies Friday, the Czech news agency Ceteka reported. MacAulay, a lawyer, became the first Canadian to head the league in 1952.

Series Briefs

By JOE REICHLER

CINCINNATI (AP) — Whitey Ford, brilliant lefthander of New York Yankees, walked off with most of the honors of the 1961 world series, which ended Monday as Yanks defeated Cincinnati Reds 13-5 and captured the world championship in five games.

Whitey pitched 14 shutout innings, won two games, hit a home run and added to series comparison, and surpassed Babe Ruth's record by stretching his string to 32 scoreless innings. For his efforts he was presented with a sports car as "the player who, through his overall play in the world series, did the most for his team."

The series produced the other following highlights:

Outstanding hitter — John Blanchard, Yankees' only player to hit two home runs. His first, as a pinch hitter in the third game, tied the score in the eighth inning. His second, with one on in the first inning Monday, shot Yanks into a 3-0 lead. John also hit a double and a single and drew two walks in the series otherwise.

Boyer's brilliant diving stop and throw, from a backhand position, of pinch hitter Dick Gernert's sizzling drive to the Yankee third in a 6-4 put in the top of eighth inning of the first game.

Most disappointed man — Vada Pinson, Cincinnati's brilliant center fielder, who not only collected just two singles in 22 times at bat, but committed a mechanical error in the field and a mental lapse on the bases. With Reds trailing by eight runs in the first game finale, he attempted to stretch a single into a double and was thrown out. Pinson also permitted Yankee runners to take an extra base with his high throw to the plate without a bounce on two occasions.

Weirdest incident — Gordon Coleman, Cincinnati first baseman, running across the diamond to tag Bill Skowron, between third and home, thus committing a unique unassisted double play in the fifth inning of the fourth game.

Most tragic event — Mickey Mantle, bobbled and bleeding from an open wound, forced to quit after singling in the fourth inning of the fourth game.

Most unforgettable incident — Yogi Berra, getting off the ground, bleeding from a head wound, after missing a diving attempt of Wally Post's single in the sixth inning of the fourth game. An inning earlier, he had been tagged out sliding head first into third base, sustaining a shoulder injury which kept him out of the fifth game.

Toughest defeat — Sustained by right-hander Bob Purkey of Reds in the third game, 1-2, after SF had pitched no-hit ball until one out in the fifth inning and shutout ball until the seventh.

Best sport — Manager Fred Hutchinson of Reds who remained friendly, affable and cooperative to newspaper men throughout the series and who was the first to congratulate Yankees.

Most patient — Manager Ralph Houk, who estimated he was questioned at least 25,000 times on the status of Mickey Mantle.

My wife told me this morning that all night she kept hearing me yell in my sleep: 'I don't know whether Mantle will play tomorrow.'"

Senior College Football

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A 108-yard kickoff return and a doomsday lateral that went astray made for a couple of upsets Saturday as the Senior Intercollegiate Football League opened its 1961 season.

The big run, a two-man effort, and a single off a field goal try provided the margin as Queen's Golden Gaels edged defending champion McGill Redmen 8-7 at Kingston.

University of Toronto Blues, who hadn't won since an opening-game victory last year over the same team, downed University of Western Ontario Mustangs 6-3 at London. The fourth-place Blues' Ron Stewart fumbled a lateral and it ended up in Toronto hands on the Mustangs' 14.

The Redmen finished the second quarter down 14-0 on Gary Strickland's attempted field goal that went for a single point.

The Gaels, who lost to McGill last year in a playoff, scored their touchdown on the second-half kickoff. Mike Petrik took the ball on the Queen's two-yard line, ran to the 20 and handed it to Norman Dustan who won the rest of the way. Strickland converted it.

PICKETS SHOOT DRIVER

The Tracks

TORONTO (CP) — Prompt Hero, owned by Peter del Greco of Toronto and ridden by Sam McCosh won the first running of the $17,700 Jockey Club Cup at New Woodbine Park Monday.

The largest crowd ever to attend a Woodbine autumn meeting, 21,962, saw Prompt Hero defeat Wise Command by three-quarters of a length. Blind was third.

It was only the second win of the season for Prompt Hero, who paid $11.10 as he ran a mile and a quarter in 2:02 2-5. The purse of $10,290 raised Prompt Hero's 1961 earnings to $33,055.

Jockey Eddie Arcaro, whose presence had much to do with the size of the crowd, gave Wise Command a fine ride to take second money of $3,790 for owner Les Lear of Calgary.

WINS BREEDERS STAKES

Song of Even, a skinny filly owned by Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Taylor of Toronto, established herself as the best Canadian bred three-year - old Saturday when she won the 31st running of the $30,000 Breeders Stakes. She smashed a 51-year-old Canadian record as she ran 1½ miles over the grass course in 2:31 3-5.

She defeated Reluctant Deb by slightly more than one length. Gallido was third.

The Breeder Stakes was the third and final race in Canada's triple crown series. Blue Light won the $72,000 Queen's Plate and Song of Even won the $30,000 Prince of Wales Stakes. Blue Light finished a well-beaten sixth Saturday.

The entry of Song of Even and Flashing Top was backed off the boards by the crowd and paid $3.80 to win. Reluctant Deb paid $4.30 for second while Gallido paid $4.10 to show.

CANCEL POLISH TOUR

AMSTERDAM (AP) — The Santa Fe, N.M., Opera Group cut short a European tour and flew home Friday night after reported Soviet interference cancelled its scheduled performances in Poland. John Crosby, general manager of the group, said the Soviet government is putting pressure on Poland and other Iron Curtain satellite countries to stop U.S. artistic performances.

Leafs, Wings Win Games

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League made their final pre-season exhibition appearance of the 1961-62 campaign Monday night, losing 5-3 to their American League farm team, Rochester Americans at Rochester.

Leafs wound up the exhibition schedule with a record of nine wins, five losses and a tie.

At Muskegon, Mich., Detroit Red Wings thumped Hershey Bears of the AHL 6-1 in the final exhibition game of their pre-season tour. But in Detroit Sunday night the Wings suffered their first pre-season exhibition loss in seven years as Hershey defeated them 4-1.

Hershey scored three goals in the third period to hand the Wings their first pre-season loss in 70 games.

New Movie, Book and Play On Lawrence of Arabia Revive Interest in Man

By DOUG MARSHALL

LONDON (CP) — What was Lawrence of Arabia—the apotheosis of public-school valor or a rabid masochist pushed by shame to feats of almost superhuman endurance?

A film now being shot in Jordan, a forthcoming book and a play, all dealing with the legendary career of T. E. Lawrence, have revived interest in one of the most enigmatic personalities of 20th-century history.

Lawrence was born in 1888 as the illegitimate son of an Irish baronet living in Wales with the family's former governess.

Historians think knowledge of this background instilled in Lawrence an obsession to prove himself better than his fellows and a distaste for physical contact with other people.

Familiar with the Middle East because of travels during his university days, Lawrence served as a junior officer at Britain's military headquarters in Cairo during the First World War.

Late in 1915 Arab elements revolted against Turkish forces controlling Arabia. Turkey was then allied to Germany. Britain hoped the rebellion would seriously weaken the enemy's Near Eastern flank and sent Lawrence to the Arab camp as a liaison officer.

PASSED AS ARAB

Romantically rigged out in flowing Arab robes, headdress and a sheik's dagger, Lawrence "out-Arabed" the Arabs and quickly won their leader's confidence.

In five years he mastermind-ed a series of brilliant guerrilla raids which choked communications, contained the Turkish forces and were largely responsible for Gen. Allenby's triumphant entry into Jerusalem in 1918.

Later, obviously suffering from some spiritual conflict, he assumed the name of Ross and sought anonymity in the RAF as a non-commissioned officer. He was killed in a motorcycle crash in 1935.

No one has seriously questioned Lawrence's military exploits although his achievements were certainly exaggerated at the time.

What is controversial are Lawrence's motives. Thomas Rattigan's Ross, a hit play in London's West End, poses the problem.

At the end of the play's first half, Lawrence, flushed with desert victories, looks across time to his own future and asks: "Ross, Ross, how did I become like you?"

The key to the transformation from popular hero to spiritual recluse seems to lie in the Arab town of Deraa where Lawrence was captured by the Turks one fateful day in November, 1917.

BADLY BEATEN

By his own account Lawrence, passing himself off as a Bedouin-skinned Circassian, was dragged to the provincial commandant's bedroom and sadistically beaten when he refused to undergo obscene indignities.

Many people are content to take this version of the incident at its face value—and enshrine Lawrence as a superb example of youthful heroism in the best "boy - stood - on - the - burning-deck" tradition.

However, most of Lawrence's several biographers have found inconsistencies in his account of the Deraa incident and have come up with less pleasant explanations.

Some, including Rattigan, suggest Lawrence either accepted or was forced into accepting the Turkish commandant's advances. This would explain his fervor and single-minded intensity. He was a man driving himself to the limits of endurance to compensate a basic weakness in character.

His subjective theory is offered by biographer Anthony Nutting in a new book, Lawrence of Arabia: The Man and the Motive.

Nutting suggests Lawrence was a physical and mental masochist whose happy endurance of pain "disclosed a perversion of the flesh rather than a triumph of the spirit."

Lawrence's spiritual collapse, says Nutting, was the result-of his realization that he was not a new messiah leading the Arabs in a semi-religious crusade against tyranny.

Odds, Ends for Outdoorsmen

As you no doubt know, particularly if you happen to be a duck hunter, the season-ing season for ducks this year has been about the worst in the past 30 years. Severe drought in the three prairie provinces of Canada and in the Dakotas — normally our major duck factory — has cut down the production of youngsters tremendously.

It is from the above named pothole country that the birds go to the Central and Mississippi flyways. The Atlantic and Pacific flyways also were affected somewhat, the latter being the least affected in that it has more birds per hunter than the other three flyways.

For a while the powers-that-be considered closing the waterfowl season entirely. However, this measure would inflict too hardship on Many hunters, despite low bag limits, look forward each year to the duck season, particularly those who belong to duck clubs. To deprive these people of their annual hobby would be cruel indeed. So, the seasons have been shortened or bag limits cut.

TED WILLIAMS' NEW POSITION

For a good many years Ted Williams and I have been discussing, with nothing to do with baseball. Ted and I fish the same waters each year and have for years. Ted lays out at Islamorada. Now and then we knock each other out of a tournament tied in friendly rivalry in the annual Metropolitan Striped Fishing Tournament.

This year Ted came to Williamsport to lend a hand with Little League baseball. Series. For two days we spent some time in bed of those days talking fishing, not baseball, and making plans for next spring. Ted is a patient fisherman. For that matter, anything that boy does, he does ardently. In witness whereof, consider his batting average.

Ted had a new association since he retired from active baseball last year. Now he is with Sears, Roebuck and Co., in an advisory capacity, helping them to revitalize the sporting goods department in their seven-hundred-odd stores about the country. In addition to baseball, Ted knows a great deal about the outdoor sports, fishing and hunting.

HANDWRITING ON THE WALL

In the suburbs of Indianapolis there is a body of water called Geist Reservoir. Since it was constructed in 1942, the Reservoir has been open to the public. For the past 16 years, the thoroughfare has really been the most heavily-fished lake in Indiana.

Allowing free access and use has, for a long time, posed a problem for the owners, Hank Haberman, hundreds of them, use the lake daily for a number of bottles, beer cans and trash. The lakeside area of sight attracted undesirable characters and created a police problem.

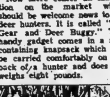
For a good many years, the owners, The Indianapolis Water Company, patiently cleaned up the trash and had the area patrolled at night. The public was warned that if they wished to continue to use the property, they must use it as a guest should, treating the privilege with the respect it deserved. The warnings were disregarded.

Now comes the announcement that new plans are being made for Geist Reservoir and its surrounding acreage. No longer will the area be devoted to public use. Instead, the acreage will be subdivided for luxury home-site development. Fishing will be allowed only to residents and guests. And there goes another public recreation area, withdrawn from public use.

Well, this sort of thing has happened before and, people being what they are, it will keep on happening. Land owners grow weary of inconsiderate people and property damage. Thus, we have more and more posted signs each year.

One likes to think that educational programs, litterbugs legislation, etc., will have its effect. But the thing doesn't work out that way. A few irresponsible people in every short order can undo the good works of many.

GEAR AND DEER BUGGY



Every now and again one of my readers — one of the non-hunting ones, that is — hands me a gentle reminder that he hasn't been over to the house for a venison dinner lately. The last fellow who gave me a prod of this sort received a counter-proposition.

"You come along this fall," I told him. "Don't bother to bring a gun; just a length of strong rope. We'll get the deer all you have to do is drag it back to the car."

"Once in the car, your next job is like it to the butcher, have it skinned and then cut up into roasts, steaks, chops and hamburgers. Bring this meat down to the house and help wrap it for the freezer. This done, we'll talk about venison dinners."

No doubt about it, from the moment a deer is downed in the woods it becomes a liability, a royal pain in the neck. Dressing it out is the easy part and doesn't take long. But getting that carcass back to the car is downright hard labor, particularly if it is an up-hill drag. I shudder to think of the many weary miles I have spent on that drag rope.

Now there comes an innovation on the market which should be welcome news to the hunter. It is called "The Gear and Deer Buggy." This handy gadget comes in two sizes, the standard knapsack which can be carried comfortably on the back of a hunter and does not weighs eight pounds.

Once a deer is down, this kit can be assembled in the space of five or ten minutes, into a two-wheeled cart which will carry 200 pounds. It has bicycle wheels and no connecting axle, each one works or itself. Also, it can be used in snow that is five or six inches deep, whereupon it becomes only a buggy and off you go, much like dragging a baby carriage. The gear is lightweight aluminum. If interested, write to The Deer Buggy Co., Box 3176 Reading, Penna.

Scotsman Wins Grand Prix

WATKINS GLEN, N.Y. (AP) — Innes Ireland, a Scottish farmer, took the lead on the 57th lap of the 200-mile grand prize of the United States Sunday and stayed in front the rest of the way to beat Californian Dan Gurney by 3.2 seconds.

Ireland, Britain of Britain was third while the two favorites, Stirling Moss of Britain and Australia's Jack Brabham, had to drop out because of mechanical troubles.

Peter Ryan of Mont Tremblant, Que., who won the Canada Grand Prix here last year Saturday, drove a Lotus and finished ninth, before a crowd of 50,000.

Ireland, driving a Lotus, was clocked in two hours, 4 minutes and 45.8 seconds for the 100 miles around the Watkins Glen 2.3-mile oval. His average was 101.32 miles an hour.

Jerry Barber Pro Golfer Of the Year

DUNEDIN, Fla. (AP) — Good things seem to come in bunches for Jerry Barber, 35-year-old professional golfer from Los Angeles. He has won crowns the Professional Golfers Association player-of-the-year for 1961 in a national poll of PGA membership and sportswriters.

Once termed "too small for the tournament trail" at the five-foot six-inch Barber won this honor after finishing seventh in Phoenix, Ariz., after a session filled, 18-hole playoff with Don Janjery. After winning the first national championship of his career he was awarded the Vardon Trophy for the lowest scoring average for 1961 Ryder Cup team and then elected captain by his fellow pro members.

He will lead the 10-man group in the Ryder Cup against Great Britain's finest professionals this week in England.

Barber ranks 32nd on the PGA list of money winners with $22,913 so far this season.

'The Sound of the 60s' Started Out Promisingly

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — The Sound of the 60s, Monday night's NBC special program, started out promisingly. It gave an imaginative sample of the noises which dominate our time: The roar of a missile leaving the launching pad, the clank of a production line, the chatter of a riveting machine.

But when the program got around to a commentary, it quickly ran out of originality or steam. It really found little to say.

First the program kidded the do-it-yourself fad and the home handyman. Of course, everything he touched fell to pieces. Even Art Carney playing the hapless amateur cabinet maker and electrician failed to invest this sketch with much.

For a time the program saddled TV commercials. A mixed chorus sang a medley of the most familiar commercials tunes, ranging from cigarettes to hair oil. Then a comedy team of four satirized the commercials by using well known soap and shampoo sales pitches in a sketch about selling communism to Rumania.

Finally, Dore Schary, producer of this program, gave a mildly humorous little lecture on communications, noting how TV invariably solves all its plot problems by firing a pistol.

It was obviously a carefully prepared, well produced and expensive program which held one's attention despite its preoccupation with well worn host.

AT THE PARK — Fearless Fosdick (James Robertson Justice) and Stanley Baxter in the hilarious comedy "A Very Important Person", also starz Leslie Phillips. This double feature bill is now showing at the Park Theatre for its first showings.

Two of Remaining Great Directors Work Together

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — In a time when the movie giants have been disappearing from the Hollywood scene, it's news when two of the remaining greats are working together.

Three, actually. James Stewart and John Wayne are being directed in The Man Who Shot Liberty Valance by another legendary figure, John Ford, on Stage 10 at Paramount.

"Okay," let's shoot it," said Ford.

The scene called for Marvin to try to get himself elected delegate to the territorial convention so he could sabotage statehood on behalf of his rancher interests. Obviously he had no chance against the combined strength of Stewart and Wayne.

Two and a half hours later, they emerged from the scene.

"Never worked with Duke before," Stewart said. "Like to. Good working with Ford, too. Guy keeps a tight rein on the whole thing. Lets you know you need it."

"He's a good actor," Wayne said of his co-star. "You never have trouble working with good actors. It's the ones who might be picking their noses or scratching their rear ends who you're doing your big scene. But they don't get away with it when a guy like Ford is directing."

AT THE BELLE — Anthony Quinn and Gia Scala in a scene from Carl Foreman's "The Guns of Navarone", now Cinemascope release, also starz Gregory Peck and David Niven. Now playing an extended engagement at the Belle Theatre.

WELL ASK STUDY

RAPS SPORT RESIN

VATICAN CITY (AP) — La Civilta Cattolica, a publication of the Roman Catholic Jesuit order, says "it is simply immoral" to risk one's life in sport.

"One cannot gamble one's life for a passion for sport," it says. "To do so is neither human nor Christian."

Civilta Catolica, which frequently reflects the opinion of the Vatican, took its cue for an article from the racing tragedy at Italy's Monza track Sept. 10, Sixteen persons were killed, among them ace driver Wolfgang von Trips of Germany. His car hurtled off the track and into spectators.

Tobin Rote May Retire

TORONTO (CP) — Quarterback Tobin Rote of Toronto Argonauts is talking again about the possibility he may retire after this year's Big Four football season.

He is quoted in the Toronto Star as saying last July at the Argos' training camp that this is his final year of football.

The former National League quarterback with Detroit Lions and Green Bay Packers discussed the story this week and said "that's the way I feel, all right."

He added, however, that he believes he may be partially committed to return to Argos. He said that when he discussed with managing director Lew Hayman last December whether he would be back for this season he made a statement about the 1962 season.

"At that time in December, the 1962 season was discussed and I believe I am partially committed," he said. "I'm not certain whether this obligates me to return for a third season."

Hayman said Rote is playing under a normal one-year contract with the usual option for next season.

The Star said that the strict Argos discipline, is the chief reason for Rote's dissatisfaction. He was critical of Argos' pre-season training camp routine, when the team was confined to the grounds for 19 days in July.

Etcheverry, Cards Beaten

Hornung Scores 33 Points

NEW YORK (AP) — Verse-the Paul Hornung is putting the power in Green Bay Packers' drive to retain their Western Conference title in the National Football League.

The former Notre Dame backfield star had his best day in pro ranks Sunday when he scored 33 points on four touchdowns, a field goal and six converts in Green Bay's 45-7 romp of Baltimore Colts.

Hornung, who set an NFL scoring record with 176 points during the 1960 campaign that swept the Packers to the top in the West, has amassed 66 points in the first four games this season.

The Green Bay victory, coupled with San Francisco 49ers' 26-0 thumping of Los Angeles Rams, broke a four - way tie for first place in the Western Division and left the Packers and 49ers at the head of the race with 3-1 won-lost records.

HAS ROUGH TIME

Quarterback Sam Etcheverry of St. Louis Cardinals was belog subjected to the roughest treatment of his brilliant football career as the Cards dropped a 24-3 decision to New York Giants.

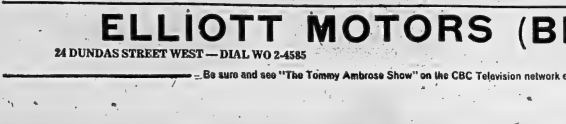
Etcheverry, nine - year veteran of Montreal Alouettes of the Big Four, completed only two of seven pass attempts for a total of 18 yards and carried the ball once for a loss of one yard.

The Giants' win left them tied for first place in the East with three other clubs that won Sunday and have 3-1 marks. Cleveland Browns beat Washington Redskins 31-8, Philadelphia Eagles defeated Pittsburgh Steelers 31-16 and Dallas Cowboys overpowered Minnesota Twins 28-0. Chicago Bears moved up in the West by blasting Detroit Lions 31-17.

The New York defence swarmed over Etcheverry in the third quarter, causing two fumbles that set up New York touchdowns. Etcheverry was replaced by Ralph Guglielmi with the Giants enjoying a 21-3 lead.

San Diego Chargers, only unbeaten team in the American League, beat Boston Patriots 38-27 Sunday to stay firmly on top of the Western Division. The defending league champions, Houston Oilers suffered their third straight defeat — 22-12 by Buffalo Bills — and plunged into last place in the Eastern Division.

Dallas Texans beat Denver Broncos 19-12 to strengthen their second - place spot in the Western Division.



TOPS OWN MARK

MOSCOW (AP) — Irina Press, Russia's Olympic 80 - metre hurdles champion, broke her own world record for the pentathlon with a score of 5,137 points for the five events in the Soviet track and field championships Monday. The total was 117 points better than the world mark she set at Leningrad last August. She is the only woman to top 5,000 points.

Clay Wins Over Miteff

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Cassius Clay, in serious trouble during the early rounds, came back in the sixth round Saturday night to win by a technical knockout over rugged Alex Miteff.

It was the ninth consecutive victory for Clay, who weighed 198 pounds to Miteff's 220.

Miteff, bleeding from a cut on the nose, had the former Olympic champion backing away from him constantly during the first two rounds with his punishing body attack.

In the sixth round, Clay sent across a sizzling right that dumped Miteff to the floor. Referee Don Ashbury stopped the fight at that point, one minute 45 seconds of the sixth round of the scheduled 10-rounder.

Yankees Put Series Away

Sat., Sunday Wins Did It

CINCINNATI (AP) — For Cincinnati Reds fans, getting a look at a world series is their town for the first time in more than 30 years, it was a gloomy weekend.

The two wins New York Yank. ees chalked up here Saturday and Sunday just about put it on ice.

The Yanks squeaked by 3-2 Saturday but clobbered the Reds 7-0 Sunday to take a 3-1 stranglehold in the best-of-seven series.

They ended the baseball classic with their 13-3 victory Monday.

Capitalizing on a Yankees error in the third inning Saturday, the National League champs moved ahead 1-0. Elio Chacon, speedy Cincinnati second baseman, beat out a bunt for a single and sped on to second when Yankees starter Bill Stafford's throw to first was wild.

Two outs later, outfielder Frank Robinson smashed a double off the wall in left, scoring Chacon easily.

YANKS START IN SEVENTH

Cincinnati knuckleballer Bob Purkey, who went the distance, kept the Yankees off the scoreboard until the seventh. Tony Kubek opened that frame with a single. With one out, Purkey's pitch to Mickey Mantle got past catcher Jcih Edwards and Kubek went to second.

Mantle scored for the second out, bringing up Yogi Berra. Yogi lifted a fly into short right. Robinson and Chacon collided as they both tried to make the catch and Kubek was across to tie it 1-1.

The Reds bounced back in their half of the inning. Edwards belted a double and came home on Eddie Kasko's single to give the National Leaguers a 2-1 edge.

And Roger Maris, Yankees slugger won belted a record 61 homers during the season, came out of his hitting slump in grand style in the ninth. Hitless in that point in the series, Maris hammered a Purkey pitch over the fence in right to win it.

FORD BREAKS RECORD

The Yankees noted supreme in the Sunday shutout. Lefty Ace Whitey Ford broke Babe Ruth's 43 - year - old record by pitching 32 consecutive innings of world series ball without allowing a run before he left the game in the sixth with an injured foot. He had allowed four singles.

The Babe set his record of 29 1-3 scoreless series innings in 1916.

Cincinnati starter Jim O'Toole and Jim Brosnan, who relieved him in the sixth, were tagged for the runs.

Bobby Richardson paced the New York attack, collecting a double and two singles. Moose Skowron had a perfect batting day with a walk and three singles.

MARIS SCORES WIENNR

A walk to Maris proved O'Toole's undoing in the fourth inning. The ailing Mantle singled to scratch — his first hit of the series. Maris scored when Elsie Howard hit into a double play.

The Yanks made it 2-0 in the fifth when Ford walked and Richardson and Kubek singled.

Against Brosnan in the sixth, Howard hit a double. Berra was given an intentional walk and Skowron's scratch single loaded the bases. Clete Boyer lifted the score to 4-0 with a long double that brought home Howard and Berra.

New York rounded out the scoring with three runs in the seventh. Richardson singled and took second when the ball got away from Vada Pinson. Maris was intentionally passed and both runners advanced on a wild pitch. Hector Lopez brought them both in with a single and Skowron singled Lopez home.

Marlins May Move Again

CHARLESTON W. Va. (AP)—Charleston Marlins of the International League are reported on the verge of moving to Atlanta, Ga.

The Charleston Gazette says official announcement of the switch will come shortly.

"We just couldn't justify staying here another season the way the weather is in Charleston," the newspaper quoted Marlins owner Bill MacDonald as saying.

The club started the 1961 season at San Juan, Puerto Rico, and moved here early in the campaign. MacDonald said the team lost $180,000 during the season, part of it at San Juan.

Many of the Marlins' games here had to be postponed because of rain or fog.

Yankees Take Series In Five Games

Win Three Over Weekend

By JERRY LISKA

CINCINNATI (CP) — The invincible New York Yankees once again are the champions of baseball again after an almost effortless five-game world series victory over Cincinnati Reds.

The Yanks ended the National League's two-year domination of the series by coming up with flashing performances by less publicized players as their super stars faltered. Mickey Mantle and Roger Maris, who combined for 115 home runs and 279 runs batted in during the season, contributed only two RBI during the series.

With Mantle and Yogi Berra out of the lineup with medical problems and Maris handcuffed at the plate, a new crop of heroes walked out into the bright sunshine of Crosley Field Monday and wrapped up the best-of-seven series 4-1 by walloping the Reds 13-5.

The men who bombarded the Reds into submission were Johnny Blanchard, Hector Lopez, Bill Skowron and Clete Boyer.

Blanchard hit a game seven homer — a three-run blast in the fifth inning — and added a little salvo in Monday's record-setting finale — and the superb pitching balanced Yankees won their 19th world series, leaving out of the running Reds, thumping since 1954, when New York Giants whipped bounced Cleveland Indians in four straight.

This turned out to be a series of unusual individual performances by the poised and timely. hitting Yankees. Personable Ralph Houk was only the third manager to win a series title in his first year.

The Yankees RBI leader in the series was utility man Lopez, a .220 hitter during the season, who drove across seven runs with three singles, including a triple and homer Monday—in 10 at-bats.

Blanchard, another utility man, finished fast as Mantle's aching leg muscles kept him only 21 innings of play. Blanchard drove a game-tying pinch homer Saturday, flying right field as Maris switched to centre Monday, the thousand catcher-out. Reider slammed a two-run homer in New York's five run first and finished with two walks, a double and a single.

Although slightly lighter Yankees rampbuckling second baseman Bobby Richardson came through with some spectacular hitting series, matching a Sveganas record with nine hits in 22 times at bat for a .381 average. However, Babe Ruth once got 10 hits in four games.

Based on a distribution, unofficially, of 34 shares per club from the $271,289 winner's take, each Yankee was tabbed to collect about $8,000. Each Cincinnati player would get $5,300 on the same basis. Next settlement will be announced later by Commissioner Ford Frick.

Cincinnati, which set a one-team series record by using eight pitchers in matched action by employing 21 players Monday, matched the Yanks' successive three-game blistering on home grounds since the Yankees turned the same trick on Brooklyn Dodgers in 1949.

The Redlegs didn't get much help from their two heralded stars, Frank Robinson and Vada Pinson, the bulwark of their attack in their amazing drive to the pennant.

Robinson, who had only one hit in 11 trips until Monday's game, slammed a three - run homer and a double — but hit only .200 for the series. Pinson collected only two hits in 22 trips. Eddie Kasko, a .271 regular-season hitter, led the Reds with seven hits in 22 at-bats.

Monday's wind-up was just about wrapped up in the first inning when Joey Jay, who had given the Reds their only series triumph with a four-hit, 6-2 victory in the second game, was shelled from the mound in a six-hit attack.

Jay, who faithful got a chance to whoop it up briefly in the third when Robinson clouted his three-run homer off Yankees' starter Ralph Terry and again in the fifth when Wally Post clipped reliefer Bud Daley for a two-run homer. At the latter point, however, the Yanks were rolling along in front 11-3.

A DIE-IN FIRE

CUTCHOGUE, N.Y. (AP) — Four migrant workers died Monday in a fire that destroyed the frame barracks of the Eastern Suffolk co-operative labor camp. Authorities believe an oil stove explosion touched off the blaze.

Forty-Two World Series Marks Broken

CINCINNATI (AP) — Forty-two world series records were broken and 31 tied in the 1961 competition between New York Yankees and Cincinnati Reds.

Yogi Berra, the Yankee outfielder, and Whitey Ford, New York's left-handed pitching ace, shattered 16 marks between them. Berra set nine records and Ford seven.

Ford extended his consecutive scoreless innings streak to 32 and helped the record of 29 2-3 innings established by Babe Ruth in 1918.

Individual records broken:

Says Cincy Manager

'Got The Kind Of Ball Club We Started With'

Cincinnati (AP) — "We just got the ball kicked out of us."

That was manager Fred Hutchinson's terse comment Monday after his Cincinnati Reds were walloped 13-5 by New York Yankees and lost the world series four games to one.

"I sure hope we get a shot at them next year," he added.

The Reds' clubhouse was quiet. Maybe there weren't tears in the eyes of Gordy Coleman as he ran the gauntlet to the clubhouse but they looked like tears.

Hutchinson ducked out to go over to the Yankees clubhouse to congratulate manager Ralph Houk. Then he came back for the post-mortem.

The key play of the series, he said, was Roger Maris's home run in the ninth inning of Saturday's game which gave the Yankees a 3-2 victory.

LAUDS REDS

Even in his dismay, Hutchinson praised his ball club.

"We kept battling back," he said. "We kept scratching back but our pitching just didn't hold up. This is a fine ball club."

Starter Joey Jay shelled in the first inning said he had never under - estimated the Yankees but that "they made the most of their hits and we didn't."

Bob Purkey, who had been slated to pitch in the sixth game but was rushed in Monday in relief, said, "We've been hot or cold all season. Today we were cold."

In closing, Hutchinson said: "Next is going to be a challenge to us to repeat as (National League champions). But, we are the champions and they're gonna have to beat us."

Whip Kingston, Meet Kitchener

Kenmors In Junior Finals

Belleville Kenmors and the Kitchener Dodgers will meet on October 14 and 15 for the "A" championship.

The Kenmors easily swept aside the Kingston bid for the honors, taking the "rubber" game of the Eastern Ontario finals Sunday by a 15-2 score.

Kitchener squeezed out a 2-1 victory over Oshawa yesterday to win their best-of-three semi-finals series. Oshawa took the first game 3-1 and the Dodgers the second 13-0.

The first game of the best-of-three finals will be played in Kitchener next Saturday staring 2 p.m. The second game is slated for the Fair Grounds here on Sunday, starting at the same time.

Larry Soden held the Kingston batters to two hits and a single run on Sunday although he walked ten batters and struck out nine. Failure of the Kingston team to hit in the clutches and the bobbles afield aided in the overall defeat.

Joe Kotowicz started for the Kingston youngsters and provided the only real threat at the bats. They got to him for five hits for four runs in the six innings then blew the roof in on him in the seventh.

They blasted him for three hits for as many runs in that frame and got relief from Brad Aylesworth the same treatment. They took him for two clouts and a double-play tallies before the inning ended.

They lit the fire under him again in the ninth, blasting out four hits for five runs to tuck the rout away.

Two hits, a walk, error and passed ball gave the Kenmors three runs in the opening frame. Locke's double and an error accounted for a single in the second.

Kingston scored single runs in the fifth and sixth, both unearned, on a walk and two of the three Belleville errors paving the way.

Earl and Dave McConnell were the only Kingston batters to make the Soden slants safe-Both were left off base in the third and fourth innings and both "died" on the sacks.

Ricky Locke was outstanding at the plate for the winners. He had a perfect day with five hickory, walking once and driving out a double and four singles in six times at bat.

Every player on the Kenmors batting list got a hit with the exception of Billy Moore. Fullwell hits a double and single. Soden and Mavety were good for two singles each. Asselline, Forsythe, Hunter and Goyer each got up with singles.

Kingston rarely threatened. They had a chance to score in the sixth but the best they could do was one run. Only ten men faced Soden in the last three innings.

In the "big sixth" Fullwell's double, singles by Locke, Goyer, Soden and Mavety, a Kingston error and a passed ball accounted for the six runs.

In the ninth, back-to-back singles by Mavety and Hunter started the five-run onslaught. Singles by Locke and Soden, two walks and an error, rounded out the attack.

The teams:

Kenmors: Locke, Fullwell, Asselline, Goyer, Soden, Hunter, Mavety, Moore, Forsythe.

Kingston: Earl, Aylesworth, Thompson, Hincer, Shea, Robertson, McConnell, Fraser, McCue, Osborne, O'Donnell, Kotowicz.

All-Stars Defeat Hawks

CHICAGO (AP) — The National Hockey League all-stars, led by a Detroit Red Wings line of Gordie Howe, Alex Delvecchio and Norm Ullman, defeated the Stanley Cup champions, Chicago Black Hawks, 3-1 Saturday night.

The Detroit trio teamed up for goals by Delvecchio in the first period and Howe in the second to gain a measure of revenge for their Stanley Cup final last to the Black Hawks last season.

A record crowd of 14,782 witnessed the 13th all-star battle in which the stars now hold a 7-4 edge with four of the games ending in ties. The previous all-star high attendance was 14,160 in Toronto in 1947.

It was an outstanding contest and had a touch of everything, including some smart checking and fights on the ice.

Don McKenney of Boston Bruins scored the other goal for the all-stars, a second-period counter that gave them a 3-0 lead. Four minutes later Eric Nesterenko scored the only Chicago, getting Chicago's only goal.

Reds Made Pirie Offers

LONDON (Reuters) — Britain's Prime Minister Pirie says Russia offered to give him round-the-world air tickets if he would run in a test match in Moscow.

Pirie, leader of the 3,000-metre world record, recently turned professional. He revealed the Russian offer in an article in the Sunday newspaper, The Observer.

Writing about the payments made to amateur athletes, he said the Russians first approached him in 1958, offering him round-the-world air tickets for himself and his wife if he would appear at the Moscow meeting.

When he refused, they offered to pay his way to the 1960 Rome Olympic Games as well.

Sport Slices...

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

It's all over but the heartbreak and the collection of bets—and the inevitable pools.

The Yankee power, awesome and thunderous, broke into full explosion yesterday in the fifth game of the series to give the five-game series bottom the financial edge, and we Reds supporters the heartache and the old Dodger slogan "Wait till next year."

There is no doubt about it, the Yankee power at the plate held the story all through the series. True, in the second game gallant Joey Jay stifled the Yankee bats but it was merely delaying the inevitable.

In the third game the Yankee power broke out when the rules of the breaks should have won for the Reds. Instead the "rules" broke against them. A home run tied it in the eighth. A home run won it in the ninth. This from the bat of the dormant Roger Maris, breaker of Ruthian records and a non-batting asset to the Yankees thus far in the series.

But yesterday, ah, that was a different story. In the stronghold of the Reds in Crosley Park the Yanks took command on the second game here, Joey Jay, and blasted him to the showers in the first inning. That was the ball game as far as the Reds were concerned.

It was heartbreaking and disappointing to the millions of underdog supporters. It was a brilliant effort on the part of the Yankee batting order and delight for the Bronx Bombers' supporters, everywhere.

After all it was perhaps a forlorn hope for the Cincy crew and the National League supporters everywhere. The Yankee pitching was brilliant in the first game with Whitey Ford setting the Reds down with a five-hitter. Joey Jay was the hero of the second but after that it was the batting breaks and the Bombers' power at the plate that swept the tide of victory.

After all it was proven that seven out of nine, potential home-run sluggers which can cluster clouts at all seasons of the season, and not by any ball game. We Reds' customers held our breath every time a Yankee came to bat—we "hoped" every time at Red pitcher. Such is the Yankee pitching.

But there it was—and is. The Yankee power heralded and yakked to a stomach-sickening sickness by those top second guessers, Mel Allen and Joe Garagiola, finally paid off.

One thing we missed this year from the twin scenes of action—Yankee Stadium and Crosley Field —was the colorful grabs — or stories of it — of the grand old guy, Casey Stengel.

Manager Ralph Houk of the Yankees who won his first world series in his first year as successor to the colorful Casey Wa seldom mentioned. True he played a manager's part all right, but he definitely was not the sportswriters' dream as copy from a managerial point of view.

In fact I do not know what a team like the Yankees with its Mantle, Maris, Skowron, Berra, Howard, Kubek, Richardson, Ford and Arroyo needs a manager for. That gang could put a line-up in a paper bag, shake it and spill it and come up with a powerful combination, no matter who came first in the spill-out.

A FINE JOB

The Kenmors for the second year in a row stand on the threshold of an all-Ontario junior baseball championship. They brushed aside the Kingston threat on Sunday after the Limestone City kids threw a couple of scares into them, but they hit their championship stride to take a walkaway 15-2 victory and the series.

The Western Ontario threat to the Kenny's title looks like a powerful one. The kids from the city of smackrazt and sparkle-ite, but to mention those tarty pig-tails look like formidable foes and should give the 1960 champions a full run for the money.

They easily disposed of Chatham in the quarter finals and were taken to three sets by the strong young Oshawa club before the Motor City youngsters said "uncle." They dropped the first till 3-1, turned and shellacked Oshawa 12-0 in the second title and scored a squeaky 3-1 victory on Sunday to grab the series.

Kitchener will be tough to beat. And the Kenmors must needs be at full strength at all times if they are to retain their championship. The closer they top the tougher the competition and the Kenmors learned through their experience with Kingston that it is not wise to send a pesish-work club to win ball games at this stage of the situation.

The series gets under way in Kitchener next Saturday, with the second game scheduled here on Sunday.

Montreal Team Wins Rally

GANANOQUE (CP)—A Montreal team of driver Les Rice and navigator Robin Edwardes won the Thousand Island Sports Car Rally Saturday.

Rice repeated his 1959 victory by driving Edwardes's Peugeot over a 736-mile eastern Ontario course in 17 hours and with only two points off a perfect score. Great Masters and Bill Lecours of Montreal finished second.

Larry Wood of Kingston won the driving skill tests.

Thirty - one cars from the Montreal, Toronto and Ottawa areas competed in the rally organized by the St. Lawrence Automobile Club of Kingston and Belleville.

Defeat Hamilton, Montreal

Argos, Riders Win Holiday Games

By TH CANADIAN PRESS

Stunning last-ditch drives and some clutch defensive work changed the complexion of the Eastern Football Conference during the weekend.

Ottawa Rough Riders left 25,273 Hamilton fans aghast Monday by scoring two touchdowns in the last five minutes to defeat the Tiger-Cats 14-10 and tie them for first place.

In Montreal Saturday, rookie defensive halfback Art Johnson climaxed a reford - tying performance of four interceptions by running the last one back 67 yards for a touchdown. It provided the margin Toronto Argonauts needed to defeat the Alouettes 23-27. The Als are all but out of playoff contention.

With Hamilton leading 10-9 well into the final quarter, Gerry Nesbitt crashed in on Tiger-Cats quarterback Bernie Faloney as he lifted his arm to pass. The ball bounced into Jim Reynolds's arm and he had a clear path to the goal line 87 yards away.

That fired up the Riders and seemed to take the starch out of the Hamilton defence. Next time the defending Grey Cup champion got the ball, on their own 17, they made headway but will.

Chuck Stanley, with Sarnia Golden Bears in the now-defunct Ontario Rugby Football Union Senior series the last three years, capped it off with the final seconds ticking away. Sent wide to the right by quarterback Russ Jackson in an apparent attempt to move the ball into a better position for a game-tying field goal, he kept going for 32 yards behind good blocking for the final touchdown. Stanley also converted both touchdowns. Hamilton's scoring came from a 50-yard touchdown pass by Faloney to Gerry McDougall and a convert and 47-yard field goal by Don Sutherlin.

The Alouettes, ahead 27-19 in the last quarter, seemed secure until the last two of Johnson's interceptions. The first led directly to a Toronto touchdown, and the second was the coup de grace that sent 18,075 fans home in gloom.

The Argos got four other touchdowns on passes from quarterback Tobin Rote, who finished his old-time form and clicked on 30 of 38 throws. Halfback Dick Shatto caught two and ends Bob Jewett and Ron Morris one each. Wes Gideon, a former Alouette, kicked two converts and Bill Mitchell one.

Montreal touchdowns were on a one-yard plunge by quarterback Gerry Thomphins, a pass to end Rene Ruzzin on a 94-yarder, a 35-yard run by George Dixon, two converts and field goals of 33 and 31 yards by Bill Sewley and a single by Jack Spanbip.

'Greatest Team Ever'-Yogi

This is the last of a series of exclusive world series written for The Associated Press by Yogi Berra of the New York Yankees.

By YOGI BERRA

NEW YORK (AP)—This has to be the greatest Yankee team I ever played on and I've now been through 12 world series.

We had six men who hit 21 or more home runs. We had two men — Roger Maris and Mickey Mantle — who hit 115 homers. And we set a home run record of 240 in winning the American League pennant.

Other Yankee teams had great players like Joe DiMaggio, Hank Bauer and Phil Rizzuto and pitchers like Allie Reynolds, Vic Raschi, Ed Lopat and Joe Page. But we had team balance.

Ralph Houk, our manager, rebuilt the pitching staff in one season. You can't do that with a so-so team.

We had Whitey Ford. Ralph made him our No. 1 pitcher right from the start, using him with three days rest most of the year and he won 25 games and pitched 14 runiess innings in the world series against the Reds to beat Babe Ruth's pitching record.

It was a real happy club. Everybody was pulling for everybody. I actually got Mantle root for Maris and Maris root for Mantle all year. You don't see that on all clubs. Money means so much. But with us it seems to be pride. Money is secondary. We know it's bound to come and we put out as hard as we can.

LAUGH HOUR

Ralph did a wonderful job. He made us all happy. I can't recall that we had one squabble all year, and goodness knows we've had a few in the past.

This was a team effort. Everybody helped. We've had deeper pitching staffs in the past but for hitting and defensive ability this 1961 club is the best.

I almost got killed and missed yesterday's last game in Cincinnati but with a team such as ours you share in the victory by just sitting on the bench and lending morale support.

When I dove for Elio Chacon's short fly on Sunday I cut my forehead with my sun glasses but later pulled a shoulder muscle sliding into third. It tightened up on Sunday night that when I awakened Monday I could hardly move my right arm. It would have been silly for me to try to play, record or no record.

I knew I needed only one or two hits to tie Babe Ruth's record for hitting .300 in six different world series but with such spirit as ours, team victory means more than personal glory. I never went in much for it anyway. A record in defeat is a hollow thing.

It was a grand feeling getting off at Penn Station this morning and heading for home. (Montclair, N.J.) I like to think I earned my pay this season. Playing left field—and making mental notes for my stories — wasn't easy. I only hope I'm still around next year and can get into another world series. There's nothing like it."

WINS 41 GAMES

TOKYO (AP) — Righthander Kazuhisa Inao set a record of 41 victories in a season Sunday as Nishitetsu Lions beat the Daiei Flyers 4-2 in Japan's Pacific Baseball League. Inao, who has appeared in 78 games, has lost 13. The Lions have four games remaining.

Bombers Take Over From Eskys

British Columbia Lions limped home today from a disastrous road trip to the Prairies, their hopes for a Western Football Conference playoff spot shattered for the seventh time in eight years of competition.

At the more successful end of the stick, Winnipeg Blue Bombers threatened to win their fourth consecutive WFC title as they regained top place from the slumping Edmonton Eskimos.

Lions gave up a first-half lead Monday in Regina and lost the game 17-7 to fourth-place Saskatchewan Roughriders. They played with a 34-20 B.C. loss to the Bombers in Winnipeg Saturday night. It left the coast club with three points and three games remaining—and no hope of catching the Calgary Stampeders who have 10 points in third place.

However, B.C. General Manager Herb Capozzi announced Monday that Lions have protested the Winnipeg loss to Canadian Football Commissioner G. Sydney Hall.r. Capozzi complained that referee Bud Irving ruled the ball dead while it was still in the air on a B.C. field goal attempt early in the fourth quarter. Lions were awarded a single on the play and led 20-17 at that point.

BEAT ESKIMOS

Stampeders enh a n c e d their chances of catching the last playoff berth Saturday night by handing Eskimos their fourth loss in six games—a 28-23 decision in Edmonton. It left Edmonton with 12 points, one behind Bombers who also have two games in hand.

General Tendencies: An unusually good day to quietly investigate whatever you do not understand and to find out exactly where you stand now with all others, and this applies to emotional and/or romantic as well as more materialistic relationships. You can get a better understanding of your obligations to groups as well as to individuals.

Aries (March 21 to April 19) Anything connected with monetary or property affairs can be very wisely handled now. Later, devote your time to lovely one and see that you reach far greater understanding and rapport. Be kind and thoughtful instead, of forceful.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) Fine morning for conferring with associates and hitting upon the most worthwhile methods and policies for greater success. Then the evening is ideal for being with good friends and having a wonderful time at favorite amusements.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) Utilize all that fine energy putting your important tasks out of the way quickly and efficiently. Don't be too proud to ask a clever fellow-worker for suggestions that can be very helpful to you. Then follow and produce!

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) — You can make this a most happy day, if you carry out in the pink of condition and appearance at its best, then get off to places and things with good friends or business acquaintances you enjoy. Fine benefits can also be yours.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) — Be sure you carry through with obligations by family and friends by save yourself trouble in the future as well as do what is really your duty. This will bring about good will that will stand you in good stead in the early future, too.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22)—Meetings of all kinds with associates for the purpose of advancing in your career are fine now, as well as doing any buying or making important calls. Don't hesitate to express your constructive ideas where public is concerned.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22)—Important you concentrate on vital financial affairs or property matters today instead of spending so much time trying to help others. Be practical in all that you do.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Almost anything you desire can be attained today if you put that magnetic quality you possess to constructive use, especially in personal matters of importance to you. Be very sociable and friendly in p.m. at some fine function.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to eDc. 21) — Private affairs of all sort can meet with success today, especially if you go to experts for advice on what you do not exactly comprehend. Also, confer with good friends. Evening is particularly fine for romance and fun. Be gay.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Good comrades can be very helpful in assisting you to reach goals, particularly where social or business matters are concerned. Get together and you will make fine new contacts who are influential and well-informed. Grow.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Important for you to be very conscientious where public duties or matters of credit are concerned throughout day and evening. This can lead to fine benefit and acclaim, but just the opposite if you are careless, thoughtless.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) This is a day when you can pick up wonderful new ideas from partners and your newspapers, as well as other printed media that is worthwhile. Get busy early becoming better informed on whatever most interests you so, Expand.

If your child is born today—the greatest interest in life will be to investigate, no matter whether it be in the field of science, medicine, police or collecting movies etc. There is also the ability to take on large projects and organizing them so beautifully that everything runs like clock-work. A fine, comprehensive course of education is a must here, from the study of Latin to advanced psychology.

Science Now Shrinks Piles Without Pain Or Discomfort

Finds Healing Substance That Relieves Pain And Itching As It Shrinks Hemorrhoids

Toronto, Ont. (Special)—For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids and tin relieve pain and itching. Thousands have been relieved with this inexpensive substance right in the privacy of their own home without any discomfort or inconvenience.

In one hemorrhoid case after another, "very prompt improvement was reported and verified by doctor's observations."

Pain was promptly relieved. And while gently relieving pain, actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most amazing of all—this improvement was maintained in cases where doctors' observations were continued over a period of many months!

In fact, results were so thorough that sufferers were able to make such statements as "Piles have ceased to be a problem!" And among these sufferers were a very wide variety of hemorrhoidal conditions, some of even 10 to 20 years' standing.

All this, without the use of narcotics, anesthetics or astringents of any kind. The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne)—the discovery of a world-famous research scientist. Already, Bio-Dyne is in wide use for healing injured tissue on all parts of the body.

This new healing substance is offered in suppository or ointment form called Preparation H. Ask for individually sealed convenient Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H ointment with special applicator. Preparation H is sold at all drug stores. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded.

National Art Treasures Sent to Canada During War Now Back in Poland

By ALAN HARVEY

CRACOW (CP)—The national treasures are back in Poland, and all's right with the world.

The beautiful Arras tapestries, sent to Canada for safekeeping during the Second World War, are hanging again in the regalic of Wawel, burna: place of most of Poland's kings.

Any resentment that Poland may have felt over Canada's tardy return of the treasures has faded. When the priceless works of art came back to Wawel early this year, to the big red building on a hill in this ancient capital, there were scenes of unabashed emotion among the sentimental Poles. Some wept openly.

Every week now, thousands put huge felt slippers on their feet and pad round the rooms.

HALL OF HEADS

The castle is approached through a rectangular courtyard. Arcaded loggias from which ladies used to watch their knights perform in tournaments, recall the splendors of the past.

Inside, attention is caught by the "Hall of Heads" with its coffered larchwood ceiling, each compartment once having contained the grotesque likeness of a human head.

Austrian soldiers pilfered some of the heads as souvenirs and only two or three dozen remain, of the original 194. Among other attractions is a Renaissance frieze by Hans Durer, brother of the famous Albrecht.

The tapestries, depicting Biblical scenes, exotic animals and landscapes, were made in Brussels on orders of King Sigismond Augustus in the 16th century by Dr. Jerzy Szablowski, director of the collection, told me that as far as he knows there is no larger assortment of such valuable tapestries anywhere in the world.

"For us these treasures, considering their history, have a very special sentimental value," said Dr. Szablowski, who went to Canada to supervise the return of the tapestries, gold plate and battle relics that are a priceless part of Poland's heritage.

QUEBEC VISITOR

He spoke of his pleasure over a recent visit to Wawel by Antoine Roy, director of the Quebec provincial museum where the treasures were stored before their journey home.

On Wawel hill is the largest crypt of kings in Europe. Nearly all of Poland's monarchs are buried there, along with national poet Adam Mickiewicz and Tadeusz Kosciuszko, leader of the 1794 uprising.

Cracow has many reasons for quiet pride. It was a big city long before the Middle Ages. During the 11th century reign of Casimir the Restorer, it became Poland's capital, and there is still rivalry still between Cracow and the present capital, Johnny-come-lately Warsaw.

Warsaw bid strongly for the treasures, but Cracow dug in its heels, and finally won.

A powerful silverrent in Cracow is the old market square, where peasant women squat beside flower and vegetable stalls in the shadow of the famed Church of Our Lady Mary.

ANCIENT UNIVERSITY

The quiet charm typical of Cracow is seen also in the city's Jagiellonian University, founded in 1364 by Casimir the Great. It is the second oldest in Europe, after Prague, and is getting ready for anniversary celebrations in 1964.

A unique experience can be savored in Cracow. On the stroke of every hour, a bugle trumpeter appears at a window high in the tower of Our Lady Mary's Church. As the trumpeter faces in turn the four points of the compass, the visitor hears the soft, plaintive notes of the "hejnal," an ancient call to arms.

Suddenly, the music stops. The broken note recalls how a 13th century trumpeter fell, an arrow through his throat, during an attack by the Tartars of Genghis Khan.

Every summer, a man dressed as a Tartar rides through Cracow on a wooden horse, carrying spear and bow and lashing out at onlookers with a hemp whip, a symbol of misery brought by alien invaders.

But it is the trumpeter's call sounding clear and sad over the square, that every traveller carries back in memory. It is a symbol of the tenacity of Polish tradition, along with the tapestries in the castle on the hill.

Monty Lucky He Was Not Relieved of His Command

LONDON (AP) — Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery was lucky not to be relieved of his command by Gen. Dwight Eisenhower in the last months of the Second World War, a British general suggests in a book published in London.

Gen. Sir Frederick Morgan, who was attached to supreme headquarters of the Allied expeditionary force, tells this story in "Overture to Overlord."

Montgomery tried to press the American into letting the Allied armies advance on a narrow front. Eisenhower stood firm for a drive to the Rhine on a broad front.

Montgomery also found the late Gen. Walter Bedell Smith, Eisenhower's chief of staff, "white with passion" at his desk. On the desk lay a telephone from which a voice was crackling.

"Look, boy," Smith said. "That's your bloody marshal on the other end of that. I can't talk to him any more. Now you go on."

Morgan told Montgomery that unless he could be told all the available supplies would be withdrawn from the British to the Americans.

"That worked," he says.

Morgan later learned that Eisenhower could have asked Montgomery's immediate relief but, as a diplomat, he saw that such a step would have damaged British-American unity.

Move Defeated At Windup Of Convention

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — A move to specify persons not to be listed in the Ontario New Democratic Party executive was defeated Monday at the windup of the party's founding convention here.

A resolution, supported by the constitution committee, would have prohibited membership to anyone associated with a Communist, Trotskyist, Fascist or other totalitarian group.

But David Lewis, vice-president of the federal New Democratic Party, said the Ontario constitution ale ady provides protection against infiltration by unwelcome persons.

The constitution says membership shall be open to every resident of Ontario, regardless of race, creed or colour who undertakes that he will abide by the constitution and principles of the party and is not, or ceases to be, a member or supporter of any other political party.

A number of delegates said the resolution suggested guilt by association and a person belonging to a union considered by the Communist-dominated might be denied party membership.

Pearson Calls For Steadiness And Strength

TORONTO (CP) — Lester B. Pearson called Monday for steadiness and strength among workers and party members in the world survive the nuclear stalemate.

The national Liberal party leader rejected the fear that says we must give in to surrender and survival, or resistance and start a war. He said fear also can produce strength and urged a policy that seeks "survival without surrender and resistance without ruin."

Mr. Pearson told the association of United States and Canadian School Business Officials that the policies of both countries must help provide "steadiness and strength to avoid a slip" from the brink of war.

A system must be worked out whereby the federal government provides more aid while clearly leaving educational policy to provincial governments, Mr. Pearson said.

Mr. Pearson also called for a positive approach to the Europeans Common Market, suggesting Canada and the United States should work for its expansion to include countries of the Board of Governors in the City of Belleville, in the City of Belleville, or in a Trust Company registered under the Local Loan and Trust Corporations Act, 1957, S.O. 1957, Chapter 222.

Peace Marchers Leave Moscow On Way Home

MOSCOW (Reuters)—Twenty peace marchers from Canada, the United States, Britain and West Germany left here for home by train Sunday after a heated argument with a Soviet collector about their accommodation.

As the Iran - the - bomb marchers climbed into the train with their knapsacks and carried a Russian ticket collector appeared and began to argue with them and the Russian peace committee officials.

The demonstrators resulted in a decision that the marchers would sleep three to a compartment.

The four Russian peace officials kissed the women marchers on both cheeks and shook hands heartily with the men as they said farewell.

The Soviet press has avoided mentioning any of the difficulties encountered by the marchers in presenting their case.

MAN STREET SPEECHES

These included the official Communist ban on demonstrating outside the defence ministry or speaking in the streets, although the marchers were delighted to be greeted by many Soviet Army barracks outside the capital.

Nearly 8,000 leaflets in English and Russian, specially flown in Moscow for the march, were confiscated by the Russians at Moscow's International Airport and sent on with them.

The official Soviet reception of the marchers was "the polite and sincere motives" of the marchers, to salute their "courageous struggle for peace" and to point out that unilateral disarmament is unthinkable to Communists.

Horseman Seriously Hurt, Companion Dies

TORONTO (CP) — Gail Ross 19 - year - old Edmonton girl and Sheryl Gould, Canada's international horse-jumping team member, placing first in the trials, lays seriously injured in hospital after a weekend car accident that killed her companion.

Miss Ross, picked to represent Canada in her first big event in Mexico City next month, was following treatment for skull injuries, a fractured jaw and facial cuts.

Lewis Christian Scott, 20, a riding player and Cornell University student, was killed when he swerved off the road on a curve and hit a tree as he was driving Miss Ross back to their hotel Sunday.

Plans for the Canadian equestrians team to compete in the United States later this week are being reconsidered.

The scene for the Thanksgiving weekend from university in Hanna, Alta., took Miss Ross duck hunting Saturday and then to a dinner party at his home in nearby Markham.

60 Fatalities Across Canada During Holiday

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ontario and Quebec led a high toll of traffic fatalities in Canada during the Thanksgiving weekend.

A Canadian Press survey of accidents and deaths during the holiday period, taken from 6 p.m. Friday to Monday midnight, counted a total of 60 deaths — three were on the highways.

Seven drownings were reported, six in Ontario. There was one death by fire, in Alberta, three hunting accidents and six deaths through suicide.

Provincial figures with traffic deaths bracketed:

Ontario 25 (11); Quebec 14 (11) Alberta 6 (4); Manitoba 4 (4); Nova Scotia 3 (3) New Brunswick 2 (1); British Columbia 4 (3) and Saskatchewan 2 (2). No deaths were reported in Newfoundland and Prince Edward Island.

The survey does not include natural deaths, industrial accidents, shootings and drowning.

Students End Picketing for Nuclear Ban

ONTARIO INTELLIGENCER, Tuesday, October 10, 1961

OTTAWA (CP)—Professor university student protesting against nuclear arms ended a 73-hour picketing of Parliament Hill Monday with 73 seconds of silence beneath the Peace Tower.

About 100 pickets remained at the 11 a.m. finish of the demonstration that began at 11 a.m. Friday, organized by the Combined Universities Campaign for Nuclear Disarmament.

Campaign chairman Dmitri Roussopoulos of Montreal told the students their non-stop picket had been successful and urged them to spread the movement at their own universities and in other countries.

He told reporters the 73 hours of picketing, and the 73-second silence, was, to commemorate 73,000 atom bomb victims at Hiroshima in 1945.

He said there were some 300 marchers in the largest single picket, on Saturday evening, and estimated that about 900 people at various times took part in the demonstration.

The picketing was orderly and without any serious incidents. At times the marchers, accompanied by two guitars, a fife and bongo drums, sang songs as they circled the Parliament Hill lawn. A favorite was: Glory, Glory, What a Hell of a Way to Die, sung to the tune of John Brown's Body.

Their placards proclaimed "Each test kills," "Let's not be tremated equal" and "Canada active — not passive."

Some of the marchers were barefoot and a few had beards.

Liberal Leader Fires Verbal Blast at Party

KITCHENER (CP) — Ontario Liberal Leader John Wintermeyer Sunday night fired a verbal blast at the founding convention of the New Democratic Party of Ontario, held during the weekend at Niagara Falls, and challenged the convention to invite him to appear before it so he could defend his party's policy on liquor laws. The challenge was not taken up.

"I'm not afraid to put the gloves on with them," Mr. Wintermeyer said in a statement from his home following a press report from the convention quoting a New Democratic official as saying the Liberals hoped to get election funds from brewers and distillers.

"This New Party is more interested in making flamboyant statements that have no foundation in truth than effecting any progress in this province," he said.

ADDRESS ANGERS

Mr. Wintermeyer was angered by the opening address at the convention by Hester Wostenholme, chairman of the Ontario committee for the New Democratic Party.

Mr. Wiesbach said the Liberal leader's proposal to modify certain liquor laws were not made in the interest of public welfare but rather in an attempt to get Liberal election funds from the brewery and liquor interests."

Mr. Wintermeyer called the statement a "contemptible lie." "There was no consultation with any liquor interests whatsoever," he said.

"It was designed and intended to improve our habits in respect of the consumption of liquor."

He said the CCF party, a major supporter of the NDP, had 25 years behind the times "when they started with socialization in the West and are 25 years behind the time now when they try to pit labor against management."

Money Only Thing Keeping Streeper Brothers in North

By JIM PEACOCK

FORT NELSON, B.C. (CP)— The Streeper brothers were asked why they stay in the north.

"The north has mosquitoes," said Barney Streeper, "but the south has bed bugs."

They were asked why they stay on the river, where they have been hauling freight for 11 years.

"Money," said Woods.

"We've never made so much doing so little in so short a time," Barney added.

So it went in an interview aboard the New Era, their diesel - powered river tugboat with which they push four or five flat-bottomed scows downriver each spring to points as far north as Aklavik and Inuvik in the Northwest Territories.

Barney, 60, and Woods, 58, operate the Streeper Brothers Marine transport Company which travels about 5,000 miles a year down and up the Nelson, Liard, Mackenzie and Peel Rivers in a freight - hauling season that extends from late May to mid-October.

They make only one far-north run a year, travelling 2,400 miles in 25 to 30 days on their first trip out of this Alaska Highway point, 600 miles northwest of Edmonton and 250 miles north of the rail-line at Fort St. John, B.C.

Their route, which crosses no large lakes, is ice-free 10 days to three weeks earlier than the Athabasca River system used by much larger water-transport operators from Waterways, Alta., who must await the breakup on Great Slave Lake.

But their route is more expensive, too, and once they've used their early-arrival advantage, they can't compete on the long haul. They spend the rest of the summer making six or seven shorter trips on the southern end of the river system.

CAME FROM NEVADA

"We haul everything from soup to barrels of gasoline," said Barney.

"And we've never sunk a pound of freight—yet," said Woods.

The Streepers came north in 1917 from Nevada, homesteaded on land farther south in the Peace River region for eight years, then went into saw-milling near Dawson Creek until the Alaska Highway construction began in 1941. They trucked on the highway for two years, then began their river-boat service.

"We got started in this business because we had no better sense," said Woods while he relaxed in the combined kitchen-dining - office space in the wooden tugboat.

Now, knowing better, they remain in it—obviously—because they love the life.

Advancing highways and improved communications — along with father time—may one day force the Streepers to retire. They don't look forward to the prospect.

Barney perhaps dreads it more than Woods, if for no other reason than that at home his wife insists he remove his weather-worn, turned-down felt hat, which aboard the boat is seldom off his head.

Researchers Are Convinced They Have Found Site of Battle of the Long Sault

MONTREAL (CP) — The academic battle over where the Battle of the Long Sault took place has ended as far as two researchers are concerned.

Dr. G. R. Rigby and Miss H. Lambart of Grenville, Que., are convinced they have located the site of Adam Dollard Des Ormeaux' storied 1000 stand against the Iroquois.

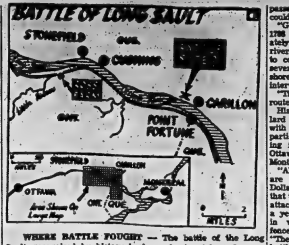
Both are members of the historical society of Argenteuil County but they tackled the problem of finding the site on their own and have put their findings in a formal paper.

Their theory is likely to throw the history books — which list the battle as a vital one in the annals of young Canada — off balance.

Dr. Rigby and Miss Lambart pinpoint the site at the foot of a portage used by early Ottawa River voyageurs to skirt the Carillon Rapids.

Other historians have placed the site at Carillon, Que., farther down the Ottawa, and at the Ross-Lavigne farm on the Ontario side.

Clues providing the basis for the latest location came from an old surveyor's map of the Oblaws made before construction projects in the vicinity of Carillon altered the landscape and shoreline.



They say Dollard and his men holed up in an Algonquin palisade overlooking a small bay and fought valiantly enough — even though they were wiped out by heavy odds—to make the Iroquois think twice about striking at larger settlements.

"An investigation of the site has confirmed that the foot of the old Carillon portage with its landing beach can still be seen," the Rigby-Lambart paper says. "It is scarcely 100 feet wide and the only section of the about 2,000.

An air force spokesman said the RCAF will have this number without difficulty by Jan. 1.

Both the navy, which was allowed a 1,749-man increase, and the air force could have filled their requirements in the first month or two.

However, recruiting has been spaced out to fit newcomers into the training system.

WHERE BATTLE FOUGHT — The battle of the Long Sault, recognized by history books as having taken place on the farm of Ross Lavigne on the Ontario side of the Ottawa River, actually took place further downstream on the Quebec site, two Quebec researchers say. Dr. G. R. Rigby and Miss H. Lambert of Grenville, Que., place the battle site at the foot of a portage near Carillon, Que., after following up clues provided by an old surveyor's map. (CP Newsmap.) original shorelines in the vicinity that has not been mutilated."

The researchers say both bounds the area on either side and the logical portage route seems to have followed a slope climbing to an escarpment.

Measuring 300 paces, the researchers found themselves on a high plateau over the river—a plateau no one could enter or leave the Long Sault without passing.

Historians of the time say Dollard waited for the Iroquois as if he were in "an infallible passage"—one from which he couldn't miss the enemy.

"Going back to the map of 1793 it was apparent immediately that canoes, descending the river would have no option but to come down inside Ile Perseverance and along the north shore," said Dr. Rigby in an interview.

"There was no other possible route."

Historians also indicate Dollard expected mainly to deal with small Iroquois hunting parties and not the overwhelming force gathering along the Ottawa for a massive attack on Montreal.

"All contemporary accounts are agreed that the result of Dollard's determined stand was that the Iroquois postponed their attack on the young colony for a year, giving it another year in which to strengthen defences," Miss Lambart said. "The statement that Dollard's battle was the salvation of the country does not appear to be any exaggeration."

Army Recruits 1,452 Men In New Drive

OTTAWA (CP) — One month ago Sunday Prime Minister Diefenbaker announced that the armed forces would be increased by 15,000 to 135,000 personnel.

There hasn't been a rush to the colors but the navy, army and RCAF are pleased at the way recruiting has been going.

The army was authorized to take in 11,585 recruits over and above the normal number previously required to keep the ranks filled.

Army headquarters said 1,452 men were enrolled between Sept. 7 and Thursday. A total of 2,366 applied. In the comparable period last year there were 555 enrolments out of 1,558 applications.

Before the recruiting drive started the navy numbered about 20,000, the RCAF about 51,000 and the army fewer than 49,000.

None of the services has lowered its physical, educational or other standards to get the extra men. A naval spokesman said if there is any change in this regard it will be to make standards higher.

There has been little or no increase in advertising for recruits.

The RCAF was authorized to increase its personnel by Understanding On Berlin Issue Seen By Gromyko

Says Russia Will Sign East German Treaty

LONDON (CP) — Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko told reporters as he left here for Moscow today that there is "a definite sign that understanding is growing" on the Berlin problem.

Gromyko left by plane to report to Nikita Khrushchev on his talks in Washington with President Kennedy last week and his meeting here Tuesday with Prime Minister Macmillan.

"There is a definite sign that understanding is growing on the Berlin problem, which is very important," Gromyko said at the airport.

"Everything must be done to find a peaceful solution."

He said Russia "is doing its best to facilitate such a peaceful solution but not everything depends upon the Soviet government."

FIRM ON ONE POINT

At the same time, Gromyko stressed that Russia was firm "on one point", that an East German peace treaty must be concluded next year by the Second World War reached."

He declined to comment, however, when asked if there is a limit for a peace treaty. Khrushchev has said a peace treaty will be signed with East Germany by the end of this year, but Communist propaganda organs recently have been vague about any deadline.

Gromyko was asked whether Russia would be prepared to negotiate an interim settlement on Berlin. "We do not think an interim settlement would be good. We think the peace treaty must be concluded and signed."

Now, while there is the conclusion of a peace treaty together with the West German government, the Western powers will be prepared to negotiate an interim settlement on Berlin. "We do not think an interim settlement would be good. We think the peace treaty must be concluded and signed."

"But we are in a better position to talk about the substance of a serious negotiation. But the success of these negotiations or changes is that while we must be relentless in pursuit of peace we must be implacable in securing the essential liberties."

Home expressed public statements about the Berlin crisis that would jeopardize the West's negotiations with the Communists.

He said a hazard of the negotiator is that "his own people are forever misinterpreting words to the other side, not deliberately certainly, not maliciously, but as a part of any such hazard of free speech.

"It is up to everyone to remember that the Communist technique of negotiation is to pocket each concession and then try to raise the bid."

DECRIES PUBLIC DEBATE

Home said he hoped everyone would help to see negotiations are carried on in private. "Public debate on the world's platforms conducted in an atmosphere of suspicion and recrimination...

Told to Get Display Racks Into Stores

TORONTO (CP)—A trial into an alleged conspiracy involving a firm supposedly "distributing first - aid supplies in Ontario" heard today that Toronto defendants testify he had been told to see that the firm's display racks went into stores as quickly as possible and by any possible means.

Stanley Rose of Toronto was testifying at the trial of his former men, associated with General Merchandising Distributors of Canada, Limited, told him last week before Judge Ambrose Shea and a seven-man jury. All eight are charged with conspiracy to defraud.

Rose said the firm got into the as a "location man" in the belief its scheme was both legitimate and feasible. He said David Curley of Scarborough, another of the accused, told him to get the display racks into stores under any circumstances "no matter how I got them in."

Rose testified he received $3 for each, of an estimated 200 stands he placed in drug stores, as well as commissions for signing up persons as distributors of the firm's products.

Also charged are four Toronto area men, Earl Black, W. C. Goddard, Anthony Aquanno and Donald Pickard; Brian Cassidy of Montreal and Tove Nordman of Ottawa.

Bernauerstrasse Street of Hate, As Berliners Seethe With Anger

BERLIN (AP)—Berlin's street of hate and fear seems to be with frustrated anger.

Perhaps nowhere on earth do two worlds meet and West face each other with such pressure-cooked emotion and human tragedy as on Bernauerstrasse.

On the Communist side of the street, green-helmeted Communist police finger their automatic rifles. They watch from the windows and ledges of apartment houses.

Nobody knows why they are waiting. Another East Berlin family to try to jump into freedom in a desperate escape from communism? Another exchange of prisoners between East and West Police?

"Something violent could happen here any moment," a West Berlin policeman says as he and scores of others by 50 keep the crowds moving. "The mood of the West Berliners here is another than it ever has been since the Communists started building their wall through Berlin Aug. 13.

"They are angry with everybody. They are furious with the Communist police. They are angry with the Western powers for doing nothing. They are frustrated with their own helplessness."

Bernauerstrasse is a mile long and 40 yards wide. As you enter it on a brisk, sunny October morning, it looks at first like any other street in Berlin. Apartment houses and shops. But apartment houses are on both sides. WALLS, CHILLS

But slowly Bernauerstrasse becomes the chilling dead end of all its kind.

The pavement is empty, up and down as far as you can see in either direction. Nobody walks there. No cars are parked.

Only a small vase of red carnations marks the spot.

"That's where an East Berliner died" you are told. "He was on a roof over there. The Communist police shot at him. The East Berlin police shot back. He jumped for a net—and missed."

Armed men are virtually the only sign of humanity — except for an old woman, sitting at her high window, staring at the West, a bird-cage beside her.

COMMON MART ENTRY STUDIED SAYS MINISTER

Mr. Hees Gives Views on Subject

TORONTO (CP)—Trade Minister Hees said Tuesday night the government is carefully studying what would be involved in Britain's membership and how it if Canada joined the European Common Market or European-North American free trade association.

He also indicated Canada is studying a possible Commonwealth trade solution to Britain's economic problems if the United Kingdom decides against joining the Common Market.

Mr. Hees, speaking to a meeting of Rotarian clubs of eastern Toronto, has been accused by opposition parties of taking a negative approach to the idea of possible British membership in the six-nation European trade bloc.

In his speech prepared for delivery, he argued against proposals for Canadian entry to the Common Market because its goal of tariff-free movement of goods among member countries.

MANY COMMON MARKET

Many Common Market industries have a high level of efficiency, a highly productive skill and lower wage rates than in Canada, he said. Canadian manufacturing industries faced free trade competition with them, they would not necessarily come off second best with the consequent loss of production and employment.

Others, he said, suggest Canada should join a free trade association with Western Europe, Britain and the United States.

As far as the case of the European Common Market, the implications of Canada becoming a member of the kind of association which I have just described are being very carefully studied to learn as accurately as we can the effect which membership in such an association would have on the country as a whole."

The government also was studying what might be taken to promote increased trade within the Commonwealth.

He said that the Commonwealth economic conference in London in July showed increasing awareness among all Commonwealth countries of the importance of expanding trade among members.

U.S. and Russia No Nearer Selection of UN Secretary

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Possibly a "superman" isn't needed, but more than three weeks after Dag Hammarskjold's death the great powers appear as far apart as ever on a successor for the United Nations secretary-general.

U.S. Ambassador Adlai Stevenson and Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Valerian Zorin held yet another in a series of talks Tuesday night without success.

A U.S. spokesman said: "We made no progress. We are disappointed."

Zorin claimed the Americans "took a step backward" in discussions when the three-man secretary-general should make a statement promising close collaboration with the deputies in his daily work.

The proposed statement is a modification of the Russians' original demand that deputies represent the three main political groupings in the world — the Communist bloc, the uncommitted nations and the possible British membership in the six-nation European trade bloc.

In his speech prepared for delivery, he argued against proposals for Canadian entry to the Common Market because its goal of tariff-free movement of goods among member countries.

Way Paved for Negotiations On Entry to Common Market

PARIS (Reuters) — Deputy Foreign Minister Edward Heath appeared to have paved the way after paving the way for negotiations on Britain's entry into the European Common Market in a meeting here with foreign ministers of the country's economic community.

Observers said that many fears regarding Britain's intention in asking for full membership were set at rest by Heath's speech Tuesday to the foreign ministers of West Germany, France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg.

It was feared that Britain's demands to protect the interests of the Commonwealth and her own agricultural needs might be ignored, undermine the structure of the treaty of Rome which established the Common Market.

For this reason the French government originally demanded a written statement from Britain, giving precise details of the special considerations she required before joining the European economic community.

•France later dropped this demand at a meeting of the common market foreign ministers in Brussels last month.

Heath told the ministers Tuesday that Britain had no problems caused by the Commonwealth, British agriculture or the British-led European Free Trade Association could be dealt with without amendment of the Rome treaty.

He said Britain would also not be any longer transitional period before Nov. 8 came under the full rigors of the Rome treaty. But he added Britain's position was complex and the adjustments they would be complicated.

The treaty of Rome provides for a 15-year transition period to achieve complete free trade between the six member industrial capital within the Common Market.

On the Commonwealth problem, Heath said a solution for some countries might be a modified form of association with the Common Market community.

But he added that association would not be appropriate for all Commonwealth nations and some other solution would have to be found for them.

The official summary of Heath's statement said he declared that Britain is ready fully to subscribe to the aims and objectives of the community.

Largest Tri-Service Military Hospital to Open in Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP)— The largest tri-service military hospital in Canada will be established at Kingston — is scheduled to be opened by mid-1965.

Defence Minister Hellyer announced the opening ribbon at the National Defence Medical Centre—eight floors devoted to the regular forces, members of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police and Ottawa area veterans—was placed by the department of veterans affairs.

The $9,500,000 hospital boasts 500 beds plus a complete floor of laboratories and research facilities and a wing set aside for various phases of therapy for crippled veterans.

Minister Hugh Bright, a native of Exeter, Ont., who was first elected in 1958, said:

It a marvel of co-operation between the medical staffs of the army, navy and air forces.

The three medical services have integrated into the Canadian forces Medical Service three years ago. The Royal Canadian Air Force has a medical core in Halifax and the army has a tri-service hospital at Kingston.

The new centre at Ottawa will be manned with doctors and nurses from all three services taking part.

A staff of 600 will be on hand for the first receipt of patients —set for about mid-November. The first 100 patients will be from the old tri-service hospital at RCAF Station Rockcliffe here which is to be closed at the new hospital opens.

Later, patients will be brought from the Veterans' Pavilion of the Ottawa Civic Hospital and the Physical Institute of Occupational and Therapeutic Surgery.

A final target for staff is 600 at full operation.

The building, set in a pleasant parkland scene in the southeast of Ottawa's greenbelt zone, is in the form of a cross with four wings radiating from a central service area. The front of the building is about of the wings comprises a major out-patient section.

A graduate of the University of Toronto in 1936, Group Capt. Bright practiced medicine in Toronto before joining the RCAF in 1942. He was named to command the hospital at RCAF Rockcliffe.

FINNS' PREMIER BEGINS STATE VISIT TO CANADA

Received by Vaniers And Diefenbakers

OTTAWA (CP) — President Urho Kekkonen of Finland, warmly greeted at Uplands Airport Tuesday by Governor-General Vanier and Prime Minister Diefenbaker, today embarked on the first full day of his six-day state visit to Canada.

A leisurely schedule — beginning with lunch as guests of Gen. and Mme. Vanier at 1 p.m. — was laid out for the visiting dignitary and his petite wife. It included a late afternoon reception to be given by Mr. and Mrs. Kekkonen for members of the Finnish community here and a state reception and dinner for the visiting couple at Government House tonight.

Mr. Kekkonen, first Finnish president ever to visit Canada, flew into Uplands with his party aboard a transport department Viscount from Montreal.

In his first official notables, the slim 61-year-old president, immaculately attired in a dark suit, stepped out of the plane, pacing the tarmac, to be received by Mr. Diefenbaker, and Mrs. Diefenbaker, External Affairs Minister Green and Mrs. Green.

Officially welcoming the president, Mrs. Vanier said: "Finland and Canada have "such a friendly feeling" for Finland.

Mr. Diefenbaker told President Kekkonen that Finland has always stood in the forefront of freedom. Finnish Canadians had contributed both to the human and cultural development of Canada. In the field of the arts — he met and greeted Finnish composer Jan Sibelius—and in athletics, Finns had brought renown to their country.

Mr. Kekkonen, an ardent sportsman, replied that he took "special pleasure and interest" in visiting Canada. Like Finland it is "the great northern wilderness" which its citizens turned to for rest and recreation. He praised Canada's democratic institutions and its "high-minded attitude" towards social and cultural affairs.

The president shook hands with members of the diplomatic corps and inspected an RCAF guard of honor. Then the motorcade cracked out on the airfield.

Mrs. Kekkonen and Mrs. Vanier were driven to Government House where they spent the afternoon.

President Kekkonen will be in Ottawa until Friday, when he leaves for a one - day visit to Sudbury. Visits to Waterloo, Toronto and Niagara Falls are also on tap before Mr. Kekkonen leaves for Washington Monday morning.

Begin Irrigating Indian Dust Bowl Where Two Million Will Settle

JAIPUR, India (AP)—India's vast desert bowl of Rajasthan began receiving irrigation water today to make its dreary wastes bloom into fertile fields.

The waters gushed forth into the sandy expanse parched since the beginning of history as Acting President Sarvapalli Radhakrishnan pressed a button at a colorful ceremony.

When completed at a cost of $420,300,000, the world's largest network of canals and field channels — 40,000 miles — will open up 10,000 sparsely inhabited square miles of agricultural land.

Nearly 30,000 laborers will toil for the next 15 years to remove 11,000,000,000 cubic feet of sand to make way for the flow of water.

Two million people will be settled in the vast area, where 3,600,000 acres of desert will be irrigated.

The canal system branches off from the union of the Beas and Sutlej Rivers in the Punjab before entering Rajasthan. From there an 800-mile main canal will flow to the Arabian Sea at Kandla port.

Shelter On Rock After Escaping In Two Vessels

Tristan da Cunha Folk Driven From Homeland

CP from Reuters-AP

CAPE TOWN, South Africa— The 260 stunned men, women and children of Tristan da Cunha spent a night of agony on a rocky outcrop in the South Atlantic, eyeing the glow of a volcano that threatens to destroy their island homes.

The frightened fled Tuesday aboard two small fishing boats as rumbles and loud volcanic eruptions that began Sunday on Tristan da Cunha, a 40-square-mile speck of land halfway between South Africa and South America, became the most remote islands in the world.

The refugees fought their way through 13 miles of turbulent seas and waded ashore at Nightingale Island, a bird - filled islet a mile long and three-fourths of a mile wide, to spend the night and watch Dutch liner coming to take them to Cape Town.

Here, the islanders will wait while nature decides the fate of their homes. Lava and ashes from volcanoes have lived in almost half of the island's area since the War.

Plans were for a small group of volunteers to stay behind on Nightingale Island when the 9,-000 - ton Dutch liner Tjisadane picked up the rest of the refugees this morning.

The volunteers were to watch the course of the eruption—the first in modern times, and its lands—and return to Tristan if anything of value will are

Russians Claim Defecting Man Was Abducted

THE HAGUE (Reuters)—The Soviet embassy today accused Dutch authorities of "abducting" 35-year-old Russian biochemist Alexei Golub, who sought asylum in The Netherlands Monday.

The embassy also alleged that the Dutch police had tried to "abduct" his wife Rena, who flew back to the Soviet Union without her husband.

The charges were made at a press conference by Press Attache A. D. Popov in what he described as a statement on behalf of the embassy.

Popov said Soviet Ambassador P. K. Ponomarenko, who was involved in Monday's dramatic flight with Dutch police before Mrs. Golub's departure, has handed an side-memorire to Dutch Foreign Minister Luns asking for an interview with the secretary.

The press attache, who was also at the airport, alleged that when Golub was arranging to help wife in the office of the Soviet consulate there he was without his and shoelaces.

He claimed that Golub was in a condition of "extreme nervous tension."

Son of Party Treasurer Gives Testimony

QUEBEC (CP)—Robert Marcheneau, son of Legislative Councillor Gerald Marcheneau and owner of an office supplies firm, was to continue testifying today before the Bilodeau commission about his firm's business with Independent Union Nationale organizers.

Gerald Marcheneau, Union Nationale senator 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, has been identified by numerous witnesses as the man to see about granting patronage and getting Bilodeau Commission exhibits to the provincial government.

Union Barred From Picketing Ore Carrier

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) — Judge Noel Wiseman Tuesday granted a temporary injunction barring the Seafarers International Union (Ind.) from picketing a foreign-registry ore carrier in the Muskegon channel of Lake Superior.

He ruled after a hearing here on a petition filed Thursday at Marquette, Mich., by C. Edward Hood, director of the U.S. National Labor Relations Board. The case involves the ore carrier Northern Venture.

The Northern Venture is operated by the Cleveland-Cliffs and Northern Shipping (Bahamas) Ltd. The SIU has charged illegal operations of the ship by an American firm using a foreign crew.

SIU pickets have dogged the several ports of the Interlake and Lake Superior ports. Since Sept. 19 she has been tied up at Marquette.

Judge Kent's ruling held that peaceful final disposition of the matter before the NLRB, the SIU and its officers, agents, employees, members acting in participation with them, be enjoined from interference with the ship or its operation.

Bicroft Mines Officials Will Visit Ottawa

TORONTO (CP) — Robert Bryce, president of Bicroft Uranium Mines Ltd., said Tuesday night he and other company officers will go to Ottawa next Tuesday to discuss a stopgap plan to keep production going at the company's mine.

Bicroft laid off 300 men last month at its mine in Cardiff, Ont., and another 300 would be jobless if plans for closing the mine go through at the end of October.

Mr. Bryce and others are expected to confer with Trade Minister Hees and officials of Eldorado Mining and Refining Ltd., the government's uranium purchasing agent.

Any plan advanced in the meetings between Bicroft officials and the government would aim at keeping Bicroft production until a revised arrangement can be made for supplying uranium to Britain.

Plans for Permanent Street Paving in New Sections Of City May Be Delayed

Action which could have serious delaying effect on plans for permanent street paving in the new sections of the city, was taken yesterday by city council.

Council tabled two by-laws authorizing the construction of asphalt roads and curbs under provisions of the local improvement act.

The by-laws will be tabled until the city's annual capital works program is approved by the Ontario Municipal Board.

On March 6 council passed a year, Alderman John Barlow had opposed by-laws authorizing construction of asphalt pavement under local improvements, on the grounds the city's annual capital works program would be approved.

Alderman Jack Ellis as chairman of the city public works committee, said that on reviewing the situation he was advised by the board and engineering programs done under local improvements could adversely affect the city's annual capital works program. He moved for the by-laws to be tabled until the overall capital works program was approved by the OMB.

Until yesterday, however, his objections had gone unheeded.

Yesterday when by-laws were read to the council he was making his "usual objection."

Alderman Jack Ellis as chairman of the city public works committee, said that on reviewing the situation he was advised by the board and engineering programs done under local improvements could adversely affect the city's annual capital works program. He moved for the by-laws to be tabled until the overall capital works program was approved by the OMB.

Charges Fluoridation of Water Is Becoming Political Issue

A charge that the installation of equipment for the fluoridation of city water supply was becoming a political issue was heard at city council yesterday.

The submission was made by Alderman Ross Bailey who said the board of the Public Utilities Commission was going to install the equipment, which had been directed by the city council.

Mayor A. M. Haig replied the delay was the result of the Utilities wanting to know who was going to pay the $52,000 required for the installation.

"How can it cost $52,000 for Belleville to provide fluoridation water legible to local ratepayers the cost is estimated at $600 or $800?" queried Alderman Lorne Mackenzie.

Mayor Haig replied there was a "misunderstanding" figures around, and explained that some phases of the local expenditure had to be considered if the fluoridation program were not proceeded with at this time.

TIWART DRUNK DRIVER

SEATTLE (AP)—An ignition key so tricky to use that a drunk can't start his automobile is being developed, a traffic safety expert said Monday. Dr. James Mallett, head of a safety research project at York's Columbia University, said the idea is to halt the drinking driver before he gets on the road. The experimental key has to be inserted through a maze that requires sober concentration.

Full Time CD Co-ordinator May Be Hired

The counties of Hastings and Lennox and Addington are expected to join in a Day of Caring district emergency measures program which could see the hiring of a full-time co-ordinator for this district.

Reported to city council on informal action taken to establish an emergency measures program in this area, Mayor A. M. Haig said yesterday that Belleville, Trenton, Picton and the county of Prince Edward had already joined the local organization. Hastings county was expected to grant its approval at the December meeting, while Lennox and Addington had indicated its desire to join.

One of the first actions would be to acquire the services of a full-time co-ordinator.

Mayor Haig said the role of municipalities in the emergency measures program would be outlined at a meeting Thursday with local army officers, while representatives of member municipalities would attend brief civil defence courses at Arnprior.

Theatre Operators Request Vote on Sunday Movies, Property By-Law Tabled

Belleville city council Tuesday afternoon referred to its finance and executive committee a request from Belleville theatre operators for a referendum on Sunday movies.

There was no discussion on the request from the theatre operators which asked that the question be placed before the electorate.

Tabled for two weeks at the request of a motion was a by-law authorizing expropriation proceedings to be commenced by the city to acquire the James Roy property on Front Street East for use by the city parking authority.

The by-law was given two readings but the third reading was tabled for two weeks on the advice of Deputy Mayor Robert Temple after Mayor A. M. Haig noted that the owner of the property, Mr. Sam Goodman, had a planned development for the area which could affect the assessment increased assessment.

Mayor Haig said plans for the property development were expected in the near future.

REFERRAL BACK

Plans for a proposed 10-foot pedestrian walkway between Symington Drive and Rollins Drive subdivision were sent by council referred to its executive and finance committee on report from City Manager J. R. Reynolds on the estimated cost of providing the walk.

Mr. Reynolds told council owners of property property owners were willing to accept less than $2,000 for the 10 feet required for the city for the walk but the structuring the walk was estimated at $3300.

Alderman Don Whalen suggested the city was being "taken to the cleaners" in suggesting in Madoc. She was the widow of Arthur W. Heyworth and a former member of St. John's Anglican Church.

Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. J. (Keith) Tennyson and Mrs. L. (Mona) Huddy, both of Scarborough, one son, Leo of Madoc; and one sister, Mrs. H. Ackerman of Campbellford.

WELFARE COSTS HIGH

Welfare accounts amounting to approximately $2,000 were ordered paid but not before Alderman Harold Elliott asked that council take a "good look" at the welfare costs which he said appeared very high.

Alderman Elliott was assured by the finance and executive committee chairman Ald. W. E. Jarvah, however, that the total was made up of a number of payments made to deserted wives and families.

Council approved the proposed renovations at the city parks stadium costing an estimated $5,000 to $6,000 although no tenders for the work will be called until the police commission signifies its approval.

Mayor Haig said the police building would provide additional police accommodation sufficient for the needs of the department for at least five years, he added.

City council will tighten its by-law governing the issuing of keys which in its present form apparently allows alleys to operate on Sunday.

REQUESTED BY POLICE

Alderman Jack Ireland said some of the local bowling alleys are staying open on Sunday.

Mr. Reynolds said the by-law amendment closing bowling alleys on Sunday had been requested by the police department.

Ald. Ireland said he had been informed that a bowling alley in town on Sunday but they have refused to do so. He asked Ald. Lorne McDougall. "Why not close them?" he asked. "That would stop them."

Mayor A. M. Haig observed that the police had no doubt the best interest of the public in mind.

Alderman W. E. Jarvah said he was in favor of Sunday sports but noted the election held in Belleville had voted them down so he was going along with the recommendation for the by-law amendment to close bowling alleys on the Sabbath.

APPROVE MOTION

Council also approved of a recommendation calling for a by-law to prevent the operation of trampoline centres in the city.

For the convenience of residents living in the new residential area east of Herchimer Ave., city council will consider the construction of sidewalks on East Bridge Street from the end of the existing sidewalk to Farley Ave. The proposal is for the sidewalks to be constructed under Section 8 of the Local Improvement Act, which would mean the city would institute the work and bill the property owners.

Council also passed a recommendation calling for the construction of a street on the unopened section of Rollins Drive to Victoria Avenue, a section which a new Baptist Church and the proposed new YMCA are to be built.

Sub divisions plans submitted by Bruce May Mfg. Ltd. for an undeveloped area between East Bridge Street and Highway 401 and by Mr. Maurice H. Rollins Construction Ltd. for a proposed development east of North Park Street (Craig Street extension) were given approval.

Also approved was a subdivision plan submitted by B. E. P. Construction Ltd. for still another housing sub-division on the north side of Bridge Street and south of Evans Street.

Council also agreed to give consideration to the widening of Dundas Street to 86-foot road allowance.

On recommendation from the property committee, council approved of the reduction of $1,000 in the purchase price for the property on corner of former city firemen, Frank Orr. At the time of his retirement in 1956, Mr. Orr was granted a $100 monthly pension which was to be reduced when he became eligible for the old age pension.

Action will be taken to recover the amounts overpaid to Mr. Orr for the past two and a half years.

Mayor A. M. Haig asked for the committee's recommendation to allow Fire Chief Gerald Vance to make a representation on the behalf of Mr. Orr and one other retired employee.

Alderman Ben Corke noted, however, that representation could be made on behalf of many employees who went on pension as late as seven or eight years ago. He said pensions approved then were no longer adequate.

However, council was dealing with city funds and he felt a recommendation should be passed.

Alderman Walter Elliott questioned the right of council to approve the recommendation without the approval of return of the over-payment.

Mayor Haig withdrew his request to have the recommendation referred back and it was carried as entered.

WILL HELP PAY COSTS

Council authorized the Ontario Water Resources Commission to expropriate lands required for construction of the sewage treatment plant and trunk sewers with the understanding that every effort be made to negotiate a settlement before applying to the Ontario Municipal Board for arbitration.

And city council will pay costs of up to $500 for the replacement of water service to the Belleville Memorial Centre.

Alderman D. Whalen said the water service had frozen last winter with the result that several meetings had to be cancelled. He said the citizens of the area contribute much to the operation of the centre but they did not have the benefit of restoration of the water service.

Toastmasters Club Likely To Be Formed

"Better listening, better thinking, better speaking," said Robert Gray of Toronto as he addressed the Belleville Toastmasters' Club banquet held in the banquet room of the Belmont Restaurant last evening.

The club was founded in 1932 and is a non-profit organization he said. It made history last night as it was the first time any meeting of the club has been held in the city. There is Chatham, Kingston, Peterborough and Kingston and it is sincere, he hoped there will soon be one in this city.

Mr. Gray said it was an educational program governed by a board of directors. Every member joins for one thing and that is "self improvement". It is a selfish idea but never the less it is educational.

It is not a public speaking organization. As you will notice your motto. It says first, better listening. Right from early childhood we learn to listen. And listen your parents and your teachers. Then it says, better thinking. Try to get that before you speak. This district there are some 48 clubs some in the Toronto area and others extending from London, Ont., to Ottawa, and the newest including Belleville. There is a club in Trenton, Oshawa, Peterborough and the new town Toronto with an average of 25 to 40 members in each club.

One main feature of the Toastmasters Club is the table topic, commencing with the chairman of the meeting and there is what we call a "table topic chairman". This is a very interesting part of the program. It enables every member to get up on his feet and talk for a minute or two, the time limit was one minute. A bell sat on the table by those who remained on their feet for one minute.

The clubs usually meets one a week or every other week. Mr. Gray said he was glad to be up to the individual club to decide when they wish to meet, Mr. Gray said.

There is one question which may be made clear to the mind of a toastmaster which is "why am I a toastmaster?" Well, said Mr. Gray the answer is "for self improvement."

What is the Toastmaster Club? As the saying goes, to begin with it is a club and it is a "self-improvement," "educational" program for men, young and old alike. A great deal of interest was shown at last night's meeting as the staff of the 15 who attended. The organization will now strive to obtain a membership of at least 20 to enable them to be chartered. The first meeting of the club suggested those who attended five week bring a friend along with them in two weeks time. This way their goal of 20 memberships will be easily reached.

IN MEMORIAM

SUMMERS. — In loving memory of my dear husband, Charles Summers, who passed away October 11th, 1956.
Sad is my heart, lonely my days
Since you left me in God's care.
And in our hearts you will always stay
The days I do not think of you.
Ever remembered by his daughter, Rose and Georgie and son-in-law, Ross and family, Eunice and Bob, Ernie and family.

SUMMERS. — In loving memory of my dear husband, Charles Summers, who passed away October 11th, 1956.
I do not need a special day dear,
To keep you in my mind,
The days I do not think of you,
You never will find.
God alone knows how I miss you.
Never shall your memory fade.
My thoughts are always wandering
To that spot where you are laid.
Sadly missed by loving wife Rose.

CARDS OF THANKS

The family of the late Mr. Arthur Delyea wish to thank our many friends for their kindness, sympathy and appreciation in the many ways shown, whether by flowers and relatives, who were so kind during their recent bereavement; also for the beautiful floral tributes, spiritual ministrations, cards and messages. Also a special "thank you" to Rev. Ralph Bowman, Mr. Ross Hall, Mr. Flint and Mr. Bush for their comforting words and kindness at the John R. Bush Funeral Home for their very efficient services. Again we say "thank you."

The family of the late George Alexander wish to express their sincere thanks and appreciation to their friends and neighbors for acts of kindness, messages of sympathy and floral tributes during the loss of our beloved husband, grandfather, Mary, many thanks, also to Rev. Ralph Bowman and Madam and family; Leonard and Nora Alexander and family; Evan Alexander and Gladys Matheson.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — The stock market edged higher in moderate morning trading today with utilities, steels and papers leading the way.

Fractional gains predominated. Trading seemed to come in drifts and drabs rather than in any steady flow.

Among utilities, Bell Telephone, Calgary Power, CPR, Consumers Gas and International Utilities all rose in the ¼ to ½ range.

In steels, Algoma, Atlas, Dominion Foundries and Steel, United Steel and Steel Company of Canada advanced as much as 75 cents.

Banks and financial institutions were weak with losses in the ¼ to ½ range going to Bank of Montreal, Nova Scotia and Royal.

On index, industrials rose .43 to 569.56, while golds fell 06 to 87.33; base metals .24 to 101.73 and western oils .15 to 96.85. The 11 a.m. volume was 512,000 shares compared with 748,000 at the same time Tuesday.

Losses were small but widespread in the senior metals list. Dentoni, Steep Rock, Noranda, Falconbridge and Opemiska all fell between five and 25 cents.

In weak western oil trading, Home A and B and Pacific Petro'um all advanced a—few cents.

The general industrial upward swing was led by papers, banks and financial institutions and utilities, with gains ranging to a point pitting all three groups. The day's worst group was refining oils.

Speculative interest lagged somewhat, volume in a number of recently active issues— Willroy — Lorado and Lake Dufault among them— remained high. Price changes, however, were fractional to modest.

Papers led the market higher with gains to 1¼ going to Bathurst B and Crown Zellerbach, while Price Brothers notched a new high of 51¾ in a late-day surge within a rise of ¾. Among banks and financial institutions, Montreal, Royal, Toronto -Do. minion, Nova Scotia and Canadian Imperial all rose as much as ¾. Gold trading was light with Hollinger and Dome off ¼ and ½ respectively.

In weak western oil trading, Home A and B and Pacific Petroleum all advanced a—few cents.

In weak western oil trading, Home A and B and Pacific Petroleum all advanced a—few cents.

The general industrial upward swing was led by papers, banks and financial institutions and utilities, with gains ranging to a point pitting all three groups. The day's worst group was refining oils.

Speculative interest lagged somewhat, volume in a number of recently active issues— Willroy — Lorado and Lake Dufault among them— remained high. Price changes, however, were fractional to modest.

Papers led the market higher with gains to 1¼ going to Bathurst B and Crown Zellerbach, while Price Brothers notched a new high of 51¾ in a late-day surge within a rise of ¾. Among banks and financial institutions, Montreal, Royal, Toronto -Dominion, Nova Scotia and Canadian Imperial all rose as much as ¾. Gold trading was light with Hollinger and Dome off ¼ and ½ respectively.

In weak western oil trading, Home A and B and Pacific Petroleum all advanced a—few cents.

Sea Cadets Seeking Help From Service Clubs to Buy Large Vessel for Training

TRENTON — "You can't teach seamanship in a rowboat." This was the theme of a talk given by Sub-Lieutenant Dennis Atkins to representatives of local service clubs last night in the board room at the Trenton Community Gardens. Sub-Lt. Atkins is the training officer aboard RCSCC "Trent".

Present at the meeting were Mayor James MacDonald; area Navy League chairman Miss Marjorie Gothard, Navy League representative for this area Mrs. Gerald Paro, president of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Trenton Sea Cadet Corps; Mrs. Milligan and Mrs. Urquhart, auxiliary members; Ronald Craddock and Orval Smith (Legion); Ross Forster (Lions); Gordon Murray (Kinsmen); and Mo Jeffery (Elwards). Also present was Commerce representative Ian Darling and the public was represented by five were unable to be present.

Sub-Lt. Atkins said that Lt. H. W. Curtis, commanding officer, and the officers of RCSCC "Trent" had agreed that the Trenton Sea Cadet Corps needed a large training craft in order that cadets may be seamanship could be carried out. The craft would also be used to transport cadets to camp sites.

WOULD COST $5,000

Sub.-Lt. Atkins said that it was his understanding that the corps would soon be comprised of 65 cadets. Each one of these boys are concerned with band practice, but once drills, seamanship, first aid, field courses, etc., have been covered, it is difficult to keep the cadets who are not in the band. The officers had come to the conclusion that "to feel out" the attitude of the public was worthy of seeking assistance in raising the purchase price of such a vessel.

Lt. H. W. Curtis, commanding officer, welcomed the service club representatives and the auxiliary members to the meeting. The commanding officer paid tribute to the ladies' auxiliary, he said that they could not be expected to take any financial interest in the proposed "ship", as they have recently bought instruments for the cadet band, at the cost of $2,000.

Sub. Lt. Atkins outlined the procedure by which a boy becomes a member of the sea cadet corps. He said that boys from 14 to 18 years are accepted as potential cadets, given a six weeks' training period. If they can't not qualify in six weeks, he is given an additional two weeks' training, and then accepted or rejected as a cadet. The cadet learn to accept authority and the lessons in self-discipline, working with a team, ship which they receive, improve their personalities immeasurably.

MANY JOIN NAVY

Sub-Lt. Atkins said that 30 per cent of all the cadets enter the navy. He said that the organization had been instrumental in changing many cadets mode of living and rescued many from delinquency. With our ships.

Service club members were told that the ship could be used to take distinguished visitors to the bay for a trip around the bay (the ship would be manned by cadets at thnes times).

"This would be something for the youth of Trenton" said Mayor James MacDonald, "and very well be proud to have the sea cadet ship anchored in the harbor. It would give the town a lift."

Lt. Curtis said that he and Sub.-Lt. Atkins had examined one ship which would be suitable for the corps' needs and that this vessel would cost around $5,000, including insurance and other incidentals.

Lt. Curtis said that the "mother ship" would be used to protect boys learning to sail the two smaller sailing boats donated to the corps by the ladies' auxiliary last year.

WOULD INCLUDE CADETS

Miss Gothard urged the officers to include cadets on any further discussions about the purchase of a craft and also to insist that they take part in any money-raising projects. She said that in this way the boys' interest would be maintained.

Mayor MacDonald said that he was very much in favor of acquiring the ship as a means of keeping the cadets interested in the corps.

The service club representatives agreed to present the idea or contributing to the cost of the ship to their respective clubs. The Chamber of Commerce may be asked to appoint an industrial committee towards the cost price.

All those present were agreed that the entire purchase price should be assured before the ship was purchased.

Major operations numbered 43 and 66 instances of minor surgery were recorded. Out-patients treated numbered 619 and 289 emergencies were treated.

Unification of Christain Church Seen by Speaker

There is a trend towards the eventual unification of the Christian churches, local Ministers were told yesterday afternoon by the Right Reverend Msgr. James P. Sullivan, pastor of St. Michael's Church.

He cited the fact that there will be five Catholic theologians attending the Protestant Assembly of the World Council of Churches being held in New Dehli next month and in return there will be Protestant theologians attending be Ecumenical Council at the Vatican following year as evidence of this trend towards unity.

"This may not seem much of a breakthrough but for those who know the long-range possibilities it is encouraging and for those who think only in terms of the past it is scandalous," the St. Augustus Seminary graduate said.

The speaker pointed out that there are three facts of the science of theology which are common to Christian churches. One, that there is a God who is the Creator and Lawgiver of every creature whom He made.

Second, that "as Christians we accept as provable fact that God became man in the person of Christ for the threefold purpose of redeeming men from the evil into which they had fallen, of teaching them God's will and His Commandments and of elevating them, through grace, to a kinship with Him."

Lastly is the accepted truth that Christ founded a church to both protect and promote His teachings, commands and counsel for all who would accept or seek them.

Currently, however, people are becoming religious- illiterates, the speaker said, and not worried much about rectifying the situation.

"If we are honest we have to admit that we are indifferent to sermons which are meant to be instructional as well as inspirational . . . pay little attention to publications which are religious . . . are even inclined to regard the religious instruction of youth as indoctrination."

Msgr. Sullivan also emphasized that "when we talk about religion in the schools, democracy, which could never survive without the virtues of religion, demands that we exclude it."

MUST HEAL DIVISIONS

He explained that although it may appear strange for him to encourage those of other churches to take a deeper intellectual interest in their own religion when it would appear that his duty might lie in making converts to his own faith, it was necessary for responsible Christians to do so if the divisions which have been evident over the centuries were to be healed and if Christians were to fulfill Christ's longest prayer — that for unity.

The speaker expressed his belief that this unity in Christendom would probably not come in this century but that now was the time that the groundwork should be prepared for an atmosphere, a climate which would make such a prospect possible in the next.

"Pleasant relations in a divided Christendom is not a final goal but a necessary condition for something better . . . which could be created if our approach to religion was a little more intellectual and our contact with non-religionists a little more charitable . . . (and) would lead to the defence of common religious interests which are becoming more and more threatened," he concluded.

The speaker was introduced by Brandian Frank Domenico and thanked by the Rev. C. W. Hall.

It was announced during the meeting that Ralph Graham was the vice-president delegate for 1962 and that the club was now the foster parent of a four-year old Korean boy. President Bob Brain presided at the meeting.

Restrictions Lifted in Two Areas

Restrictions against the shooting of ducks in two Belleville areas which had been posted because of planted grain, have now been lifted, it was noted today by Royal Canadian Mounted Police at Belleville.

The two areas where posters have been lifted are in the Belleville Harbor and in the vicinity of beaver ponds north of Point Anne.

Police said that as far as game regulations were concerned, shooting of ducks could now be resumed in the above areas.

In the case of marsh areas about the Belleville harbor, however, the discharge of firearms would be dependent on local by-laws.

Parks Board Wants to Burn Brush, Weeds

TRENTON — During a rainstorm last week, a motorist chanced observe a late model car drive up in front of Fraser Park. Out of the car leaped a well-dressed matron. The woman, dissatisfied to the right or the left, ran lightly into the park and proceeded to uproot two plants, shake the dirt off the roots, dash back to her car and drive off.

The merchants reported the incident to the Trenton police who in turn, notified the chairman of the Trenton Board of Parks Management. Subsequent investigation established the fact that the car and the woman were from Codrington. Members of the parks' board have decided to ignore the episode, but hope that it won't be repeated. At last night's meeting of the board, members decided to ask town council to amend the recently passed air pollution by-law to allow the parks' gardener to burn the brush and weeds on Mount Pelion, and in other parks. This seems to be the most economical way of ridding the parks of brush. R. S. Hepburn chairman of the Trenton Board of Health, said that he could not give permission for the brush to be burned. Council recently amended the by-law to permit the burning of leaves by town citizens.

Members of the Trenton Public Utilities Commission will be invited to attend a parks' board meeting to discuss the commission's request that it be allowed to install a Hydro sub-station on a triangle of land at the corner of Dixon Drive and Broken Front Road. The members of the parks' board are against such a move as they claim that the land should be left in "reserve."

Victoria Park on Division St., (affectionately known as "Mosquito Park"), will come ill for a face lifting in the near future. The park boundaries will be established and landscaping carried out. Board members felt that this would be a good time for a Division Street to form a part of Highway 33 and is heavily traveled.

The newly - acquired playground area on McNichol St., will be levelled. Trees in the Champlain Heights area will be readied for the installation of a skating rink.

Present at last night's meeting were the chairman, R. S. Parker Jr., secretary, Miss Marion Baker; treasurer, John Saylor, councillor Harold Armstrong, Clyde Mason and Bill Ireland and parks' gardener Bart Boers.

Says Many Have Paid Supplementary Tax

TRENTON — Tax collector Don Weaver said yesterday that a large percentage of taxpayers had paid their supplementary tax, imposed by town council in September to cover a $40,000 deficit for recreation work on Division Street. Final payment date for this tax is Oct. 15.

That Polish Frontier

The U.S. Information Service has issued a booklet, prepared by the State Department, entitled "Berlin—1961."

Besides tracing the history of Berlin, and the conflict therein between East and West since the defeat of Hitler's Third Reich, the booklet contains an impressive list of Soviet violations of international treaties and agreements relating not only to Berlin but to Germany as a whole.

Amongst the violations are recognition by the U.S.S.R., and later by Eastern Germany, of the Oder-Neisse line as the frontier of Poland. Both the Yalta and Potsdam agreements stipulated that the delimitation of the German-Poland frontier should await a peace settlement with Germany. Of course, there has been no such peace settlement—although the Western Allies signed so-called "contractual agreements" with West Germany on May 26, 1952, ending the occupation status of West Germany, and Khrushchev is now proposing to sign a peace treaty with East Germany.

According to the Yalta and Potsdam agreements, though, the Oder-Neisse boundary of Poland is still provisional. That this is not merely an academic matter is shown by the action of the British Labor Party, at its Blackpool conference last week, in passing almost unanimously a resolution calling for recognition of the East German government and of the Oder-Neisse line as the frontier of Poland.

There is no question but that many Germans, if they had their way, would refuse to recognize the Oder-Neisse line. From the standpoint of practical politics, the area governed by Poland from Germany has been Polish since the end of the war and will certainly remain Polish as long as there is no sharp alteration in the balance of power. But technically this annexed area is only provisionally Polish—the annexation requires the endorsement of not merely Russia and of East Germany but of the other members of the anti-Hitler alliance and indeed West Germany before the change is legal.

Is it any wonder that even anti-Communist Poles regard the Western powers' inclusion of West Germany as an equal partner in NATO with something less than complete trust?

Other political parties in the countries of the West could do worse than to consider copying the British Labor Party's stand, if not on the recognition of East Germany then certainly on a pledge to recognize the Oder-Neisse line as the Polish frontier. Not merely the Communist government of today's Poland, but Poles everywhere, would welcome such a stand. It is no more than the Poles deserve, for their sufferings at Hitler's hands.

Nasser's Strange Stand

President Nasser of the United Arab Republic has announced that his government will not oppose the application of the new Syrian regime for UN membership.

First reports gave no reason for this decision—and indeed nothing that Nasser might say would necessarily help us, for no occasion on which heads of state give the real reasons for their actions being as scarce as bluebirds in January.

Nasser's decision, on the face of it, is inconsistent. He had already requested some nations not to grant recognition to the new regime, and his reason for opposing such recognition was eminently reasonable when compared to the grounds on which recognition is generally refused. Syria had been a part of the nation he ruled, having joined it voluntarily, and there is no proof that the majority of Syrians support the new regime.

In circumstances like this there would appear to be no harm in our dreaming that Nasser's willingness to have Syria admitted to the UN stems from the best of possible reasons—that he recognizes the value of making his adversary subject to the rules of membership in the UN and that he intends to use that body as the arena in which he can conduct a bloodless fight against his Syrian foes.

This may be an unlikely motivation—but some day, if it is to be effective, the UN will find its members bent on forcing every nation to join, rather than threatening to veto membership applications of those lands with whose political philosophies they differ.

Invented Tire for Son

Ulster Commentary

An invention that revolutionized transport was first publicly demonstrated at a sports meeting in connection with Queen's College, Belfast on May 18, 1888. Competing in a cycling race was a young man called Hume, whose bicycle, as he wheeled it to the start of the line, was laughed at by the crowd. The machine had thin, hard tires, linen - covered airfilled tires of indiarubber instead of the then fashionable, solid, rubber tires in universal use at that time. The "steam-roller" was how one wag described Hume's machine.

Hume, however, easily outpaced all other competitors on their great heavy machines. So fast was he that, as English bookmaker shouted "there is a puncture in the machine".

Amongst the spectators a tall man with a white beard found himself the centre of an excited crowd. His name was John Boyd Dunlop, a veterinary surgeon, who lived in Gloucester St. and had come to see his son, Bertie, race.

Some days before he had been idly watching his small son, Jack, who was then nine years old, playing in the garden as cycle fitted with the usual solid rubber tires over the cobble stones with the result that the garden path was paved. Suddenly Dunlop had an idea. He got a disc of wood about the same size as his son's front wheel, made an air tube of indiarubber and secured it to the edge of the wooden disc with a cover of linen cloth, which he nailed tightly down all around the disc. Then he fitted a valve with a non-return valve and filled it with hair by his son's cycle so that he could test his invention. He got lasting help from Mr. Welch, a foreman of his idea. Dunlop returned in 1892 and died Oct. 23, 1921.

pan-Africanism proposes a Negroid African state which would exclude all nonblacks.

These are basic barriers. There are others. Separate currencies keep Africans apart. So do separate rail, road and air systems. Animosity, jealousy and fear militate against unity. Members of tribes, almighty over Mauritania, for example.

If the African states should ever get down to discussing what kind of unity they have, a host of complications would result. Should the federation be tightly or loosely knit? How much authority should be given to the central government? Should there be an executive and a House or a parliament and prime minister?

The vision of pan-Africanism is an inspiring one. But a vision it is certain to remain for years to come.

More Oxford Than Harvard

Montreal Star

Both in and out of the public prints since President Kennedy made his challenging remark much has been made of the freight missiles which were selected for his advisers. The Harvard "brains trust," it has been dubbed.

What has escaped general note, but not the alert attention of the Toronto Globe and Manchester Guardian Weekly, is contained in a Reuter dispatch from Washington where he is doing a series of stimulating articles.

"This was to be and is an egg-head administration. And it is worthwhile noting that it is not Harvard which has provided the intellectual stimulus. Important Kennedy aids, but Oxford; there are more than 30 Rhodes scholars holding high office under President Kennedy — justly proud of the last, Cecil Rhodes dreams of what his scholarships were really for."

Pan-African Federation

Oshawa Times

Sooner or later, many of the emerging "countries", in Africa must merge with neighbors to form viable states, because they have neither the physical nor the human resources to support independence. But it will be later rather than sooner. And still later will it be that it comes at all — the pan-African federation which is the vision of many African leaders.

Dr. Nnamdi Azikiwe, Governor-General of Nigeria, predicts that pan-Africanism will be "shining example of how peoples from different political unity in one continent with their differences reconciled from aggression and their civil liberties guaranteed by the international funds rential human rights in their constitution." At the present time, he calls attention to the obstacles to pan-African federation; they are all but overwhelming.

Racially, Africa is not homogenous. Northern Africans are predominantly members of the Mediterranean branch of the Caucasian race. South of the Sahara, Africans are mostly Negroid. There is a sprinkling of white Europeans.

A multiplicity of languages hampers communication. On the fringe of the Mediterranean, Africans are Semitic speaking. In the west they are mainly Sudanic speaking. In the centre and south, the language is Bantu. In the east there is a mixture. The whole have several languages of their own — English, French, Afrikaans, Portuguese, Spanish, Italian.

Various culture divide African society. Tribalism poses almost insurmountable barriers to unity. The Arab League seeks to enlist the loyalty of Arabs in Africa as well as the middle east. One version of

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS.

SURELY MUCH HOPE

We would probably all agree that we are passing through days of unparalleled jeopardy. Chief among those things about which we have to worry is the possibility of our cities being bombed. The passing of time does not tend to calm us with reassurance.

Some things point to the possibility of atomic warfare and some to its improbability. It may indeed take place, because nations have never armed themselves as modern nations are armed today without trying out that armament in war. Furthermore, a little mistake, an incident, the frenzied act of an insance crackpot, might precipitate carnage.

On the other hand, we observe from history — especially recent history — that well armed nations are generally not molested. Also despots have been restrained in their acts by the realization that their enemies might possibly be able to wage some horrible warfare which they could. The monster Hitler undoubtedly would have done more, and more potent, poison gas than he had.

Last of all why should the Communists start war when they are using cleverly infiltration to be gaining their ends without? Let us pray fervently in these days for ourselves, our loved ones, and the world. Let us keep armed and be watchful. And let all who believe in the best things of life stick closely together.

God has always used sincere and consecrated minorities in the achieving of His divine purpose.

Reports of good bags of partridge continue to filter in from the northern haunts of the game birds. A number of local nimrods state that the shooting is good, the birds are big, plentiful and not too hard to get.

Fire of an unknown origin completely destroyed a large barn of the Montreal Dairy on the Graham Farm in Sidney Township on Saturday. The barn situated behind the Graham home on the north side of Highway No. 1 west of Belleville, housed a herd of 45 accredited cattle, which were removed successfully from the burning building. Livestock were a complete loss. Two hundred tons of hay, 4,000 bushels of oats and the complete mechanized milking unit owned by the Montreal Dairy were lost in the flames as the building was reduced to embers by the blaze.

Abandoning School Exams Advocated

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

When I was a reporter, nearly 30 years ago, I used to enjoy doing interviews, and I must admit that I did them well. My technique was simple and effective.

I would sit down with the interviewee and chat, usually over lunch or dinner, talking about an hour, the interviewee would usually say, "When do you start interviewing me?" and I would reply, "It's all finished." Then I pulled out a pencil and a sheet of paper and began firing formal questions I would have received light and cautious and carefully tailored answers.

Almost everybody tenses up under such conditions, and the results are most unsatisfactory. Doctors have learned, specially in treating children, that the best examination is made casual, while the child scarcely knows what is taking place.

I bring all this up to point out the paradoxical fact that, in my view, they should be abandoned. Pupils should be judged on their day-to-day work, and testing should be a regular part of the ordinary assignment, not a great emotional crisis twice a year.

Pupils who get the highest marks are not necessarily the best students — nor are they always those who are least nervous under pressure. All that is being tested in these examinations is not their intelligence of their knowledge, but their ability to freeze up under the emotional impact of a formal test, forget what they have learned, and sit in a stupor for hours, even though the test is being written well in hand. At the same time, many dumb pupils cram their little memories with facts the night before a test and simply sit down and write out the appropriate tape-recording without the faintest idea of what it really means.

Our whole examination system is antiquated and unreliable. It is devised to make life easier for the testers, who can grind out mechanically the marks without knowing or caring much about the minds behind the answers.

Evaluation of a student should be a continuous process, part of the warp and woof of daily classroom work, and should not depend so heavily upon a single 3-peak performance under intense and artificial pressure. The latter is unfair to the student, and the pupil all give their finest responses when they are unaware of making a special response.

While Sydney J. Harris is on vacation, we are reprinting some of the best columns from his newest book, "Last Things First" (Houghton Mifflin. 5d) in this space daily.

Nervous Tensions Can Cause One to Have Stomach Growl

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

"Dear Dr. Molner: I have a teenage daughter who gets very nervous about high school exams.

"Even though she eats a good breakfast, she gets worried in school and her stomach starts growling from her nervousness. This worries her still more and she dreads going each morning for fear other students will hear her stomach growl.

From the physical standpoint, no. From the emotional standpoint, yes.

Is she a good, fair or poor student? If she is a poor student and worried about passing, then maybe she needs some help. An understanding teacher may be able to get all of the advice and aid that are available to her. (Teachers are usually more than willing to go out of their way to help a student who is worried about passing. If not very cooperative, a parent can accomplish much.)

Or am I on the wrong track? Is she a pretty good student who worries because she isn't an A student?

What is she worrying about? Those are the important questions.

It is of secondary importance only that her stomach growls. The growling is the result of nervous tension. Relax the nerves, and the growling will take care of itself.

Eating a good breakfast is fine. Maybe getting up a little earlier and eating more slowly might help.

In emotional as well as physical problems, when you face up to the basic facts, the symptoms take care of themselves. When you just "treat symptoms," you never get anywhere.

Besides, it's only a big stomach growl that is heard by anyone else. I know several "stomach growlers" who are periodically saying "excuse me" when nobody else even heard the growl.

An inverted nipple, as such, requires no treatment. It is normal in some women.

If, as is possible, it develops because of breast cancer, a lump near the nipple, that is another matter, of course, and in that case treating the cancer at once is the important thing.

To get back to the ordinary cases, no one operates on it. (Teachers are usually more than willing to go out of their way to help a student who is worried about passing. If not very cooperative, a parent can accomplish much.)

Or am I on the wrong track? Is she a pretty good student who worries because she isn't an A student?

What is she worrying about? Those are the important questions.

It is of secondary importance only that her stomach growls. The growling is the result of nervous tension. Relax the nerves, and the growling will take care of itself.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

ON ARGUING

Over my life's span I have been more able to see much truth in arguing. Opinions are the more easily accepted when you put punch and conviction behind them.

I have found that many people revere the habit of fighting conviction. For why I know not. Perhaps because it is a human frailty.

I always think it splendid to state your convictions and then let it sink it's own way in. Honesty needs no defense. Besides, it seems to me, much of too much arguing, when they might separate happily after having spoken from the 1-2 of hoardings of each."

It takes a very thinking man to keep silent when warm words wing through the air all about him.

I find it a valuable thing to listen to both sides of a debate arguing as possible. I am sure that this is a safe and happy plan for anybody!

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

The September issue of the Scottish "Field" has a feature article on the controversy that is rising over the invasion of the Cairngorms by tourists and hikers.

The Cairngorms in the heart of the Highlands, where Inverness-shire, Banffshire and Aberdeenshire meet, are the wild and uninhabited region epitomizing the Highlands of song, story and myth. No matter how rich you are, there is only the one way you can explore the Cairngorms—on your hind legs. No matter how influential you might be politically or socially, you have nothing but your heart, your wind and your feet to support you in the company of the dedicated mountaineers, young and not so young, to whom the Cairngorms have been apportioned by the Cairngorm Committee.

But now they are talking of surveying and marking paths for tourists and hikers in the grandeur, with sign posts, and tea shops along the way, and chair lifts like ski tows to carry the sightseers to the crests of the rugged heights.

It seems to me something of Scotland will die when the last of most inaccessible is made accessible to all for tuppence ha'penny, or whatever it costs for the ride.

Canadian Teen-Agers Prove Pleasant Surprise to Girl From Philippines' Republic

By BOB THOMSEN

VANCOUVER (CP) — Canadian teen-agers have proven a pleasant surprise to Irene De Venecia, 18-year-old daughter of the Republic of the Philippines' new consul here.

The dark-haired beauty arrived in Vancouver this fall with her family after a seven-year stay in Hamburg, Germany, expecting to find the young set clinging to old-fashioned customs and styles.

"People told me in Germany most Canadians were long dresses, knee little of the latest fashions and had little idea of what was going on in the world.

"I've only been in Canada a month, so it's not easy to give an opinion, but Canadian teenagers appear as modern as those anywhere. Maybe the girls start using lipstick and makeup a little too early."

Irene has more than a passing interest in fashion. During her last two years in Hamburg she attended a fine arts school to study fabric design. She hopes to return to the Philippines as a full-fledged designer.

NO SCHOOL

The 18-year-old beauty is just starting in my country and there will be a demand for these talents in the next few years."

Unfortunately, Vancouver has no school where Irene can complete the course. The nearest one is in Seattle. Irene, therefore, has decided to enter high school here to obtain the equivalent of a Canadian high school standing.

In two years she will be able to live in Seattle if she still wants to pursue her designing career.

An alternative, she said in an interview would be to enrol at the University of British Columbia in education and obtain a teaching degree.

Canadian schools have been an eye - opener to Miss De Venecia.

"They're so crowded. Are all schools this crowded in Canada? And you move from classroom to classroom for each subject. It's difficult to get to know other students quickly because each class has so many new faces. Everyone seems to be taking a different course.

"And they have so much sports in high schools here. There is a club for just about every sport. I hope to learn a lot more about them here."

LIKES THEATRE

Irene's sports interest is now has been limited to ice skating.

Like most teen-agers Irene enjoys dancing and going out on dates. Unlike many she enjoys serious drama, literature and music.

"I can't understand why theatres are closed here on Sundays. They have a great educational value.

"Sunday here is so much different from a Sunday in a European city. In Europe the streets are crowded with people and cars. They're almost empty here. I don't know where all the people disappear to."

"My sister Heidi was only five when we went to Germany. It's strange to hear her speak our native language because she now has a German accent."

Before leaving Canada Irene would like to see a Calgary Stampede and visit Montreal. "Many Europeans who have visited Canada talk about both. Usually when they speak of Canada, they speak of Montreal. It's atmosphere and gaiety."

PROPOSE FINES

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto's expansion was voted Tuesday as reason for an increase in prostitution here. To overcome the problem aldermen proposed a resolution asking the federal government to set the minimum fine for prostitution at $300; make imprisonment mandatory after the first offence; and have persons convicted of molesting people in public fined a minimum of $100.

Now Receiving Survival Course Applications

A special program will be undertaken to increase substantially the number of men in the militia during the winter 1961-62.

The Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment has been given the task of taking 1,000 men during the next six months.

Training will consist of basic military training and national survival training.

Four courses of six weeks duration will be conducted at the Bridge Street armouries. Each course will accommodate 200 men.

Trenton residents have been allotted 30 vacancies on the Belleville course. Transport will be supplied from the Trenton armouries to Belleville and return daily.

The same courses will be held at Picton armouries, consisting of 50 men.

Courses start here November6; January 8, 1962; February 26 and April 16. Instruction starts at 8 a.m. through 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Regular army pay and allowances will be paid. Clothing and equipment will be supplied.

Applicants are now being received at the Belleville armouries 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday. At Picton armouries, 8 p.m. to 10 p.m. Monday or Thursday.

Applicants must be Canadian citizens, or legally landed immigrants; age from 18 to 51 years, married or single. they must pass a physical examination. Ex-service men must produce proof of honorable discharge.

The Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment requires thirty or-officers in the senior and junior non-commissioned officers with instructional ability to assist in the special militia training.

Those interested and accepted will be placed on continuous army duty for approximately eight months commencing October.

Pay allowances for rank, plus marriage and subsistence allowances will be paid. Contact Lieut. Col. Angus B. Duffy, commanding officer, Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, Belleville Ont.

George Tripp Being Moved To Arnprior

Mr. George Tripp, manager of the local branch of the Bank of Nova Scotia, will be leaving this community shortly to take the position as manager of the bank's Arnprior branch. Arnprior is Mr. Tripp's home town.

Active in community affairs since his arrival here in August of 1956, Mr. Tripp has been the treasurer of a number of organizations such as the Victorian Order of Nurses, the Ontario Home for Mentally Retarded Children and the St. John Ambulance Brigade. He also participated in the Belleville United Appeal as a team captain and in the YMCA campaign.

Perhaps Mr. Tripp is best known as the immediate past president of the local Kiwanis Club and it was during his term in this office that the club's activities were conducted on such a high level as to merit its recognition as one of the leading club in its district and in the Ontario - Quebec - Maritime region.

Mr. Tripp and his wife, Lydia, have been ardent curlers and very active in the Quinte Curling Club.

The Tripp family, which includes sons Ian, Robert and Thomas, expect to be moved to Arnprior by the end of the month. Mr. Tripp will be taking over the duties of Mr. John Thornberry, the first branch manager of the Bank of Nova Scotia in Belleville, who is retiring.

Mr. K. J. Macdonald of New Liskeard, manager of the Haliburton branch, is expected to be Mr. Tripp's replacement.

Prior to coming to Belleville, Mr. Tripp was assistant manager of the St. Catharine - St. Alexander branch in Montreal. He returned to the Bank of Nova Scotia following his discharge as a major in the Cameron Highlanders of Ottawa in 1946. Whilst overseas he took part in the D-Day invasion and was wounded in action.

Two Big Flocks Of Wild Geese Unite on Bay

Two large flocks of wild geese, roughly 150 all told, held a Bay of Quinte rendezvous yesterday afternoon before the annual airborne safari to the southland.

Some 75, the first contingent to arrive, settled on the water off Harry Adams' farm on the south shore, west of the bay bridge.

An hour later, the four o'clock the second flight arrived and settled to await take-off time.

Over two hours later a large mokay boat chugged and snorted its way in the vicinity.

The flocks rose, joined forces and headed south.

Five Entries In Chess Loop

The South-Eastern Ontario Chess League has been reorganized for another season, with there are five centries, instead of four. Peterborough has dropped out, but Lindsay and Ottawa have joined the league. Other entries are Cobourg, Trenton and are Kingston, Brockville and Belleville.

President of the league is Dr. G. Danilov of Kingston, with Eric Beckham also of Kingston, secretary-treasurer.

The Belleville 'club's first games will be on Sunday, Oct. 22 at Brockville, when the local team will play Cornwall and Ottawa. Cornwall and Ottawa also play Brockville on the same day.

New Bylaw Regulates Fire Department

CAMPBELLFORD—A by-law to regulate operation of the Campbellford volunteer fire department, was given final reading at the Monday night session of the town council.

Council cited a lack of cooperation among some of the firemen, suggested staff changes and a need for more efficient operation as the reasons for the by-law.

The by-law, now in effect, sets up the number of volunteer members on the department at 12, and all must be over the age of 21 and each must have a medical certificate showing he is medically fit. They will pay for the medical examination.

Another clause of the by-law limits the age of firemen to 65. Both Fire Chief Alex McDonald and Deputy Chief Vincent Farrell are over the age limit and automatically retired by the by-law.

The new law also states that members of the department must be elected by the firemen themselves and that least ten of the 12 members must be present and vote on new members. The appointment then must be ratified by council.

The department will be asked to hold a meeting as soon as possible to name two new members.

St. Columba Alpha Group Enjoys Slides

The October meeting of the Alpha group of Presbyterian Women of St. Columba Church was held at the Church building, recently. The president, Mrs. F. Van Hampsey opened the meeting and welcomed the visitors present.

During the business meeting, "Alpha" was chosen as the name of this group formerly known as the first group. It was announced that a special meeting of the Alpha and Zeta groups would be held in November to form an association and also that the constitution would be presented for approval at that time.

Miss A. Logan reported for the "Glad Tidings" and asked that all renewals and new subscriptions be in by October 15th.

An invitation was received to attend the Bloor Presbyterian Women's 75th anniversary. It was announced that a "Leadership Course" is to be held at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Kingston, on October 23rd and 24th. Mrs. Walker and four officers, from Toronto, are to be present at this course.

Mrs. J. Fullerton, convener, gave a report on the "Welcome Tea" and banner to be held at the church later this month. She reminded the members of the various booths: handicraft, home cooking, candy and delicatessen; white elephant parcel post, aprons; Christmas cards and baby and doll clothes.

Mrs. Fullerton asked that each one put forth her best effort to make this bazaar successful.

The meal of the church was held as a table at the banner, calling their woodcards and also Hallowe'en pumpkins.

A Thanksgiving theme was used for the devotional meeting. The Scripture was read by Mrs. R. Ashley who also read a short prayer. Following this Mrs. G. Miller led in prayer after which the hymn "For the Beauty of the Earth" was sung.

FIGURE TRAVELOGUE

The speaker, Mrs. R. G. Mackay showed beautiful and inspiring colored slides as an interesting description of her trip to Great Britain and Europe. She joined the Reformation Tour sponsored by the Free Church of Scotland. They spent 12 days travelling through France, Switzerland, Germany and Belgium. The other part of her trip was spent through Wales, England, Scotland and Northern Ireland.

Mrs. W. Willis thanked Mrs. MacKay for the interesting picture which was enjoyed by everyone present.

Mrs. J. Baker was hostess for the social half-hour which followed.

TORONTO (CP)—Rev. Basil Howel, 60, of Montreal, former assistant comptroller of the Bell Telephone Company of Canada, Toronto, was appointed acting comptroller of the Presbyterian Church in Canada. He retired from Bell last September and was ordained to the ministry last month following completion of a theology course at Presbyterian College, Montreal.

Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Bradshaw Campbell are shown following their marriage in the Protestant Chapel, at Summerside, RCAF, Prince Edward Island. The bride is the former Miss Marilyn Ruth Gilmour, daughter of Flight Lieutenant and Mrs. Melville Alexander Gilmour, of Summerside, Prince Edward Island. CAMPBELL — GILMOUR

Lovley pastel-tinted gladioli, ferns and summer flowers adorned the Protestant Chapel of the R.C.A.F. Station at Summerside, Prince Edward Island, for a wedding of wide interest when Marilyn Ruth Gilmour, Summerside, Prince Edward Island, daughter of Flight Lieutenant and Mrs. Melville Alexander Gilmour, was united in marriage in a double-ring ceremony, to Alexander Bradshaw Campbell of Summerside, P.E.I. son of the Honorable Thane A. Alexander and Mrs. Campbell. The officiating minister was the Rev. Louis Murray.

The wedding music was rendered by the organist, Mr. Gordon Murray.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was charming in her floor-length bridal gown of white silk organza over peau de soie, fashioned with fitted torso bodice featuring a Sabrina neckline and brief sleeves, with manchettes ending in points over the hands. The full dome skirt was draped to a large back bow, worn over an elbow length veil of French illusion and crown of sequins and seed pearls and crystals, and carried a cascade of white feathered carnations, stephanotis and trailing ivy. A single strand of culture pearls, the bride's only jewellery, completed her costume.

She was attended by her sister, Miss Lois Gilmour, as maid of honor, and Miss Joan Gilmour, also a sister as bridesmaid. Both attendants were gowned alike in identical cocktail length gowns of pheasant blue silk organza featuring fashion bodices with slit Sabrina necklines and brief sleeves. The full skirts were accented with basic dress overskirts, falling in graceful folds over dandelle taffeta and crinolines. They were matching shell hats of nylon mist, with rose veils, and carried cascade bouquets of yellow pastel Shasta daisies.

Mr. Melville Campbell, attended his brother as groomsman, while Mr. Gordon Kinsman and Mr. Donald Nicholson, were ushers.

The reception was held in the "Quiet Room" of the officers' mess, R.C.A.F. Station Summerside, P.E.I. where the bride's table was daintily appointed with the traditional three-tier wedding cake, and lovely floral arrangements. Toast to the bride was given by Mr. T. K. McMullen, uncle of the bride, to which the bridegroom responded.

The guests were received by the bride's mother, gowned in rose-beige lace and shantung, with navy blue accessories and corsage of pink Sweetheart roses. Assisting in the receiving line was the bridegroom's mother who wore a brown chiffon gown with beige accessories and corsage of mauve asters.

For the honeymoon to New Brunswick, Maine and Quebec City, the bride chose a Colonial and English tan suit, with brown and gold fastened pillbox hat, brown accessories, and corsage of orange Delight roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Campbell will reside at Summerside, where the bridegroom is practising law.

H-S Assoc. Views Film on Conservation

The monthly meeting of Queen Victoria Home and School Association opened Tuesday evening by the parents visiting the various classrooms for half an hour.

The many parents in attendance were welcomed by Mrs. J. Frisk, president.

Mr. Frisk introduced the teaching staff for 1961-62, after which he took the room count. Mrs. Clarke outlined the UNICEF campaign for Hallowe'en night.

An announcement was made that the annual skate sale will be held later this month.

Mr. Frisk spoke briefly on the new amendment passed by the Ontario government that a parent must prove a child's age before a child starts to school.

CONSERVATION FILM

The highlight of the evening was the showing of the film of the Moira Conservation trips taken by grade seven of Queen Victoria School during the past three years. These trips are sponsored by Queen Victoria Home and School Association and have proven to be most educational and enjoyable.

Mrs. J. Welch expressed thanks to Mr. Frisk for showing the film.

The parents of Mr. Frisk's room and Mr. Stark's room served refreshments.

The Experts Say
Women Neglect to Learn Various Cuts, Uses of Meat

By EDNA BLAKELY

TORONTO (CP)—The largest part of the food dollar goes for meat, yet many women neglect to learn the various cuts and their uses, says Martha Logan, home economist with a meat packing company.

Women should read about and study the various cuts to understand proper use and the best method of preparing them, she says.

A graduate of University of Manitoba whose real name is Greta Wiener — "I've always been raised about my name, even before I came into this business"—she is employed by Swift Canadian Company.

There are two methods of cooking meat: the dry - heat method for the most tender cuts and the moist-heat method for less tender cuts.

NO MOISTURE

"If any moisture is added or if a lid is put on the pot, the meat is not dry-roasted," Miss Logan explained.

To dry-roast, place meat in an open pan on a rack. Do not cover and don't add water. Broiling and pan-frying are also dry-heat methods. Tender cuts to be cooked this way include porterhouse steak, T-bone, sirloin, standing rib roasts or rolled rib roasts.

Less tender cuts of beef such as rump, chuck, flank steak or round steak require the presence of steam or water and need to be cooked longer. Braising, pot-roasting or stewing are the moist-heat methods.

Tender cuts of beef are required if the meat is to be served rare. That's because they require less cooking time.

Many people want lean cuts of meat but these are not always best, she says. A good layer of fat and marbling are usually signs of a good cut. Nor is meat with the brightest color always better. "Color has little to do with it."

When buying meat, allow three-quarters of a pound for each person if it contains bone and one-half pound for boneless cuts. About a quarter of a pound of hamburg is usually sufficient.

Miss Logan says she likes to avoid freezing meat if possible. But when freezing it should be done quickly.

For accurate roasting times, Miss Logan recommends a meat thermometer. It should be inserted into the thickest part of the meat, not touching the bone. Check before removing the roast to be sure the thermometer has not been displaced.

Alpha Lambda Welcomes New Rushies

A delightful coffee party was held recently at the home of Mrs. S. Kostachuk, the main purpose being to enable members of Alpha Lambda Chapter, Beta Sigma Phi sorority, to introduce friends interested in joining the chapter.

Refreshments were served by the social committee.

Also, a social meeting was held in honor of the new rushees at the home of vice-president, Mrs. E. Brett.

During a brief business session President Mrs. J. Hayman welcomed the rushees and Mrs. J. Desmond read the history of Beta Sigma Phi in order to acquaint the guests of the aims and purposes of the sorority.

A short discussion was held by members regarding the sending of Christmas presents to the two children adopted by Alpha Lambda.

After the closing ritual, all present participated in some highly entertaining games organized by chairman of the social committee, Mrs. V. Simmonds.

This extremely pleasant evening was brought to a close after the serving of delicious refreshments, presided over by social sponsor Mrs. R. Ketchenson.

Mrs. Raymond Rouse is social hostess.

The award for class attendance for St. Michael's Junior School was won by Mrs. Cantin; for Grades 6, 7 and 8 by Sister Mary Avita, and for Grades 3 and 10 by Mrs. Mice.

Refreshments were served by the mothers of Grade 10.

WILL MEET AGAIN

TORONTO (CP)—Representatives of the Hamilton Hydro-Electric Power Commission and Local 138, International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, met with Chief Conciliation officer Louis Fine Tuesday in an attempt to reach agreement on a long list of demands. A labor department spokesman said no agreement was reached and the two parties will meet with Mr. Fine again Friday.

16-Year-Old Vancouver Pianist Will Not Trade Opportunity for Comfort

By JIM PEACOCK

VANCOUVER (CP) — The delightful shock of her mother's unexpected arrival in Kiev gave Andrea Kalanj an extreme case of homesickness.

Her mother reports, however, that later, in less emotional circumstances, the brilliant 16-year - old Vancouver pianist shook off the malady.

Looking at the cold, hard facts, Andrea said simply that she could not trade her career opportunities in Kiev for the comforts of home.

At the Kiev Conservatory in the Ukraine, where she has been studying under Russian music masters since October, 1960, Andrea has every advantage for the finest training—expert instruction, facilities for endless practice, financial aid and, equally important to her, opportunity to see frequently performances by outstanding artists in opera, ballet, concerts and dramatics.

WOULD BE BORED

In Vancouver, where her father, Emil Kalanj, is a shipyard machinist, she could afford few such cultural luxuries even if they were available.

Andrea's so eager about everything going on in Kiev," her mother, Eileen Kalanj, said in an interview, "I said to her "You'd be bored stiff back in Vancouver."

Mrs. Kalanj has just returned from a month-long visit to Kiev, where she went to see for herself the conditions under which her daughter lives and studies.

She said Andrea had been away on vacation elsewhere in the Soviet Union and had not been informed of her mother's impending arrival. "It took her a few seconds to realize it was me, then she almost panicked."

Andrea had learned to speak Russian and become more accustomed to the way of life at the conservatory, including dormitory living.

DOES OWN COOKING

"The first year was very difficult for her, not knowing the language and having to adjust to European food and way of living," Mrs. Kalanj said. "She also had to adjust to dormitory life. She was only 15 when she went there and she'd never had to do her own cooking and washing."

Andrea is one of the youngest of the 800 students at the music conservatory in Kiev, a city of more than 1,500,000 on the banks of the Dnieper River. She was invited to study there after a 10-minute audition before the conservatory board in Kiev, where she and her mother visited on special invitation following a performance by Andrea, then 14, at an international music competition in Vienna.

Mrs. Kalanj said Andrea lives rent-free in a dormitory room which she shares with another girl and receives 90 rubles monthly to feed herself and pay incidental expenses. The monthly payment is quite adequate, Mrs. Kalanj said, leaving Andrea money to purchase records and sheet music.

TUITION FREE

There is no tuition charge for her studies, which include the Russian language, harmony, theory and history of Russian and foreign music in addition to five or six hours of piano lessons from Prof. Arnold Yakovlevich each week. Nor is there any charge for her practice facilities, where she spends eight hours a day at the keyboard six or seven days a week.

She gets her clothing from home in a 20 - pound parcel which is allowed into the country duty-free once every three months.

"Her biggest complaint," said Mrs. Kalanj, "is that it's not like home. But I'm afraid she's going to get so accustomed to their way of working and to the cultural activities there that she won't be satisfied with what she can find here."

CNRA Members Enjoy Social Time

Recently the members of the CNRA held their monthly social evening at Club Canara. A pot-luck supper was enjoyed followed by entertainment. Contests for the men and for the women were played; winners of the men being Car Mathews, Frank Edgar and Jack Bounhour. All the women competed gained a prize for their efforts.

The special performance of the evening was "Professor Birdwhistle," better known as Mr. Jack Fitzgerald, who delivered one of his most famous lectures, which proved to be enlightening, humorous and witty. Cards and darts were also enjoyed before the evening ended.

Door prizes were won by Frank Edgar, Henry Drury, Pat Matthews, Gladys Fitzgerald and Ross Sweet.

The draw prize, which was a flower arrangement, was won by Margaret Campbell. Mrs. Gladys Fitzgerald, chairman of entertainment, announced that the next social evening would also be in the form of a pot-luck supper.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Donald B. — He found no fault with me when there were profits.

Ward G: — Don is my brother-in-law and my business partner. Since we're married to sisters, I've put up with his slippery methods longer than I'd do with a stranger. With anyone else, I bet our would have several relations, but I'd probably also have got the District Attorney on his trail.

He has to me, to salesmen and to customers. For example, to get an order, he promised a customer a big discount which he didn't tell me about. Our business couldn't take that much of a cut. Don ranged. But the customer came to me and, even though Don denies the promise, I believed him and had to make good. Similar things come up so, unless Don changes, we'll have to split up, family or no.

Donald B. — It's funny Ward never says boo, never asks how when I bring in big orders and we make a nice profit. It's only when something goes sour that he gets on his high horse about my methods.

How does he think people get rich? It's by taking chances. Sometimes I guess right. Sometimes, wrong. That customer pulled a fast one, and Ward believed him instead of me. So I guessed wrong that time. But if Ward thinks you can get ahead in business without some scrambling, he'd better join Alice in Wonderland.

Even the big corporations talk out of both sides of their mouths. You don't call it lying any more. You call it playing ball. Ward's unrealistic. Following his way, we'll wind up with pushcarts.

The Council — Watch it, Don. Big Ward, pushcarts may not sound bad at all in these days of big business "overhead." At least everything happens on the spot and in the open.

A partnership, like a marriage, gives one more to watch out for than oneself. In this case, it's a man's reputation. People may trust Don because he's Ward's brother-in-law and then, after getting burned, they may distrust Ward because he's Don's partner! So Ward is wise to press for a showdown immediately.

The reason, Don, why Ward doesn't probe every transaction you make is that he must "assume" they're aboveboard. All business must be based on an assumption of honesty. Double-dealing, despite your careless condescension, must be the exception. Pardon the shift, but it's like nylon stockings. Nobody pays much attention to them on the average woman, unless they're ripped or falling down! Ward's scrutiny of your methods has been caused by the upsets which ensued.

It's worth taking extra pains to preserve this partnership, because it's tied in with a harmonious family relationship. That's why we commend Ward's patience and urge Don's gratitude and cooperation. We recommend a four-stage solution, as follows:

First, Don concedes it's frying comes too easily to him and recognizes that he has an emotional, moral and psychological problem.

Second, he proves his sincerity by seeking help. A psychologist can trace the tendency back to its roots, find the cause and work toward a basic cure in a short time. Don can afford it.

Third, Ward "plays along" for a reasonable time, hoping he's not too late to recoup business friends and trade confidence.

Fourth, either the situation levels off and corrects itself or at a specific point Ward moves to dissolve the partnership, family ties notwithstanding. With the handicaps mentioned, it would be bound to break up sooner or later, anyway.

Weddings

REDCLIFFE — PALMER

CAMPBELLFORD — Jessie Georgina Palmer, only daughter of Mrs. Morris Palmer of Campbellford, became the bride of Donald Claude Redcliffe at Christ Anglican Church here, on Saturday. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Beatrice Redcliffe of Campbellford, and the late Sam Redcliffe. The Rev. Owen G. Barrow officiated.

The bride, who was given in marriage by Bernard Hobson, wore a floor-length white lace gown over satin, with simulated pearl trim. Her fingertip veil of lace was caught to a crown of apple blossoms and lily-of-the-valley. She carried a bouquet of pink and white roses with lily-of-the-valley and pink and white streamers.

The maid of honor was Miss Jean Davey of Lindsay, wearing a blue street-length gown of nylon over taffeta with hat and shoes to match. She carried roses, lily-of-the-valley and fern with pink and white streamers.

The groomsman was Mr. Robert Parcels of Lindsay, uncle of the bride. Flower girls were Misses June Parcels, the bride's cousin, and Candice Ellis, niece of the bridegroom. They carried baskets of yellow and white mums with pink ribbon bows.

Ushers were George Parcels and Joseph Cassidy.

For travelling, the bride wore a pink dress with black trim with white accessories. On their return the couple will live at 74-A Front St., Campbellford.

Out-of-town guests were present from Lindsay, Norwood and Frankford.

Mary Moore gives you today what she whimsically calls Northern Fried Chicken because it was made in Margaret Duddy's kitchen on Vancouver Island. The rice which accompanies it is cooked in chicken broth to give added richness.

Northern Fried Chicken With A Southern Accent

By Mary Moore

The nine-year-old daughter of one of my Press Club friends asked her parents, seven years ago, if she could have a horse. Her parents explained that the cost did not stop with the purchase of a horse. It had to be stabled, fed and exercised. She said "Oh I'll exercise him for nothing!" Then two or three days passed when she announced "Mum I'm going to be your cleaning woman, I'll clean a house real good, you give me the six dollars per week you give Nellie and I'll put it in the bank for my horse." They did. She did and now, at sixteen she is Saskatoon's youngest, finest rider.

Her mother, Idabelle, told me "When Moira is scrubbing the kitchen floor she isn't cleaning a house. She's feeding a horse!"

I yearn to hear of more Canadian children being brought up this way.

During my travels somebody said to me "Why all these recipes for Southern Fried Chicken. Why can't we see a recipe for Northern Fried Chicken sometime?" Since my dear friend, Margaret Duddy of Victoria, served me fried chicken with a lovely accompaniment of rice and cream gravy I thought that was cooked in the North so why not call it

MARGARET DUDDY'S NORTHERN FRIED CHICKEN

I made and served this to five, generously.

One 2½-lb. frying or roasting chicken—with neck, backbone and giblets, 4¼ cups water, ½ cup flour, 1½ teaspoons salt, ¼ teaspoon MSG, ¼ teaspoon pepper, ½ cup cooking oil, 1¼ cups long grain rice (Not quick cooking), 2 teaspoons sugar, milk or cream (see below) ½ lb. sliced mushrooms (optional). To the neck and backbone and giblets add the water and simmer until tender—about 2 hours. Mix together the flour, salt, MSG (accent) and pepper and dredge all the chicken pieces in it. (Save the leftover flour mixture for thickening the gravy later — see below.) Heat the oil in a very large frying pan and brown the chicken on both sides. Add 2 tablespoons water or broth from giblets, cover and cook over very low heat for ¾ to 1 hour, turning 2 or 3 times. One-half hour before serving time drain 2½ cups of broth from the giblets and add it to the rice in a heavy pot. Cover, bring to boil — do not uncover — but turn off heat for 2 minutes. Turn on heat again and simmer for 25 minutes without uncovering. Rice cooked this way absorbs all the rich liquid, each grain is separate. Arrange rice in ring around edge of hot platter. Put chicken pieces and giblets in centre. If you use the mushrooms gently sauté them for 5 minutes in the leftover fat in pan. Make Gravy: Measure leftover broth. Measure enough milk or cream to make it up to 3½ cups. Make a smooth paste of the leftover flour mixture, the sugar and ¼ cup of the measured milk. Add remaining milk to broth, stir in paste till thick. Pour over rice. Garnish with mushrooms if used.

Successful Living

Can Love Flourish

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS:—I am 25. I live in the States and am writing you from there. On a holiday trip to a ranch in Western Canada I met a girl just my age. She invited me to dinner on her farm home, where she keeps house for her father. I went twice while I was there.

From the very first time that I met her I felt at ease and very happy. Since then we have corresponded; and a lonely hearts club but just friendly.

I would go to see her every week but it is three hundred miles and I cannot afford it. I support my crippled father and while I have a good job, this would be far too extravagant.

Please tell me if there is any hope in such a situation.—GEORGIE.

DEAR GEORGIE:—Imaginative lovers have wooed and won, by correspondence.

Certainly there's hope. Step up the number of letters per week. Throw in a little gift now and then—even a 30-cent paperback by a writer you think she'll enjoy. Send a clipping about a current topic you may have discussed.

Could you invite her to your home for a weekend? Nothing like seeing your friend against your own background to get to know her better!

DEAR DORIS:—I am 15. My mother insists that I be home and in bed by 9.30 every night. Says I am still a growing girl and that her mother always made her do this. The only time we are out later is when she and my Dad and I go out to dinner to the home of a relative.

This means I can never go out with my cousins or anybody to a show or a dance. She says this will come later. What do you think?—JAY.

DEAR JAY—Times have changed. While "early to bed" is still a good rule, we know now that young folks do better when they learn to mix at an early age—by having occasional evenings with their pals.

Try for one "special occasion" late pass, and be sure you are in when you say you will be. Perhaps Dad will help you with this.

GETS NEW LEGS — Mrs. Elizabeth Mukko, 71, of Happy Valley, Nfld., is getting a new set of artificial legs after airmen at Goose Bay stafted a fund to replace her old ones. Her father was forced to amputate both legs below the knee after they had become frostbitten when she was a child. Mrs. Mukko is shown in hospital at St. John's. (CP Photo).

Had Both Legs Amputated Below Knees After Frostbite But Gets Artificial Limbs

ST. JOHN'S Nfld. (CP) — When Elizabeth Mukko was a child her father amputated both her legs below the knees, then stood her in a flour barrel to stop the bleeding.

In the 1918 influenza epidemic she lost her husband and six children.

"I've had a hard life," the 71-year-old woman from Happy Valley, Labrador, says now in a masterpiece of understatement. "But you've got to take the good with the bad and you still have to smile."

Her story and courage so impressed Canadian and American airmen at Goose Bay, Labrador, that they launched a campaign that raised money to buy the new legs.

The new limbs are the latest of a series she has had since the day at Winter's Cove when a trapper father returned to find her legs frostbitten and developing gangrene.

WALKED ON KNEES

Miles from the nearest hospital, the father decided that to save her life he would have to amputate. Then he stood her in the flour to stem the bleeding.

By the time Elizabeth was 18 she had become quite agile at moving about on her knees covered by leather pads made by her father.

She was found in this condition by Dr. Wilfred Grenfell, the humanitarian who founded the Grenfell hospital mission of northern Newfoundland.

Dr. Grenfell took the girl to the mission hospital where he performed several operations. Later he took her to New York where she received her first set of artificial lgs.

"They were only small, she recalls, "Cute looking."

BURIED FAMILY

She made several trips to the United States and England with Dr. Grenfell and later spent four years in Mexico with Dr. John Macpherson, a missionary.

"Some of the boys at the base (Goose Bay) who come to the house speak Spanish," she says. "I warn them not to talk about me in Spanish because I know every word they're saying."

When the flu epidemic swept Rigolet, Labrador, Mrs. Mukko, personally buried her family, saying the prayers over their graves. She went to the Grenfell mission at St. Anthony afterwards to study nursing and midwifery. She has delivered hundreds of babies.

Still a bundle of energy, Mrs. Mukko lives with her daughter and son-in-law in Happy Valley, near the airbase, and performs household chores for the neighbors.

"When I hear that some poor person wants work done or is in need, I do whatever I can for them."

SPEAKING of MANNERS

PATRICIA LEWIS

BORROWERS HAVE RESPONSIBILITIES

Very often, when a large party is in the works, you find you're short of silver, china or a coffee pot large enough to make tea for all.

So why not borrow?

The neighbor up the street might have just the right pattern to go with your Wedgwood and she's always generous about lending her king-size coffee urn around the neighborhood. So the temptation is to call and let her do your catering for you.

Borrowing among neighbors is customary but there are a few obligations that go with it.

In the first place, when you borrow anything that's obviously for party purposes, you should invite the person who's lending. It would be very tasteless not to. So, if you have any reservations about issuing the bid, then you had better look elsewhere for assistance.

Naturally, when you borrow bulky items like chairs or card tables, it's up to you to fetch and return them. China, silver and glassware should always be counted before they're carried away from the owner, so you may be sure the inventory is correct when you give them back.

Before you borrow anything, it's also a good idea to have some idea of what the items are worth. You may not be legally obligated to replace anything that gets taken, but the moral responsibility is there. If the replacement value is a little too rich for your pocketbook, maybe you'd better settle for something a little less grand.

Naturally, anything you borrow should be returned promptly — the very next day, if possible. And if any item has been damaged it should be replaced just as soon as you find the proper substitute.

Borrowing always involves responsibilities, so it's always wise to understand them fully.

Question: I've been invited to a school dance. My date can't drive and doesn't have a car. I can drive and can get my father's car for the evening. Would it be correct for me to suggest such an arrangement?

— L. C. C., Hackensack, N.J.

Answer: The suggestion would probably embarrass your date, so don't try to steer things. Since he invited you to the dance, he's responsible for transportation and, since you've accepted, you have to go along with his plans, even if it means walking.

New Church Organization To Be Formed

On December 31st, every women's organization in the United Church of Canada will cease to exist. In January, inaugural services across the Dominion will bring into existence a new organization of the women of the congregation for the total mission of the church.

Approximately 100 women, representing over 50 groups between Frankford and Port Hope met at Brighton United Church last Thursday evening under the leadership of Mrs. K. R. Hose of the Dominion Council, to plan the merging of the women's groups in the Cobourg Presbytery. Mrs. Rose's address on the objectives of the new organization was packed with information and a rare sense of humor which delighted everybody.

Appreciation was expressed by Mrs. Maud Allen of Sastleton.

The secretary of the Cobourg Presbyterial provisional committee is Mrs. Bernice Waldie of Roseneath, who may be consulted for further information. Organization is proceeding in accordance with plans carefully laid during the last few years.

To see what's new... LOOK INTO WESTINGHOUSE

SEE no centre-post agitator. The new revolving basket tumbles your clothes. The most efficient washing action yet developed because it gives more washing movement and uses less water and detergent. Only Westinghouse gives you this plus two deep-water rinses for a truly clean wash.

SEE it's completely automatic—only the Westinghouse Laundromat tells you the size of your wash load and the correct amount of water and detergent to use. One control selects any one of four wash and rinse cycles.

SEE it's Time-Saving Features. Just start the Laundromat and your work is done. No after-wash clean up—only the Westinghouse Laundromat cleans itself—even the Lint Ejector automatically cleans itself.

Stewardship Talk Given At WA Meet

The regular monthly meeting of Tabernacle United Church, W.A. was held in the church parlor, Thursday, afternoon, October 5.

The president, Mrs. P. Kerr opened the meeting and minutes of September meeting were read and approved. Treasurer gave her report. Forty-seven calls were made by members. Secretary received a letter from Mrs. Andrews thank ing the W.A. for privilege of attending Canadian Keswick Conference. Mrs. Andrews stated that it was a deeply thoughtful and soul searching experience.

A letter was read from Victor Mission for Girls, in Toronto thanking W.A. for all their kindness and expressing the hope that the new organization of "United Church Women" would not forget them.

Mrs. May had charge of devotional. Scripture lesson was read from Philippians 2. 1-16.

Mrs. M. G. McFarlane spoke on Christian stewardship. A good steward is a useful person. The speaker quoted from the Bible showing how Jesus spoke of the steward who did nothing to make use of the talent given to him.

"At this time of Thanksgiving we think of the harvest. The farmer first had to scatter the seed. Then God sent the rain and the sunshine to make the harvest. If seed had not been planted and cared for there would not have been a harvest."

"Christian stewardship is giving our whole life to God's service, she continued. "Great giving can only be given by those who give themselves.

When some think of stewardship they think only of money but a good steward gives of his time and talents. If we live for self then life is lost but if we live for other others life becomes worthwhile.

Many of us make good resolutions but these resolutions never result in deeds."

It was announced that East Hastings W.A. Rally would be held in Tabernacle United Church in October. At this meeting Mrs. Rose of Toronto will speak on "United Church Women." The W.M.S. will have charge of refreshments at the rally.

It was decided to give five members life certificates for faithful service during the years.

After the meeting group four served refreshments and a social hour was enjoyed.

tion could seriously prejudice the chances of success."

Home spoke to the conference on an emergency resolution—later passed with only one dissenting vote—asking full support for the government and the Western allies in their stand on the freedom and viability of West Berlin."

Home said: "Some people talk of refusing to fight for Germans. It is beside the point. The fact is that freedom is under fire the world over.

"If free men cannot combine to defend an outpost of freedom, it will not be long before the flanks of the main defences are turned and liberty is menaced everywhere. . . . The German people are as entitled to self-determination as much as any other nation."

No one suggests German reunification could be achieved by force. "I do not know when peaceful political means will bring it about. Equally we cannot deny them that hope."

He said the immediate problem is the freedom of the West Berliners to live the life of their choosing, the right of the Allies to be in Berlin to defend that freedom and the right of unhindered Western access.

"Those are the three requirements which must be guaranteed."

90 LAND SAFELY

OTTAWA (CP) — A Trans-Canada Air Lines Vanguard, carrying 80 passengers, Wednesday made a safe landing on three engines after developing engine trouble immediately after taking off from Uplands Airport. The aircraft was Flight 603 to Toronto. Passengers were delayed about five hours.

as caretakers until the others can return, tending the island's handful of sheep and cattle and its tiny fruit and potato crops.

British Vice - Admiral Sir Nicholas Copeman, commander-in-chief of the South Atlantic, South America station in Cape Town, reported that before fleeing the Islanders radioed:

'Lava is flowing. The whole eastern end of the island is cracking. Great lumps of rock and earth have been forced up about 30 feet."

ERUPTS HEAVILY

The 7,540 - foot high volcano, which occupies most of the island, was reported erupting heavily Tuesday night, perilously close to the settlement of Edinburgh.

The sudden eruption of the long - dormant volcano on Tristan—known as "the loneliest island in the world"—puzzled geologists.

Dr. A. L. Hales, director of the Bernard Price Institute for Geophysical Research in Johannesburg, said that "The central Atlantic ridge is basaltic rock in which this kind of explosion is unusual."

Experts believed the tremors were caused by movement along a geological fault in the earth's surface. Tristan rises from an underwater mountain range running down the Atlantic and geologists said its volcano had been dormant for thousands of years. Its crater was filled by a lake.

Then Monday night the island's 35-year-old administrator, Peter Wheeler, sent a call for help to evacuate the island to the Royal Navy headquarters here.

He said a "bubble of ground" had risen 30 feet.

Just as the rescue ships, the Britannia and the Repetto began the evacuation Tuesday morning a smoke cloud darkened the sky and the volcano began erupting.

UNDERSTANDING

on the basis of understanding with them."

Only if such an understanding could not be reached, would Russia sign a peace treaty with East Germany, he said.

Gromyko said his talks with Macmillan and Foreign Secretary Lord Home, in London had been useful.

"We think there has been a certain contribution in the right direction," he said.

The Soviet foreign minister was asked whether each side now had greater understanding of the other's point of view on Berlin.

Gromyko was asked whether he thought the British government's attitude toward Berlin was less firm than that of the American government.

"I would not go so far as to define it as less or more firm," he replied.

PRAISES SIGNS

"I got additional signs here, and I got such impressions in the United States as well, that there is growing understanding that a peaceful solution must be found.

"That can be said, definitely."

Gromyko refused to comment on the possibility of an East-West summit conference soon. This was not discussed during his talks with Macmillan, he said.

The talks here and in the United States produced no tangible progress toward peaceful settlement of the Berlin crisis but appeared to take some of the heat out of it.

FLASHING SMILES

The usually dour Gromyko flashed smiles, Vs for victory and a new truths sign to newspaper men after his hour and 40-minute session with Macmillan. Several times he told reporters that everything must be done to avert a military collision over Berlin. A peaceful settlement is possible, he said, "but not everything is dependent on the Soviet Union."

After the meeting here, the Soviet diplomat attended a two-hour dinner party with Macmillan and Home and their wives at the foreign secretary's residence. Gromyko and Home shook hands for photographers three times at the entrance, then entered the building with arms about each other's shoulders.

U.S. AND RUSSIA

said, agreed the other four should come from the United States, Russia, Latin America and Africa.

PICK U THANT

The United States and Russia had agreed previously on nomination of U Thant of Burma to fill out Hammarskjold's term expiring in April, 1963, if they could settle the disputed points about the deputies.

Meanwhile, the General Assembly's 31-member steering committee was scheduled to take up today a request for an international investigation into the "conditions and circumstances" of Hammarskjold's death.

The item was proposed by Brazil, Cyprus, Ghana, India, Morocco, the United Arab Republic and Venezuela.

Nigeria's Foreign Minister Jaja Wachuku Tuesday blasted the big powers for failure to agree on a temporary secretary-general. He said no "superman" is needed and if the first appointee didn't work out well, another could be named.

Many delegates would quarrel with the attitude of switching secretaries-general like football coaches, but Wachuku's speech reflected growing impatience among some of the smaller powers who have been pressing both East and West to find a formula for naming an interim successor.

Tuesday, Cuba renewed its charges that forces are being trained in the United States and various Caribbean areas for a new assault on Cuba.

DENIES CHARGE

Stevenson replied that "the United States is not planning any intervention or aggression against Cuba" and he added that Premier Fidel Castro has frustrated the ideals of his revolution.

Dinosaur Example Contained Both Good, Evil Portents Of Man Says Paleontologist

By STAN ADLAM

TORONTO (CP) — An animal that became extinct more than 60,000,000 years before man first appeared on earth may have some lessons to teach us about our own survival, says Dr. W. E. Swinton, one of the world's leading paleontologists.

Interviewed shortly after he arrived in Canada to become head of the Royal Ontario Museum's life sciences division here, the dinosaur expert and life student of early man suggested the example of the dinosaur contained both good and evil portents for man.

On the credit side, Dr. Swinton's studies debunk the theory that civilization is the cause of all man's ills and will destroy him.

"In London," says the 60-year-old doctor who was curator of fossil reptiles at Britain's Natural History Museum before coming to Canada, "I found in a dinosaur one of the earliest known cases of bone cancer, thus refuting the argument that disease comes about because of civilization, because man stopped living the natural life.

This indicated, however, that natural hazards, such as new viruses, might be enough to send man the way of the dinosaur even without the "additional hazard civilization does contribute—that of self-destruction."

But here, Dr. Swinton's researches into fossil man-like bas seen all the important material in the world on the earliest men—put a ray of hope. "Man is still young — only about 1,500,000 years of age—resilient and still evolving. Mental evolution is presumably continuing and although it is difficult to see any pronounced physical evolution taking place in man now, the population as a whole is becoming taller and is taller than man ever was."

Dr. Swinton, who was nicknamed "the dinosaur man" after frequent lecture tours and appearances on BBC television, obviously loved of billions of years as he gave a capsule biological history of the early world.

AFRICAN ORIGIN

"Life of any kind on earth is about 1,500,000,000 years old. Then about 250,000,000 years ago the age of the dinosaurs began. The dinosaurs did not die out all at once—they declined in population over a long period of time, but by the time man appeared 1,500,000 years ago, the dinosaurs had been gone for 70,000,000 years.

"The cradle of man was almost certainly in Africa."

Since man came to North America only a few thousand years ago, there are no fossils of early man in Canada. Nevertheless, said Dr. Swinton, "Canada provides a particularly fertile ground, the surface of which has barely been scratched, for the discovery of specimens that will shed light, especially on the evolution of vertebrate animals."

"Right across Canada there is a tremendous number of specimens to be found, particularly in Alberta where important finds have already been made.

"The dinosaurs discovered in Alberta are roughly 100,000,000 years old."

NEW FINDS POSSIBLE

Dr. Swinton said that "any-

Wants to Form Union to Fight Teamsters

NEW YORK (AP)—Joseph A. Beirne, president of the Communications Workers of America, urged the AFL-CIO Monday to create a union within itself to rival the ousted Teamsters union.

He estimated at a press conference that such a move would cost $1,000,000 to start and said his union was prepared to contribute its share, which would be $25,000 or $30,000.

Beirne said his proposal would be on the agenda of the fall meeting of the AFL-CIO executive council which begins here today.

thing we find in the ground is only a fraction of what once existed, so that even now there is a good chance for people to find something that has never been seen before."

Apart from opportunities for specimen-hunting and the Royal Ontario Museum's "excellent collection of fossils," Dr. Swinton's new job offers a chance to extend his interests over the whole field of biological science.

Within the next few years, he said, he hopes to make the life sciences division of the museum important not only to scientists but to the public by interpreting the results of the research for them.

"One of the most urgent problems in the world today is to acquaint the general public with the power and possibilities of science and to show public its responsibility, not for the misuse of science, but for the use of science, with humanity and as the servant of man."

Stock Ownership Growing Among Employees Using Three Kinds of Plans

NEW YORK (AP)—Milton E. Cole is a pulp delivery foreman. He's also a capitalist because of the stock purchase plan of his employer, the Scott Paper Company.

He says he didn't have a nickel when he went to work but now enjoys a quarterly dividend along with his regular pay.

Frank Marinus, a chemical operator for du Pont in Deepwater, N.J., thinks his company's stock thrift plan means he'll be able to put his three boys through college.

Miss Mildred Mick, a secretary for Sears, Roebuck for more than 30 years says her stocks, acquired under a profit-sharing plan, mean that after retirement she can take care of ordinary needs and still have something left over with which to enjoy life.

Stock ownership is growing in the United States among employees using three kinds of plans offered by the companies for which they work.

The number of Americans now owning at least one share of stock is estimated at 15,000,000 and stock market authorities believe that one out of five got his first start through a company-sponsored plan.

Such plans were developed in the 1920s. Their popularity took a nose dive after prices plunged in 1929. They have been returning in volume in recent years, some with safeguards against severe financial loss.

Of some 1,100 companies listed on the New York Stock Exchange, 233 offer at least one form of stock purchase plan for a total of 368 plans. And more than 1,000,000 employees are participating.

An exchange pamphlet shows 530,000 employees participating in 114 stock purchase plans; 723,000 in 80 savings and thrift plans; and 250,000 in 39 profit-sharing plans. In addition, 84,000 employees are included in stock bonus plans, monthly investment plans, or stock retirement plans.

Under stock purchase plans companies absorb administrative costs, commission charges and other fees but usually don't contribute directly to the purchase price.

Under savings and thrift plans, companies contribute from 25 cents to $1 for each salary dollar set aside by employees for buying company common stock.

The 39 companies with profit-sharing plans report a total of 98 per cent of eligible employees participating. These plans accumulate funds and invest them in company stock or a combination of such stock and other securities. In 23 of such plans employees don't contribute any of their own money. In the 16 others they can contribute up to 10 per cent of their salaries.

Chinese Willing to Talk To U.S. as Step Toward Easing Some of Tension

By CLARE McDERMOTT

PEKING (Reuters)—China is willing to have talks with the United States at the foreign ministers level as a step toward easing tension between the two countries, Marshal Chen Yi, Chinese foreign minister, said today.

But the initiative for any talks must come from the United States, he emphasized.

The foreign minister's statement was made during an informal three - hour discussion with Walton A. Cole, general manager of Reuters, who visited China during a round-the-world tour.

Marshal Chen Yi said "in Warsaw we are already having talks on the ambassadorial level. At Geneva we are talking on the level of vice foreign ministers. If they want, we will on foreign ministers level we would have no objections."

"As to the step of the further possibility of a summit I have not consulted my government and can only give my personal opinion."

AWARE OF FEARS

Chen Yi said China is aware of fears in the West, particularly in the United States, that what would happen when China possessed nuclear weapons—which is only a question of time.

When China has atomic bombs, he said, it will be in less chance of war. The danger today was that such bombs were in the hands of only two powers.

The foreign minister said if there is fear in the United States about China having scientific and technical advances, realize that China can not avoid fearing the U.S., with its nuclear weapons and its policy of encircling China with military bases.

Marshal Chen Yi predicted that unless there is a settlement in Laos and Korea there is a fear that war will spread in those areas.

He said the only solution to the Laotian problem would be through the formation of a neutral government headed by Prince Souvanna Phouma which would have representatives of the Pathet Lao (Communist) guerrillas.

BERLINDER TROUBLES

Chen Yi said that because of China's current agricultural and industrial difficulties there is apprehension in some quarters that it "might carry out armed adventure in Southeast Asia." This is groundless, he said. The Chinese people have overcome her difficulties was through her own exertions.

Questioned for details of those difficulties, Chen Yi said recently a great cultural production due to natural calamities floods, drought, typhoons and insect pests — in the last three years had caused the living standard of the Chinese people to be "a little tight compared to the years when I was born in old China.

"We need to be consolidated in our economic work and we must plan our consumption of food and other goods. We must find substitutes for food grains and we have had to import 5,000,000 tons of grain in two years, since the People's Republic of China was founded."

He did had cotton harvests also affected the clothing rations of the people.

Chen Yi also said that China will have to face another bad harvest next year.

White-Thatched Dunnville Entrant for PC Leadership Holds High Cabinet Post

By DON HERBERT

TORONTO (CP)—If Premier Leslie Frost is the sly old fox of Ontario politics, Provincial Treasurer James Allan is the wise old owl.

The white-thatched Dunnville businessman, who also serves as minister of economics, commands the highest government position next to the premier.

He enjoys strong cabinet support and ranks high among the announced contenders for leadership of the Ontario Progressive Conservative party.

The new party leader, and premier, will be chosen at a provincial party convention Oct. 20-21.

Party officials see one possible difficulty for Mr. Allan—his age. He will be 70 in January, two years older than Mr. Frost, whose decision to retire prompted the calling of the convention.

IS HARD WORKER

Born and brought up on a 300-acre farm at Canboro in Haldimand County, James Allan relishes tough assignments as one of his youth. He is noted for his capacity for work and for the long months before Ontario's three-per-cent retail sales tax was launched Sept. 1, 1961. Cabinet delegations and made numerous appearances before the province's need for more revenue.

Mr. Allan graduated from the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph in 1914, spent the next five years managing the family farm while his father, a prominent agricultural representative in Wentworth County, retired. Then he became a partner in a Dunnville dairy. He still has an interest in the firm, operated by his family.

He entered politics in 1929 when he was elected to the Canboro Township council. Later he was elected to the Dunnville town council and served as mayor, deputy reeve and reeve, and as warden of Haldimand County. He sought a seat in the legislature in the 1951 election and retained Haldimand-Norfolk for the Conservatives, winning re-election in 1955 and 1959.

His appointment as minister of highways in 1955 caused some surprise. His agricultural background made him an apparently unlikely choice to head a department that had just emerged from a scandal involving highway tenders.

RESTORED MORALE

Within three years he had restored the department's morale and instituted a system of public tenders for highway contracts. In 1958 he was appointed minister of economics and resources and for a brief time also served as minister of public works.

Devoted to the policies of Leslie Frost, Mr. Allan says the task of the next premier should be largely a continuation of the program Mr. Frost instituted over the last few years.

"I think that as the party leadership, it seems unlikely it will change his general policies," he says.

"I've always been kept down to size by my wife," he says, "and I suppose she is also responsible for my appointment to the cabinet. His wife interrupted the outpouring of congratulations to remind him to put out the garbage.

Mr. Allan married Lillian Harvie of Orillia. They have two children, Harvie and Jean, both married and living in Dunnville.

Macmillan's Cabinet Shuffle Leaves Experts Guessing

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Prime Minister Macmillan leaves the job guessing once again.

His latest cabinet reconstruction — as subtle and as enigmatic as his own character — is open to varying interpretations.

Probably the prime minister planned it that way. Sipping his habitual whisky and soda at Admiralty House, he can indulge in the luxury of a quiet chuckle as he surveys the bewilderment of the commentators in trying to decide whether it's promotion or demotion for R. A. Butler and Iain Macleod.

Both Butler and Macleod give up important posts in return for something and nobody can say for sure who will turn out to be the conservative party's man of destiny.

The 38 - year - old Butler, unexpectedly passed over when Macmillan succeeded Sir Anthony Eden as prime minister after the Suez crisis, loses two big jobs — leader of the Commons and chairman of the Conservative party organization.

MAC'S ASSISTANT

In return, Butler is to give special assistance to Macmillan in a "wide range of duties," including work as a kind of deputy lord in connection with Britain's negotiations for membership in the European Economic Community.

Macleod, 48 next month, takes up the two duties Butler has relinquished and yields his own colonial secretary's post to Reginald Maudling, regarded by the Conservative right wing as a "safer man."

Thus Macleod will be the man responsible for giving a new sheen to the Conservative image in preparation for the next election, probably in 1964, Conservative popularity is at a low ebb after 10 years in office and the opposition Labor party is in seems the ascendant in slow suicide.

Superficially Butler may seem to be losing most — but he similarly republican of the three thought that he is being removed from a position of "central influence." It is possible to forecast that in his new position as Macmillan's close associate he could become the indispensable man.

REMOVAL REGRETTED

In Macleod's case, there is regret in liberal and Africa circles that he is being removed from the colonial office, where he has shown skill and determination in hastening African advancement.

Perhaps his most bitter opponent has been Sir Roy Welensky, prime minister of the Federation of Rhodesia and Nyasaland. Many will regard Macleod's move as a personal triumph over Sir Roy and his London lobby.

On balance, Macleod seems likely to watch it—future. He is regarded with suspicion by the Conservative right wing, but is a new kind of "middle-class" Conservative and he is not regarded to be one of Macmillan's group of intimates. His greatest asset is a voice that represents the more progressive elements which probably are the party's best guarantee of future electoral success.

Food Shortages May Continue In Red China

By HAROLD MORRISON

WASHINGTON (CP) — State department analysts predict Red China will go through a period of serious food shortages starting this winter. They anticipate it will be forced to seek increased supplies of food from foreign sources, particularly wheat and other grain from Canada and Australia.

Because of droughts and floods and some indication of a breakdown of the communes as an efficient system of farming, food shortages may confirm in Red China for years.

Nationalist Chinese hope the shortages may create a whirlwind of unrest on the Chinese mainland but the analysts, who have been guided in their work by reports of refugees, suggest this is unlikely to happen.

Instead they anticipate Communist China's great need of food will force it to spend more and more of its relatively scarce supply of foreign currencies on imports. They suggest there is some question of whether Canada and Australia will ever get full payment for all their shipments.

Faced by a shortage of exchange, Red China now is reported by the government to be willing to accept such gifts.

American food would be made available, they said, if the communists asked for it and agreed to halt the smears the food was a gift of the American people.

Seven Denver Policemen Will Be Arrested

DENVER, Colo. (AP)—Seven more Denver policemen will be arrested and charged with conspiracy with a scandal already involving more than 40 law officers, Governor Steve McNichols said Tuesday.

McNichols personally took charge of the investigation after charges of burglary and conspiracy had been filed against Sheriff Robert M. Roberts and suburban Adams County, Three Denver police policemen were arrested inside a Commerce Town, Colo., liquor store Sept. 29.

The sheriff is accused of masterminding that burglary and others in Denver's northside district, police said, were used to cover up the scandal. To date, 43 suspended ex - Denver police policemen and a police sergeant are involved in the scandal.

McNichols said he would imagine a situation where an H-bomb might be dropped on a building while it was still far from any land areas, but that it would not seem harmless "it might put too much force in one place."

Conceivably, he indicated, conventional bombs of lesser power—but dropped in various places throughout "the several billion tons of air" area of a big bowler — might have a greater practical and benedicial effect.

Strange Case of High Crime Being Aired in Coal Town With Chorus Girl Defendant

POTTSVILLE, Pa. (AP) — A strange case of a chorus girl, a fleeing big-shoe burglary and two killings—is moving to a climax in this hard coal community.

Action three weeks of testimony, the prosecution rested Tuesday in the trial of Lillian Reisky, the former chorus girl who bought a Philadelphia night club where she used to dance.

One of six original defendants, Miss Reisky is accused of masterminding a burglary which itself has been as mysterious as some of the men charged with it.

In August, 1959, the Pottsville home of John D. Rich, an Reading businessman who became affluent in coal operations, was looted while Rich and his wife were in Europe.

From the outset, the victim and the state have been at odds over how much was stolen. In two previous trials, and in this one, police and other prosecution witnesses have testified the loot came to nearly $500,000. Rich, himself, just the other day angrily told the court he lost no more than $3,500 to $5,000 in cash, and perhaps $17,000 worth of jewelry.

CONTENDS SHE BACKED IT

The prosecution contends Miss Reisky financed the burglary to buy the club, the Celebrity Room, and to spread her wings in other ways.

The defence says she didn't have to rob a safe because she had a hoard of her own—at least $20,000 hidden in her cellar toward the end of 1958—and help from others, including her step-father and a middle - aged admirer given to prodigal spending.

In an old-fashioned courtroom, presided over by Judge Chester Hawkensmith, spectators and principals alike wait to see whether John Lawlor, veteran lawyer, will put Miss Reis on the stand.

Undoubtedly her appearance there would be something of a spectacle. Miss Reisky, whom Rich has been a kind of showpiece, fully aware of the glances her figure provoked. A classy dresser, she has not worn the same costume twice.

To the stand Tuesday came the stepfather, Sidney Reisky, a New York jeweller who told of borrowing money to help finance the club and who eventually he became corporate president—without stock.

LIFETIME LOVE

Reisky focused the spotlight more on Clyde ('Bing') Miller, 26, who used to be a big time police operator himself, but was suspected in Rich's work, and secondly because of largesse laden out to Lillian Early in the period. Miller, ill from a heart disease, testified he lavished love and a fortune on the exhibitious dancer — diamonds, cars, cash.

Under questioning by Lawlor, Reisky said that Miller came to his store on Aug. 25, 1959, and said he (Miller) had given Miss Reisky money to make it possible for her to buy the Celebrity room.

Reisky denied that his daughter had told him (Reisky) Aug. 13, 1959, about the rich burglary of that she had given him a package to give to Miller. Miller has testified that Miss Reisky told him to go to New York on that date, five days after the burglary, because her father had a package for him. The package, Miller said, later turned out to contain $7,000.

It was Miller, the prosecution says, who tipped Miss Reisky about treasure in the Rich safe, Miller's own well having run dry.

Then, by the state's account, she hired Frank Berkery, 26; Vincent Blasey, 26; and Robert Poulson, 36, all of Philadelphia, to do the job, to crack the safe.

Poulson, Berkery and Blasey were convicted of the burglary earlier this year. They are Spring prisoners.

ONE IS SLAIN

Vincent Blasey was killed in mudcomper 1960, said his lawyer, laden baby pitched into the sea off Margate, N.J. Police said he had the state's evidence.

Blasey's brother, Richard, 27, who by the record led a short, violent life in true underworld fashion, was blown up in his new automobile last July. He had been a star witness for the state in the other trials, and there was rumors he was a leading witness against Miss Reis.

Miss Reis, Berkery and a John Dillon, note is a Cleveland lawyer, indicted in Atlantic City, N.J., for the Vincent Blasey murder. No action has been taken on the indictment since.

Strike Halts All Montreal Construction

MONTREAL (CP) — Union leaders estimated today more than 50,000 construction workers would be idle Wednesday as most of the picket lines set up by 17 CLC-affiliated unions Tuesday, halted all major construction work in the city.

On the Montreal Island, only small groups of non-union men employed by private contractors were reported to have ignored the strike call.

Pierre Vincent, president of the Sheet Metal Workers' International Union (CLC), termed the strike "remarkably effective" and predicted that all construction work on and around Montreal Island would stop within a short time.

Horace Lavallee, president of the Montreal council of Confederation of National Trade Unions said his men will not cross picket lines as long as the strike lasts together.

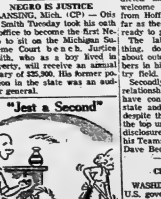
In one incident Tuesday, sounds of Montreal police were called out when hostile groups of picketers and non - union men clashed on opposite sides of downtown Dorchester Boulevard at the site of the 44-storey place Ville Marie project.

There were no clashes between the two groups.

Non-union workers challenged picketers to "open the gates, we want to work."

The police were called when they refused to "open the gates" and push across Dorchester Boulevard to try to crash the gates of the Place Ville Marie project.

Non-union men turned up at other major construction sites, but the majority of them turned away by pickets or sent home by construction foremen because there were not enough of them to start work.



The provincial strike was called at a meeting Monday night when all unions voted by wide margins in support of the metal workers.

The sheet metal workers struck five weeks ago for the right to bargain with individual employers rather than with the Montreal Builders Exchange, an association of all the major construction firms in the city.

The unions say the present method of bargaining through the exchange does not provide enough job security and they can pursue this more effectively by negotiating with individual contractors.

NEGRO IS JUSTICE

LANSING, Mich. (CP) — Otis M. Smith Tuesday took his oath of office to become the first Negro to sit on the Michigan Supreme Court bench. Justice Smith, who as a boy lived in poverty, will receive an annual salary of $25,000. His former position in the state was an auditor general.

"Hair won't grow on something you're always using," declared. That's why I'm bald and mummy hasn't got a beard."

Scare Reports About Invasion Sweeping Cuba

HAVANA (Reuters)—A new wave of scare reports about an imminent invasion is sweeping the Cuban capital.

Government leaders, from Premier Fidel Castro down, have been making regular television appearances to urge vigilance against landings by "Yankee mercenaries."

The Cuban people have been told that the invasion could come from Florida, Guatemala or Nicaragua. All the organs of Cuban propaganda have been geared to a full - scale offensive against the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency as the organizer of the alleged plan to overthrow Castro.

In Washington the state department Tuesday denounced as "ridiculous" and "totally false" the Cuban charges that the U.S. is preparing a Cuban invasion.

Havana itself has been buzzing for weeks with rumors forecasting the date for a major landing — a date which, cynically enough, was put back in succession forecast "D-days" come and went without incident.

The sceptical also recall that the Castro regime has a record of creating invasion scares in the interests of national solidarity.

The public has found some support for the present rumors in the fact that a new wave of arrests by security police was started recently. Detainees again began to fill Havana's prisons and arrests were reported to be particularly heavy in the town of Matanzas.

Trade Mission From Red China Will Be Helped

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada, still not granting diplomatic recognition to Communist China, is willing to help her sell more to this country.

Trade Minister Hees said Tuesday his departmental officials will do all they can to facilitate the work of a 13-man Chinese trade mission which is scheduled to arrive here tomorrow and will visit Montreal and Vancouver by air Tuesday night.

The delegation, headed by Chen Ming-chung, is a state organization, wants to learn Canada's export and import trading methods and to look for markets in Canada for more Chinese exports.

Canada's purchases from the Chinese mainland last year totalled close to about $9,823,670, mostly in peanuts, walnuts, rice, and handicrafts. Canadian exports to China last year were $22,007,214 and Canada obtained a commitment from China to take $20,000,000 worth of wheat and barley over a 30-month period and is anxious to sell more.

The trade mission is composed of two groups: Five men who will be guests of the government at a week-long visit and interested in Canadian winter storage practices, and eight men looking at the general trade picture with emphasis on a search for export markets.

GIVES SAME FACILITIES

Mr. Hees, questioned by reporters after a cabinet meeting, said the government is willing to extend the same facilities to the Communist Chinese traders as it would to a trade mission from any other country supplying information about Canadian trade practices and commercial arrangements.

The minister said he had been told that 11 of Chinese exports to Canada and found few changes in Canadian customs and Canadian production.

Since Canada is selling so much grain to China, the government recognizes the Communist country did not engage in direct trade links with such visitors.

AFL-CIO Leaders Refuse To Admit Teamsters Union

By NORMAN WALKER

NEW YORK (AP) — Organized labor's leadership, having refused to take back the expelled International Brotherhood of Teamsters, appeared equally unwilling today to declare open war on James R. Hoffa's controversial cabin - all union.

After overwhelmingly voting down a proposal to end a four-year feud between the AFL-CIO federation, the AFL-CIO executive council met in secret before forming a rival union to try to snatch members away from Hoffa.

Hoffa responded to the challenge at Portland, Ore., by declaring: "We'll meet them anywhere, any time, and we'll lick them, by God."

Hoffa told the western conference of the Teamsters that the Teamsters are not acting to return to the AFL-CIO. It would be up to the federation to deal with the understanding he has with the union's raiding affairs and organizing affairs without worrying about jurisdiction.

READY TO QUIT

George Meany, AFL-CIO president, made a counterclaim against the 1,500,000 - member Teamsters Tuesday night when he said there is now 100 of the nearly 900 Teamsters locals associated with the AFL-CIO benefit and come into the main labor federation.

However, Meany's fellow AFL-CIO chiefs seem to have no stomach for carrying the fight against Hoffa's powerful Teamsters.

One federation leader predicted that issuing a formal charge that Hoffa has defected from Hoffa's union is about as far as the AFL-CIO leaders are ready to go.

The labor chiefs, for one thing, don't feel optimistic about ousting Hoffa for membership in his own trucking industry field.

Secondly, day-to-day working relationships in the industry have continued right along at state and local levels, almost despite the fireworks set off at the top union level after Senate investigations of Hoffa and his Teamsters boss predecessor, Dave Beck.

CLAIMS WASTE

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. government accounting office accused the air force Tuesday of wasting millions of dollars by using commercial air freight for routine overseas shipment. In one case, the accounting office said, empty tool boxes worth $10 each were rushed to Korea by commercial air carrier at a shipping cost of $40 each.

Prince Edward's Treasurer, John P. Williams, Honored

PICTON — Veteran Prince Edward County municipal official John P. Williams, was presented with a relaxer chair and silver tray at a testimonial dinner at Picton following his retirement from office. Mr. Williams served as Prince Edward County treasurer for the past 30½ years. His efficiency and loyalty were stressed by a number of speakers among the 160 town and county officials and businessmen present at the dinner. He has been succeeded in office by Thomas Walker of Ameliasburg.

Members of County Council were hosts for this special event, with Sheriff Herbert J. Colliver acting as master of ceremonies.

Mr. Colliver remarked that the honored guest had always kept the interests of the people of Prince Edward County paramount and had performed his duties in a highly creditable manner. Testimonial letters from prominent citizens unable to be present, were read by the sheriff.

Presentation of the easy chair was made by Gordon T. Walmsley, Q.C., Judge of the Juvenile Court of Prince Edward, while Sheriff Colliver presented the silver tray which is engraved with the crest of Prince Edward County and will contain the signatures of all who attended the dinner, plus the absentees.

Among those who spoke in tribute to Mr. Williams were: County Warden Harmon Mastgoswry; Picton Mayor H. J. McFarland, Judge Wilfred S. Lees, Norris Whitney, M.P.P., John Graydon, registrar of deeds; Basil Foreman, manager of Picton branch of the Bank of Montreal; Howard Seeley, representing the County Health Unit; R. E. Nourse, Q.C., for the legal profession; Thomas Walker, county clerk-treasurer, and Archie Ward, Port Hope, district engineer of the Dept. of Highways. Also present was Mr. Williams' son-in-law, Mr. Arnold C. Anderson, principal of Collins Bay High School.

VISITS SEAWAY EXHIBIT

PARIS (CP) — French President de Gaulle paid a weekend visit to the St. Lawrence Seaway exhibit, one of the highlights of the 27th annual marine show, now in progress here. He closely questioned officials about the functioning of the Seaway and its impact upon the North American economy.

Moments in History

1...d was an important year in Belleville's history for that was the year it was declared an ocean port. The first ocean-going ship to arrive was the steamship Hiero which had sailed from Glasgow with a cargo of Scotch coal in its hold. The arrival date was May 5th. At this time Moira-Schuster Limited had had its roots firmly planted in Belleville for almost thirty years. It was around the turn of the century that the predecessors of the Schuster company first began supplying coal and wood to Belleville's homes and factories.

Today, Moira - Schuster still supplies coal and has become Belleville's major supplier of fuel oil. Why don't you let Moira - Schuster attend to your heating needs this winter? Harold Scott, Former Minister, Dies Suddenly PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Harold Robinson Scott, former Ontario minister of lands and forests, died of a heart attack Monday at his summer home on Missisauga Lake. He was 67.

Mr. Scott held the lands and forests portfolio from 1946 to 1952. For the next six years he was minister without portfolio.

He was elected to the Ontario legislature as a Conservative for Peterborough riding in 1943 and was re-elected in 1945, 1948, 1951 and 1955. He did not contest the 1959 general election because of poor health and was succeeded by the present Conservative member, Keith Brown.

Will Clear Skies Of Commercial Planes Oct. 14

WASHINGTON (AP)—For 12 hours next weekend the skies over the United States and Canada will be cleared of commercial planes and jet fighters will streak aloft to defend North America against a mock enemy bomber attack.

The exercise, called Operation Sky Shield, will last from 1 p.m. EDT Oct. 14 until 1 a.m. Sunday.

U.S. B-52 and B-47 jet bombers — minus their nuclear bombs—will play the part of the attackers.

Operating against them will be U.S., and Canadian interceptor planes which will make an estimated 6,000 sorties for simulated strikes against the aggressor force.

All the resources of the North American Air Defence Command will be brought into play in Sky Shield.

Small Electro-Cardiograph Can Tell Doctor Miles Away How Old Ticker Is Working

By RALPH DIGHTON

LOS ANGELES (AP)—You're on a trip, hundreds of miles from home and the old ticker's acting up.

You pick up the phone, call your personal physician long distance and say, "Doc, take a listen."

From your pocket you take a box about the size of a pack of cigarettes, plug into it two wires previously taped to your chest, and place the box against the telephone mouthpiece.

At the other end of the line, hooked to your doctor's phone, are instruments which magnify the pulses from the box—your heartbeat—and flash them on an electronic view screen.

A quick glance and the doctor knows the story, as well as he would if you were standing beside him.

He may say, "Take one of those brown capsules." Or, "Get yourself to a hospital quick. I'll phone them your history while you're on your way."

The small black box you hold to the phone may have saved your life.

You can carry it with you anywhere. It may contain either a speaker for use with a telephone, or a tiny transmitter which will broadcast radio signals over a radius of several hundred feet.

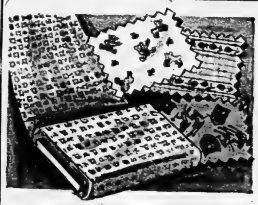
The radio version is handy either for bed patients in hospitals or for walk-about patients in rest homes. A single attendant can keep several persons under constant observation without leaving the view screens at her desk.

The "heart box" can be modified to pick up your rate of breathing, temperature, muscle tone or brain waves—as many as three symptoms simultaneously.

There are several such boxes on the market. At least two other firms are working on pocket-size devices that not only monitor the heartbeat but can apply electrical shocks to make a stopped heart, in some cases start beating properly again.

Physicians have long known how to start a heart beating again, or established proper rhythm for one beating irregularly, but they had to open the chest and place electrodes directly on the heart. The new devices will do this without surgery through the tape-on-wires.

A few of the new electronic gadgets go beyond detection and diagnosis — they actually treat and heal a number of ailments.



MORE REBELS SLAIN

ALGIERS (AP)—The French army announced 257 Algerian rebels were killed and 305 captured in fighting during the first week of October. In one operation near the Tunisian frontier 108 rebels were killed or captured, the army said. French casualties were not announced.

WAIT 'TIL YOU HEAR THIS!
"Oh, you would like to know why the two local chapters of the I.O.D.E. is an agency of the Belleville United Appeal . . ."

Well, because they require some assistance to perform their humanitarian service in our Community, these Chapters (Argyll and St. Julien) are believed worthy of support through our United Appeal. Roughly, this amounts to one and one-tenth cents out of each dollar.

Besides being helpful to the Children's Aid Society, the Red Cross, needy families at Christmas, Home for the Aged and new Canadians, as some of their projects, they offer an incentive to our High School students through an annual grant of scholarships and a bursary.

In the past, public support was obtained by each Chapter through their own "Tag Days". Now, through United Appeal, they receive their Community's help and Belleville has two less appeals to contend with. This is a benefit to everyone, the donor, the canvasser and the agencies.

STIRLING

No. 80 IOOF Installs New Executives

STIRLING — On Wednesday evening at the I.O.O.F. Hall on Charbite Street, Glenn Bush was installed as Chief Patriarch of Stirling Encampment No. 80 I.O.O.F.

At the close the newly installed officers spoke briefly and refreshments were served after which the group enjoyed a social half hour.

Says TV Hurts Baseball

MONTREAL (CP) — Harry Simmons says baseball men are going to have to make a study of North America's social habits to save the game.

"Social patterns have changed and left baseball no longer in a position to compete for the entertainment dollar and hour," the chubby 39 - year - old baseball stathorby said Tuesday night.

Simmons, secretary of the International League, made the statements in disclosing that the Class, AAA league took no other attendance drop this season.

The drop was 30 per cent to 1,344,000. That's little more than half of what the league drew in its peak year of 1946. In terms of cash, it meant an operating loss of at least $200,000.

A decrease of almost 34 per cent in aggregate attendance for the eight - club league was recorded the previous year.

Simmons blames diminishing interest in ballpark attendance —all leagues including the major here have been hit — chiefly on television.

Habs Win Over Wolves

SUDBURY (CP) — Montreal Canadiens downed Sudbury Wolves of Eastern Professional Hockey League 3-0 in an exhibition game Tuesday night.

The National League team fired 42 shots at Sudbury goaltender Carl Wetzel, a standout. Best the Wolves could muster was three against Jacques Plante and six against Cesare Maniago, who shared Montreal's goaltending.

OPENS HOME

WINDSOR (CP) — Welfare Minister Cecile Tuesday officially opened Heron Lodge, Windsor's new $1,000,000 home for the aged.

U.S. Pros Troubled

May Bench Johnny Unitas

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Leading figures of United States professional football teams received anything but shocking news Tuesday.

Bobby Layne, quarterback of the NFL Pittsburgh Steelers, will miss the next two games and possibly the rest of the season because of an injured left side.

"We just bloody felt all the talent on our team had not been used and felt Mike was the man who would be able to step in and use the talent we had to the extent that it is capable of performing."

LOSING PASSES

Unitas' trouble stems from the fact that enemy defenders have picked off nine of his passes in four games this season. Coach Weeb Ewbank indicated he might bench Unitas and start Lamar McHan Sunday against the Bears in Chicago.

Ewbank said Unitas's sub-par completion performance of 49.4 so far stems partly from a sore finger. But he discounted speculation that Unitas, who passed for an NFL record of 3,099 yards last season, has been rushed more this season than in past years.

Layne says he will return for his 11th year of the final half of the season but Pittsburgh coach Buddy Parker said "I'm not figuring on Bobby to play any more for us this year."

Layne, in his 14th NFL season; is suffering from a hematoma — a tumor or swelling of blood.

"He can't pass, he can't run, he can't do a darned thing," said Parker.

LEAGUE RETURNS

QUEBEC (CP) — Premier Jean Lesage of Quebec returned by air Tuesday night from a month-long trip to Europe.

Chaszewski May Play With Seals

VICTORIA (CP) — San Francisco Seals will lean heavily on experience as they open the 1961-62 Western Hockey League season with an exhausting 14-game road trip.

Returning to professional hockey after an absence of 11 years, San Francisco will be unable to play in its home arena until Nov. 17. The Seals will have played 14 games by the time ice and a new floor are installed in the 12,800 - seat Cow Palace.

"With such a long road trip to start the season, we're resigned as many experienced players as possible," says coach Max McNab. The seasoned players include:

Goalie Bev Bentley, 36, a nine - year man in the WHL; defence man Floyd Hillman; Jean Marc Picard and Gary Collins and forwards Nick Mickoski, 34, who played 11 seasons in the National League; Harry Pidhirny, 35, an American League regular since 1948, Duke Edmundo, 25, who formerly played with Whitby Dunlops, Bob Sollinger, Buddy Boone, Gord Redahl and Al Nicholson.

Bentley, bought from Seattle Totems, was one of the prize catches.

McNab says his club still needs a proven defenceman, but he may go with rookie Joe Chaszewski, 25, who formerly played with Whitby Dunlops.

Mets, Colts Gather High-Price Help

N.Y. Gets Hodges, Craig

By JOE REICHLER

CINCINNATI (AP)—At a cost of nearly $2,000,000 each, Houston Colts and New York Mets have assembled teams that probably will battle it out for ninth place in 1962 in the expanded 10 - team National League.

Despite the seemingly meager pickings in Thursday's baseball special and draft, 64 players from the eight established league clubs, both president George Weiss of the Mets and general manager Paul Richards of the Colts appeared satisfied.

"We have a strong nucleus for a fine club in a short time," said Richards. "From now on, we ask no favors from anyone."

"We want the fellows who had been top players," said Weiss, "and we got most of them. We want for young pitchers and hitters tailored for the Polo Grounds. I think Houston has the edge over the infielders while we have the edge in pitching."

METS GET HODGES, CRAIG

Joining the Mets are first baseman Gil Hodges, infielders Don Zimmer, Elio Chacon and Felix Mantilla, outfielders Gus Bell, Bobby Gene Smith and John Demeris, infielder - outfielder Lee Walls, catcher Hobie Landrith and pitcher Roger Craig.

Both clubs have indicated they intend to be active traders this winter.

The Mets concentrated mostly on veteran players, except for pitching. Only one youngster, youth, speed and defense. The Mets picked up 22 players at a cost of $2,980,000. The Colts spent $1,920,000 for 23 players.

New York lost seven pitchers, six infielders, six outfielders and three catchers. The premium $250,000 players included pitchers Bob Miller of St. Louis and Jay Hook of Cincinnati, Zimmer of Chicago and Walls of Philadelphia.

TAKE NINE BURNERS

Houston got nine pitchers, seven infielders, five outfielders and three catchers. Its premium players were Smith of Pittsburgh, pitcher Dick Farrell of Los Angeles, Aspromonte of San Francisco and Spangler of Milwaukee.

The rest cost from $50,000 to $75,000 each.

St. Louis Cardinals lost the most players, seven, League champion Cincinnati Reds, Pittsburgh Pirates and Los Angeles Dodgers lost six each.

League Up, But Teams Are Down

TORONTO (CP)—The Eastern Canada Professional Soccer League finished a "couple of bucks" in the black on its 1961 operation. League President Harold Ball said Tuesday, even though some individual teams failed badly.

Total attendance at 18 league games and six playoff matches at Toronto's Varsity Stadium was 145,000—an average of 6,061. Crowds in Montreal and Hamilton, however, were below that level.

Montreal Cantalia has already admitted to a deficit—close to $43,000.

"That isn't even close to the amount lost by our other professional team in Montreal (Concordia), which lost more than $200,000," said Vice - President Severno Sylvestre. He blames the costs of importing players for the deficits.

Hitchcock Orioles Manager

BALTIMORE (AP) — Billy Hitchcock, former major league infielder, Tuesday was named manager of Baltimore Orioles.

The job, which will pay an estimated $30,000 a year and an attendance bonus, was not sought by the 43-year-old Alabaman. The Orioles were after him.

Hitchcock managed Vancouver Mounties of the Pacific Coast League this season. He was named manager of the year after the Mounties finished second.

The Baltimore post was vacated by Paul Richards Aug. 30, when he resigned to become general manager of the National League's new team in Houston, the Colts.

Hitchcock received a one-year contract.

Ford Wants New Pitch

Yanks Await Fat Series Cheques

NEW YORK (AP)—For most of the New York Yankees, the main business at hand now was to sit back and wait for their fat world series cheques.

Not so for pitchers Bob Turley and Luis Arroyo. They have operations scheduled. Turley's is important and could send him back on the firing line as one of the top Yankee hurlers. Arroyo has a cyst on his wrist.

"I am going into hospital this week to have some bone chips removed from my right elbow," Turley, hero of the 1958 world series, said Tuesday.

"It is successful, and I sure hope it is, I'll have the entire winter to recuperate. Then maybe I can start throwing hard in the spring. This has been a tough year for me. I wouldn't want to have another one like it."

Turley won only three games during the American League season. He was on the sidelines with a sore arm in May and was placed on the disabled list.

WANTS NEW PITCH

Skipper Ralph Whitey Ford, the Yanks' hero in their series triumph over Cincinnati Reds, said he should have a better year. 30-year-old Warren Spahn of the Milwaukee Braves. "If I can come up with a new pitch," Ford is 32.

"Right now, the slider is my best pitch," Ford said. "I started working on it three years ago and it took me all this time to get it down pat.

"My next pitch might be a screwball. I worked on it all last season with Johnny Sain pitching coach Art Ditmar trying to help me. But I still haven't perfected it."

James Hops to Third Spot

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The kicking prowess of Gerry James has pushed the Winnipeg Blue Bombers ahead of Ottawa Rough Riders into third place in the Western Football Conference scoring race.

The 26-year-old veteran scored 17 points in his club's 34-30 victory over British Columbia Lions Saturday to jump several notches in the Blue's top 20 standings.

James's total of 52 points is still far behind that of Edmonton Eskimos quarterback Jackie Parker, who leads the league with 88. Edmonton's Johnny Bright is second with 80.

James, who won the scoring title last year for the second time in a record almost twice as many points by kicking field goals as by running. Converts, singles and field goals account for 34 points and three touchdowns give him 18 more.

Yankees 'Not Impressed'

Kubek 'Turns The Knife'

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Shortstop Tony Kubek says his New York Yankees are "in a class by themselves" and could have beaten Cincinnati Reds at their best.

Kubek, who returned to his Milwaukee home Tuesday night, said the Reds "didn't impress us as a team that won the National League pennant. But they obviously are a better ball club than they revealed and undoubtedly felt victim to inexperience as far as the world series is concerned."

Kubek scoffed at those who say the American League is weaker than the National League.

"I'd compare the second-place Detroit Tigers in our league with the Reds. Like Cincinnati, they had a lot of guys who had great years. And their top three pitchers, Jim Bunning, Frank Lary and Don Mossi, can stack up against the Reds' big three of Bob Purkey, Joey Jay and Jim O'Toole."

Big Four Scoring

Ron Stewart Holds Lead

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ron Stewart remains out front in the Eastern Football Conference scoring race but his Ottawa Rough Riders teammate, Gerry Schreiber, narrowed his lead to 10 points during the last week.

Schreiber, Ottawa's replacement specialist, kicked two converts to Rider's 27-0 victory over Hamilton Tiger-Cats Monday to run his string to 46 points on 32 converts and four field goals.

Stewart was scoreless and his total remained at 54 on nine touchdowns.

Fullback Gerry McDougall scored Team's only touchdown Monday to advance from sixth place into a third-place tie with George Scott, Hamilton halfback whose playing days were ended for this year by a United States Army draft call. Each has 42 points on seven touchdowns.

RARE; MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

What started out to be an innocent duck-hunting safari turned out to be a "Dance of the Three Hooks" with a mad muskie occupying front and centre stage.

The stage was a canoe and the only audience Jack Herity, advertising manager of the Canadian Coleman Co. of Toronto. Jack spent his boyhood in Belleville.

There could have been a few mallards or blacks upstairs who got a first-hand duck's-eye view of this lonely marshland drama and a big muskie's desperate fight for life.

It was warm at Young's Point, north of Peterboro that opening day. Mr. Herity, enjoying the June-like atmosphere disdained a shirt. A light straw hat was his only garb north of the waistline.

Taking his shotgun he paddled the family canoe to a marshland west of the Herity cottage. A few unwary ducks, he figured might get curious and come within range.

But the ducks were in no mood for gracing a dinner table. Mr. Herity twiddled his trigger fingers and figured after ten minutes of nothing but resulting that any duck crazy enough to fly in that kind of weather deserved to live.

It so happened that Mr. Herity's fishing rod, complete with line and murky lure attached, was in the canoe. He paddled to a nearby channel and "started casting in a lazy sort of way."

After the third cast it happened. He saw the pleasantly torpedo streaking straight for his lure. Then it struck and the man-muskie battle was joined.

For fifteen minutes it was all even. Neither side gave ground. It was a matter of which would say "uncle" first.

It is the custom of the Herity's to release all muskies, but this one was so well hooked, said the angler, "I knew I would have to take it back to the cottage."

And remember, he was seated in a canoe, in dead centre to be exact, in the interests of maintaining good balance had there been any duck-shooting.

He drew the muskie alongside but could not get it with one hand. Eventually though by some physical manoeuvering he got two hands on the fish and boated it.

About fifty yards from the cottage the muskie decided that it was not yet ready for a skillet and a dinner table. It had been taken by one large hook. Two or three others dangled from the lure in his jaws.

It went into its "death-or-liberty act. Recovered concept sent it hurtling some two or three feet into the air, landing with a resounding thwack on the canoe bottom. Once or twice it turned complete somersaults.

Remarkable the flashing hooks of the lure were coming dangerously close to the shirtless Herity torso.

It looked like the morning headlines would read, "Musky Hooks Man."

"The line became a bird's nest," Mr. Herity said in a letter to a Belleville relative. "Every time the fish jumped I leaned forward hoping it would not snag me with the barred hooks of the lure."

The canoe neared the cottage. Still the fish fought tenaciously. The din, Mr. Herity said later, "was terrific. Other cottagers came out to see what was going on."

But everything ended happily for all concerned. The fish was finally subdued. Mr. Herity was unharmed and decided to call the battle a draw. The hooks were removed from the fish and it was given its freedom.

When it was all over four ducks flew overhead, wings flapping applause. Mr. Herity merely nodded to them, wondering if they were man or muskie roosters.

Only a Few Greet Yankees In New York

The 1961 team was the 19th to capture the world series for the Yankees.

There were more reporters and photographers than fans on hand as the train pulled into the station. Most of the Yankees quickly left the station by their limousines. Manager Ralph Houk and veteran Yogie Berra were among the exceptions.

Berra had an adhesive patch over his left eye and complained an injured shoulder still hurt.

The duo was banged up in a fall in the outfield and a slide on the base paths.

Perennial Musky Hunters Return From Summer Safari

Those perennial hunters of the fighting muskellunge have done it again.

Frank Atkins, 76, of this city and brother Fred, 79, of the third concession of Sidney township, have completed another safari to the muskie ranges.

For the past three months they camped on the prolific Ottawa River searching for their special piscatorial prey.

They wound up a highly successful season with a final haul of three 30-pound plus beauties. One, it is estimated, had it been weighed when first out of the water would have tipped the scales at 40 pounds.

For the past 21 years this doughty pair of hunters have sought their quarry from muskie haunts from Pigeon Lake near Omemee, to the mighty St. Lawrence.

The musky is their special quest. They disdain bass, pike, trout, and other finny game. And anything under twelve pounds of musky gets another bass on the line.

BIG HAUL

Their biggest haul was taken from Muscote Bay a few years ago when they boasted two beauties weighing 48 and 41 pounds, respectively.

They know every nook, cranny and hideaway of the Bay of Quinte. They have combed the Ottawa from Pembroke to Chalk River and points beyond. They can "finger" a lunge in almost any part of the productive Trent River.

Their fall trips are no weekend jaunts. A musky junket generally starts in June and ends in the late autumn.

They tow a boat, one of two punts built by Frank. They pack two motors, sleeping bags, a tent, tackle and bait. They take along a camera for 'proof' purposes.

Their modus operandi is simple. They select a camp site, set up housekeeping and they're "set for the summer."

They used the first outboard motor on Pigeon Lake. They fished these water for 37 years and became blood brothers of the Pigeon Lake Indians.

Frank's largest individual haul brought him 84 pounds of fish. Several years ago he decided to fish the waters around Indian Island in the Bay of Quinte. He came home with two muskies, 21 and 19 pounds, and seven northern pike, the largest weighing 14 pounds.

Frank says he taught 90 per cent of the muskies when the sun was shining.

His biggest and best hauls were taken around "high noon when anglers are taking a nip or a nap, or have gone, never had much luck at dawn or after dark," he says.

ANGLERS' PARADISE

They chose the Ottawa River this year because the brothers say, "it is a fisherman's paradise. If you know where to go and what to use, you can catch anything from a sunfish to a whitefish, from a sturgeon to a musky."

Fred suffered a stroke a few years ago that left him with a paralyzed left arm. But the handicap has not dimmed his love of fishing. He angles with his right arm, lands the lunge and Frank helps him boat it.

They have no record of how many muskies have fallen to their lures. But they have a hundred photographs that prove their record is no small one.

Without taking any bows, Frank says an angler has to be smart to catch a musky. "Some days they will take anything. Others they will sniff at everything and take nothing."

It is simple to catch them, he says. "All you have to know is where they are, find musky weeds and you're set." musky weed is a large-leafed underwater plant.

Now they're home for the winter. But when the early June sunshine warms the countryside next year, they'll be digging out the tackle and heading north for another three-month junket to the musky hideouts.

National Hockey League Opens Another Season With Slight Overhauls

By HILL MacDOUGALL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Look for a few more squawks from Boston Bruins, the usual optimistic predictions from Toronto Maple Leafs and an old defencemen in a new uniform at New York.

Other than that, this year's National Hockey League clubs will hit the ice, starting with New York Rangers at Boston, tonight, with only slight overhauls from last year.

Some say it will be a tighter race, with volatile Phil Watson back in the NHL as coach of Boston Bruins and Doug Harvey, the former Montreal Canadiens anchor, splitting his time as coach and defenceman for Rangers.

New York and Boston each missed the playoffs last season. Harvey takes over from Alf Pike, fired in the 1960-61 season's post-mortem activity, and Watson replaces Milt Schmidt who was promoted to assistant manager under Lynn Patrick.

With the exception of Toronto's Punch Imlach, the coaches aren't anxious to make predictions.

ALWAYS OPTIMISTIC

"We always think this will be the year," said Imlach, who doubles as Leafs' manager. "I thought it was last year and it turned out not to be. But there's no point in talking about it any other way—you have to be optimistic."

The Blake of Montreal says only: "I never make predictions. I've been telling reporters the same thing for seven years now."

Last season Canadiens won first place by a whisker, finishing two points ahead of Leafs. Chicago Black Hawks, Detroit Red Wings, New York and Boston followed in that order.

Coach Sid Abel of Detroit says: "We think we are stronger this year than we have ever done. We're optimistic."

The Wings lost to Black Hawks in the Stanley Cup final last season after belting Toronto in the semi-finals while Hawks were upsetting Canadiens.

SAME FIERY FBLL

Watson appears pretty much unchanged from his previous NHL stint—four years with New York until ulcers sidelined him. "I love a fight," he said when he took the Boston job. "I'm not going to have a bunch of boxers but nobody is going to push it around. . . . I'm no miracle man. But I'm going to build a pleasing hockey team which will put on a good show."

Last season, he coached Boston's American League farm team at Providence. Both he and Harvey have three - year contracts.

In the player ranks, the biggest switch is Harvey. Rangers lost veteran forward Red Sullivan, who was trade coach of Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen of the Eastern Professional League, and defenceman Bill Fundinato to Montreal.

Blake says Fundinato has been "going exceptionally well" at left defence. Canadiens lost three defencemen—Bob Turner and Albert Langlois in the draft —and Harvey. But, Blake insists "we won't be as weak as a lot of people think we're supposed to be." He has John Hanna, another acquisition from New York, and a couple of rookies fighting for the job. Hanna is from Sydney, N.S.

PLANTE IS SHARP

Should the blueline crew fail, Blake says goaltender Jacques Plante "is back to his old form . . . a lot sharper than last year."

Detroit picked up veteran defenceman Bill Gadsby, and Abel says he "has tightened up the offensive with Howie Young and we hope he will settle Young down." Digger-tempered Young joined the Wings late last season.

Detroit got Ed Litzenberger from Chicago and Abel figures to play him between Alex Delvecchio and Gordie Howe.

Boston probably will have a new goalkeeper. Rookie Don Head appears to have beaten out Ed Chadwick to succeed Don Simmons. Chadwick was sent to Kingston of the EPHL.

Chicago coach Rudy Pilous says there is "complete harmony in the club." New players, including Bronco Horvath from Boston, Jerry Melnyk from Detroit and Turner, have "fitted in exceptionally well."

Toronto's biggest off season problem appears to have been Al Arbour, a defenceman from Chicago. All star goaltender Johnny Bower is expected to hold down the job again full time.

Injuries have already hit some clubs. Leafs have left-winger Bert Olmstead and defenceman

BOSTON (AP)—The National Hockey League gets its 45th season under way tonight as last year's two weakest teams—Boston Bruins and New York Rangers—meet here.

Both teams have new coaches and one of them will be facing his team from last season.

Former Montreal Canadiens great Doug Harvey will be at the helm for New York as player-coach, while the Bruins, last season's last place team, will be guided by former New York coach Phil Watson.

New York has four rookies, Boston Six.

Harvey, nearly 38, will be aided by general manager Muzz Patrick on the bench until the nine-time NHL all-star defenceman gets to know his players better.

WINGS OPEN THURSDAY

Thursday night the Red Wings and Toronto Maple Leafs clash at Detroit, with Boston and Chicago Black Hawks opening Saturday night at home against the Rangers, with the Bruins at Toronto. Chicago Black Hawks, Stanley Cup champions, begin their first game Sunday night when they host Detroit.

Harvey is expected to strengthen the Rangers defence considerably. The 14-year veteran again will be based on high-scoring Andy Bathgate.

The Bruins Tuesday night called up Tom Williams from Kingston Frontenacs of the Eastern Professional League. Williams, a native of Duluth, Minn., is one of the few American - born professional hockey players. A centre, he played with the U.S. Olympic team.

North Bay New Club

EPL Opens This Week

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Eastern Professional Hockey League this week begins its third season with five new coaches and a new team.

North Bay Trappers have replaced Montreal Royals as the league's fifth entry with Lou Passador, former scout for Montreal Canadiens of the National League as their new general manager.

The schedule opens Thursday night at Sudbury and Sault Ste. Marie. So far the coaches have been non-committal as to their team's chances.

The defending champion Hull-Ottawa Canadiens still lack a replacement for coach Glen Sloan who retired after last season. At the moment defenceman Al MacNeil appears to have the inside track, provided he isn't moved up to the parent Montreal Canadiens.

At Sudbury, manager - coach Murph Chamberlain has been replaced by Chirp Brewchley who coached Toledo to the International League title last season.

Kitchener Beavers have both a new general manager—former New York Rangers head scout Jack Humphreys — and a new coach in Ranger Red Sullivan. Frank Currie, last season's manager - coach was retained.

Sault Ste. Marie Thunderbirds have Black Jack Stewart as their coach for 1961-62. Ricky Reay, last year's coach, has taken a coaching job with Buffalo Bisons of the American League.

Kingston Frontenacs is the only team with last year's management intact. Manager-coach Wren Blair once again will call on player Ore Tessier to help with the coaching chores.

Dogs Sign Six Players

WINDSOR (CP) — Windsor Bulldogs of the Ontario Hockey Association's Senior League will play an exhibition game against Toledo of the International League here Sunday and in Toledo Tuesday.

Windsor also announced Tuesday that six former Bulldogs have signed playing cards. They are forwards Irwin Gross, OHA scoring champion two seasons ago who was playing — coach last season with Clinton, N.Y., of the Eastern League, playing-coach Joe Klukay, Lou Benson, Tommy Wasser, Bob Brown and Gord Haidy.

Raymond Burr's Film Test Easily Won for Him Role In Perry Mason Series

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Erle Stanley Gardner, who has written close to 40 books about the cases of Perry Mason, never once has set down a physical description of his redoubtable criminal lawyer.

Yet, when Gardner saw Raymond Burr's film test, he knew instantly that this was the right actor for the role. And once the public saw tall, sober - eyed Burr, they knew he was really Perry Mason.

After four solid seasons of winning one case a week, the identity of the actor from New Westminster, B.C., is permanently interwoven with the character he plays so convincingly.

Things have gone so well that nobody connected with the CBS series is going to fool around with the format. Their viewers in Canada and the United States are being treated to still another batch of cases in which Perry defends the innocent, brings the guilty to the bar and makes fools out of the cocky police and the district attorney.

BURGER IS BACK

There are a couple of things of special interest in the 1961-62 batch of shows. For one, Wilburn Palmer is back as Perry's regular court room adversary, playing District Attorney Hamilton Burger.

Talman's embarrassing involvement in a police raid, resulting from his arrest and subsequent trial (in which he was found not guilty), caused his disappearance from the cast for a long period last season. It was managed by having Perry match wits with assistant district attorneys or defend his clients in communities outside Hamilton Burger's bailiwick.

Secondly, the show's regular cast has been increased by six. Actor Karl Held plays Lieutenanat Arthur, a big and slightly comic law student. The character was introduced in a couple of shows last season and worked out so well it is being continued.

Cop reason for the addition is an effort to lighten some of the heavy acting load Burr must carry. Because of the show's success, Burr is in almost every scene.

So far, alas, Burr is as overworked as last season.

Burr is like Perry Mason in his dedication and concentration on work. He is also a man with varied and currently frustrated interests which include art, coin - collecting, begonia - raising and dog - breeding. It is a matter of great concern to him that he has literally no time or strength to devote to them, or even to enjoy the comfortable and handsome home he has built—much with his own hands—on a high cliff overlooking the ocean.

During the week, when Perry Mason is being filmed, Burr holes up in a three - room bungalow (which was once Mae West's dressing room) on the lot a few steps from the building containing the show's permanent sets—Perry's office and the courtroom. It's a long working day, and his evenings are spent rehearsing his lines for the day's scenes.

Weekends, when possible, Burr heads for his North Malibu home, an hour's drive. He's a sociable man and his idea of a restful Sunday is to entertain friends.

While they relax around the pool or enjoy the view, Burr happily wanders around the place, watering the plants, feeding the animals which include a burro named Zsa Zsa, several peacock, a pair of Hungarian sheep dogs and a Siamese cat, and preparing a meal. He's a discerning eater and a superior cook, specializing in hearty, rich dishes.

ADORES HER LAWYERS

But Ray's identity as Perry Mason intrudes even on his previous time off. Fan mail sometimes ask for him as their principal speaker at conventions, and as often as possible he does.

Burr's greatest interest, apart from his work, is art. He's a partner in a flourishing southern California art gallery, and his home is filled with paintings, mostly contemporary but including a Gainsborough landscape.

At 44, he is a widower (he lost his wife and their son within a year and a second marriage didn't work out) and, he confesses, a lonely man. He called off three dates with contacts by the volume of work and responsibility. His parents still live in New Westminster.

After Perry Mason runs its course—and all television shows must—what will happen to Raymond Burr who is so completely identified with the part? That's one thing which nags at his mind.

"I'm seriously interested in the art gallery," said Burr, "and perhaps that will be the direction my life will take."

Indians Favored In A.H.L.

The American Hockey League begins its 26th season tonight with Springfield Indians heavy favorites to win the title again.

The Indians entertain Pittsburgh Hornets, back after a five - year absence, in the features of a three - game card. Rochester Americans meet the Sitcons at Buffalo and Cleveland Barons take on the Reds at Providence.

The Indians have won the regular - season crowns and the Calder Cup playoffs the last two years. Springfield coach Pet Egan will field practically the same team as last season.

For the first time in 10 years, the league will be divided into eastern and western divisions and a 70 - game schedule will be played. Springfield's Indians, Providence and Hershey will form the eastern half and Cleveland, Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburgh the western section. The top two finishers—Billy Reay at Buffalo, Larry Regan at Pittsburgh, Pete Flaman at Providence and Johnny Crawford at Rochester,— have taken over.

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—"Lots of people spend their time fretting about the past," Mickey Rooney philosophized. "I only care about the present and the future."

This was the unstoppable Mick thumbing his turned-up nose at his misfortunes, and there are enough to sink a man twice his size.

"Oh, I've had a few financial problems," he said. "It has been publicized. I can't deny them. Okay, let 'em.

"Sure, I owe 'em. I feel the same way as the Lord—forgive them for they know not what they do. Let 'em take me into court; I don't care."

Rooney has other things to think about. They include:

1. The impending birth of his fourth child. "I believe in lots of children. Maybe it's because I was an only child. After all, you should leave something behind when you leave this earth."

2. His career. "I'm busy. Did a Dick Powell show which turned out okay. Got breakfast at Tiffany's and Roaring Twenties coming out in theatres. Going to New York for Naked City and Requiem for a Heavyweight. Own 30 per cent of Everything's Ducky, which is a good family film I did with Buddy Hackett."

3. His enterprises, the Mickey Rooney School of Entertainment.

"I've been thinking about this for 20 years," he said. "What this country needs is a good school in every city where we can develop the stars of tomorrow."

Play Showed Hopeful Note For Many Mental Patients

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—A dramatic soliloquy carries with something of the quality of Playhouse 90 made its debut on ABC Tuesday night.

The comparison between the two is inevitable because the subject matter of the weekly series and one of the last Playhouse 90 dramas were pegged to the same scene: Group psychiatric treatment.

The Frenchtree Theatre's hour-long play, People Need People, was based on news actually handled by Dr. Harry Wilmer, a physician who experimented with group therapy for severely disturbed male patients in a navy hospital.

Progress of Dr. Wilmer's first group, some 10 men and officers, was the plot of the show. There was particular concentration on the most violent patients, a marine sergeant who attacked in a street jacket and was both homicidal and suicidal; Lee Marvin played the disturbed man.

There was no banal happy ending or any quick cure, but the program left a hopeful note for the futures of many mental patients.

The Tracks

TORONTO (CP) — Golden Flyer won the featured Kingsway Purse at New Woodbine Park Wednesday.

The three - year - old gelding scampered six furlongs in 1:11 as he defeated Epicquean by two lengths to score his fourth victory of the season. Kickimore finished third.

Golden Flyer paid $24, $9.30 and $4.90.

Form players in the crowd of 5,986 had an unhappy afternoon as only one favorite justified their confidence. Bahamas, the well - backed public choice, was the fifth race. He paid $4.30 to win.

The daily double paid $190 when Golden Flight Princess won the first two races. Reminder paid $12.40 straight, Flight Princess $15.30.

Rote Totes Quotes

TORONTO (CP) — Quarterback Tobin Rote said Tuesday he expects to be back with Montreal Alouettes of the Eastern Football Conference in 1962.

He said in an interview he would "probably be back, either with a new contract, or if it can't improve on what I've got now, to play out the option or say 'ni' contract."

Now playing the second or two one - year contracts, Rote is under option to Argos for next season. That means he cannot play elsewhere without Argos' permission.

The former National League star has been quoted this season as suggesting the phase to retire: that he won't play in Toronto if he has to abide by the team's rigid training camp schedules or that he will retire if he cannot successfully expand his business interests into Ontario.

COMEDIAN'S HOUR

BUY INTO RACEWAY

NEW YORK (AP) — A controlling 51 - per - cent interest in the multi - million dollar Yonkers Raceway has been sold to International Recreation Corporation by Yonkers President William M. Zeckendorf and others, it was announced Tuesday.

Zeckendorf declined to disclose the purchase figure but said the World - Telegram and Sun said the transaction involved $17,300,000 for more than 400,000 shares of stock.

MAKE FINE BET

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — A daily double of $788.60 was produced at the Western Fair Raceway Tuesday night when Hook's Galleon returned $55.80 to win in the first race and Edbon returned 39 in the second. It was the largest double of the raceway's spring and fall meet.

WAS VERSATILE ATHLETE

MONTREAL (CP) — Funeral services will be held today for Frank S. Stirling, versatile athlete and former president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association of the Royal Caledonia Curling Club of Montreal. Mr. Stocking, who died Monday at the age of 81, was a goalie with a Quebec senior hockey team for six years near the end of the 19th century and played with a Quebec City football team. He won the Canadian intermediate championship in 1902.

BACK REJOINS CARDS

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Halfback Bobby Stacy of St. Louis Cardinals, who Sunday suffered his third brain concussion in three National Football League seasons, was released from hospital Tuesday and pronounced "100 per cent okay." Dr. Robert Hyland said the 25-year-old defensive back should be available for duty in the Philadelphia Eagles' game Sunday.

POSTPONE TITLE BOUT

MILAN (AP)—The world junior welterweight title fight between champion Duilio Loi of Italy and Eddie Perkins of Chicago was postponed until Oct. 31 Tuesday after the Italian complained of an intestinal disorder. The fight was scheduled for Sunday, after having been postponed from Sept. 7. The first postponement came when Loi said he had hurt his left arm.

BOXER INJURED

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP)—Welterweight Willie Johnson of Newark, N.J., suffered a critical brain injury Tuesday night when knocked out in the fourth round of a six - round boxing match. Johnson, weighing 138, was dropped just before the bell by Gene Delmore, 135, of Hartford. A doctor said Johnson suffered what appeared to be a brain hemorrhage.

General Tendencies: Columbus Day — but this is not a day to go off on some big adventure, but rather is excellent for using your best on some big adventure, but rather is excellent for using your best powers and abilities to prepare the personal and behind-the-scenes duties required to later put your comprehensive plans into motion. Make no changes and engage in no upsets. Steady plotting pays off big dividends later.

Aries (March 21 to April 19) Garnering the data that will give you a better insight into how you can advance more quickly in business and civic affairs is fine today. Don't waste your time on pleasure that is hardly worthwhile or you lose much. Work.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) Utilize day hours to come to better understanding with associates and competition as well. Then be sure you study well whatever details are necessary for any new plans you have in mind — once you master them, success follows.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) Better stick to your job and get everything well organized rather than go off on any new interests today. Also, be sure you do not make any radical care while out driving or in motion anywhere.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) You can have a most enjoyable day provided you indulge in inexpensive pleasures that you know you can afford. A winning smile will also keep you out of trouble, avoid tension. Ride whatever hobbies you most enjoy. Have fun

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) If you concentrate upon becoming more efficient in your work and improving conditions about you, it will prove more effective than if you made radical changes at this time. Relax and work in a steady and assured manner for best results.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) If you are more clever in the handling of routine work now, you can make greater progress soon. Also, look into your paper for good suggestion. There is every chance to gain much if you put aside some private worry.

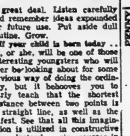
Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Properly and monetary matters can be handled very wisely during the day, which will also please him no end. Be sure in P.M. that you save whatever has been earned — don't splurge.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Put constructive plans into operation that are so vital at this time that can insure real happiness. Be careful during latter part of day and evening that you act tactfully or you can lose prestige, credit, etc. Work.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Be sure to carry through with any tasks that are important instead of running off on some tangent or other. Do your utmost in P.M. not to have an argument with the one you love. Too much temperament on your part is not good.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Day hours are fine for reaching some personal goals as well as making fine, influential contacts that will prove helpful in the early future. Be sure you curb that temper with attachment in the evening. Real love is kind.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Civic or business affairs can prove more successful now if you show appreciation and gratitude to higher-ups and sincere admiration as well. P.M. Avoid that altercation between executive and an associate. Read a good book.



Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) Every opportunity is yours now to meet interesting people of different background from your own from whom you can learn a great deal. Listen carefully and remember ideas expounded for future use. Put aside dull routine. Grow.

If your child is born today ... he or she, will be one of those interesting youngsters who will ever be looking about for some obvious way of doing the ordinary, but it behooves you to early teach that the shortest distance between two points is a straight line, as well as the safest. See that all this imagination is utilized in constructive ways instead — give courses in advanced mathematics and the like.

REAL ESTATE FOR SALE

can be yours in the Hyde Park Club. This is one of the outstanding homes on the street. The floor-to-ceiling windows in the living room and dining room, the family room and sliding doors, the 4 real nice bedrooms, the ground level in the easy family room and second bath. In the basement is a recreation room, laundry room and second bath. In the garage is a workshop. Very large with shade trees outside. Very handy to schools, shopping and bus. Early afternoon naps. Two other well-planned homes are also available to complete this level. Of course, a good mortgage is arranged. Drop in this home of quality in an exclusive district.

ANOTHER NEW DESIGN

Nearing completion, "The Marlboro" is a beautifully executed 3-bedroom bungalow with a practical design. No wasted space. Note the living room, the hall and the Hallway leads to any part of home without going by any other. Big living room, excellent dining room, kitchen with eating area, and garage. You will be amazed at the quality of workmanship and the completed price. Master bedroom has separate ensuite. Lovely broadloom throughout. Large, fenced rear yard. Ideal for the family that likes to entertain outdoors. Terms can be arranged to suit your needs. Phone us today and we will be pleased to show you around.

Thomasburg

THOMASBURG — Recently the members of Thomasburg United Church W.A. served a hot dinner, a number of tables being booked by the pupils and teacher of the senior room of the school. The regular meeting of the Association followed at 2 p.m. and the program was conducted by the convener, Mrs. James Arbuckle, Mrs. Dyson gave an interesting report on her recent visit to England.

The smorgasbord supper under the auspices of the United Church Guild, which took place in the I.O.O.F. Hall recently was attended by many from neighboring areas, as well as many local residents.

The funeral of Claude Robert Wager, a former resident of the Thomasburg district, near Cobden, Ontario, on September 29, was held from the Chapel of the John R. Huth Funeral Home, Belleville with the Rev. H. M. Davis of Bridge Street United Church, officiating. Interment was in Thomasburg cemetery.

As Sunday, October 1st was world communion Sunday, the Sacrament of Holy Communion was administered in Thomasburg United Church at 9.45 a.m.

The annual Harvest Festival and Thanksgiving Service took place in Trinity Church on October 1st, with the Rev. Black of Peterborough, who was guest Chaplain of the Royal Canadian Legion, as guest preacher. Mrs. Black, also of Peterborough, was the soloist. Church was decorated with flowers, fruit and vegetables for this occasion.

The funeral of Stanley Walter Hick of Colborne who passed away suddenly at his home, in his 59th year, recently, was held from the Chapel of Barnes Funeral Home, Colborne on October 3rd. Interment was in Mount Pleasant Cemetery. He was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hick, former residents of Thomasburg.

Pupils from this district attended Maple Fair and report an excellent fair despite the inclement weather.

Marmora

MARMORA — Mr. and Mrs. James Martin left on the week-end for a motor trip to Wiarton.

Mr. W. Dyer of Peterborough, spent a few days with her sister, Mrs. E. Hewitt.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth of Weston, visited relatives here, last week.

Many members from this vicinity attended the plowing match held on Thursday. The High School students attended in a body, also students of the agricultural course.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis. R. Green quietly celebrated their 40th wedding anniversary on October 9th.

Rodney Mawer 22, had the index finger of his right hand amputated following an accident at work on Thursday. He was operating a jointer-planer, a power-operated tool, and was making cupboards at the Wells Brothers shop at the time. He was taken to Trenton Hospital, Peterborough.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilbert Jones spent a long weekend with their daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Keith Cooney in Oshawa.

Mr. James Bleecker and sister, Miss Isobel Bleecker, of Oshawa, Mrs. William Kellog of Ajax and Mrs. Harold Johnston of Ajax, attended the funeral of their uncle, Mr. E. Hewitt.

Flowers on the altar in St. Andrew's United Church on Sunday, were in memory of the late Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Jarvis.

Mrs. G. Lalonde and daughter, Catherine, of Collins Bay, spent the holiday weekend with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Foresfield.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles O'Connor have returned to their home in Upper Cliff, Ontario, after spending holidays here with relatives.

CAMPBELLFORD

Proposed School Addition Brings Hot Council Debate

CAMPBELLFORD — Discussion on a proposed new addition to Campbellford High School occupied the greater part of the Town Council meeting on Monday night.

Mr. Loucks explained steps the board has to take in arriving at a decision and receiving authority to provide additional space at the school.

He said he believed there would be some misunderstanding on the part of council, some members of which felt the board had gone over the council's head in receiving tentative approval for the addition from the Department of Education.

Projected figures, based on present rate of growth and information received from district public and separate schools, showed a probable need at the school for accommodation for 571 students in 1966.

The board provided figures which showed that it would be approved by and arrived at by the district school inspectors.

These figures showed the enrolment in 1962 would be about 387 students, 1963 — 440, 1964 — 573 in 1964. Enrolment "for 1961 was officially reported as at 503. Actual 1961 enrolment was 496.

MUSIC ROOM PROPOSED

The board proposed to build a music room to be used as a classroom, a gymnasium to serve science labs of 800 square feet, and a 1,350 square-foot cafeteria. All would provide extra space and facilities for 580 students.

The new addition would give the school one cafeteria, three science labs, one classroom, a music room, two commercial rooms, two gymnasiums (auditorium), one industrial arts home economics, French, Latin, commercial room, mathematics, geography, literature and probably one other lab-which, in addition to completing clerical; terminal course, a commercial course and a special commercial course.

The board estimated the $140,-000 cost of the addition, after grants had been deducted, would cost the ratepayers one mill on the rate, or possibly less.

A debate on the need for a cafeteria followed, during which the board explained the room would be used to study in.

Students could purchase all or any part of a hot lunch, but would not be required to purchase anything if they prefer to bring their own lunch. Such a complete lunch would be about 40 cents. This would pay for the cook. A cook on a baby would cost upwards of $2,000 per year to operate, which would be borne by the board.

NO ANSWER GIVEN

The group requested a person from the board from the council on the request to continue, with the necessary steps to bring the new addition into being, but did not get it. On motion, council decided to study the matter and give it due consideration.

Mayor F. M. Rutherford said that the board should have explained their situation earlier. He said the council was blamed for almost everything, and now felt council had done too much approving of expenditures on their own.

He felt the taxpayers should have a voice in the matter, and should vote on whether or not the board should be allowed to build the addition.

"There are too many professional gossips in this town," he said, referring to the controversy between the board and the council over the school problem.

The mayor said education costs had reached a point where they were beyond reason, and said the unfortunate part of the situation was that 50 per cent of those who must pay the costs have less income than those who are employed in the field of education.

"Property owners are hard hit," he said, and felt that all persons should pay equally toward education.

Councillor Forrest R. Dennis, thanked the board members for attending the meeting. He said council had been led to believe the board had not followed the correct procedure in obtaining permission to build the school but their explanation showed the board had followed the prescribed steps.

Board chairman Roy Loucks told council it was urgent that the council reach a decision quickly, otherwise the building program would be delayed to a point where the addition would not be ready for the 1962 term. He said the immediate construction of two more temporary classrooms on the school grounds was the subject to particular indignities . . . made available to soldiers and the like."

Wallbridge

WALLBRIDGE — Mr. and Mrs. Don Garriss of Prescott and son Bob of Cobourg were weekend guests of the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Garrison.

Mrs. Albert Langabeer of Kingston returned home on Saturday having spent the past week with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Harris and also spent a day with her nephew and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Miller Parks.

Thanksgiving service was well attended on Sunday morning. Next Sunday service will be held at 8 p.m.

Mr. and Mrs. Ted Evans called on Mr. Reg Skinner, who is a patient in Belleville General Hospital, on Sunday night.

Callers during the past week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Harris were: Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Hamilton; Mr. and Mrs. George Collier, of Prince Edward; Mrs. Donald Jones and boys, and Mrs. Clarabelle Outerbridge, of Belleville; Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Brohm of Cobourck, were overnight guests on Thursday and attended the Ploughing Match, on Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Nobes and Miss Pat Thompson and Mr. Carmen Nobes motored to Cayuga, U.S.A., on Sunday.

Mrs. Dorothy Bowyer of Wilmington, Miss Ethel Burton of Belleville were guests of Mr. and Mrs. R. Edmondson, on Friday.

RETURNS TRUE BILL

Sneaked One Document Out Court Is Told

WASHINGTON (AP) — An FBI agent testified Tuesday that Irvin C. Scarbeck told him he sneaked one secret document out of the U.S. Embassy in Warsaw to be photographed by Polish agents.

Scarbeck, 41, is on trial in U.S. district court on charges of giving four classified papers to Polish agents. At the height of the alleged offence last year, he was second secretary of the embassy.

Patrick M. Rios, FBI agent who interviewed Scarbeck here last June 7-9 on his return to the United States, also quoted him as saying that aside from the one document which he took out of the embassy, he tried to give the Poles garbled and inaccurate information.

Rios also quoted the story other government witnesses have related—that Scarbeck told them he was blackmailed into cooperating with the Poles after Polish police photographed him in bed with a Polish girl, Urszula Discher, 32, and threatened to expose him to his wife or to employer superiors.

Scarbeck had been seeing the Polish girl frequently and for a period of six months had intimate relations with her an average of once a night, Rios said he was told.

Another witness, Charles W. Lyons of the state department, said that among the threats Scarbeck told that the Polish agents made was that Miss Discher would be put in a prison which could be the subject to particular indignities . . . made available to soldiers and the like."

Centenary

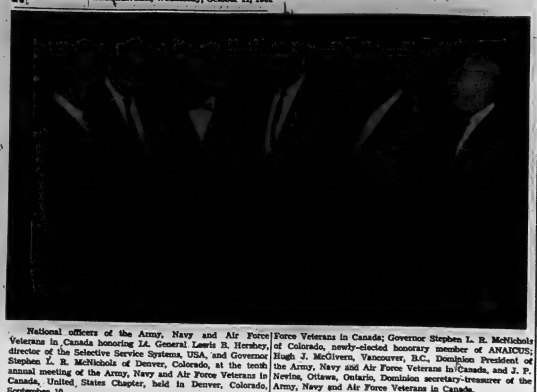
CENTENARY — Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Archibald and Miss Ethel Horton, of Belleville, were supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Hamilton, on Wednesday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Everett Ray and June, of Hamilton were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Ray for the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Christopher, Mr. and Mrs. Elwin Hart, Helen and Ron, and Mr. and Mrs. G. Reesels were guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. Christopher for Sunday supper.

Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Chapman of Carrying Place spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Keith Johnston and also attended church services.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Vandewater of Caledonia visited with Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Ray for a few days and also attended the Plowing Match.



Mr. and Mrs. T. Nobes and Miss Pat Thompson and Mr. Carmen Nobes motored to Cayuga, U.S.A., on Sunday.

Mrs. Dorothy Bowyer of Wilmington, Miss Ethel Burton of Belleville were guests of Mr. and Mrs. R. Edmondson, on Friday.

McMaster's Nuclear Reactor Only One on a University Campus in Commonwealth

By KEN PRITCHARD

HAMILTON (CP) — This pool is not for swimming.

Its invitingly blue waters—demineralized, deoxidamized and constantly circulated—have more important functions. They serve as radiation shield, moderator and cooling medium for McMaster University's nuclear reactor, the only one on a university campus in the Commonwealth.

The reactor, housed in an impregnable - looking 15-sided concrete building, is playing a leading role in the enrichment and expansion of science and engineering studies and research at McMaster.

This featured performer in Canada's race toward scientific excellence resides near the bottom of a 100,000 - gallon, tile-lined pool! It produces on command one megawatt of power. The associated radiation and neutrons are put to a bewildering variety of peaceful uses.

24-HOUR SCHEDULE

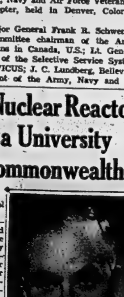
The eerily beautiful blue light of the reactor in action, first colored the waters of the McMaster pool in 1959. It was operated then for one shift daily, five days a week. As research projects mounted, the machine went on a two-shift operation. On Oct. 15 it is scheduled for round-the-clock service, seven days a week.

What's a $2,000,000 nuclear reactor doing on a Canadian university campus?

That was the question put to Dr. H. G. Thode, who became president of McMaster July 1 after Dr. G. P. Gilmour retired because of poor health. Dr. Thode is uniquely qualified to answer, because McMaster's nuclear science program has been his special interest for more than 30 years.

"The nuclear reactor is helping to make McMaster a community of scholars," said Dr. Thode. "It tends to unify the whole university program and encourage the exchange of ideas."

LATEST IDEAS USED



As many as 23 research programs, serving medicine, science and engineering, have been carried on at one time within the reactor building which incorporates all the best ideas from reactors installed earlier at United States universities.

The reactor is a source of neutrons, the fundamental building - blocks of nature, and of gamma and beta rays used in irradiation research.

Fuelled by enriched uranium (93 per cent U-235 and seven per cent U-238) the reactor is used to produce radioactive isotopes of practically every material, to examine the physical makeup of materials, to study the effects of radiation.

Research remains to be done in such fundamentals as the nature of the fission process, not yet fully explained, differences in nuclear power fuels, and the properties of fission products.

The reactor on campus enables McMaster research teams to experiment with short-lived radioactive materials. A plastic container called a "rabbit," running through tubes such as are used to make change in some large stores, whips radioactive materials from the reactor to the adjacent Nuclear Research Building where experiments are completed in the few seconds during which the materials remain radioactive.

UNIVERSITY HEAD

Dr. H. G. Thode, 51, is president of McMaster University, Hamilton, the only university in the Commonwealth that can boast of having a nuclear reactor on campus. Dr. Thode, a native of Dundurn, Sask., joined McMaster in 1939 and has been developing the university's nuclear science program for the last 20 years.—(CP Photo).

PUBLICLY SUPPORTED

The rise of science and engineering to parity with the arts program on which McMaster was founded has coincided with the transition of the Baptist education centure to a non-denominational, publicly supported university.

The transition occurred during the presidential years of Dr. Gilmour, a Baptist clergyman. After the Second World War the Baptist Convention of Ontario and Quebec, which had operated McMaster since its incorporation in Toronto in 1887, experienced increasing difficulty in financing the expansion which seemed desirable on the Hamilton campus, to which McMaster moved in 1930. As a non-denominational school, McMaster did not qualify for government grants.

In 1948, non - denominational Hamilton College was set up as an affiliate of McMaster to expand the science program. Hamilton College's first new building was for nuclear research. Its fourth, opened in 1959, was the Nuclear Reactor Building, linked to the Nuclear Research Building-by an enclosed ramp.

In 1957 all of McMaster. University became non-denominational except the affiliated divinity college, still supported by the Baptist Convention. It has a fine new building on the campus.

The new president, Dr. Thode, joined the McMaster faculty in 1939. A 51-year-old native of Dundurn, Sask., he graduated from the University of Saskatchewan and obtained his doctorate in physical chemistry at University of Chicago.

His deep interest in nuclear research was enhanced by two years at Columbia University as research assistant to Dr. Harold Urey, Nobel prizewinner in chemistry in 1934.

A National Research Council atomic energy research project in which Dr. Thode joined in Montreal in 1943 was transferred within a few months to Mc-Master. There the research group used Canada's first mass spectrometer.

Dr. Thode has been principal of Hamilton College since 1946, and in collaboration with Dr. Gilmour provided much of the impetus for McMaster's forward strides in science.

Move To Expel South Africa May Be Made

Call Louw's Speech Offensive, Erroneous

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Senegal is expected to move today for expulsion of South Africa from the United Nations in the wake of a storm over the former Common wealth country's apartheid (racial segregation) policy.

Ambassador Seydi Louis of Senegal announced that his country would ask for expulsion following a two-hour debate Wednesday in the 100-member General Assembly.

It grew up after a speech by South African Foreign Minister Eric Louw made a speech defending South Africa's apartheid policy.

In an unprecedented action, the General Assembly, spurred by the 47 Afro-Asian members, voted 67 to 1 with 20 abstentions in favor of a motion of censure calling Louw's speech "offensive and erroneous."

MAY LEAVE UN

There was speculation following the censure vote that South Africa might withdraw from the Commonwealth earlier this year, rather than get out of the UN.

Louw angrily charged that the censure of his policy speech was part of a "concentrated campaign by the nations of black Africa to smear his government.

"We had been forewarned this would happen," Louw declared after a parade of African delegates denounced South Africa.

The vote against the censure proposal by Liberian Ambassador Richard Fay Cooper. Canada, Australia, New Zealand, Ireland, some Latin American countries, Italy and Portugal were among the abstainers.

Britain, France and the United States were among nine countries not participating in the vote. Three countries were absent.

CONSIDERS DANGEROUS

Explaining the Canadian vote, Leonard M. Brockington, Q.C., Ottawa lawyer and chairman of the delegation, said he considered it a dangerous precedent to censure a nation for a speech in General Assembly debate.

But if Canada had voted against the motion, it might have seemed like agreement with South Africa's racial policies, Brockington said. Canadian government does not agree, Canada's delegation saw no difference between apartheid and racial discrimination, the vote and not participating, Mr. Brockington told the U.S and Britain.

In his main address, Louw defended his country's racial policy. He said some African governments "do not like democracy." He specifically mentioned Liberia, Ghana and Nigeria as older independent countries in Finns' Premier Will Meet P.M. For Conference

OTTAWA (CP) — The president of Finland had a busy round of engagements and sightseeing ahead of him today as he headed into the final half of his state visit to Ottawa.

By contrast with Wednesday's leisurely schedule — capped by a white-tie dinner and reception Wednesday night at Government House today's figured to keep President Kekkonen fairly busy.

A conference with Prime Minister Diefenbaker, a tour of the Central Experimental Farm and a visit to Parliament Hill were on the 61 - year - old head of state's itinerary for the afternoon. Mrs. Kekkonen was to visit the National Art Gallery.

Those present included Canadian cabinet ministers and high government officials; representatives of the Judiciary, the clergy and the diplomatic corps; members of the diplomatic corps.

Late Wednesday, the president and Mrs. Kekkonen were host to about 130 Finnish-Canadians at a reception at the residence of Finland's Ambassador, Arthur Lehtinen.

Burial Ground 3,000 Years Old Is Discovered

DEEP RIVER (CP)—An Indian campsite and burial ground that may be as old as 3,000 years has been discovered on Morrison Island near Pembroke by Clyde C. Kennedy, archeologist for the Ottawa Valley Historical Society.

Dr. R. S. MacNeish, senior archeologist for the national museum in Ottawa, described the find as "very unusual and very amazing."

He said it would appear that the campsite and burial ground is the oldest ever found in Ontario. Older ones have been discovered in other parts of Canada.

The site is one of three which have been discovered from time to time by Mr. Kennedy in recent years. The island is in the Ottawa River about 100 miles northwest of Ottawa.

Soil skeletons removed from the site now are at the national museum here.

The Indians who camped on the site belonged to what archeologists term the Laurel Culture." The Archaic peoples had no pottery and it is believed that they used spear - throwers instead of bows and arrows.

GOES TO JAIL

GLASGOW (AP)—A preacher went to jail Wednesday rather than pay a fine for taking part in a civil rights demonstration against the U.S. nuclear submarine base at Holy Loch. Rev. Albert Goedelman, 40, leader of Teyvalich Church of Scotland near Inverary, said he did so because the picketing was done to show how he felt about nuclear weapons and that he was ready to take the consequences.

CANADA'S 100TH BIRTHDAY PARTY WILL BE COSTLY

Special Dollar Will Be Minted

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's 100th birthday party in 1967 may cost the federal taxpayer 44 million dollars.

Transport Minister Balcer announced Wednesday that the federal government's plans for its part in the centennial celebrations will be based on a budget of $100,000,000. Part of this would be used to assist local municipalities in their centennial projects.

The government also announced that centennial observances will be formally opened in 1964 with ceremonies marking the Charlottetown and Quebec conferences of 1864 which laid the pattern for Confederation three years later. A special silver dollar will be minted to commemorate the two conferences.

The announcements were made at the third conference of federal, provincial and provincial committee handling centennial planning. The committee includes four federal ministers and a minister and one other representative from each province.

The meeting reviewed suggestions it has received for possible centennial projects, devoting special attention to a proposal for setting up a travel scheme for Canadian students.

World's Altitude Record of 40 Miles for Winged Flight Set

EDWARDS AIR BASE, Calif. (AP)—In the most dangerous X-15 flight yet, a pilot set a world's record for going up—to prove this important point about manned flight.

That an astronaut doesn't have to ride back to earth as a fireball in a falling capsule, but can fly safely through the earth's atmosphere in a winged craft and land where he wishes.

Air Force Maj. Bob White Wednesday got it to 40 miles altitude record for winged flight, 40 miles and then made a belly-flopping re-entry into the atmosphere which cracked the windshield of the rocket plane. The stress and friction heat would have torn a conventional plane apart.

The method speeds the heat of re-entry over a large area of the plane. Wednesday's successful flight proved techniques which may be used in re-entries on future manned orbital flights in winged rocket craft, scientists said.

White said the windshield cracked as the plane hit the thickening atmosphere at 40,000 or 70,000 feet. He said the crack didn't interfere with his control. He said it was "like driving in a screaming dive before pulling back on the stick."

White regained control as the plane hurtled into thicker air. The temperature in the X-15's surface reached 900 degrees—hot enough to burn aluminum (it X-15 was designed to withstand it).

He reached an altitude of 315,000 feet — more than eight miles higher than the previous X-15 record of 168,600 feet. His top speed was 3,477 miles an hour, under the X-15's previous record of 3,645.

At the 40-mile altitude — well into space—White said that "the sky was a deep blue, merging into a lighter blue on the horizon." He said he could see 200 to 300 miles in all directions.

Kennedy Warns West Moves In Period of Great Hazard

WASHINGTON (CP) — President Kennedy has warned the Western world it is moving through a period of "extraordinary hazard" and so far East-West exploratory talks have provided no immediate hope that he Berlin crisis can be settled easily.

The East-West collisions have pushed mankind to, as he viewed it, the gravest danger point in all history.

There still are very major differences between the positions of the Western powers and Russia, Kennedy said, but the United States to seek a peaceful solution no matter how much he may be criticized based on a belief Republicans at home, Kennedy told a televised press conference Wednesday:

I see no evidence, as yet, that there is any clear solution to Berlin."

While Russia had expressed a willingness to discuss the issue, Kennedy said the talks he said State Secretary Dean Rusk had with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko in the last three weeks indicated the wide differences in East-West viewpoints.

Gromyko had declined what Russia means by a free Berlin and guarantees of access routes. There had been no negotiations. Although Soviet proposals were completely unacceptable to the West, the exploration did contain threads American Ambassador Llewellyn E. Thompson in Moscow.

"Our ambition is to protect our vital interests without war, which threatens all and desires really represent a victory, for policy," Kennedy said.

Ambassador Thompson is currently engaged in this age of annihilation weapons because "we have yen to live in the most danger-

Commission Hears Evidence Taken From Company Books

QUEBEC (CP) — The Salvas royal commission continued its investigation of Union Nationale purchasing practices today after hearing into the financial operations of a Quebec City office supplies firm owned by the son of the party treasurer.

The three - man commission, headed by Mr. Justice Elie Salvas, heard evidence Wednesday taken from the books of a construction firm owned by Robert Morin, 35-year-old son of Gerald Morin, treasurer of Quebec's Union Nationale — the legislative council.

It also heard testimony from other witnesses who said they received kickbacks from companies which made sales to the Quebec government between July-1, 1955, and July 1, 1960, the period covered by the probe.

The younger Morin has testified his firm — operated from the same building as his father's office supply company — had the provincial government as its sole sales territory.

He said his company had the exclusive agency to sell Remington typewriters to the government. He said his agreement with — in a long-hand memo verbal but later produced a contract with the government signed in 1956, but dated

Rusk Fires Opening Salvo In Battle for Freer Trade

WASHINGTON (CP) — The Kennedy administration is a big step closer to getting a trade bill for a more liberal trade policy. It could bring major changes in American trade with Canada and Western Europe.

Meeting in the southern States where the administration may face its greatest opposition, Secretary Dean Rusk Wednesday night called for elimination of tariff points and escape clauses which clutter up American trade agreements.

The government's new trade program, to be submitted to Congress early in 1962, "must at the minimum include the necessary authority to enable our negotiators to bargain as representatives of the greatest trading nation and richest economy in the world," Rusk added at a Miami assembly.

Southern advocates in Congress are expected to put up a stiff battle against Kennedy's program, which, it is learned, likely will include proposals to discard old-style itemby-item tariff negotiations and offer wholesale cuts on a whole bushel of items at one time in return for deep cuts in tariffs from other countries.

Kennedy's fight against protectionists likely will be complicated by the fact his most powerful foe in Congress, House Speaker Sam Rayburn, is dying of cancer.

Democratic Democrats control both the House and Senate, Kennedy has found that on major politically-sensitive domestic issues, he cannot count on complete support of his own party in Congress. The foreign trade program thus may encounter stiffened barriers when Congress reconvenes Jan. 10.

The U.S. last year sold about $20,000,000,000 worth of goods abroad, with more than $3,000,000,000 going to Canada. American imports from all countries totalled $15,000,000,000.

"As a nation we are stronger and richer because of these exchanges," Rusk said. "Even on the most narrow grounds of material self-interest, we need this trade."

PLANNERS URGED TO WORK ON REGIONAL BASIS

Must Get Public To Support Them

HALIFAX (CP). — Community planners must work on a regional rather than a local or municipal basis if their work is to be effective. That is the keynote of the Community Planning Association of Canada national conference which continues here today.

The conference, attended by about 300 professional planners and interested laymen, adopted a resolution Wednesday night urging provincial governments to "further the trend to regional planning and expedite its implementation."

Jacques Simard of Montreal, association president, said everyone now knows what community planning is. The next step was to get the public to support and take part in it.

Montreal architect Perino Du, buis said "We, and it is wish, progressively profit from the experience of the past, and effectively and comprehensively replan our cities, salvage our countryside and improve the being of our country."

FREEDOM GROUP

Mr. Dubuis predicted the formation of a Canadian institute of planners "to safeguard the freedom of the profession."

Earlier the planners heard Prof. Anthony Adamson, vice-chairman of the National Capital Commission at Ottawa, accuse provincial governments of not giving adequate leadership in regional planning.

He said the federal government is doing the best job. Its planning and distribution of funds could be effective. The provincial government took an active part by giving half the cost and the local provincial representatives on local planning commissions.

Mr. Adamson said in most provinces, including Ontario, municipalities have been given control with providing the legislation for the formation of joint planning bodies.

D. F. Taylor of the Ontario community planning branch conceded the province has been slow to get into joint planning and municipal policies. He said one of the chief stumbling blocks to co-operation in this area is the deep-seated rivalry among neighboring municipalities.

Champion Will Confine Plowing To Own Farm

TORONTO (CP)—World plowing champion William Lockhart arrived back in Canada Wednesday and announced that he'll confine plowing in future to his 300-acre farm near Brampton.

"I'm finished," he said with a grin. "I've gone as far as I can."

Dixon, 31, a dairy farmer, picked up his first world and Canadian plowing titles last year, then won the world championship Oct. 1 at Irrigneo, France.

Some 50 people were on hand when Ontario Agriculture Minister Allan Apsrey and the shy young farmer was piped from the plane by a kilted piper to an open car in which he rode to a City Hall reception some 30 miles west of here.

Hesitant Tory Meet Approves Common Market

Macmillan Wins Point After Spirited Debate

BRIGHTON (CP) — Prime Minister Macmillan's government today won approval from a hesitant Conservative party to seek membership for Britain in the European Common Market.

The approval came by an overwhelming show of hands after long and spirited debate among the 5,000 delegates at the party's annual conference. It was the most controversial issue to face the party before the party since the war.

The opposition Labor party has been against the move in favor of Britain joining the European trading group unless the price demanded by the existing members is too high.

The Labor Liberal party is unqualifiedly in favor of the move into Europe.

A row broke out on the floor of the Conservative meeting here when Sir Derek Walker-Smith, a former cabinet minister under Macmillan, charged that Johnny Foreigner" would decide the story Britain's Commonwealth ties.

"We shall have to treat our old Commonwealth partners and new provincial governments as associates," he declared amid loud applause.

TRIES RESOLUTION

Walker-Smith put forth a resolution pressing Macmillan's common Market proposals should be approved which involved a surrender of sovereignty but were unopposed with promises to Britain's Commonwealth partners or British farmers.

But Commonwealth Secretary Duncan Sandys silenced the possibility of revolt against the government by declaring Britain's entry into the market would be "a step forward rather than wedges—the traditional association of Commonwealth countries.

He clearly swayed wavering delegates by declaring:

"I believe that, if there is the political will in Europe to have us in, ways will be found to enable Britain to draw closer to Europe in the drawing away from the Commonwealth.

The big point Sandys is that through Britain's entry into the Common Market, Europe and the Commonwealth will tend to develop closer trade relations with one another. This could only be to the advantage of all."

POPERY RULE

There have been undefined objections in Britain that Common Market membership would diminish the status of the Queen and also place British policy under the influence of Rome and the large Roman Catholic populations.

Sandys referred to these when he said:

"I have even read that we should lose our Queen, and that she would be swamped by Popery.

"These fears, however exag-

WHEAT PACT RUMORED

WINNIPEG (CP)—The Free Press says there is growing speculation in Ottawa and Geneva that the United Kingdom will enter a new five - year wheat purchasing agreement with Canada to soothe opposition in this country to Britain's contemplated entry into the European Economic Market. The newspaper says rumors are that Agriculture Minister Hamilton will announce the new agreement soon.

16-Year-Old East German Boy Makes Third Escape to West Berlin

BERLIN (AP) — Juergen Schaefer, 16-year-old East German, is safe again in West Berlin after his third escape from Communist-controlled Poland. The third time he and two young comrades made a motor raft and paddled four miles out of gun-firing gunners.

Juergen fled East Germany last year but returned to the East zone after hearing his widowed mother was ill.

He crossed over again last January and reported once more to the West Berlin reception centre which flew him to West Germany.

Schaefer returned to East Berlin in September, Germany, he said, drew him for a look at a barbed wire fence dividing the city. East Berlin guards spotted him and he dashed for the river through the wire to the East Berlin.

He was sent back to his home in Wismar, about 30 miles from East Berlin, but he said he was plans to escape, with two friends, Hans Hoechter, 17, and a 16-year-old girl, Marion Lorner. Hoechter's father is district secretary of the Communist party, but Klaus wanted to flee because he had been pressured into signing up for the East German army.

The three escaped Wednesday night by boat, reaching the Western shore in a hail of Communist gunfire but unhurt.

Bush Pilot Dies as Plane Sinks in River

DAWSON CREEK (CP) — Bush pilot Danny Yaeger, 36, once said: "If a pilot doesn't know how to survive in the bush, he has no business flying over it."

That was in September, 1960, when he and a passenger established a four-day bush trek to safety after his plane flipped over on landing at Cormack Lake, N.W.T.

A year later, he had proved that survival technique pays off. Last night days in the remote bush of the Canadian northwest British Columbia, he made a safe and floated down the river to safety.

But on Wednesday Yeager did not get a chance to use his knowledge of the bush. His hazardous career ended when he died wedged behind the wheel of his Stinson float plane as it plunged into the Peace River northwest of here.

Police passenger Donald Slack of Calgary, escaped by smashing in the plane's windshield.

Slack told police he thought the plane was coming in for a normal landing but "next thing I knew we were on the bottom of the river.".

Sailors Fed

VICTORIA (CP) — About 35 of some 300 Canadians on board the destroyer escort Ottawa were stricken Wednesday with gastroenteritis.

The outbreak forced the destroyer escort Cataraqui from joint Canadian-United States manoeuvres and return with her sick bay full to base at nearby Esquimalt.

None of the sailors were hurried to hospital ashore.

The ship was quarantined and personnel were being held on board until later today.

A medical officer aboard the ship said no information would be released from the Ottawa without proper sanction.

Third Tender For Disposal Plant Called

Tenders for the construction of the Dundas Street West trunk sanitary sewer, the third tender call in connection with construction of Belleville's sewage disposal plant, are now being called by the Ontario Water Resources Commission.

Two other contracts for trunk sewer construction, the Dundas East sewer and the Fahey sewer, have already been awarded to a Montreal contracting firm.

It is expected that tender for the construction of the main sewage treatment plant will be called in the near future.

Winter Works Program Has Been Drawn Up

The new extensions of Victoria Avenue and Edgehill Road to the east of Farley Avenue have almost been completed and are currently in a state of partial use. Both of these roads will be gravel surfaced.

Another major project is just about to commence in the East Hill area on East Bridge St. between Southwood and Farley. This is the sanitary sewer and work is supposed to start on it today.

Already underway is the asphalt paving and curbing project at the east end of Crestview.

A winter works program has been drawn up by the department for the months ahead. This proposed agenda has been forwarded to the Department of Municipal Affairs in Toronto for approval.

KENNEDY WARNS

our time in the history of the human race."

Meantime, Americans and their Allies had to look to their defences and to consider means of protection including fallout shelters during a long period of constant tension when dangerous nuclear weapons "will be proliferated."

SENDS GENERAL

Other areas of conflict exist outside Germany, he said, and announced that he is sending Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor for an on - scene survey of one such area.

Taylor, the president's military adviser, will go to South Viet Nam Sunday to meet Vietnamese President Ngo Dinh Diem and U.S. officials. They will discuss ways of helping South Viet Nam cope with expanding Communist attacks on that Southeast Asian country.

Taylor also may visit Laos and Cambodia.

Kennedy, addressing his 16th press conference in Washington and the first in nearly 14 months, for the most part was noncommittal.

NEW TALES TO COME

Meanwhile, an import Western delegation is scheduled here next week. Kennedy gave no details, but it was learned the meeting may be on a openly foreign minister's level with the U.S., France and Britain reviewing their positions in the light of Chruschev's clarification of Soviet proposals.

Kennedy said he hoped that West Germany would embark on a new government by then and that it also will be represented so that it could participate with "more vigor" in Allied discussions on the Berlin issue.

France and West Germany are believed less inclined than Britain and the U.S. to pursue talks with Russians at this time.

KEEPS BELOW

In other fields, Kennedy took these positions:

Nuclear Arms—The U.S. pattern of keeping its tests below ground, without spreading dangerous radioactive particles in the atmosphere, is consistent with the security interests. He did not, however, rule out the possibility of some day firing bombs in the atmosphere.

Shelters — By mid-November, the government hopes to suggest on a nation - wide basis certain steps to furnish protection against radio active fallout.

Foreign Aid — The United States is not using aid as a weapon to force needy countries to accept its policies. "In general, our object is that they maintain their independence," he said. "We hope it is theirs."

Obituaries

GEORGE A. McCOY

In failing health for some time, George Alexander McCoy, 13 Ritchie Street, died at his home this Thursday morning. He was born in Madoc 81 years ago, being the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. G. McCoy, but had been a resident of this city for many years where he was well known and highly respected. For many years he followed the trade of carpenter and was responsible for the construction of many buildings in this district. He has been retired for some years.

Mr. McCoy was a member of the Salvation Army and active in the work. He is survived by his wife, the former Lottie Mills; one son, William McCoy of Toronto; one stepson, Wilbur Badgley of Ottawa, and one daughter, Mrs. (Rev.) W. (Mary) Lowe of Tacoma, Wash. Also surviving are three grandchildren.

Resting at the John R. Bush Funeral Home, 80 Highland Avenue, the funeral announcement appears elsewhere in this edition.

MRS. LILLIAN MABEL FOX

The funeral of Mrs. Lillian Mabel Fox was held from the chapel of Thomas Bristow Funeral Home, Wednesday afternoon, Rev. Gordon Woodcock conducting the service.

Mrs. Arnold Reilly rendered a solo "The Old Rugged Cross."

Interment was in Belleville Cemetery.

Wm. Van Tassel Again President Of Bowling Club

William VanTassel, the efficient and untiring president of the Lawn Bowling Club during the past two years, was again elected to head that organization when the annual meeting was held at the club house on Wednesday evening. There were 25 members present and the reports that were received from the various chairmen showed the club to be in a better financial condition than for many years past.

The election of officers was ably conducted by Percy Graham, a former president of the club and the report of the nominating committee was accepted in its entirety. The honorary presidents are H. C. "Cliff" Argue, L. E. McLean, J. B. Black and George Wallace. Mr. Percy Graham of the immediate past president, Gordon Watkin as vice-president, committee Ralph Tuck, treasurer Wally Lavergne, tournament chairman W. Jr. "Skit" Vandervoort, membership G. B. Hyde; greens chairman Doug Row and directors, Bruce Miller, Jack Lawrence, Jack Fitzgerald, Ken Ashley, Jack Cowan, Bill Wright and Claude D. Tice.

The meeting endorsed a request of the Belleville Lawn Bowling Congress that the government be approached to provide an amount of $10,000 to lawn bowling from the grant approved for amateur sports. The meeting that lawn bowling was one of the great amateur sports. The members of parliament in each district will be asked to support this approach. The president was appointed a delegate to the PLBA meeting in Toronto while the treasurer's report showed the club in good condition. The report from Graham Hyde on the Corbin was also received and every effort will be made to make this tournament bigger and better. More workers clubs are expected to attend next year.

WORDS OF PRAISE

The greens chairman came in for words of praise for the excellent condition of the greens throughout the year and Mr. Row stated that credit should be given to Mr. Hall who with no wonderfully kept the greens throughout the year. The president liked that and every member had contributed to the success of the club and hoped that all would give their time and ability in the coming year.

Under the heading of new business a lengthy discussion was held on the feasibility of repairing the lighting system on the greens and it was decided to repair one green next summer at an estimated cost of $300. Tenders will be called and the latest equipment will be installed. A committee of Jerry Hyde, Bill Wright, the president, Doug Row and Jack Fitzgerald was appointed to look after this project. The work will be done in the early spring. Another committee of Gordon Watkin, Orlo Smith and Percy Graham was named to conduct winter activities of the club. On the adjournment of the meeting the members enjoyed a social hour before dispersing.

Legion Branch 99 Discusses 'Poppy Day'

Th. regular monthly meeting of Branch 99 Royal Canadian Legion took place on Tuesday night at the Legion Hall on Pinnacle St.

Four new members were welcomed to the Branch.

Comrade Ernest Digby, reminded those present that Poppy Day in Belleville should be held on Saturday, November 4th with poppies being available for sale on Friday from 4 p.m. on November 3rd, and all day on November 4th.

The president also reminded those present that participation in the Poppy campaign was a duty of all members of the Legion. It resulted in a large turnout of members to assist in the campaign this year.

Arrangements for the "Remembrance Day" parade were read to the meeting by the secretary, Mick Trimm. This parade is to be held on November 11th and as Remembrance Day falls on a Saturday this year, a good parade is hoped for assured.

BURSARIES AWARDED

The secretary informed the meeting that, to date, two of the four bursaries to High School students had been awarded. However, no reply had been received from Gordon Moira Secondary School or from Nicholson College, Watertown, N.Y. Bursaries will be recognizing Remembrance Day and are awarded in the spring. It is possible that some space may be available by then in the building extension according to Henry Horsten, who reported for the building committee. Tickets for the banquet will go on sale this week at the Legion Hall, and from the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, has agreed to be guest speaker.

FEES INCREASED

It was agreed that, due to the increase in rates that is imposed at the recent Ontario Provincial Convention, annual membership fees should be increased to $6. effective January 1st, 1962.

Several amendments to the Branch constitution were made to bring the by-laws up to date.

Gun Clubs Shoot Return Match Sunday

The five best shots of the Quinte Trap Club will be meeting with five top marksmen of the Belleville Skeet Club this Sunday to complete a home-and-home match between the two clubs. This Sunday's event will be held at the Belleville Skeet Club range on the Old Kingston Road west of Highway 401.

The first event of the series was held last Sunday at Trenton and the Trenton marksmen took the honours on the skeet range. This Sunday the boys are expected to have reversed since the competitors will be firing on a trap range.

Trenton's marksmen are the two styles of shooting at clay bird targets lies in the fact that the Trenton club members shoot on two birds at a time rather than the single target as required in trap shooting.

In skeet there are two separate skeet shooting stations, on either side of the firing line and shooters fire from seven different positions. Trap, on the other hand, utilizes one target launching station and shooters fire from five positions.

SEIZE PLANTATION

QUITO, Ecuador (AP)—Leftists confined in a plantation near Cuenca seized the plantation Wednesday and divided it among themselves. The plantation is owned by the city of Cuenca. Cuenca authorities said they feared that welfare recipients on two other plantations near the city might take similar action.

gressed, are I know held with deep sincerity. They can be dispelled only by thought and discussion."

The spirit among Conservatives in Great Britain should help. The Six was reflected in the fact that 40 resolutions were placed before the conference on the map, and they ranged from almost complete opposition to all-out support.

The majority of the resolutions took the middle-of-the-road line, however, insisting on the protection of Commonwealth and British agricultural interests as prerequisites of British membership.

The main debate was based on a motion stating that Britain should lose no time in negotiating a form of closer associa- tion with the European countries, however, insisting on the protection of Commonwealth and British agricultural interests as prerequisites of British membership.

The main debate was based on a motion stating that Britain should lose no time in negotiating a form of closer associa- tion with the European countries, however, insisting on the protection of Commonwealth and British agricultural interests as prerequisites of British membership.

DEBATE IMMIGRATION

The conference opened Wednesday with important debates on foreign and colonial affairs and the problem of Commonwealth immigration into Britain.

Foreign Secretary Earl Home, discussing the Berlin crisis, said the U.S. is negotiating with Russia to keep Western access to West Berlin open. He said the West can could say that it would not end in the ultimate disaster of nuclear war.

He said this was impressed upon Soviet Premier Nikolai Andrei Gromyko during talks in London Tuesday with Prime Minister Harold Macmillan.

In debate on colonial affairs, Sir Edward Boyle, M.P., and Sir Iain Macleod said British stood on a record of having freed 600,000,000 people in the last period has placed 100,000,000 in freedom.

Only about 100 persons voted against the conference resolution asking the government to take action quickly on the problem of unrestricted immigration into Britain from Commonwealth countries.

Home Secretary R. A. Butler said that no restrictions would be made on the basis of race—but indicated that the government may seek legislation to deal with schedules.

Your United Appeal

There have been two plans instituted to accommodate citizens who may wish to contribute to the United Appeal but would prefer that their contribution be spread over a period of time.

One is the payroll giving plan, which has found favor in an increasing number of local enterprises during the past several years. Under this plan of "Giving the United Way" employees of firms to use what they feel their fair share may be through a regular deduction from their payroll cheques or envelopes.

Another system, the pay day collection, is the target known to the above for places where it might be difficult to install the payroll giving plan. Instead collections are made, centering largely around employer, on a regular basis of easy instalments.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — Renewed speculative action and a handful of new highs in seasoned industrials highlighted moderate morning trading today.

Lake Dufault the Quebec-based Norbec field copper prospect, dropped 15 cents to 37.00 in profit-taking after heavy two-day's meteoric rise following the issuance of an assay report which showed 1.06 per cent copper in the 1,893 to 1,768-foot level. Volume was 81,855 shares and at one point sold at 38.45.

Wiltsey-Coughlan, which birddogged Dufault Wednesday in the hope of a like discovery nearby would contain copper, today traded 21,600 shares and was unchanged at 25½ cents.

Industrial action featured new highs in Canada Wirebounding and Price Brothers among papers, and Dominion Stores in foods. Investors Syndicate A also hit a top and trading in all five was moderately heavy.

On index, industrials rose .61 to 94, base metals 1.17 to 202.95 and western oils .79 to 98.07. Golds fell .06 to 87.81 and the 11 m. volume was 372,000 shares compared with 512,000 at the same time Wednesday.

Gold mining was light with Kerr-Addison up five cents.

Rumors that a second drill hole on Dufault property had shown more favorable results than the first, helped push the stock up $1.50 to $7.50 on a volume of 233,425 shares. The new hole was bored 100 feet to the west of the first drilling, which showed an average of 1.06 per cent copper.

Wiltsey-Coughlan, which has been overshadowed by that of Dufault, rode the prospect's coat-tails and gained 6 cents to 25 on a volume of more than 644,000 shares.

In the industrial market, though overshadowed by speculative interests, advanced steadily in early trading. Gains in the forest products, papers, utilities and merchandising groups were typical for the general upward swing, with widespread fractional gains throughout the list.

Power Corporation rose 1½ to post the largest individual rise among blue chips. In papers, International and Price Brothers were conspicuous leaders.

Other leaders, industrials rose 1.20 to 600.33, golds .26 to 87.97, western oils .79 to 301.13 and wrestled with the .25 to 97.26. Volume was 4,720,000 shares compared with 2,720,000 Tuesday.

Among senior base metals, Noranda, Hudson Bay and Consolidated Mining and Smelting all rose as much as 75 cents.

Golds trading was fairly brisk light with Hollinger and Giant Yellowknife unchanged at 41¼ respectively and western oil trading was weak.

"LABATT'S APPOINTMENTS

(E. J. Sharkey)

(R. R. Sim)

Mr. J. W. Murray, Director of Marketin, Ontario Division, John Labatt Limited, announces the appointment of Mr. R. R. Sim as Sales Manager, Western Region, with offices in Hamilton. He will be succeeded in Ottawa by Mr. E. J. Sharkey who assumes the post of Sales Manager, Eastern Region, with headquarters in Ottawa. Mr. Sharkey brings a wide background in the brewing industry with him to his new position. Appointed Sales Supervisor of Labatt's British Columbia Division in 1952, he has been with the Company's B.C. organization since its inception. Prior to joining John Labatt Limited, Mr. Sharkey played for the British Columbia Lions football club team, and was twice named a member of the Canadian All-Star football team. Prior to taking up residence in Canada, Mr. Sharkey served in sales and promotional capacities with major U.S. breweries on the American east and west coasts. Educated at Duke University, he was a well-known member of the Cleveland Browns, several times champions of the National Football League.

Board Finally Surrenders, Will Omit Swimming Pool From School Addition Plans

TRENTON — In spite of a Herculean effort to find some way of financing a swimming pool for the proposed technical addition to Trenton High School, members of the Trenton Board of Education were finally forced to admit that it was impossible to do this, and at last night's meeting agreed to eliminate the pool from the proposed addition.

Board members were told that town council, adverse to the inclusion of the pool, would be obliged to give one mill only (around $13,500) per year towards such a project.

Past Tripp said that since a majority had been a board decision to build the pool, the board should "go it alone".

MacMillan and His Successor

No realist believes that, in a material sense, any man is truly the captain of his fate.

Circumstances, friends and foes all play a role, particularly in the struggle for the top of the pyramid in politics.

It is, of course, well known how Prime Minister Harold Macmillan came to be chosen to succeed Sir Anthony Eden. The Queen consulted Sir Winston Churchill and he recommended Macmillan, rather than R. A. Butler, considered by many to be Eden's heir-apparent.

Butler, in all probability, would never now attain the premiership, no matter what his old rival and present leader might do. Therefore, it would probably be wrong to regard the major cabinet shuffle which Macmillan announced Monday as a deliberate move to demote Butler, although it certainly had that effect. More likely, if Macmillan was, indeed, intent on setting the stage for his eventual successor, he was concerned with the fortunes of Iain Macleod. Macleod was leader in the House of Commons and as chairman of the Conservative party, but it is by no means certain that this enhances his prospects. He may be brought along too soon, giving time for some other bright young man to replace him as the favorite to fill Macmillan's shoes when he eventually relinquishes the position of Prime Minister. And this could, conceivably, have been Macmillan's aim.

Macleod has made his reputation largely in the colonial office, which he now relinquishes to Reginald Maudling, another of the young guard with high ambition. Off-hand, it would seem that Maudling was being given the task of following a very tough rival, who has established a record which will be hard to beat. In a mere two years, Macleod had arranged for independence for colonies populated by 45,000,000 people. But not all Conservatives are pleased by this achievement, which some regard as the dissolution of what remains of the British Empire. Of course, we cannot judge the effects of the change in colonial secretaries until some time has passed, but it could be that the switch was made to appease the pro-Lord Incles of empire. Even if this were not so, Macleod is now removed from the scene of his triumphs. If Maulding continues his predecessor's policies, he will share in the credit with those who approve. By the same token, though, he will also be available to take part of the blame from those whose views differ with this policy-line. It is also difficult to guess whether, if the reason for the shuffle was the succession to the post of prime minister, Macleod is being helped or hindered.

Not So Simple

Hon. Alvin Hamilton, Federal Minister of Agriculture, declared at the opening ceremonies of the International Plowing Match that Canada will vigorously push her proposal for the establishment of a world food bank. This announcement should win the approval of all Canadians.

We hope, though, that the effect of the adoption of such a policy will not be over-estimated. Mr. Hamilton was unrealistically optimistic when he said that the efficiency of Canada's modern agricultural industry can keep production ahead of the world's needs for food. It so happened that a day or two before Mr. Hamilton's address we had clipped from the Vancouver Sun, for reproduction on this page, an editorial bearing on this subject. "The entire North American food surplus distributed among the undernourished people of the world today would give them the equivalent of two more cups of rice every 17 days," said the Sun. This hardly suggests that the objective which Mr. Hamilton has in mind, "to see that all - - are fed," will be easily achieved, even if we make the most of our surpluses. That, though, far from being any reason why a world food bank should not be established, merely adds to the urgency of taking such action. It is nothing short of criminal to let food rot, if there is any possible way in which it can be placed in the hands of the hungry people of the world.

Finds Americans Worried

By D. W. BROGAN in the Manchester Guardian

If the American man and woman are not worried enough about the H-bomb, he and she are worried about a great many other things. I have made four visits to the United States in the last 24 months, and each time I have met, half the states, and in nearly all important regions and it seems to me that I have noticed a steady deterioration in American self-confidence and trust in the "American way of life."

Moving around and talking to small and medium business men, I was astonished to learn of the degree of defeat with which they took the news that the heads of the great electrical engineering companies had conspired for private gain, my innocence, I had assumed that everybody knew that to how big business does big business. But to the small business it is big. I had, of course, been presented with a great deal of shiny literature extolling the virtues of small intellectual standards of business and conveying that big business executives were in it for public good and not for private benefit, but I took all this no more seriously than the citizens of Erewhon took the "musical banks." But to the small business men took it seriously and are sore, whether at being let down by their leaders or debarred by their size from being effective a d m i n i s t r a t o r s, I could not quite decide.

Then the affairs of the third biggest motor manufacturer, Chrysler, have been the subject of a great deal of unkind comment in Detroit and outside of it; and the collapse of the eastern railway system, which no doubt had its inevitable causes, is in part imputed to incompetent and selfish management.

Perhaps more serious than the discontent of the small business man is the discontent of the American housewife. She has got over her first enthusiasms for the supermarkets. She is beginning to realize that why it is almost impossible to discover how much she is paying, for the ingeniously packaged goods she buys and is beginning to suspect that serious price rises are being concealed by a bisection "lower-layer" in size in "large" is le- fact the smallest size. She is also irritated by the difficulties of choice offered by modern packaging which not only conceals price weight, but almost baffles the would-be customer's attempts to get at the goods which they are.

Then the indefatigable Senator Kefauver is probing into the business methods of the pharmaceutical industry. The price and variety of drugs is one of the headaches of the average American family. The vigilant American Medical Association has established itself in the public mind with the drug industry and, if not quite the equivalent of Mr. Wolfe's teamsters, the AMA is much less considered respected than its heads seem to think.

The American people is not in a revolutionary mood at the moment, and is not, I fear, very pleased with what it sees. Go I, they have a good deal of my time in recent months observing up on the platform friends telling them that it has been worse, a sentiment which they do not, are sheepishly glad to agree. It could be worse, but it could be much better, and it is a little difficult at the moment to see where the improvement is to come from.

Old Comedies No Classics

St. Louis Post - Dispatch

The classicizing of Mack Sennett at the Venice Film Festival is one of the odder items involved in the manufacture of legend.

Mr. Sennett was a pioneer producer of slapstick movie comedies, many of which went along with Pathe News to supplement the feature on the standard bill of screenfare.

He gave the world the pie and pie in the face, the Keystone Kops (a madly mobile crew) on the run, the bathing beauty and Mack Sennett bathing beauties — a monumental source for sculpturing in meringue than in marble.

His discoveries were more memorable than his products: Harold Lloyd, Charlie Chrisson, Wallace Beery and Marie Dressler among them.

In his work in his talents lay in the direction of low comedy and high hilarity.

Jim Tully, the tramp poet, once wrote of him that he had, "like most artists, had a great sense of the ridiculous than of humor."

Perhaps it was because of this that the grand passion of his life was for the most fantastic of discoveries, Mabel Normand, whose comic genius has resided in being able to look ridiculous and sexy at the same time—something like Sophia Loren, only more so.

To a lesser degree the same was true of another Sennett discovery, Louise Fazenda.

The Mack Sennett comedies, if they could be considered classics in the bowling alley classics of vulgarity, exploiting the lowest common denominator of audience taste.

And that, children, is how classics are born — sometimes.

Let it be hoped, nevertheless, that your grandchildren may be treated, half a century or so hence, to a Sennett festival, rehashing, in some one of the world's great cities, of that pioneer old mid-twentieth-century classic, Elvis Presley.

Keep Fish In Cold Water

Fisheries Trade News

Refrigerated sea water equipment for preservation and storage of fish at sea is proving more and more useful, particularly in vessels which range the waters of the Pacific ports, such as those which go to the Bering Sea. The British Columbia skippers have for some time benefitted from the conditioning equipment and improvements in this fish-holding practice developed by staff of the Vancouver Technological Station of the Fisheries Research Board of Canada.

Two large British Columbia packing vessels landed over 400,000 pounds of halibut from their refrigerated sea-water installations in 1960. During the year, also the Board's technicians provided advice on refrigerated sea water systems in seven trailer, which utilizes hydraulic drive for refrigerated sea-water equipment and a very large salmon packer, which can accommodate about 600,000 pounds of fish in six tanks.

Recently members of the staff of the Vancouver station have been holding conferences with fishermen on the brine freezing of fish on larger halibut vessels, an idea which has received favorable reaction from many skippers. A pilot model brine freezer has now been set up and is in operation at the station.

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

THE WONDERFUL AGE

People sometimes bemoan the fact that there are no frontiers to challenge the courage and resourcefulness of youth today.

Those who hold this point of view are pathetically mistaken. Humanity has not yet conducted as many frontiers as it does today. One hundred years ago the frontiers were geographical. To-day they are scientific, commercial, cultural and spiritual. While the modern scientists know is probably insignificant compared with what their descendents will know one hundred years hence. Manufacturers, by and large, and merchants are constantly finding new and better ways to produce and distribute goods. In the field of scholarship we are expanding our knowledge to such an extent that newspapers frequently consider discoveries along this line as worthy of headlines.

Modern youth has nothing to be discouraged about. If he has the ability and the will he can snap out of such a mood quickly. The opportunities presented to youth in a day by industry and government are greater than anything the human race has known before. Frontiers are not being pushed out today by people who are afraid of strange regions. Instead they are being explored by men who work diligently in laboratories, by businessmen who build up corporations, by scholars who love nothing so much as to spend their time in dusty archives.

We live in the most thrilling day humanity has experienced in its history. It is breath-taking glorious. Wonders? Plenty of them.

Impossible to Say That Marriage of Cousins Risky

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

"Dear Dr. Molner: Recently you wrote a column concerning the marriage of first cousins.

"At that time I had no problem, but since then my daughter and my cousin's son have fallen in love and want to get married. Could you give me your advice on this?

"They are sort of 'doubled,' as the boy's grandfather and my mother are sister and brother; and the boy's grandmother and my father are half-sister and half-brother.

"Is there any danger of their children having deformities? Please give me a straight-forward answer. — Mrs. A. W. B."

I shall give you the plainest answer I can. It will not be a yes-or-no answer because that is impossible.

Every child possesses a mixture of characteristics — some from the mother, some from the father. Some characteristics skip generations, so grandparents are important, too.

These characteristics are transmitted by genes — tiny but powerful "chemical patterns," which are dominant, recessive and recessive genes. The dominant genes tend to overpower others. The recessive genes tend not to reproduce themselves unless a "like" gene is present in the other parent.

Some knowledge of Nature's way of protecting its creatures. If a fault in the body comes from a dominant gene, it is almost sure dominant gene appears on both sides of the family, the fault is apparent. Instead of the tendency is for that branch of the family to die out — victim of this reinforced fault.

But with recessive genes, where the dominant faults, the fault — rather than the family tends to die out. Understand that is, the fault is present on both sides, in which case the recessive gene tends to reproduce.

I have in mind the case of a couple (cousins) who both had an eye defect. They could see, but their eyes were faulty, and the fault was the same in both of them.

Their sons, whom I had occasion to see, are virtually blind. The fault, in other words, reinforced itself in the children.

It is true that certain strong qualities, as weak as weaknesses, may be reinforced. But this is a genetic hit-or-miss performance or in-breeding says the sturdiness of children.

Nobody can say that such marriage will be disastrous to any children it produces, but we can always say that it MAY be.

In some states marriages of first cousins is prohibited by law; in other states there is no mandate law against it, but the persistent laws of Nature still prevail.

I can see no better solution than to let the young people, proceed-ure

Holy Rosary CWL Sponsors Delightful Autumn Tea, Bazaar

With beautiful summer weather prevailing, Belleville ladies turned out in large numbers to attend the Holy Rosary Catholic Women's League autumn tea and bazaar held yesterday afternoon, in the Knights of Columbus Hall, Front Street, which was charmingly conveyed by convener Mrs. W. Smith and Mrs. F. McGrath, co-convener.

The hall was appropriately decorated in keeping with the autumn and harvest echo of yellow and brown, even to the numerous side tables where each was covered with snow-white cloths and decorated with brown and yellow fluted streamers.

ATTRACTIVE TEA ROOM

An arbor with artistically arranged branches of gold sprayed sumach and poplar branches was located at the entrance to the tea room where Mrs. P. Shillaw graciously greeted the guests. The focal point of interest was the long tea table which was most attractively appointed with its pastel yellow linen cloth, centred with an artistic arrangement of fruit in a large stemmed crystal fruit bowl set on a group of golden doilies. Flanking this were many yellow and autumn brown candles, resting from lacy golden collars in crystal candelabra. Plates of appetizing celery and carrot sticks; also amethysts adorned with wind-blown autumn leaves, added to this lovely setting.

Each little guest table was covered with white, embroidered luncheon cloth, centred by crystal goblets overflowing with grapes and nuts, with golden doilies at the base of each. Those serving dainty sandwiches and assorted tiny cakes, tarts and squares were: Mrs. D. Adams; Mrs. C. Doyle; Mrs. J. Hay; Mrs. M. Boyd; Mrs. R. Ingerstine; Mrs. R. McQuaid; Mrs. L. Meagher; Mrs. S. Haley; Mrs. H. Lyons; Mrs. G. Bennett; Mrs. F. Goggin and Mrs. C. Doyle.

MANY SALES TABLES

Above the hall in semi-circular fashion were arranged the various sales booths and upon entering the hall, and to the left, was the candy booth, with an abundant supply of mouth-watering goodies including divinity fudge of all creams; light and dark fudge; fruit drops and peanut brittle, all arranged in various sized boxes. Also here, was a tray of tatty apples having as a border, tubes of tiny beads-like, colored candles, topped with bright bow windmills. Mrs. J. Eilard, Mrs. A. Bissette and Mrs. E. Fox were in charge of this lovely assortment.

Next in this was the novelty table in charge of Mrs. A. Hawkbridden and Mrs. L. Hamilton, where there was a bountiful supply of varied items, some of which were: numerous throw cushions in many shapes and colors; plastic containers of bath salts; hand-crocheted and plastic doilies and dresser scarves; Christmas seals; pot holders and oven mitts; miniature driftwood centrepieces containing pastel-colored spring flowers; novelty pin cushions; clear plastic boxes of assorted buttons; covered coat hangers; candy dishes, as well as Japan rubber floral arrangements.

DELICIOUS HOMECOOKING

The homecooking, as usual, was rich with a generous supply of cakes, square and layer with delectable frosted toppings; cash meal, dale, peanut butter and other assorted cookies; rich brinks, chocolate and lemon squares; multi-colored icing and nut-topped cup cakes; muffins, pecan buns and homemade bread. Dividing this delicious array of goodies was a table displaying pumpkins, squash, tomatoes and many jars of homemade relishes, pickles, jams and jellies.

The dolls' clothing table, in charge of Mrs. D. Eves and Mrs. J. Doran, was a sight to behold, especially for that little girl in the family, with everything imaginable in the line of dolls' clothing, some having complete wardrobes and many other individual wearing apparel items such as fussy little dresses in all styles and materials; pyjamas, housecoats, slips, gowns, tiny dolls' pillows, as well as numerous other accessories; also there were many stuffed animals and wool rag dolls.

COLORFUL APRONS

The apron booth was filled with a lovely and varied assortment of colorful aprons, all in pretty floral prints, striped and plaid gingham and broadcloth materials, made either in the bib-apron style or in the all over-all design. A mother and daughter set, with a pale pink design was most eye-catching and appropriate, as well as the newly popular reversible; plain on one side with a print design on the reverse. Others were in specially material for that "special occasion." Mrs. F. Bedard and Mrs. E. Reed convened this fine display.

At the sewing and knitting table there was a lovely array of hand knitted articles and fancy home-sewing, some of which were: knee length anklets in many colors and patterns; children's knitted toques and helmets, babies' knitted bootties sets and mittens, little girls' petti and slumber slips and luncheon cloths.

In the line of millinery there were two wool made ladies' hats in a light weight fabric in colors of deep rose and royal blue.

Another table was filled with religious articles including: pearl rosaries and Crucifixes; Mills shrines and statues of Saints; cut-work gift frames of the Saints; Prayer Books; Christmas cards; Prayer cups; and a Nativity scene. These were in charge of Mrs. P. Schrieder and Mrs. F. Brennan.

There was also a fish pond on the platform which was well patronized by the young fry who were always successful in getting their "catch." This was conveyed by Mrs. J. Snider and Mrs. N. Guay.

Those convening in the kitchen were: Mrs. D. Windsor; Mrs. E. Schrieder; Mrs. J. Harvey and Mrs. C. Bruce assisted by Mrs. V. Baker who presided at the tea table.

EVENING ACTIVITIES

The evening portion of the bazaar concluded with a bingo game in charge of Mr. J. Callaghan and Mr. J. Fagan; also a penny game in charge of Mr. A. Price and Mr. W. Smith, with Mr. F. McDuff at the door. Refreshments at the lunch bar included home made pies, strawberry shortcake, coffee and soft drinks, bringing to a close a most delightfully successful event.

PRIZE WINNERS

The winners of the various prizes were as follows: door prize; apples — Mrs. J. Eilard; cookies — Mrs. H. Eilard; cushion — Mrs. H. Whalen; fruit — Mrs. L. Guest; draw on pillow slips — Mrs. L. Hamilton; chesterfield set — Mrs. J. Beaton; stuffed dog — Miss Janice Chisholm; hat — Mrs. Ethel O'Connor; cash awards, $25. — Betty Bagley, Hollower; $15. — Theresa Chisholm, Belleville, and for $10. — Fred Brandt, Stirling.

residence. The federal budget will be partially used for purchase of properties on the east side of the drive and for restoration of buildings by Parks Commissioner at the time of Confederation.

Among notable buildings on Sussex Drive are the prime minister's residence; Rideau Chalet, the former home of Sir John A. Macdonald and now of the British high commissioner; Ottawa's modern city hall; and the National Research Council.

Federal aid to local communities for centennial projects, the meeting decided, will not exceed 51 per cent of the provincial aid in the province concerned, or one - third of the total cost. Grants would be made only for projects of a "lasting" nature such as buildings, parks, concert halls and the writing of historical books.

The grants would be made to the province, which would pass them on to the municipality. Before federal aid was given, the province and municipal would also be required to assist the centennial project.

Africa.

Pointing to strife and turmoil in much of the continent, Louw said:

"We firmly believe that the course upon which we have embarked in South Africa will ultimately solve the problem of relations between white and non-white races in our country."

He criticized operations of the UN's Congo force and said his country would not contribute to it financially.

His country's white population has lived in the country as long as the Negroes, Louw argued.

They would not return to their country of natural origin any more than could "the Roosevelts, the Eisenhowers, the Dulleshers . . ." This reference in his government speech gave the spelling of Canadian Prime Minister Diefenbaker's name and the colours in the old Union Jack.

Liberal Cooper then proposed a motion calling for Louw's speech to be erased from the General Assembly record. He withdrew this and later proposed the censure motion.

Arnold Peterson, Conservative of the speech. Louw said it would spell a double standard. He added a speech by Diefenbaker last year in which the Canadian premier argued against using a double standard in connection with Communist and Afro-Asia imperialism.

Fielding against the censure motion, Louw said it was out of order and should be put before the assembly's special political committee.

Louw maintained the South African racial policies were necessary. Canada, the United States and South American countries all had a past history of colonization.

Would the dominant populations there be willing to hand over control to Indians or Negroes if their position were similar to South Africa's? he asked.

Chapter 55 OES Sponsors Successful Autumn Tea

Cloudless blue skies, shafts of golden sunshine streaming through reddening maples, and lawns and sidewalks carpeted by mosaics of green, scarlet, yellow and bronze leaves provided a harbinger of success for the autumn tea and bazaar held by the Adoniram Chapter, yesterday afternoon, under the auspices of the Order of the Eastern Star, Chapter 55.

The spacious auditorium of the Orange Lodge was in keeping with the season. Lovely sprays of colored leaves, interspersed with autumn flowers and seedpods of wild flowers, accented the windows; while gold and golden French marigolds, white-centered daisies, pink and white carnations, formed a pleasing entrance to the tearoom, with its wax-covered and long, damask-covered tea table. Centering this was a unique arrangement of fruits, vegetables, blue grapes, red apples, apples covered with colored potatoes; yellow ornamental squash individual green squashes, gave depth and color; orange-toned gourds. Rising from this were tall graduated candles in bronze, green and orange, whose flickering flames cast a soft glow over the entire table.

Centering the room were two square tables, with white cloths and tiny centres of baby 'mums of yellow bronze, white and pink, with green and green cedar, and single spray of variegated grain, were placed at each table, which also adorned the room.

RECEIVING

Graciously welcoming the throughout guests into this happy camaraderie was Mrs. L. Brickmen, Worthy Matron of the Chapter, who directed them on to the receivers of door tickets, Mrs. E. Murphy; Mrs. M. Drummond; and Mrs. S. Mackgan; and of the tea room: Mesdames, E. Adams, P. M. Elliott; P.M.; and B. Harris.

After depositing their tickets the patrons were free to circulate at will and browse among the several attractive booths, each one gaily adorned with emblems of the fall season, and displaying articles, many of which were silent reminders that the Yuletide was just around the next corner.

The apron table, convened by Mrs. Pearl Kerr, and Mrs. M. Payne, assisted by Mesdames J. Bell; R. Charlton; D. Duror; J. Hall; E. Holdinger; C. Frith; C. Ivamides; M. Vivian; L. McGee; E. Thorne; R. Sims, and C. Elliott, had for sale aprons of many kinds. One blue reversible, which would belong to the holder of the lucky ticket; others were in pink with blue lace; green and white with stripes; red and white checkerboard; one with three darling kittens; others in deep blue with Paisley pockets and ties, and dotted.

DAINTY CANDIES

The candy booth, which was decorated with lovely sprays of maple leaves and a cute grey squirrel eating a peanut, had a corresponding profusion of sugared popcorn balls, boxes of fudge and other creams, all prettily packaged in colorful cups, and other containers. A large box of assorted candies would be won on the lucky ticket. Those convening were Mrs. M. Gardner, assisted by Mesdames M. Black, M. Barlow, D. Jones, B. Lough, C. Brimacombe, D. Walker, E. Bailey, C. Elliott, M. LaRue and M. Reynolds.

The "Step and Step" booth, convened by Mrs. W. Tomlinson and Miss M. Carmichael, assisted by Mesdames R. Carnes, F. Moon, D. McGlashon, M. Elliott, L. Adams, D. Ellis, F. Reid, W. Fryer and Miss E. Elliott, displayed a miscellaneous collection of articles: knitting bags; African violets, tea cloth and serviettes; lace-edged bath towels, juice glasses, lovely sets in white knitted wool for babies, nylon pear-trimmed gloves in shades of pale blue, pink and others; bath salts, fancy handkerchiefs, match holders, souvenir coffee spoons, tiny white Bibles and men's and children's hats.

FINE COOKING

At least, the homecooking table, which was centred by a bowl of marigolds and valance adorned with sprays of golden flowers and leaves of maple, interspersed with smiling Hallowe'en pumpkin faces, drew the lovers of fine cooking with its delicious apple, orange, delicious pies, taffy tarts, upside-down cake, custard pies, cookies and doughnuts, white loaf cakes, pickled gherkins, and many other good things. Those in charge were Mrs. I. Clapp, convener, and Mrs. S. Pigden, assistant; assisting by Mesdames E. M. Pinder, E. Sandercock, M. Mills, L. Good, O. Adams, M. Little, A. McGee, E. Rohd, B. Simpson, C. Scott, M. Scott, Mrs. M. Wrenshall, A. Scott, M. G. Adams and J. Lumsden.

Those who presided at the tea table included the past district deputy grand matrons, Mesdames E. Broad of Madoc, E. Hadley of Trenton, H. Cross of Stirling, E. Dobbs of Minerva 138, K. MacFarlane of Napanee, B. Wonnscott of Minerva 138.

The tea-room hostesses were Mesdames M. Smith, P.M., I. Brown P.M., D. McGlashon P.M., and W. Tomlinson, and the tea room convener, Mrs. F. LaRue, with Mrs. R. Lundy as accompanist. Those serving were Mesdames R. Skinner, G. Jeffrey, Miss J. Stephenson, Mesdames F. Oliphant, S. Dockrill, J. Cavers, M. Freeborn, D. Ellis, L. Caughs, B. Locke, I. Jones, A. Fisher, J. Holway, J. Warren, M. Preston, B. Shaw, W. Fryer, W. Clark, R. Carson and J. Clapp.

Replenishing: Mesdames, M. Shaw, P.M.; E. Morden, P.M.; A. McMullen, P.M.; P. Barlow, P.M.; M. Pitt, P.M.; B. Clarke, P.M.; I. McMartin, and M. Cross.

The refreshment convener was Mrs. H. Darvell, with Mrs. Blackmore, assisting as co-convener, assisted by Mrs. R. Deulke; Mrs. C. Wright; Mrs. M. Niblock, and Mrs. Z. McGee.

ADDITIONAL ATTRACTION

Among the additional drawing cards was the grocery baskets and hamper under the convenorship of Mrs. Eileen Martin, assisted by Mesdames, H. Hailey; O. Campbell; G. MacFarlane, C. McLean, and F. House. This was prettily decorated with the wild daisies and flitting maple leaves, but outstanding pieces of interest were the well-filled hampers and six-quart baskets with practically every day needs in a well-stocked kitchen pantry. The other was a beautiful wool sweater, knitted in the chartreuse green, in charge of Mrs. W. Fryer, and Mrs Mary Carmichael.

Winners of the various specials were: grocery hamper, Mrs. J. R. Nicol; baskets, Mrs. Y. Bushell; Mrs. H. Wright; Mrs. Pearl Johnston, Associate Matron.

1st Cannifton Cubs, Scouts M.A. Officers

The Mother's Auxiliary of 1st Cannifton Cub and Scouts met in the Cannifton Council Sunday School room last Monday. In lieu of the annual fall euchre, it was decided that each mother donate one dollar at the November meeting.

As Jimmie Stewart, a Scout, has taken up residence in London, Mrs. Mary Stewart and Mrs. Freeman were appointed to purchase a suitable gift to show appreciation for his work with the Cubs and Scouts.

1961-3 OFFICERS

The 1961-62 officers are as follows: President — Mrs. F. Furmidge; vice-president — Mrs. F. Hodgins; treasurer — Mrs. R. Hanna; secretary — Mrs. Brownson; sunshine convener — Mrs. F. Hodgins; telephone committee — Mrs. Sullivan, Mrs. Brownlee, and Mrs. McMurter; press reporter — Mrs. G. Shotsy; lunch conveners — Mrs. S. Kerr and Mrs. R. Sanderson; sewing convener — Mrs. R. Ritz.

Mr. R. Davidson, and Miss J. Moon. The patch reversible apron, by Mrs. M. Coyle; the wool sweater by Mrs. Scott, and the box of candy by Mrs. W. Clapp.

A most delightful tea and bazaar convened by Mrs. Phyllis Berry, past matron, and Mrs. Pearl Johnston, Associate Matron.

ENGAGEMENT NOTICE

Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Robb, Belleville, announce the engagement of their only daughter, Barbara Ann Robb, to Sub-Lieutenant Ralph Leonard Sykes, Royal Canadian Navy, elder son of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Sykes, Calgary, Alberta. Marriage is to take place in Bridge Street United Church, Saturday, November 11, at 4.30 p.m.

WOMEN OF THE MOOSE

Belleville Chapter 486, with Sr. Regent, Nell Shandrow, presiding at the recent meeting and the Recorder, Rusy Slapply taking over the banner, was well attended.

After the usual discussion period, the chaplain, Evelyn Rollins, offered the closing Prayer.

The draw for the evening was won by Lena Copeland.

The Co-Workers later assembled tables for "Penny Bingo" after which refreshments were served and a social half hour enjoyed.

A euchre party was held at Jr. Grad, Bannion, Prindle's home, with the prizes going to: Ladies — Irene Wheeler, Nell Shandrow; consolation — Nellie Burd; lone hands — Mrs. Coon; men: Olive Van Norman; — Mabel Green; consolation — Mrs. Doyle; lone hands — Mrs. Whitehead; the playing Mrs. ——.

'Lines on Life'

By Dr. Stuart E. Rosenberg

How can you take your own measure to determine your spiritual height?

How "tall" are you in the light of your inner light?

Here are three basic questions you should try to answer:

1. Do you accept life as being full of tensions, or are you seeking final answers to every problem?

2. Are you constantly tormented by guilt feelings for your failure? Or do you recognize that all men are equal in their capacity to err, and thus try to improve your ways instead of destroying yourself by seeking perfection?

3. Do you become unhappy with yourself because you are unable to perform every task with verve and authority? Or are you prepared to be reconciled to the fact that no man can hope to achieve everything in just one lifetime.

Each of these questions has two sides to its story," they are debatable and to some extent, can be answered either affirmatively or negatively. But the trouble with immature people is the fact that because of living, they appear quite willing to argue. Yet words are never healthful substitutes for life and a victory in verbal fencing does not insure a wholesome approach to reality. Some people are wise enough not to argue too much; they live instead.

Know this: If you are one who requires a full answer to the unanswerable — you will go through life trying to catch a rainbow, but you can only view the rainbow from afar; you never touch it. So with many of life's thorniest questions. Answers to these are often elusive and beyond our grasp; we can only have a remote intimation if them. Rather, if you would grow up to learn to live with your questions, instead of doing up, living for the answers which never come.

The creative man is powered by high tension wires which pulse through and through him. Without the tension born of the unanswered question, we would be so complacent as to "resemble pasture beasts. If this kind "of complacency is what some people mean when they speak of "peace of mind," they are yet blindergarters seeking only sweets and fruits — with all problems solved. But the search for perfection is not a triumph of personality — it is tragedy, a snare and a delusion. For what looks like a panacea ,turns out to be a pitfall.

We need to learn how to live faithfully, together with our doubts; to go on with the job even though we will not be here to complete it; to know the difference between honest error and wilful guilt. When we learn how to acknowledge these perspectives on life, we grow up spiritually and leave our childish desires for bobbed ...

Pity, then, many children who are being "raised" by parents who are, themselves, not much older spiritually. These "adults" seem to be afflicted with a creeping mental paralysis which prevents them from achieving the wisdom of age. Instead of becoming more toleranted and worldly as they grow older, they often turn into guilt ridden, self - centred people. The children are the "growing pains" of these elders who have never really grown up.

Maturity has a lesson to teach: Man never reaches the mountain tops of life; he often dies in the valley. But it also teaches: although we never achieve the summit, if we do not turn our backs from a view of the untouchable, unreachable peaks, our children after us may yet ascend a step higher into the sun.

2nd Boy Scout Aux. Enjoys Ottawa Trip

President, Mrs. H. Rainbird, welcomed the mothers and congratulated them on the success of the past year.

The usual business meeting followed. The annual meeting of the Boy Scout Auxiliaries was announced to be held in Holloway St. United Church. All members were urged to be present. The District Council annual meeting will be held October 20th in the Kiwanis Centre. An invitation has been extended to 2nd Auxiliary to attend a coffee party given by 1st St. Thomas' Church Auxiliary this week.

The group committee, of 2nd announced a "going-up" evening on October 4th. Mothers please note.

A Queen's Scout ceremony is also being planned; the date to be announced later.

CUB BUS TRIP

Alexis gave a most interesting and humorous account of the Cub bus trip to the Third Canadian Jamboree in Ottawa. Leaving Belleville at 7.00 a.m. They had a most enjoyable journey. The first stop was seeing the wonderfully colorful ceremony of the changing of the guard at Parliament Buildings. This is something the boys will remember with their lives. Next came the guided tour through the Mint. It was quite a sight to see all the money in different denominations but unfortunately there were no 'samples'.

Lunch was held picnic style in the beautiful Rockcliffe Park. The drive to the Jamboree at Connaught Ranges was most interesting. Cubs were not allowed on the campsite until two-thirty so Cubs and leaders took the opportunity to stretch - out on the grass. Another great moment for the Cubs was the "Grand Howl" led by the Deputy Chief Scout, Mr. Nicholson.

A most intriguing story of the Eskimos by song was told by a Fiaki Commissioner from North West Territories.

The afternoon, afternoon, of trudging around assembling the various sub-camps with their interesting individual artistic touches such as the Calgary hooking hoedeo, the five flag-locks served up, or the Indian Reservation and the "bum girls (?) doing a dance.

All the Cubs also had a chance to visit the refreshment tent and to buy souvenirs. A souvenir sold very fast. Cubs bombed the bus for the return trip home. A stop at Carleton Place for supper refreshed everyone. A long sing-song lasted until arrival home at 9.30 p.m.

A special vote of 'Thanks' is extended to Alexis Kemp for giving the Cubs a memorable day.

After the meeting closed, refreshments were served by Mrs. E. R. Dafoe and Mrs. A. Wagner

Women's Activities

ST. PETER'S W.M.S.

The October meeting of St. Peter's W.M.S. was held at the home of Mrs. F. Allen, with Mrs. Bailey presiding.

A special offering was received for the Supply Fund. Mrs. Donohoe reported speaking a baby to the Cecelia Infant School at Kenora. Plans were made for the November 2nd 75th anniversary.

Mrs. Brett provided music for the devotions.

Mrs. Kilpatrick had charge of the topic, "Women of the New Testament." Mrs. Bailey read the Scripture in connection with this part of the program. Women of the New Testament were: Mary, mother of Jesus; Elizabeth, mother of John the Baptist; Anna and Martha. Women of Samaria from John 4, 7 and 43, read by Mrs. Donohue, Mary Magdalene, Lydia, Priscilla, Phoebe and Dorcas, were women of the early church.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Hallinan and Mrs. Blakely and a social hour followed.

Ont. IODE Chapt. to Meet In London

Members from I.O.D.E. Chapters throughout Ontario will convene in London, Ontario for the semi-annual meeting of the Provincial Chapter of Ontario, I.O.D.E. to be held in the Hotel London, Oct., 18th and 19th, 1961.

Mrs. W. R. Morrison, provincial president, will preside at all meetings. Mrs. Peter L. Robinson, national president, will be a guest and bring greetings from the National Chapter. Mrs. George Blake, Regent, Municipal Chapter of London, will welcome the members on behalf of the London Chapters.

Those attending will be the guests of the London Chapters when a social drive followed by tea at the Art Museum has been arranged for Wednesday evening the business meeting of a newly organized chapter will take place following the dinner at 7.15 p.m. in the Regency Room, Hotel London.

Seed of Dream Sown While Watching TV

CHICHESTER, England (CP) One night two years ago, Leslie Evershed - Martin, former mayor of this Sussex town, switched on his television set and saw Sir Tyrone Guthrie talking about the Festival Theatre he brought to fame at Stratford, Ont.

The seed of a dream was sown. This, decided the middle-aged, sandy - haired businessman, was what he wanted for his home town—an arena theatre in the heart of the rolling Sussex downs where he could stage a first-rate professional drama festival.

Today Evershed - Martin, who says modestly that he's no authority on the theatre, is watching his dream take shape in steel and concrete. By this time next year, the Chichester Festival Theatre, seating 1,400, will have completed its first 10-week season.

Since the night he saw Sir Tyrone on television, Evershed-Martin has raised from subscribers £64,000 of the total cost of £105,000. He has also been over to Stratford, Ont., to see for himself how an arena theatre operates.

Most interesting of all for a man who calls himself "an interested in the theatre," he has persuaded Sir Laurence Olivier to become Guthrie's counterpart in Chichester—the festival theatre's first director.

WEDDINGS

HODGES — GREEN

DESERONTO — On Saturday, October 7, a very pretty wedding was solemnized in Christ Church, Deseronto, when Barbara Joan Green, became the bride of Edward Harold Hodges in a double ring ceremony, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Hodges. The Rev. W. L. Simmons of Napanee, officiated.

Mr. Thomas Brant, organist, rendered the wedding music and the choir sang "O Perfect Love".

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in a floor-length gown of heavy antique ivory Chiffon with a fitted pointed bodice and rounded neckline of Alencon lace. The bouffant skirt fell in soft pleats to end in a cathedral train. Her fingertip veil of ivory silk illusion was caught to a tiara of matching Alencon lace trimmed with sequins and seed pearls, and she carried a bouquet of gardenias.

Attending the bride were: Mrs. Ruth Hodges, sister-in-law of honor, and Mrs. David Thompson and Miss Mary Hughs as bridesmaids. They were a similar gowns of banana-shade peau de soie featuring full waltz-length skirts and three-quarter length sleeves. They wore petal-shaped hats of the same shade and carried white pom-pom 'mums with gold centres.

Miss Nancy Plater, sister of the bridegroom and Miss Beth Locke, the bride's niece, were flower girls, wearing similar dresses of white organza with banana-shade sashes. Their headdresses were circlets of white 'mums and they carried miniature bouquets of white pom-pom 'mums.

Master John Locke, nephew of the bride, was ringbearer wearing a single-breasted suit of dark green corduroy. Mr. Hugh Butters was groomsman and Messrs. Murray Locke, David Brown, Jan Spencer and Robert Ward were ushers.

A reception was held later in the lawn at the home of the bride, where Mrs. Locke received the guests wearing a sheath dress of blue peau de soie with a full side panel tucked under a motif of blue Alencon lace. She wore a matching blue feather hat and a corsage of ivory roses. The bridegroom's mother also received wearing a dusty-rose lace dress matching feather hat and accessories and a corsage of pink roses.

For the wedding trip to the Adirondack mountains, the bride wore a three-piece suit of green wool with a matching hat, black patent accessories and a corsage of gardenias.

On their return, Mr. and Mrs. Plater will live at 370 Bolivar Street, Peterborough.

Out-of-town guests were present from, Collingwood, Toronto, Hamilton, London, Lake St. Peter, Picton and Peterborough.

STARRED TEACHER

CHICAGO (AP) — A 14-year-old fifth-grader was convicted Monday night of falsely stabbing a woman school teacher and sentenced to 55 years in prison. Leo Arthur Hooker was convicted of the knife slaying last April 20 of Mrs. Josephine Kent, 42, in a storeroom of Lewis-Champlin school on the South Side where he was a student.

'Glimpses Of Moscow' Given at H-S

"Russia is a country of contrasts," said Deputy Mayor Robert Temple during an address on "Moscow," heard by members of the Avondale Home and School Association at a meeting held on Tuesday evening.

Alderman Temple visited Moscow once and one-half years ago and returned with a rich store of both amusing anecdotes and "solid" information.

He said that what had most impressed him was the contrast between the many achievements of the Soviet Union in certain well-advertised areas and the appalling poverty and lack of civilized living in other parts.

"A five-lane highway leads from the airport to the city of Moscow. This highway has neither boulevards, nor sidewalks since all houses and farms are set back one to two miles from the highway. Buildings start immediately at the city limits and all these buildings are exactly alike. They are eight-storey apartment houses, with the same number of balconies, the same number of windows and all are of yellow brick. These buildings go on for miles along the main route, yet off the main tourist route, but within three minutes drive of Red Square are appalling slums. The people in this part of Moscow live in log cabins, many of which are falling apart and few of which have glass in the window space."

Deputy Mayor Temple explained that while he went to Moscow alone, rather than as a member of a touring group, in order to avoid having to go on every "guided tour," he found that he was obliged to go everywhere he was invited anyway. He was taken to see one of Moscow's big fire halls —that guarding the International Exhibition. This he felt had been built for speed rather than for quality and though the firemen put on an impressive display, they were poorly dressed.

The Soviet officials took great delight in showing their western visitor the classrooms and laboratories of the University of Moscow. These," said Alderman Temple, "were really wonderful, but they appeared to be empty half the time."

In spite of the many impressive buildings in Moscow, its delightful and huge circus and it's beautiful Bolshoi ballet, the speaker could not avoid feeling that something was "missing" when he compared Moscow with Vienna. "Russia" he said, "is a powerful country, rich in materials and human resources while Austria is poor in natural resources and by no means rich in human resources. Yet, in the Soviet Union, in March when the temperature is below zero half the women have no gloves or overshoes, while in Austria the store windows are full of well-made, but reasonably priced clothes; the streets are full of cars and the people look much happier than do those in countries under Communist control.

Mr. Temple was thanked for his amusing and informative talk, by Mrs. R. Heslip, president of the Avondale Home.

UNICEF

Mrs. A. Watson spoke briefly about the origins and purpose of UNICEF. UNICEF, which began in 1947 as an emergency fund to take care of homeless refugee children, was made into a permanent department of the UN in 1950. 105 governments now give voluntary contributions to its fund, which is swelled by the Hallowe'en and greeting card campaigns.

Around the world are 359 UNICEF representatives, to one of whom a country which needs it, may appeal for help. The country asking for help agrees to pay two-thirds of the cost of any aid while UNICEF contributes the remaining third plus its personnel and equipment necessary for the "aid" program.

Mrs. Watson made an eloquent plea for local support of UNICEF. "One cent," she said, "will buy ten glasses of milk for children in India, or protect a child in the Middle East from T.B. Through UNICEF children and their parents can work together to help to bring peace, since "less hunger" means "less strife."

Brief reports were read by Mrs. O. S. Brown, Mrs. J. M. McLean, Mrs. V. DePaul and Mrs. Wright, principal of Avondale.

Refreshments were served by Grade VII mothers.

Couple Honored On 25th Wedding Anniversary

MINTO — On a recent Saturday evening the neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Carter met at their home and tendered them a surprise party on the occasion of their 25th wedding anniversary.

The evening was spent playing cards.

Mrs. Mel Wickens read an address and Cecil and Nellie were presented with a floor lamp and scatter mat, on behalf of the neighbors. Their daughter Audrey, presented her parents with a wall mirror.

The bride and bridegroom of 25 years thanked everyone for their lovely gifts and invited all to visit them at any time. "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows" was sung and a social hour enjoyed with delicious refreshments served.

Women's Institutes

BETHEL - ZION W.I.

The September meeting of Bethel - Zion Women's Institute was held in the Community Hall with a fair attendance of members present.

The vice-president, Mrs. Clarence Ketcheson, presided and opened the meeting.

Mrs. Ralph Sills and Mrs. Roscoe Robson were nominated to attend the Training School at Shirley in November. The secretary read a letter pertaining to the short course, "Home Care of the Sick," which will be held February 27 and 28th.

Miss Marilyn Kennedy favored with two delightful solos with Mrs. Wellman at the piano.

Mrs. Taylor, of Belleville, displayed his beautiful plaques.

The meeting closed and a social half hour followed.

May Jacobsen's Green Tomato Mincemeat

By Mary Moore

More than an average number of requests have been arriving this past week asking for green tomato products. So tomorrow's column I am giving you a tried and true recipe for Green Tomato Pickle that is inexpensive and easy.

But what I have for you today is a recipe that I have been hoarding for a year for Green Tomato Mincemeat. It was sent to me by Mrs. May Jacobsen during the green tomato season last year. After I had tried it and made up some pies it was too late to give you in 1960. It is flavorful and economical. Our economy minded readers and those with large families to cook for, will welcome it for late Fall and Christmas baking.

GREEN TOMATO MINCE MEAT (Courtesy May Jacobsen):

One 11-quart basket green tomatoes. Wash well, remove any blemishes and put through food chopper. Drain off all liquid. Four boiling water over and drain again. Scald once more and drain thoroughly. Now wash, quarter and core 20 large apples. Cut away any blemishes but do not peel. Put through food chopper. Mix tomatoes and apples in very large preserving kettle. Now add 2 lbs. finely cut suet, 2 lbs. currants, 2 lbs. raisins — preferably Sultanas, 1 lb. mixed peel, 6 lbs. light brown sugar, 1 teaspoon cloves, 1 teaspoon allspice, 1 teaspoon nutmeg, 1 teaspoon salt, 2 cups white vinegar, Mix well. Bring to boil, stirring often. Reduce heat to low and simmer for 3 hours, stirring frequently to prevent sticking. Pour into sterile jars and seal. The mincemeat is now ready for use in double crust pies or tarts or cup-cups. Mrs. Jacobsen adds a P.S.: "This is the full recipe but I often make only half of it and it turns out well. This mincemeat will keep indefinitely if stored in a cool, dry place. It may be left unsealed in the refrigerator if a jar has been started.

NOTE FROM EDITOR:

To make a mince pie from the above Green Tomato Mincemeat you will need 4 cups — that is one 28-oz. jar. Line a 9" pie plate with plain pastry. Fill with 4 cups mincemeat. Cover with pastred top crust and seal and crimp edges. Bake at 425 deg. F. for about 35 minutes.

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE THOUGHTFUL HOSTESS

During the holidays, a special "pinpoint corner" for women guests is always hospitable, especially if you plan to entertain a lot during the season.

You don't have to be elaborate about it. A mirror and a good light are the most essential ingredients, but it does enhance your reception as a hostess to add a few individual touches.

A friend of ours, for instance, rolled an old revealed tea cart in front of a bedroom window to create a delightful "dressing table." On top she put an easel mirror, an antique coffee mug filled with flowers and an old-fashioned basket containing lipsticks, powder, pins etc.

Another resourceful homemaker merely mounted an oversized handpainted tray on the wall, surmounted it with a pair of dime-a-dozen framed mirror and added an old Hitchcock ladder-back chair for good measure. The result was fetching, indeed.

Even if wall space is at a premium, you can still get attractive mileage from the top of a dresser. A young apartment dweller we know picked up a square of marble at a junk shop and made that the hub of her dresser-top primping nook. Simple alabaster jars and a pair of handsome tole lamps added a decorator touch, and all on a very minimum budget.

Careful selection of accessories also gives flair to a make-shift dressing table. A china or crystal bon-bon dish, for example, makes a perfect powder box. Painted boxes are excellent for pins, strap guards, and needles and thread-and you can find a wide selection in second-hand stores. Spice jars also make good-looking containers, and so do ramekins when they're not doing duty in the kitchen.

The possibilities are many. All you need is a good eye for selection, and you can come up with an attractive nook that will mark you as a considerate hostess and make guests feel right at home.

Question — I'm planning a fairly large evening party and would like to send out informal notes as invitations. Would this be correct, or should they be engraved. Also should notes be addressed to both husband and wife? — Mrs. L. A. Chicago, Ill.

Answer — A hand-written note would be a correct invitation for the type of party you plan. It should be addressed to the wife, however, and not to Mr. and Mrs.

Question — When pinning on a corsage, should it be arranged so that the flowers point up or down? — Mrs. D. K., Chicago, Ill.

Answer — The corsage should be pinned on at any angle that's attractive. There's no rule about how the flowers should point. Nor, for that matter, is there any reason why a corsage should be worn only on the shoulder. Flowers may be pinned on the bosom, at the waist, or any place where they show to best advantage.

Motherhood Allowance Bait Being Used to Get Teachers

WELLINGTON (Reuters)—A motherhood allowance for married women who return to teaching is one of the baits being held out by the New Zealand government in its efforts to overcome a shortage of teachers.

Education Minister Williams announced in parliament that for married women teachers every three years spent bringing up a family will be regarded as equivalent to one normal salary increase up to four increases.

"Experience with growing children is of great value to a teacher, and I hope many married women will be induced to come back to teaching," Tennent says.

Another inducement is free air passage to New Zealand for up to 30 New Zealand primary school teachers now in England, on condition that they serve two years there directed and one additional year in a place of their own choice. These teachers must have performed minimum teaching obligations before leaving New Zealand.

Other moves include the appointment of additional personnel and recruiting officers, removal of restrictions on the salaries of primary school relief teachers so they will be paid equal rates with permanent teachers and appointment of teachers' aides where staffing is particularly unstable.

Women's Institute

RYLSTONE W.I.

RYLSTONE — Mrs. Percy Field entertained the Rylstone Women's Institute, at the Sunday School Room of Zion Church, Pethedick's Corners, for their October meeting on October 4th, with 13 ladies in attendance.

Mrs. Don Kerr, president opened the meeting in the usual manner. Mrs. Stanley Kerr, secretary-treasurer, read the minutes of the September meeting and gave the treasurer's report. The amount of $20 was voted for the Campbellford Memorial Hospital Auxiliary bazaar to be held in December. There was some discussion about the area convention to be held in Belleville in November.

Mrs. Aylmer Petherick gave a most interesting travelogue on her trip to the British Isles and the continent with her husband, last May.

Mrs. Gerald Barnum, convener for home economics, had charge of the balance for her splendid talk. Mrs. Petherick was presented with a china cup and saucer. Mrs. R. M. Jones gave a piano medley of old tunes, and Mrs. Elaine Anderson read, "How Foxy Can You Be".

Slips of paper were passed to the members on which they wrote suggestions for the program for "Family Night", in November.

The meeting closed and refreshments were served by the hostess assisted by Mrs. Don Stewart.

United Church YPU Holds 'Fun Frolic'

Frankford United Church Young People's Union entertained teenagers from Belaws and Zion Y.P.U. groups with a "fun frolic" last Saturday evening at Rose Lowery Hall. The girls and boys gathered about a blazing fire outside the hall and if noise is any indication, had a lot of fun, wrapping themselves around eight dozen wieners, there cases of soft drinks and an undetermined quantity of mustard and relish. This gargronomical achievement clim axed a hilarious program of fun and games in the hall.

Colleen Chase was in charge of the games and some she had picked up at Teachers' College were a riot. Judith Thompson sang, "I Found My Love in Avalon," with Karen Wickens at the piano. Anna Judd recited two numbers from her "Mail-Bag" and Bonnie Rowe, with Eleanor Beach at the piano sang "You've Got To Have Heart." Sandra Morrow and Marilyn Hall were M.C.'s and Keith Reid was official barker. The hall was beautifully decorated with flowers supplied by Roger Love.

Karen Wickens expressed appreciation on behalf of the visitors.

A business session confirmed arrangements for a number of young people to attend the United Church Young People's Conference at Almonte, Oct. 13, 14 and 15. Lyle Williams wound up the evening with a devotional period based on Matthew's account of the temptation of Jesus.

Alliance S.S. Wins Silver Cup

The Belleville Alliance Church was honored recently when at the District Prayer Conference held in Hamilton, Ontario the Rev. Sackville Palmer, pastor of the church, was presented with the silver cup to bring home to his Sunday School.

The Sunday School of the Alliance Church had attained 95 per cent in the standard grading which represented the highest percentage ever obtained among the 41 churches of the Christian and Missionary Alliance in this district. The Sunday School had shown a steady growth along with the formation of new Sunday School departments, a library, home departments, and other improvements to meet the standard requirements.

The "Youth Group" of the church was also honored in Cobourg on Thanksgiving Day when they won the prize for having the largest number in attendance at the zone rally held in the Cobourg Alliance Church. Mr. Judson Rae, president of the group, was presented with the prize.

The speaker for the afternoon session was the Rev. Harold Collins, missionary from Viet Nam and the evening speaker was the Rev. Sackville Palmer. The music which was supplied by the Belleville church consisted of trio numbers by Misses Maureen Thompson, Lenore Dixon and Linda White, lead and duet by Mr. Judson Rae and Mr. Jimmy Chumbley. Miss Ferne Millard accompanied at the piano.

VISIT LEOPOLDVILLE

LEOPOLDVILLE (Reuters)—Three U.S. senators arrived here Tuesday night for a brief visit to the Congolese capital during their tour of African countries. The three Democratic senators, Thomas Dore of Tennessee, Mrs. Maureen Neuberger of Oregon and Philip Hart of Michigan, were scheduled to have talks with Prime Minister Cyrille Adoula and attend a session of the Congolese parliament during their visit.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Harry D.—It's about time we saved some money to retire on.

Priscilla D. — Retirement is ages away. Time enough to worry.

Harry D. — I'm 50 years of age. The other day I read that the age of 40 is none too soon to begin planning for retirement. And where am I? — living up to and even beyond my last penny!

I can't seal the idea of a nest egg to my mind. It doesn't register with her that I'm getting older. My earning capacity will diminish in years to come and we have no savings at all. She spends as freely as if there were no tomorrow to think about.

She doesn't realize that my pension and likes benefits won't let us live anywhere near the way we live now. Without savings, there'll be a rude awakening.

Priscilla D. — With all the tension in the world, who says there'll be a tomorrow to worry about? I go along with the Let's live-for-today people.

We can't be serious about the future, so why not enjoy what we are sure of — the present! Let's live it up now, I say to Harry, before we lose the chance. We're liable to get killed by a piece of wind, limb and mind, so we might as well enjoy life while we can.

Whatever happens to other people in the future will happen to us. I'm not going to gloom about it this early. If I have to live out the future, I'll manage.

The Council — Priscilla's talk is reckless bravado. She's smoothing the easy platitudes of the irresponsible. She's not saying anything new or original. Admitting that tomorrow is an unknown quantity, most of us must proceed as though it's sure to arrive and we must be prepared for it. Any other course is neurotic.

Evidently Priscilla has fallen behind in her reading, while Harry's all caught up. Important voices, such as the National Council on the Aging, no longer cry in the wilderness. They reach an clearly in each day's headlines. They reached Harry with their reminder to retrench expenditures well ahead of retirement age, so as to have a cushion for emergencies.

In toting up his income of the future, Harry is probably aware of his fixed expenses of the future, as estimated by the Bureau of Lands' Statistics — a minimum of £2,600 to £3,400 a year depending upon where he'll be living on a modest but adequate level, and barring illness and other "unusual" expenses. Even if his benefits bring in this minimum, Harry dreads paring things that close.

Of course there may be post-retirement odd jobs. Still, planning ahead will give both Harry and Priscilla the choice, rather than the need, of earning more money.

It's later than you think, Priscilla. People, who plod along like you often find themselves, years later, bowing burdens to members of their family or to the community. This is the time to chart the future's way of living. It's easier and healthier to slow down gradually than to suddenly have to leap from luxury to austerity.

WATER SHIELDS REACTOR — De-ionized water in this lead-lined pool of the engineering building, McMaster University, Hamilton, serves as a radiation shield for the school's nuclear reactor. The reactor, put into operation in 1959, is used for as many as 23 different research programs serving medicine, science and engineering. Supervisor John B. McDougall (left) and operator Kenneth Marshall check fuel rods. —CP Photo

PLAYS LEADING ROLE — Making full use of its nuclear reactor, Hamilton's McMaster University is playing a leading role in the study of atomic energy for peaceful purposes. Dr. H. E. Petch, metallurgy department chairman, adjusts the neutron diffractometer used to determine the arrangements of atoms in solids. (CP Photo).

Engineering and Science Students at McMaster Will Get Broad Outlook on Times

By KEN PETTICHARD

HAMILTON (CP)—An academic program is being followed at McMaster University that it is hoped will give engineering and science students a broader outlook more suited to the times.

When McMaster's engineering school, which last spring graduated its first class, was being planned, a decision was made to keep departmental divisions as indefinite as possible. The aim was to combat what Dean of Engineering John W. Hodgins has called "engineering provincialism."

In keeping with this philosophy, all departments are housed under one roof in the $3,500,000 engineering building opened in the fall of 1958. Undergraduate classes, graduate studies and research in six engineering fields proceed in the three-storey building.

"This makes it possible for our students and staff to become fully familiar with the activities of their colleagues in other departments," said Dean Hodgins in an interview.

McMaster now provides courses in chemical, civil, electrical, mechanical and metallurgical engineering and engineering physics. Graduates can go on to a doctorate in chemical or metallurgical engineering.

NUCLEAR COURSE

And in 1962, Dean Hodgins announced, McMaster will inaugurate graduate studies in nuclear engineering, a natural development at the only Canadian university with a nuclear reactor on its campus.

This fall for the first time post-graduate fellows will participate in McMaster's engineering research programs. Two of the fellows are from England and one from Japan. The other is a Canadian. More than 20 graduate students from other universities will also do research work under the supervision of the 28-member faculty.

The graduate school, said Dean Hodgins, has two benefits apart from whatever research discoveries are made: it attracts imaginative staff members who wish to do original design and development work and it stimulates the interest of the undergraduates.

He said he is convinced engineers must do research, to add to the store of information and apply science and engineering to new materials and new energy sources.

RAISED IN THOROLD

Dr. Hodgins, 43, grew up in nearby Thorold and graduated in chemical engineering at University of Toronto in 1938. He worked for Algoma Steel in Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., before joining the chemical warfare laboratories in Ottawa in 1940. In 1942 the laboratories were mobilized as an army unit.

In 1945 he left the army with the rank of captain and returned to University of Toronto, obtaining his doctorate in physical chemistry in 1947. After further research work in Ottawa he became professor of chemical engineering at Royal Military College, Kingston, Ont. in 1950.

In 1956 he became director of engineering studies at McMaster and was appointed engineering dean in 1958.

The engineering faculty has access to splendid research facilities. Towering over all is the $2,000,000 nuclear reactor which was put into operation in 1959. Other valuable research tools include a motion picture camera which can take 8,000 pictures per second; a furnace to melt and cast metals in a vacuum, a liquid helium machine x-ray diffraction equipment, a digital computer, mass spectrometers and nuclear magnetic resonance equipment. These machines are available for use of all departments.

DESCRIBES PROJECTS

Some of the research work being done was described by Dean Hodgins.

One of his own projects involved modifying the internal structure of wood by nuclear radiation. Although its appearance remains unchanged, this wood has superior strength on bending and is less subject to swelling and shrinking.

Unfortunately, the dean added with a smile, the process has no immediate practical use because of high costs.

A civil engineering group has been working on an idea for composite floor panels of steel and concrete which can be boiled or riveted into position in buildings with a structural steel framework.

The electrical engineers are developing a super-conducting magnet made of coils of niobium wire cooled in liquid helium. Such a magnet is required to advance other experiments.

Streams of neutrons from the atomic reactor are being put through a diffractometer to determine the precise structure of materials. When the experiment has been set up, machines record the results, hour after hour, without constant surveillance.

More than a score of such varied research projects are going on at McMaster at any one time and the number will increase as more graduate students join the quest for scientific truths.

Belleville Barbers' Association

BELLEVILLE UNITED APPEAL

Dear Fellow Citizens:

Our annual fund-raising campaign in aid of the eleven agencies that participate in our United Appeal commences next Monday, October 16th. From then until October 30th, a large group of volunteer workers will contact the people of our community for their generous support.

Without realizing it, the services provided by these organizations, no doubt, touch the lives of each one of us at one time or another. We all benefit in some way, both individually and communitywise.

In return, they surely are worthy of our assistance, the assitance that will enable them to carry on with their dedicated programs.

Our objective this year of $80,000. is by no means a prohibitive one for a city of our size. Let us then all give serious thought, be generous, and unite to place Belleville high among those communities who believe in and work for 'PEOPLE HELPING PEOPLE'.

Sincerely Yours,
J. J. Trudeau
President.

Construction Industry Digs In for Long Siege

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal's vast construction industry appeared to be digging in for a long siege by its 50,000 workers as 19 large general contractors announced Wednesday night they have made arrangements to protect their projects "against the weather."

The announcement, made through the Montreal Builders' Exchange while no one here speaks for the contractors, said all necessary measures are being taken "in view of the prospects of a prolonged strike."

Meanwhile, a spokesman for the Sheet Metal Workers' International Union (CLC) said the union plans legal action to block a move by 10 architectural contractors to lodge criminal complaints against it.

The 1,200 Sheet Metal Workers last 16 other CLC-affiliated unions out of the 26 after striking alone for five weeks for individual bargaining rights.

The spokesman said a petition for a writ of prohibition will be filed in Superior Court today. The petition would ask the court to rule that the Quebec Labor Relations Board has no right to authorize criminal complaints against the Quebec Labor Relations Act.

SEEK PETITION

Last week, contractors filed a petition with the board seeking authority to lay charges against the Sheet Metal Workers, asking $1,000 fine for each day of the strike. The contractors have termed the strike illegal.

Among the major construction projects halted by the strike were Place Ville Marie, Quebec Hydro, Standard Life, Windsor Plaza, Hilton Hotel, Metropolitan Life, Molson Brewery and St. James de Dieu Hospital.

On Montreal Island, most construction sites were picketed without incident and work was at a standstill.

But at the Jewish General Hospital, work on extensions continued on a dozen men crossed picket lines to pour cement.

Seven police cars were called when picketing threatened to halt reinforcements to keep cement trucks from crossing, but there was no violence.

Union leaders say the desired agreement of separate negotiations with contractors has resulted in a basic wage of $2.40 an hour for auto sheet metal workers compared with $2.35 in Montreal.

TORONTO (CP) — Kelso Roberts has lost only two elections in his political career.

The first was in 1937 when he ran as Conservative in a by-election in the Toronto riding of Parkdale.

The second was in 1945 when he entered a four-man race for the Ontario party leadership. The winner was Leslie M. Frost.

His last election crack at St. Patrick in 1963, was successful and Roberts, a member of the city council since 1956, was returned by acclamation.

His quick election record at St. Patrick in 1963, was successful and Roberts, a member of the city council since 1956, was returned by acclamation.

He has a newly-elected member of the legislature when five Conservatives were defeated. Cornwall during hustings overwhelmingly returned Frost in the chorus of complaints he drowned a heavy pack, jumped into a car and drove for a couple of yards to shore. He fired off the shotgun twice. Then, as if the soldiers had been elegantly trained they would not have fired.

Since the first rumors that Roberts would be nominated last month, he has spent practically more time on the hustings than in the office, according to the visions of the party.

In the Roberts' home has been one of the staunchest defenders of the party's an attack on any Conservative who runs as a Tory candidate.

He attributes to a hot temper but claims it acts as a safety valve.

"When I get a load of steam off I feel all right on the job," he says.

He likes to draw a laugh every St. Patrick's Day by telling how he "became Irish" with top hat, shillelagh and a shamrock bouquet, but he prefers to be remembered for his zeal with family responsibilities.

He has a married problem strength by 400 men in the six years he has held the post. Jack, Ted and Cecilia, where the mass was to be sung, said he was trying to arrange a perfect performance in a public hall.

"We shall try to get the archbishop to attend so he can judge for himself," Mayhew said.

He added that the mass was a "new rhythmic and devotional and not at all gimmicky."

"Mr. Williamson's idea was to present the liturgical music which the people could understand," Mayhew said.

'Jazz Mass' Banned by U.K. Catholics

LONDON (Reuters) — British Roman Catholic authorities have banned a planned "jazz mass" scheduled to be performed in a London church this month.

A choir of about 30 singers has been rehearsing the mass, a new work by Australian-born composer Malcolm Williamson, for more than a month.

An announcement at the office of William Cardinal Godfrey, Catholic Archbishop of London, said Wednesday "a competent musical authority" had decided the "jazz element" was not suitable for church performance.

Williamson, 29-year - old Roman Catholic convert who composed the mass, said the suppression was "unbelievable."

He said the mass was not based on jazz but on the idiom of modern folk music.

"We were going to call it a people's mass," he said.

Kevin Mayhew, organist at the Holy Redeemer church of St. Andrew and St. Cecilia, where the mass was to be sung, said he was trying to arrange a more overt performance in a public hall.

"We shall try to get the archbishop to attend so he can judge for himself," Mayhew said.

He added that the mass was "new rhythmic and devotional and not at all gimmicky."

"Mr. Williamson's idea was to present the liturgical music which the people could understand," Mayhew said.

UNDUE REFERENDS

Mr. Roberts was born 63 years ago in Toronto. He was only 11 and one of four children when his father died, but a determined mother saw him through Upper Canada College and the University of Toronto where his studies were interrupted by First World War service.

It was at this time that the first met young Leslie Frost, and between classes at Osgoode Hall. He graduated from law school at 22 and practised at York Creek, Cobalt and Timmins.

There is anything against him in the leadership race, it would be his age and the fact that his constituency of Carleton has elected a Toronto man.

Mr. Roberts returned to the former Lillian F. Bradwarde of Island River. They have three children: Alexander, who does missile research in Quebec; Frank, studying at Osgoode Hall; and Greer, aged nine.

Two Prisoners Make Escape From Burwash

BURWASH (CP)—Two prisoners tgscaped from Burwash Industrial Farm Wednesday to increase to four the number of recent escapees at large.

Latest to flee the reformatory were James Allan Berry, 24, of Toronto and Ian Lloyd Alexander Henry, 21, of the Oshweken Indian reserve near Brantford. They were working in a potato field and ran into the bush.

Berry was serving two years less a day and 12 months' indeterminate, after being convicted last December in Toronto on 12 charges of breaking and entering.

Henry was admitted to Burwash in April after being sentenced to Brantford to 24 months for breaking and entering and possession of stolen goods.

Two of three men who escaped Tuesday night were still at large. They are Stanley Pilcic, 20, and Marcel Lefevre, 20, both of Windsor.

The third man, Sidney Reginald, 24, of Montreal was recaptured on the farm property Wednesday.

Bus Driver Freed on Charge

EDMONTON (CP) — Frank Budney, 31-year-old bus driver was acquitted in Supreme Court Wednesday on a charge of criminal negligence in an accident that killed 17 high school students.

He was the driver of a school bus which was involved in a fatal fast-moving freight train Nov. 8 at Lamont, 45 miles northeast of Edmonton. Budney and 22 other students were injured.

Mr. Justice J. V. H. Milvain said the evidence satisfied him that Budney stopped his bus on the incline about 60 feet from the way tracks.

Budney, he said, "may have exercised a degree of care that was less than it should have been in his failure to arise from the seat of his bus and open the door and look both ways up and down the track." This, the judge added, was a negligence of a type but he could not convict him of criminal negligence.

He suggested that legislators give "serious thought" to forming a set of clearly-defined regulations to control the operation of school buses.

New Spectacular Space Shot May Signal Opening of 22nd Congress of Communist Party

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
Associated Press News Analyst

The Soviet Communist party opens its 22nd congress Tuesday. Intensive propaganda promises it will mark the beginning of a spurt in Communist world supremacy.

To draw a line Communist prospects, the Kremlin may set even those a new spectacular space shot. The congress opens Monday.

Despite the showmanship, there are in the background signs of nervous strain in Soviet party and alcoholic circles.

Premier Khrushchev, first secretary and party chief, promises the "congress will be a turning point. It will consider a 20-year program to build the basis of communism. Theoretically the U.S.S.R. has built "socialism." Communism, implies great abundance, is many years away.

What is the party congress?

The congress supposedly is the party's ruling body, to which the central committee and its directing presidium are responsible. Required to meet every three years, it is made up of functionaries from major political subdivisions of the U.S.S.R. It is supposed to hear and pass on programs of the top central committee and party presidium, amend programs and statutes, fix tactical lines on how to do so.

New Three-Year Labor Contract For Ford Men

By BEN PHLEGAR
DETROIT (AP) — Individual problems at 26 local bargaining units held the key today to resumption of production at Ford Motor Company following agreement Wednesday night with the United Auto Workers union on a new three-year national labor contract.

UAW President Walter Reuther's executive board recommend to the union's Ford national council this afternoon that the settlement be approved and a nation-wide strike which began 10 days ago be ended. The international executive board of the union endorsed such action Wednesday night.

However, strikes will continue at the 26 local units which have unresolved problems, pending a review of all issues by the international executive board tonight.

Reuther said locals with "legitimate specific problems" will be authorized by the board to continue to strike. But he expressed hope such problems would be resolved in time to permit the company to return to production by Monday.

Reuther said in a statement:

In other union action Wednesday night the international board ordered a new ratification vote by Local 72 at Kenosha, Wis., on the American Motors profit - sharing contract. The 12,000 - member local rejected the pact by 63 votes in a slim turnout Sunday.

The board said it could have ruled the contract ratified since a majority of all AMC workers voting had approved it. But it was calling for the new vote, at its sole not yet set, to preserve "the democratic tradition of the union."

Defendant Not Called to Stand In Burglarly

Lawyer John Lavelle rested the defence case after Michael Corabi, 42, Mine Hill husband, testified he helped her court burglary $30,000 before the Pottsville burglary was committed.

Miss Reis, owner of the Celebrity Room night club in Philadelphia, is charged with hiring burglars to loot the safe of John B. Rich Pottsville coal operator, in August, 1959.

Rich says about $20,000 was taken. Police have testified they understood the haul was as much as $478,900. Three men already have been convicted of participating in the burglary.

Corabi, who said he has been separated from the 39-year-old defendant for about two years, testified she went to the cellar of Rich's Philadelphia home in one night in September, 1958.

He returned with a hatbox and inside, he related, was money. He helped her count it, he said. Half the piles of bills amounted to $29,550.

Earlier testimony showed that Clyde (Bing) Miller had laundered gifts—cash, cars and furs—to Miss Reis while he kept company with her.

The 55-year-old Miller is a co-defendant, accused of tipping off Miss Reis to Rich's wealth. Rich was vacationing in Europe, leaving his home unguarded. Miller is scheduled to go on trial next.

Swedish Dentist Says Napoleon Was Murdered

STOCKHOLM (Reuters) — A Swedish dentist claimed Wednesday he has unearthed evidence that Napoleon was murdered.

The dentist, Dr. Sten Forshufvud, told a press conference that research into available documents and tests on hair samples indicated Napoleon was slowly poisoned during a long period by doses of arsenic and bitter almonds.

His book on the subject by Forshufvud, called Who Murdered Napoleon? was published Wednesday.

The historian - dentist names as the most likely murderer of Napoleon Marshal Montholon, Napoleon's aide and valet of the French emperor.

Forshufvud said he obtained some of Napoleon's hair and sent it for analysis — without revealing its origin — to Glasgow University in Scotland.

University scientists replied that there was unusually large quantity of arsenic in the hair, Forshufvud said. Meanwhile research led him to pin the crime on Montholon.

His handwritten report on Napoleon's illnesses, Dr. Lars Forshufvud said, is a 3,000-page newspaper that the poisoning theory of Napoleon's death was not invalid.

Schrwerkius said Napoleon suffered all his life from consumption and possibly was given excessive doses of mercury — a common treatment at the time —that may have hastened his death.

Most historians hold that Napoleon died of stomach cancer. He died in exile in the Atlantic island of St. Helena in 1821.

AFL-CIO Leaders Predict Bid for Teamster Defectors To Result in Member Exodus

NEW YORK (AP)—AFL-CIO chiefs forecasts today a substantial membership exodus from James R. Hoffa's Teamsters union now that the federation has hang out a welcome sign.

George Meany, AFL-CIO president, said he was already busy processing affiliation applications from about 100 of the nearly 900 Teamsters locals.

The AFL-CIO executive council voted 24 to 2 Wednesday to authorize Meany to issue charters to locals defecting from Hoffa's rule, Federation officials said they have no idea how many Teamsters may thus decide to switch allegiance, but expect a sizable number.

Hoffa can be expected soon to fight back. He has said he will meet head - on any AFL-CIO threat in his union and is confident that "we'll come out on top."

MAY MEAN WAR

Meany declined to speculate whether the AFL-CIO bid for a Teamsters rebellion will result in a bloody labor war.

"We don't go in for headbusting," Meany said. "You'll have to ask Mr. Hoffa about that."

Hoffa said in Detroit Wednesday night that he will sue Meany for $10,000,000 on grounds of slander and libel. The Teamsters' head said the suit will be filed in U.S. district court in Detroit next Monday.

Hoffa's suit is based on the court action because he wants to force Meany to try to prove his charges in public before the Teamsters union.

The AFL-CIO council sessions this week have brought bad news to Hoffa. He's hoped to be able to expel the 1,500,000 - member union back into the federation. Instead, AFL-CIO leaders voted overwhelmingly to continue the Teamsters' suspension and encourage bolts of Hoffa's members.

ENDORSE MEANY

A grand jury at Orlando, Fla., also reindicted Hoffa Wednesday on mail fraud violation charges involving alleged misuse of $300,000 Teamsters funds in a land development scheme. A prior indictment was dismissed on technical grounds.

The United States justice department, announcing the federal grand jury action, said the indictment also names Robert F. Kennedy Jr., Detroit banking executive.

As did an indictment returned in Columbia, Tenn., the new indictment involves the alleged misuse of union funds to develop a "model city" in Brevard County, Fla.

The first indictment was that it had been returned by an improperly constituted grand jury.

The first indictment had 12 counts; the new one has 13.

Hoffa and McCarthy were accused of "misuse, misapplication and artifice to defraud" four Teamsters organizations in connection with the $300,000 model city venture.

Earlier testimony showed that Hoffa may retaliate against the AFL-CIO by going ahead with a blueprint plan already authorized by the Teamsters to establish a union federation rivaling the AFL-CIO. Hoffa may be angered by the action of the AFL-CIO's own unions.

Would Exempt All Purchases Less Than $25

TORONTO (CP)—Ontario Liberal Leader Wintermeyer said Wednesday night he will introduce a motion in the legislature next month asking the government to exempt from the 5% tax all purchases of less than $25.

Mr. Wintermeyer, speaking on a CBC public affairs television broadcast, said he favors the increase in the exemption from $10 presently levied "but believe during out the chaos that currently exists . . . some order, some efficiency must be restored to the people of Ontario."

He said the Liberals can make revenue a year compared with the expected $150,000,000 with the 17-cent exemption.

Mr. Wintermeyer said the increased exemption would not apply to meals, cigarettes, liquor or telephone charges.

"I will eliminate tax collection for the small retailer, the corner grocery, the variety store, the ricety store and the drug store," he said.

Construction Work Resumes In Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — Work returned to normal today in Toronto's construction industry as ready-mix concrete was poured at projects which had been crippled since a minimum of an eight-day lockout by ready-mix contractors.

Agreement was reached Wednesday between 34 companies and the International Brotherhood of Teamsters (IBT) local as contractors said they were preparing for large-scale layouts.

Company representatives said the contracts would have closed down had the cement shortage continued to the weekend.

Members of the president of Teamsters Union Local 230, said ready-mix firms agreed truck drivers would not be seen to cross picket lines set up where workers were picketing their own project.

CROSS OTHER LINES

The drivers, however, must cross picket lines set up by unions not connected with the ready-mix dispute, he added.

The dispute started when a union truck driver refused to cross a picket line set up by construction unions in this area to back his brother-in-law's workers in the building trades. The driver was suspended and, in retaliation, all other drivers in the firm walked out.

The firm, then all 14 ready-mix firms announced they were locking out their drivers. The companies contended that their contract with the Teamsters provides that they respect only legally-constituted picket lines, and the organizational picketing are not in that category.

The union replied it was up to the companies to prove the pickets were not legally constituted.

Work on such projects as the University Avenue subway, the new Maple Leaf Gardens and others—an estimated total of some $650,000,000 worth of construction—was affected.

General Taylor Will Be Sent To Viet Nam

WASHINGTON (AP) — The possibility of direct U.S. military intervention in South Viet Nam appeared to be sharpened today by President Kennedy's decision to send Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor on an urgent mission to assess the growing Communist threat in the southeast Asian country.

Taylor, a Kennedy military adviser, is to make a fast survey of the increasingly dangerous situation, then give Kennedy an "educated military guess" on what the Communist menace and steps which could be taken to meet it.

Official in the government of President Ngo Dinh Diem is growing steadily more heavy Communist pressure.

The president announced the Taylor mission at his news conference Wednesday.

As the president discussed the southeast Asian and Berlin situations in response to press conference questions, the organization grew among big hearers that he is grappling with the complex and interlocking problems of crises on two fronts.

Other administration officials said his decision on southeast Asia when Taylor returns can hardly be made without consideration of American force commitments in Europe and proceeds inwthe East-West dispute over Berlin.

EX-AD MANAGER DIES

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Jerome Hirschfield, 71, retired retail advertising manager of the Milwaukee Sentinel, died Tuesday of a heart attack. Hirschfield retired last Dec. 31 after 37 years with the Sentinel. Earlier he had been with the Cleveland Plain Dealer and the Chicago Tribune. He was born in New York City.

CNR Testing Concrete Ties On Que. Track

MONTREAL — Canadian National has begun installation of concrete cross-ties for test purposes on a section of mainline track in Quebec.

During the past 18 months, several United States railroads have been conducting tests with concrete ties.

A. V. Johnston, CN system chief engineer, in announcing the test installation, said: "We do not foresee the replacement of wooden ties with concrete in the early future, but we must keep abreast of technological developments in this field.

"It may be several years before CN engineers will be able to assess the results of the test".

Two types of concrete ties are being placed in position on a one-mile length of track near Drummondville, Que. In addition, the existing rail will be replaced with continuous welded rail, and new wooden ties will be placed in the middle of the test section for control purposes.

A total of 1,800 concrete ties will be tested; 900 of American design and manufacture and 1,000 made in Canada from French design.

"New materials will be used for the tests", Mr. Johnston said, "and in this way we will be able to make an accurate comparison of the qualities of both types of concrete ties and the wooden ties under service conditions".

Hardwood treated wooden ties have a normal life of 30 years, he noted, while concrete ties are claimed to have a longer life. The cost of concrete ties is higher, but fewer of them are needed on a given length of trackage.

Mr. Johnston noted that concrete ties are widely used in Europe where railroads suffer from timber shortages, and where manufacturing costs of concrete ties are lower.

Successful Living

Husband Has Other Girls

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS:—I got married because my father was cruel to me.

What I did not know was that my fiance was having an affair with a girl who later married his best friend. Now his friend brings her to our house and she flirts with my husband.

This is not the only girl he has been interested in since we were married. I made a date with another guy, for revenge, but couldn't keep it. I love my husband but I can't forget what he has done.

I told him that women must not come here, but he says if she can't come, I go. I feel that everybody is against me. STUMPED.

DEAR STUMPED—That's quite a threat. Is he prepared to carry it out?

Since he has more than one girl, it's my guess he fancies himself as the Sheik of Araby. O.K., but to make it stick he should move to Araby, because in Canada it is customary to have just one.

Men like your husband forget that "when I became a man, I put away childish things." There is still hope. Four years married is really not very long.

Are there things you could do to make him feel more like a married man? Does he ever feed or bathe the children? Don't let him brush you off when you ask for help and interest in shopping. Marriage is a sharing.

No nagging—but stick to your guns about keeping the Other Woman off your preserves.

DEAR DORIS:—I am desperate. My face is always breaking out in brown blotches and since my skin is fair it looks terrible, more so in the summer time.

Some days the blotches are worse and some days they are not too bad. Please give me some advice or someone to see.—ISABEL L.

DEAR ISABEL L.:—See your doctor. Aside from the appearance, which is important to your self-confidence the blotches may be a symptom of a physical ailment which needs treatment.

Tiger-Cats Sign Shannon

HAMILTON (CP) — Carver Shannon, a speedy halfback who was declared recently by the slipping Blue Bombers after three years with the Western Football Conference club, has been signed by Hamilton Tiger-Cats, the Eastern Conference club announced Wednesday.

The Tiger - Cats have been seeking a replacement for Gene Scott, who has been called up by the United States Army.

The 187-pound, six-foot - one Shannon signed to play in 1958 with Los Angeles Rams of the National League after being waived out of the Western and Eastern leagues following his release by Winnipeg.

In order to get him for the remainder of the season, the Tiger - Cats have reached an agreement with the Rams to put him on waivers at the end of the season. Should any Canadian club refuse to waive on him to allow his return to the Los Angeles club, the Tigers have agreed to purchase his contract from the Rams.

Stamp Top Ground Gainer

REGINA (CP)—Fullback Earl Lunsford of Calgary Stampeders has taken over the ground-gaining lead in the Western Football Conference and appears headed for his second straight league rushing crown.

Statistics released Wednesday show Lunsford with a net gain of 1,396 yards in 303 carries. He has two games in hand over runner-up Johnny Bright, veteran Edmonton Eskimo halfback who had been leading most of the season. Bright has netted 1,171 yards in 261 carries.

Jackie Parker of Edmonton has the best average gain—eight yards.

Hal Ledyard of Winnipeg has the best passing average, completing 53.8 per cent of 111 aerials. Halback Bobby Walden of Edmonton and end Ernie Warlick of Calgary have caught the most passes, 36 each.

End Ernie Pitts of Winnipeg has the best completion average, catching 36 of 36 aerials for 95 per cent.

ANNOUNCE TITLE BOUT

BOSTON (AP)—Fred Pender of Brookline, Mass., and Terry Downes of London will meet here Jan. 20 in their third match for Downes's portion of the middleweight title, it was announced Wednesday night.

Downes is recognized as champion in Europe, New York and Massachusetts. Gene Fullmer holds the National Boxing Association title. Pender defeated Downes in Boston Sept. 21 but Downes got Downes in London July 11 when he was unable to answer the bell for the ninth.

The pair were to meet in Boston was suspended by Ray Meadows dered an injury in August.

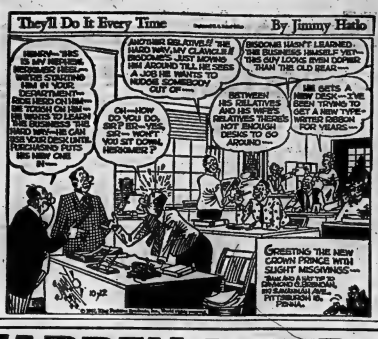
Davis Cup

ROME (AP)—Jon Douglas of Santa Monica, Calif., and Italian tennis champion Fausto Gardini Friday in the opening singles Davis Cup interzone final match between the United States and invaded Italy.

Whitney Reed of Alameda, Calif., was paired against Nicola Pietrangeli in the second singles. The draw was made Wednesday.

The doubles will be Saturday.

PICK TOP MANAGER



NEW ORK (AP) — Bob Scheffing, who led Detroit Tigers to a surprising second-place finish in his first season in the American League, Wednesday was named the circuit's manager-of-the-year in the annual Associated Press poll. Scheffing received 185 votes in the balloting by 174 members of the Baseball Writers' Association of America. Ralph Houk of the world champion New York Yankees was next with 61.

Atlanta Seeks Ball Franchise

ATLANTA (AP) — Fullback owner Earl Mann and Joe Ryan, general manager of an international League franchise, planned to confer again today in an effort to come to terms over leasing Ponce de Leon Park for class AAA baseball.

The two scheduled a meeting with representatives of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce and Junior Chamber of Commerce to try to reach an agreement to bring the franchise, operated first in San Juan, then Charleston, W. Va., to Atlanta.

Official transfer of the franchise and its attendant working agreement with the St. Louis Cardinals to Atlanta for 1962, hinges upon the lease of Ponce de Leon Park by the Ryan group, Miami and Montreal are other cities in line for the franchise in event the Atlanta deal falls through.

Arroyo Gets Bonus

Houk Gets 'Two Years'

NEW YORK (AP)—New York baseball, happily paying the price of their 1961 world series championship?, are expected to sign manager Ralph Houk, 42, to a two-year contract today at an estimated $40,000 a season.

The change, who set the trend Wednesday by handing relief ace Luis Arroyo a bonus reported at $5,000 for his performance during the 1961 season, have called a press conference at which Houk's signing is expected to be announced.

SUSPEND TRAINER

SAN MATEO, Calif. (AP)—Thoroughbred trainer Joe Dunn horse in Nascania, who finished eleventh Wednesday after tests indicated one of his stake horses had been given a stimulant. The horse in Nascania, who finished second in the San Mateo Handicap Saturday as a 15-to-1 longshot.

Angels Release 3 Players

LOS ANGELES (AP) — First baseman Ted Kluszewski, catchar Del Rice and infielder Rocky Bridges were given unconditional releases by Los Angeles Angels Wednesday night.

General manager Fred Haney said the action was taken to make room for younger players on the American League club.

"We plan to retain Rice and Bridges in our organization," Haney said.

Kluszewski, who owns two restaurants in Cincinnati, is reported to be thinking of retiring from baseball.

Harvey's Rangers Debut Impressive

Whip Boston In Opener

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

New York Rangers are looking every inch like playing coach Doug Harvey.

That's the second one impression created Wednesday night in the New York rout of the Bruins of Boston in the National Hockey League launched its 43th season.

The Rangers, with seven newfaces that included Harvey, Al Langlois and Guy Gendron—all former Montreal Canadiens—looked impressive with a rush of goals to bedding up a fine performance by veteran goalie Lorne (Gump) Worsley.

New York and Boston, who failed to make the Stanley Cup playoffs in the last two seasons, go at it again tonight — this time in New York.

Two other teams — Toronto Maple Leafs and Detroit Red Wings — take their 1961-62 debut tonight with a game at Detroit. Chicago Black Hawks and Montreal Canadiens don't play until Saturday.

CAN SCORE TOO

Harvey, a dir - time winner of the James Norris Memorial Trophy as the league's top defenceman, showed 13,134 fans at Boston Garden he can do more for the Rangers than just direct traffic from the bench although he'll be 36 in December.

He scored New York's second goal — a big one which broke a 1-1 tie and ignited a Ranger spurt early in the second period. The goal came on a 30-foot drive while Boston was playing one man short.

Langlois also contributed a goal to help the Rangers while Gendron had one assist. Other New York scorers were Andy Hebenton, Dean Prentice, Earl Ingarfield and rookie Jean Ratelle.

Elsewhere on the NHL scene, Montreal and Chicago warmed up for their season openers with victories in exhibition games.

The Canadiens beat their Hull - Ottawa farm club of the Eastern Professional Hockey League 4-1 at Hull, Que.

At St. Paul, Minn., the Black Hawks trounced the St. Paul Saints of the International Hockey League 10-1.

Belleville Rink Invited

Organize Major Curling League

TORONTO (CP) — A "major league" of curling — 20 rinks from Toronto and six from other Ontario centres — was formed Wednesday night for winter-time competition.

The league will be split into two divisions, each playing a round-robin series and the winners meeting for the league championship.

Invitations to join the league have been sent to Tom Caldwell of Orillia, Ontario champion this year, and runner - up Mac White of Belleville; Jake Edwards of Kingston, 1960 Ontario champ; George Parkes of Woodstock; John Eccles of Guelph, and Paul Kozlik of St. Catharines.

Named out two promising rookies — Chico Maki and Murray Hall — to Buffalo Bisons of the American Hockey League. They also signed star centre Stan Mikita to a 1961-62 contract.

Toronto's salary holdouts were reduced to two when veteran defenceman Allan Stanley signed a new contract. Stanley was reputed to have received a substantial raise.

Still holding out for the Leafs are centres Bob Pulford and Billy Harris.

TOMPION RETIRES

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP)—The C. V. Whitney farm confirmed Wednesday that Tompion, four-year-old winner of more than $600,000 in horse racing, has been retired to stud. Tompion won only one of seven starts in 1961. In 1960 he earned $258,607 from seven victories in 17 starts.

SERIES INCIDENTS

When Yogi Berra let the ball slip through his glove for that famous three-base error in the recent world series, it was almost Monday with one he made during the schedule season. He had a novel explanation. "I nonchalanted it," he grinned.

And some of Ole Casey's choice Slangelese was in evidence when the Ole Professor visited his Yankees. The first person he spotted was Yogi.

"Yogi, I do declare," stated Casey, "there's talkin' Berra which nuts help me nauseate. I seen you nawra yesterday with the bases full and whaddle do? Pop up. I don't wanna get close to these fellas which I am in the other league now and Mr. Berra will live to be 118."

"These were real my players," Casey went on, "and they give me my success in a certain extent and no one can say . . . These Reds look like a team that if you got ahead of them you have trouble knockin' up."

New Yorkers are unable to rattle off the names of National League players since the Dodgers and the Giants left town. A nine-year-old tested his father on the Reds.

"Ever hear of Eddie Kasko?" asked the youngster.

"Yes, replied his pop.

"Chico Cardenas?"

"Of course."

"How about Harkey Van Dessel?"

"Certainly," replied the old man.

The youngster whooped. "Oh, no you didn't," he shrilled. "I just made him up."

While the Yankees were working out at Crosley Field a naked man appeared atop a seventy-foot extorior elevator shaft and flapped his arms like a bird about to take off.

He continued his performance for several minutes, terrifying spectators. Finally he was coaxed down from his perch by a friend who had climbed a ladder to him. The police took care of the rest.

While Gene Freese of the Reds was at batting practice, Yankee pitcher Whitey Ford strolled up behind the batting cage. Ford could not resist the Yrk. "Don't risk spoiling your golf swing, Gene," he quipped. "It's not worth it, not for a lousy world series."

King of the Cincinnati optimists was the man at the public address system in Crosley Field. Prior to the fifth, and final, game he boomed, "The charter plane for the Cincinnati baseball team will leave from the airport for New York at 1.00 p.m. Tuesday."

The total player pool came to $645,933.33, of which 70 per cent ($452,153.33) will go to the players in the series. The other 30 per cent is spread among the clubs that finished second, third and fourth, in the two major leagues.

The pool for the Yankees will be $171,339.33. The losers will divide $109,333.33. On the unofficial basis of thirty-four shares, each member of the victorious Bronx Bombers will get $4,900, the Reds about $3,300.

* * *

Arthur Daley of the New York Times wrote before the fifth game, "In the four games to date the rival managers, Ralph Houk and Freddie Hutchinson have had six moments when brain pans whirred and cast off electric sparks of high voltage content. They ordered batters walked intentionally, three each, in order to get at the next batter. On all six occasions the next batter rapped out a hit. From a strategic standpoint, this series is a total bust."

Uncle Sam May 'Sign' Eskimo

EDMONTON (CP) — Bobby Walden, Edmonton Eskimos halfback, taken by United States Army medical examination Friday in Butte, Mont., the Western Football Conference club said Wednesday.

Should Walden, who joined Eskimos from the University of Georgia, pass the medical, he could receive an early induction notice and be lost to Edmonton for the WFC playoffs. He is third among Eskimos scorers and leads the WFC in punting.

Baby Habs To Play In OHA Jr. A

TORONTO (CP) — The Junior Montreal Canadiens and five Ontario teams will form the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A Series this season after working out an agreement Wednesday with Toronto Maple Leafs.

The National League Leafs had threatened consistently to bar operation of the junior league under an NHL constitution clause which prevents professional or pro - sponsored teams from operating within a 30 - mile radius of another professional team's home rink without permission.

Under terms agreed upon with Stafford Smythe, chairman of the Leafs hockey committee and co - owner of the junior Toronto Marlboros, all six teams in the Junior A league will operate within Toronto's 30 - mile radius.

In return, the teams will play one exhibition game each with the Marlboros and Toronto St. Michael's College as part of Sunday afternoon doubleheaders here.

Besides Montreal, the league will include St. Catharines, St. Marys, Falls, Hamilton, Guelph and Peterborough.

St. Michael's and Marlboros, both members of the Junior A league last season dropped out to join a new Metropolitan Toronto loop.

After Lingering Illness

DIED; Senior Hockey

Don't hold your breath until 1961-62 senior hockey debuts in Memorial Arena.

As of now, as it has blotted in the past, the handwriting on the wall has all the earmarks of an obituary.

Greg Currie of Toronto, who has been in and out of the aborning league like a rent-collector, stated last night he cannot get a sponsor.

That takes care of the Toronto entry.

Oshawa, who clamped they had everything but money, wanted all-out subsidization.

That wrote finis to a Motor City club's operation.

That reduced the circuit personnel to three. Kingston, who stated it will not play in any other than a five-club circuit, has stuck by its guns.

That removes the possibility of senior hockey in the Limestone city.

Remaining are Napanee's ready and rarin' intermediates and Belleville's "mystery" club.

But Lorne Clok, OHA president and convenor of the eastern senior group, hasn't given up hope for hockey for these teams.

He will try to get playing arrangements with the Ottawa Valley Senior League.

Mr. Cook tried to "invade" the OVSHL last year and his proposal met with an all-out "No" from members clubs.

But you cannot blame him for trying. He has been a stout stalwart for eastern senior hockey for many years and deserves a lot of credit.

It is not his fault that it died still-born in the district this season.

Right now it looks like senior hockey in these parts will have to adopt the old Dodger motto — cry, "Wait 'Til Next Year."

AHL Gets Under Way

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It's business as the same old record-paced American Hockey League ships for the last two seasons.

The Indians picked up where they left off last annual, opening the season with a 4-2 victory over Pittsburgh Hornets Wednesday night.

In the other openers, Providence Reds bombed Cleveland Barons 9-1 and Rochester Americans beat Buffalo Bisons 3-2 on Jim Pappin's overtime goal. Hershey Bears and Quebec Aces have openers this weekend.

Wingo Floyd Smith scored a three - goals trick for the Indians, but Bruce Cline provided the winner. He slapped in his own rebound at 12:13 of the last period to break a 2-2 tie. Smith got his third goal at 16:08, hitting the empty cage after Pittsburgh goalie Gerry McNamara was lifted for a sixth forward.

Pittsburgh, making its first appearance after a five-year absence from the league, got goals from Cleg Johnson and Ray Dore.

Providence jammed in six quick first period goals, then coasted in against the Barons. Eddie Toppazzini, Jim Bartlett and rookie Pierre Brillant each had a pair for the Reds, Dan Maskasak, Fred Arrigo and Gerry Ouellette one each. Cleveland's only marker was by Bob Stewart made in the first period.

Pappin hit at 3:38 of the overtime after two scoreless periods at Buffalo. Dave Creighton and Wayne Hicks got first period goals for Buffalo, which were matched by Bruce Draper and Stan Smrke.

Ryder Cup No Cinch For Yanks

LITHAM, England (AP) — Two men who live and breathe golf dismissed the idea today that the Ryder Cup matches starting Friday will be a walkover for the Americans.

They are the men who should know—American captain Jerry Barber and British captain Dai Rees.

Rookies have made the American 7-5 favorites to win the cup for the 11th time in the two-day competition.

"The rookies must be insane," said Barber after leading his team through the second day of practice on the Royal Lytham St. Anne's course. "This match will be as even as it could be."

Rees, 48-year - old Welshman playing in his ninth Ryder Cup, adds: "Don't write us off. We were the long shots in the matches played in Britain four years ago—and we still won."

CITY MAKES GRANT

TORONTO (CP)—City council has authorized a $8,300 grant for Toronto's part in the Grey Cup festival to be climaxed with the East-West game Dec. 2 in Toronto. Committees of the senior board of trade will receive $1,600; $3,500 goes for the Miss Grey Cup dinner; $1,500 for the Grey Cup parade and $300 for an advertisement in the official program.

The Western Hockey League begins its 26th-game schedule on four fronts Friday night.

And TV Gets Another 157 Fans

BOSTON (AP) — It was a bad night all around for some Boston Bruins fans.

First, they jammed Boston Garden only to see the Bruins trounced 6-3 by New York Rangers in the opening National Hockey League game.

Then 30 fans went out of the garden to where they'd parked cars — across driveways in some cases — and learned the vehicles had been towed away by police. That's $7.50 towing costs plus a $10 fine.

Another 137 will get little missives in the mail from the Boston police department, fining them for parking illegally. Most of those tags will cost $15, the fine for blocking traffic.

Portland Buckaroos, defending champions, play the Rhodes in Los Angeles, San Francisco Seals meet the Totems in Seattle, Spokane Comets play Edmonton Flyers in Vancouver and Calgary Stampeders take on the Flyers in Edmonton.

The Rhodes and Seals, newcomers to the WHL, are the league's first California entries since 1959, when the southern division of the old Pacific Coast Amateur League folded.

Jim Piggot transferred his Victoria franchise to Los Angeles and the league granted Colby Hall a franchise in San Francisco. Winnipeg Warriors were given a year's leave of absence, but few expect them to return.

The Seals play their first 14 games on the road while their home games in the 14,000-seat Memorial Sports Arena.

The league will be divided into two divisions with Portland, Spokane and the California teams in the southern section and the remaining clubs in the northern group.

Chico Marx, 70, Oldest Brother, Dies Wednesday

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Leonard Marx, a tailor's son who wanted to be a businessman but instead became Chico of the Marx Brothers comedy team, is dead at 70.

Chico, oldest member of the impossibly irreverent brothers whose vaudeville and movie fans included low-brows and intellectuals alike, died of a heart ailment Wednesday. He had been ill for several months.

Chico and brothers Groucho (Julius), Harpo (Arthur), Zeppo (Herbert) and Gummo (Milton) thundered low comedy into high art for 36 years—with their special brand of winks, whistles and wisecracks.

Their last movie was in 1949, entitled Love Happy, and the cast included an obscure blonde actress, Marilyn Monroe, in her first film.

Their fans included the late Irish playwright George Bernard Shaw, who said they were "the world's greatest actors." Others marked them with masters of comedy—Chaplin, Laurel and Hardy, W. C. Fields and Will Rogers.

Gummo and Zeppo entered private life in the 1930's. Zeppo, Chico, who loved gambling, married well, lived quietly. In recent years.

ONLY GROUCHO ACTIVE

Groucho, 71, still is an active performer. Harpo recently regained some prominence with his autobiography, Harpo Speaks.

Chico in His Story played the whimsical Italian organ-grinder with peasant cap, rasping voice and rolling eyes who played the piano with knuckles, elbows, toes or nose and once gave pianist Jose Iturbi a few tips at a gag.

The brothers were born to an immigrant Jewish family in New York's East Side. Their mother, Minnie Marx, was the daughter of a wandering magician and sister of Al Shean of the famed vaudeville team of Gallagher and Shean. And she raised the youngsters to be entertainers — although most of the brothers, including Chico, didn't like the idea.

Their first film was The Cocoanuts in 1929. Others included: Animal Crackers (1930) Monkey Business (1931), Horse Feathers (1932), Duck Soup (1933), Night at the Opera (1935).

In Night at the Opera," Chico was asked: "Are you an Italian?" "No," he said. "I only look this way because my mother and father are Italian."

"THE GUNS OF NAVARONE".

One Of The Greatest High Adventure Of Our Time

One of the greatest high adventures of our time, Carl Foreman's "The Guns of Navarone", is now attracting large audiences to the Belle Theatre, where it is holding for a few days, with Gregory Peck, Davi Niven, Anthony Quayle, top-starred.

The multi-million dollar Columbia motion picture production, based on Alistair Maclean's novel, also stars Stanley Baker, Anthony Quayle, Irene Papas, Gia Scala and James Darren.

Story of Allied commandos and Greek resistance fighters in a desperate raid on a German-held island on Navarone, "The Guns of Navarone" flames with unflagging excitement and suspense. Especially thrilling are the storm and mountain-climb sequences, according to report.

Key to the film are the guns themselves. They command a vitally-needed Aegean Sea channel, they cannot be destroyed by land, sea or air and so they must be destroyed by suicidal stealth. Chosen for the sabotage assignment are the film's male stars and co-stars. Once on the island of Navarone they contact two women leaders in the Greek resistance movement.

Moviegoers and advance audiences have nothing but ecstatic praises for the stars and moviemakers responsible for "The Guns of Navarone", a film which was seven months in the actual making, with the full cooperation of the Greek government.

Peck is superb as the mountaineer who commands the Allied commando team. Niven is an explosive expert with an allconsuming distaste for war, and of the part he must play in it. Quinn is a Greek partisan fighter who hates Germans, and Peck.

Screenplay for "The Guns of Navarone" was written by producer Carl Foreman, who was responsible for "High Noon", "Champion", "The Key" and a flock of other highly honored films. Dimitri Tiomkin, four-time Academy Award winner composed the score for the film and J. Lee Thompson directed the production, now playing an extended engagement at the Belle Theatre in Belleville.

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Vincent Price, in black from six months of European film making with an alarming view of how for an alarming view of how for-

Says Price:

"Whatever goodwill Americans have engendered over the years is virtually wiped out by the kind of flickers we are sending to Europe nowadays. We used to give them entertainment. Now we give them problems.

"And they don't need problems; they've got enough of their own.

"We are giving them a sort of Tennessee Williams view of America. That is not America as all of us know it. In the last two years, I have lectured at 75 universities in every part of the country. I have met people everywhere and I know they are not unhappy and neurotic.

TALE GLOOMY VIEW

"But Europeans don't know it, because they judge us by our movies. I had people over there ask me if the United States was undergoing a bal depression. They had formed an impression of our downbeat pictures. It was all I could do to try to convince them that we are more prosperous than every."

"What has happened to the glamorous movies Hollywood used to turn out, especially at MGM? They may have been somewhat fanciful, but they were truer to reality than to day's drawboat films.

"And they did a better job for us, in those days, every European wanted to come to America. Now they don't."

Bob Newhart Pokes Subtle Fun at Private Enterprise

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—Bob Newhart may find himself in trouble with members of the viewing audience who know a comedy sketch only when it is advertised by a pie in the face. But the rest of the TV audience, particularly those who have been hungering for some sharp wit and clever comment, will make him their hero.

Newhart's new weekly program, in its first outing on NBC last night, poked some subtle fun at the private enterprise system and organization men and women, more jokingly, wont to work on the isolation problem. It was adult, sophisticated stuff—one of the biggest laugh lines in the entire show was a joke involving the name of Dr. Schweitzer—and a delight.

Newhart's first sketch was based on the promise that local fire departments should be operated as a private business. He played, in a monologue, an office salesman of Phil's Fires, Inc. Using all the business clichés in buying individual arrangements for the company to respond to a call for help. Any resemblance to the average householder's problem in summoning a service man in an emergency is not coincidental.

It was a lively, funny introduction to the show. One can only hope that Newhart, with a weekly show, can maintain his high standard of material and wit.

GIANTS SEEK WAIVERS

NEW YORK (AP)—New York Giants of the National Football League asked waivers Wednesday on Phil King, injured fullback. If the former Notre Dame star is not claimed by a rival club he will be put on the Giants' disabled list and another player made eligible.

Astrological Forecast

Friday, October 13

General Tendencies: Friday, October 13th, 1961 finds you apt to try to force matters and to be too independent for your own good. Make sure that before you try to take into consideration that personal plan that requires you to press much on your own, that you do wind up whatever duties and obligations of the apparently petty nature exist in regard to corporations, utilities, groups or companies. Then tonight, out and play.

Aries (March 21 to April 19) — While you may be very anxious to get off to new interests and people, it is best you spend some time clearing up pending matters and being very co-operative with co-workers. Then you can tackle new outlets with enthusiasm. Grow.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) — Be very certain you concentrate on financial and property or business matters seriously, although you desire to spend time with good friends socially. If you plan your time wisely, you can combine the two quite intelligently.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) —Every opportunity is yours now to make advancement in business world with dynamic association, though there are those within the family circle who are opposed to such activity on your part. Be diplomatic, but carry through as you wish.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) — You are able to labor very diligently and happily with co-workers today if you make up your mind to do so. Forget about being out on some tangent o rother — be a producer instead of a sleeper. P.M. Get clothing, health improved.

Cancer (July 22 to Aug. 21)—Put aside all worry about finances and concentrate upon perfecting your talents and making them more commercial so the future and then be very bright for you. P.M. Fine for relaxing at the amusements that you most enjoy.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 23) —Important you handle vital affairs connected with home and family today and so prove to your kin how truly devoted you are as well. P.M. Don't be critical, but give helpful suggestions, hints in a quiet and kindly way. Grow.

Libra (Sept. 22 to Oct. 22)— You are able now to dash about with the right people for shopping, making calls, etc. But act in early part. Put aside that feeling of being imposed upon.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) — Getting monetary affairs adjusted properly will lead to a better understanding of the best course to be taken in the future. Also, get the wise advice of experts or banker for those within the family circle who are opposed to such activity on your part. Be diplomatic, but carry through as you wish.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — Analyze all about you and see if there are any changes to be made so that you will be satisfied with conditions surrounding you. Plan these changes wisely, though the actual work on them cannot be done today. Be astute.

Capricorn (Dec. 23 to Jan. 20) — Get the idea that will make you more efficient operations more successful instead of going out looking for new outlets. However, do not overdo in others. Then the evening should be spent just relaxing or going to the theatre.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — Don't be doubtful of the straight-from-the-shoulder advice of a good comrade today, since it is for yourself today, since it is for your benefit and it is good truth. P.M. Maintain a happy exterior though you must bump affections with a born gossip in P.M.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) — If you do not pay your bills and meet other obligations scrupulously now, you will find that your career and prestige drop considerably. Don't permit this to happen. Go out for dinner in P.M., but choose a restaurant that is not lavish.

If your child is born today ... he, or she, will be one of those delightful people who seem to have a real personality and is ever at odds with self. So, you must early teach self-confidence and control that there is a right time and place for everything and then his life can become more fascinating than it is for the usual type of individual. The Theatre would be a good outlet here since it could bring considerable success with diversified talents shown.

TO CHANGE NAME

LONDON (AP) — Britain has decided to change the name of the Falkland Island dependencies in the Antarctic which are also claimed by Argentina and Chile, government sources reported Tuesday night. They said the dependencies will be known as British Antarctica, starting next year. Renaming the area would underline British claims to it.

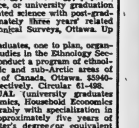
INDIGESTION; FELT TIRED, RUNDOWN, COULDN'T SLEEP

Says Troubles Came From Constipation. Woman Tells of Grand Relief by Taking Syntona.

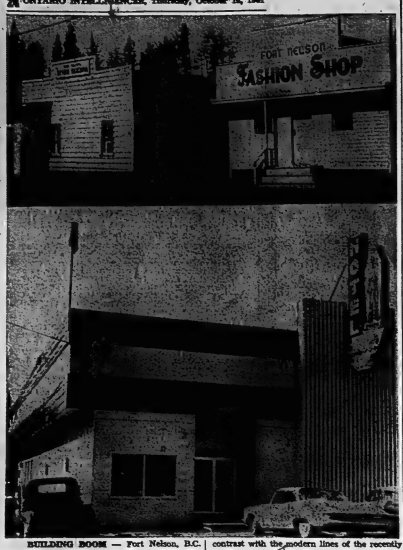
"If you haven't tried Syntona Herbal Compound, let me assure you it's a wonderful medicine", said Mrs. W. J. Ellis, 23 Ontario St., Lindsay.

FELT SICK ALL OVER

"I was troubled with awful indigestion, acid rising and heartburn. One day I felt sick all over, my stomach made me miserable and I was so nervous I couldn't sleep properly at night. I was subject to constipation and headaches and I was getting rundown.



"I had tried many different things but it wasn't until I got Syntona that I really got relief from them. From the very first bottle I noticed that my digestion was improving and so I kept on taking it. I am so pleased with the results I got that I enjoy my meals now and I sleep wonderfully well. I have more energy and I get good, sound sleep at night. I also got relief from the terrible blinding headaches and I am not always tired and nervous."



Every man or woman who suffers from indigestion, acid stomach, constipation, should try Syntona Compound. You can buy this fine medicine and feel the benefits you find like yourself again.

Syntona is sold and recommended in Belleville by Dolan The Druggist.

BUILDING BOOM — Fort Nelson, B.C. is still something of a frontier town but the post-war rise of the area's petroleum industry has spurred a construction boom. Oil and Gas Boom in B.C. Brings People, Prosperity To Fort Nelson District

By JIM PEACOCK

FORT NELSON, B.C. (CP)— Fort Nelson is anxious to put on its red flannels.

Frankly, its residents don't like the cold, but wintertime economics are much better than those of the summer since the petroleum boom came this far north.

If 40 - below - zero weather comes early, the summertime population of 2,000 will jump to 3,000 as hundreds flock to the area with survey, seismic and drilling crews seeking oil and natural gas.

The search has spread exploration and development riches throughout the Peace River Block of northeastern British Columbia as it moved progressively northward since the first gas well blew in near Fort St. John in 1952.

Today it's centred in the area north and east of Fort Nelson, an Alaska highway community 300 miles north of Fort St. John and less than 100 miles south of the Yukon boundary. And it reaches its peak when the chill of a northern winter freezes the muskeg bog beneath the bush and timber that cover the province's northeast corner.

HUGE GAS FIELD

This area is proving one of the most prolific gas fields in the country and it is drawing more and more exploration, which brings new population and prosperity to Fort Nelson.

As a result, the face—and faces—of the community are changing more rapidly than at any time since 1942 when the Alaska Highway was built, giving the present settlement its reason for existence.

Initially a fur - trading post across the Nelson River and three miles from the present site, Fort Nelson became a highway and communications maintenance centre after the United States armed forces moved out with the end of the Japanese threat to Alaska in 1945.

Payrolls of the Canadian defence department's highways maintenance staff, the transport department's airport personnel and the Canadian National Telegraphs communications base have played—and still play—major part in keeping the community alive.

Increasing tourists traffic on the highway is adding to the economy each year, but nothing has affected the community like the oil boom, which struck with force two years ago.

This has prompted weekly newspaper editor Bob Angus to make frequent use of the nickname Boomtown for Fort Nelson, which he believes someday will grow into a prosperous, firmly-based centre of 6,000 or 7,000.

Some of the older residents, however, are not fully convinced of the permanency of this newfound prosperity. "Agriculture may be needed to give our economy a firm foundation," said Earl Bartlett, electrician and postcard photographer who came here in 1946. "I don't think it's too well based yet."

Some of the newcomers admit being here to cash in on the boom. "I'll stay this winter if everything goes well, then go on to Alaska or someplace," said Jimmy Moreland, an Irish immigrant from Belfast who came south 15 months ago seeking work and found it as a bartender in a hotel where his wife now works, too.

There is, nonetheless, an underlying hope evident through the whole community that the boom will turn to solid growth as it has to the south.

Princess Will Accept Clothes For New Baby

LONDON (AP) — The Royal Family usually accepts only official gifts, but Princess Margaret is making an exception of clothing for her first baby due later this month.

The Queen did the same thing when Prince Andrew was born in February, 1960.

Maj. John Griffin, Margaret's press secretary, said gifts of clothing for the baby are pouring into Kensington Palace, the princess' London home, and she doesn't want to offend or disappoint so many well-wishers.

No gifts will be accepted from commercial firms, Griffin said, "but baby clothes from private well-wishers and charitable organizations will all be most welcome."

This hope is showing slowly but surely in Fort Nelson's physical features.

New construction is taking place. Two new hotels were opened last spring and an older one added a new section to cater to the increasing Alaska Highway tourist trade and the oil influx.

A new elementary school is going up to meet the increase to 350 from 450 in the number of school children this fall. A new Hudson's Bay Company retail store had opened and an automatic laundry and dry-cleaning plant is building.

A few expensive, modern houses are appearing and the first apartment block, where the four two-bedroom units rent for $165 monthly, plus utilities, now is occupied.

Community electricity was installed in September, 1960, and water and sewage service went in last spring. Although many in the unincorporated community are reluctant to meet the high costs of hooking up.

For all this progress, Fort Nelson remains a frontier centre. Its streets are unpaved and many are ungravelled. Sidewalks are almost unknown. Many of its residents continue to live in trailers. Many more reside in tiny houses, quickly erected to meet an urgent housing need but not so expensive they cannot be abandoned if the boom should die.

Across the river, the past is vividly apparent. Old Fort Nelson is a picture of log cabins and boarded - down buildings where Indian trappers and a few aged whites still live.

Fur trapping has declined from its hey-day of the 1940s, but handful still earn their livelihood this way in winter.

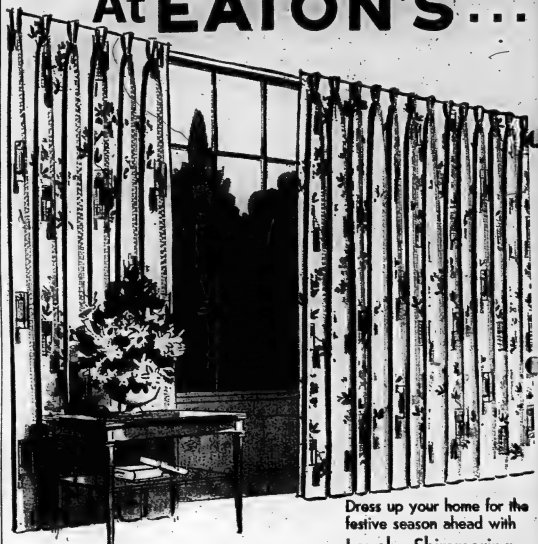
About one - third of today's permanent population of 3,000—it was 900 five years ago and 1,500 three years ago—now are employed directly by the petroleum industry.

"Personally, I don't think he is suitable to be a leader of men."

Inquest Will Be Held On Man's Death

TORONTO (CP) — Attorney-General Kelso Roberts said Tuesday night investigation into the death of a bank robbery suspect in Peterborough Jail will follow the normal procedure of a coroner's inquest.

He was replying to a suggestion by Montreal lawyer Raymond Daoust that Mr. Roberts should investigate possible culpable negligence in the case.



Marcel Lemieux, 35, whose body was found in his cell block, died of a heart attack in jail last week when he and four other men were up for preliminary hearing at Peterborough on charges that they robbed a bank in Havelock of $224,000.

Lemieux suffered from angina and had been given nitro-glycerine pills in case of a heart attack, Mr. Daoust said. He said Lemieux complained the night before his death that the pills had been taken from him and placed in a locked cupboard.

Russia Will Continue Tests Says Mr. K.

Replies to Appeal From Labor Leaders

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Soviet Premier Khrushchev had made clear that Russia will continue its current series of nuclear tests — to counter what he termed the "thundering of war paraloni" by the United States.

The Russian leader said in a reply to an appeal by 55 senior Labor party leaders that the Soviet Union could not stop its tests while the United States was building up its military might.

"How can we in the light of all this stop nuclear testing?" Khrushchev said in his letter published here Thursday night.

The letter replied to an appeal that was sent to Khrushchev and President Kennedy by a Labority group headed by former defence minister Emanuel Shinwell to press for steps to ease world tension.

Khrushchev took a similar stand in telegrams to Mr. Macmillan over series of nuclear tests, notably in the Arctic, since August 31, in a letter to Keorge Yasai, head of the Japanese campaign against the spread of nuclear bombs.

"TO PREVENT ATTACK"

The letter to Yasai was published in Tokyo on Oct. 7.

In it, Khrushchev said Russia resumed nuclear testing to prevent itself being attacked by the West and to "overpower" the use of bigger Russian hydrogen bombs would prevent wide war.

The letter to the Japanese, however, said that he was ready for signsuit pe ace talks at any time with world leaders, particularly President Kennedy.

His letter to the British Labor leaders said: "If the West stopped its tests now "which we are being threatened by a new war," when the U.S. is testing new types of attack weapons and are pushing their armaments machine to the utmost" it would be letting down both itself and its friends.

If Russia had not resumed testing, he said, then the West would have pushed the aggressive circles of the West on the road to unleashing a new war between the West Berlin and no interference in its affairs.

He said that German Government is headed by Russia would provide:

1. Guaranteed access to Berlin.

2. Recognition of the Oder-Neisse German-Polish boundary under which Poland got part of German territory.

3. Recognition of both the West German and Communist East German regimes and the admission of both to the U.N.

4. A ban on either Germany having nuclear weapons.

5. Dismantling of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and the German counterpart, the Warsaw Pact.

6. Disengage the forces of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and the Warsaw Pact in central Europe — U.S. officials believe Khrushchev is referring to disengagement on the assumption that what the Soviet really aim at is the withdrawal of U.S. forces from Europe.

Thirty Fraud Charges Laid, Bails Cancelled

MONTREAL (CP) — Thirty more fraud charges were laid Thursday against a suspended Montreal constable and a young woman.

Three other ex - members of the police force had their bails cancelled in another court as fresh theft charges were laid to replace some that had been withdrawn at the start of investigations.

Raymond Rose, 29, and Nicole Anctil, 21, were committed for preliminary hearing Oct. 19 on the 30 charges of fraud involving false postal money orders. Bail was set at $1,500 for each.

Today's Chuckle

The only trouble with being a good sport is that you have to lose to prove it.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: A moderate trough of cold air is expected to reach Southern Ontario tonight, bringing cooler weather for Saturday. Cool weather prevails over Northern Ontario.

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. officials said today Premier Khrushchev's latest package proposal for a German settlement failed to advance the prospects of East-West agreement to end the Berlin crisis.

They also found cobling encouraging in the Soviet leader's declaration of readiness to attend a summit meeting in order to negotiate a peaceful solution of the crisis. A summit conference, U.S. leaders say, should come only as the end result of lower-level negotiations which would assure success at the summit.

Some of the points of his proposed Berlin-German settlement may be negotiable in the Western point of view.

But it does appear that at present the Western policy position in responding to the Russian ultimatum names is severely handicapped by lack of unity among the United States, Britain, France and West Germany.

SAYS UNITY NEEDED

Khrushchev based his package proposal on the proposition that there must be a German peace treaty—by which he means a treaty signed by representatives of East and West Germany—"can remove the danger of a new war."

U.S. officials say that there is little the United States can now do to prevent Khrushchev from signing a separate peace treaty with East Germany.

But they have no intention of abandoning their rights which would formalize the division of Germany. Each Western policy will center on the principle of self-determination.

Specific points covered by Khrushchev in his letter to the British Labor party group were these:

1. Guaranteed Western access to Berlin by land, air and water, sounded out Gromyko on when the Soviet government was willing to give guarantees in writing that Western access to Berlin would be respected by a number of signing a peace treaty. But his statement was given in the context of changing, and weakening, the Western rights to remain in Berlin after a peace treaty is signed.

2. Recognize the Oder-Neisse border between Germany and Poland—there has been some speculation that the Soviet Union, Britain, Poland, would be willing to negotiate the area of German territory as a suitable basis for negotiation on the whole range of problems. But no agreement on the problem could be found.

3. Recognition of both the West German and Communist East German regimes and the admission of both to the U.N.

4. A ban on either Germany having nuclear weapons.

5. Dismantling of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and the German counterpart, the Warsaw Pact.

6. Disengage the forces of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and the Warsaw Pact in central Europe — U.S. officials believe Khrushchev is referring to disengagement on the assumption that what the Soviet really aim at is the withdrawal of U.S. forces from Europe.

WORLD FOOD BANK PROPOSED BY DELEGATION

18 Officials Will Go to Rome

OTTAWA (CP) — An 18-man Canadian delegation, led by the cabinet ministers hopes to speak for the establishment of a world food bank to aid newly countries in the underdeveloped conference in Rome next month.

The group, headed by Agriculture minister Alvin Hamilton with Fisheries Minister Maclean as alternate delegate, will attend the United Nations' Food and Agriculture Organization's conference Oct. 23.

A statement issued by the prime minister's office Thursday said Canada's plan for a world food bank is "one unifier, flexing reason" for sending such a delegation to the Rome meeting.

"Canada is concerned with getting support for the food bank and with steps directed to improving nutritional standards in all parts of the world as well as using food for development purposes," the statement said.

HAS PROPOSED

Prime Minister Diefenbaker has advanced the proposal for a world food bank as a means of putting surplus foods to feeding the hungry and other emergencies, but no definite action has yet been taken on the proposal.

Mr. Hamilton said he feels that Canada's sponsorship of a world food bank.

He also said he presented the new line of thinking that the underdeveloped countries be distributed to North America for the last 10 years will apply as well to the rest of the Western.

Mr. Hamilton told reporters that agricultural commodities out-strest competition will result, and once a two-pronged prices, is the basis involving aid to needy countries and a formula for a to a on a day agreement along the lines of the International Wheat Agreement.

Mr. Hamilton returned at air tonight from two days of talks on agriculture with officials of Organization for European Economic Co-operation and Development in Paris.

MAY BE INEVITABLE

He said there was no discussion of the Common Market as such. Most of the 20 OEECD countries are members, but he remained outside the conference room on the food bank idea, seemed to indicate that it was not a subject to come.

He added he has invited the French agriculture minister to visit Canada as soon as possible to discuss the European Common Market. No details have yet been arranged.

Mr. Hamilton was asked to comment on a newspaper story that a trade deal with the Government may soon be signed as a result of talks between members of its plan to join the European Common Market.

Mr. Hamilton said when the time comes he will comment, but that there is no trade deal or agreement yet with the country involved. He refused to say whether one is likely.

'NEEDLED' WOMEN

MANFALCONE, Italy (AP)—Gilberto Visintin, 10, was sentenced Thursday to three months in jail for needling women passersby with a needle. Police caught him on the streets of the north Italian industrial city when one girl shrieked: "Ouch! Get that man." He stung me!" Visintin told the judge: "Some of them liked it."

Mock Aerospace War on Vast Scale to Rage Through Skies

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Mock aerospace war on a vast scale will rage through the skies Saturday through North America.

Unprecedented in the variety and volume of modern weapons involved, the make-believe conflict will ground non-military flights for 24 hours.

From 1 p.m. EDT Saturday to 1 a.m. Sunday, no airliner or private plane will be able to fly above the Canadian or U.S. mainland or coastal waters.

Streams of B-52 and B-47 jet bombers will hurl themselves against prime targets in Canada and U.S. targets.

They will fire no weapons, drop no bombs. But they'll test the limit the resources of NORAD, the North American Air Defence Command.

Some 250,000 members of the RCAF, U.S. Air Force, army and navy will take part in Exercise Sky Shield II. Operations will range over a region of about 14,000,000 square miles.

Defence installations have been taken to guard against any attempt to use the exercise as a cover for an all-out surprise attack on North America.

U.S. Air Defence Secretary Eugene Zuckert and N. E. Halaby, administrator of Federal Aviation Agency, will personally observe the operation from the underground command headquarters of the air defence command at Ennock Field, Syracuse, N.Y.

Halaby said banning flying by civilian and military aircraft during the 12-hour exercise period was necessary for safety reasons. "Even so, defensive tactics may put out of commission many of the radio navigation aids upon which civil aviation depends.

Experts Say Russia Edging Closer to U.S. in Building Lightweight Atomic Bomb

WASHINGTON (CP)—Russia is edging close to the United States in ability to produce a comparatively light weight, atomic bomb packing powerful explosive force, qualified behemists said today in appraising some of the evidence of the new Soviet nuclear capability.

The witnesses, with access to results of American and British devices and analysis shows Russia has been successful in shrinking the size of the nuclear heads so that she could deliver them over longer distances in smaller missile carriers.

The U.S. long has held the lead in producing high - explosive weapons in small packages, but Russia has been able to take rocketry through a number of leaping powers. But producing small, light rockets requires costly and expensive process. Shrinking the size of warheads with the accompanying the size of the atomic punch is a big new technological step for Russian efforts.

Russia broke a three - year moratorium and resumed atmospheric tests Sept. 1. Since then the U.S. Atomic Energy Body reported detection of 20 Russian shots, a mixture of high and low yields. It is generally accepted that the Soviet state of the American bomb dropped over Hiroshima in the Second World War. Others are reported to range up to 7,000,000 tons of TNT.

Informed sources refused to discuss analysis of the small Russian shots, saying they didn't want the Russians to know how effective the American detection system is.

There also is the possibility that if the Americans suspected they had detected the small shots, the Russians could raise their questions of whether the Americans had disclosed all they knew when they made the speech, during atomic test ban treaty negotiations that shots of less than 20,000 tons could be effectively muffled.

Russia's last atomic explosions indicate their warheads could pack tremendous power, there is no evidence of any Russian explosion so far has matched the monstrous American H-bomb, a bomb test of 1954 in the South Pacific. That unleashed an explosion force equivalent to between 7,000,000 tons of TNT.

It was far more than the scientists had anticipated. Radio-active fallout hit natives in neighboring islands, and caught 66 American weather station officials by surprise. It contaminated the fishermen in the Japanese trawler Lucky Dragon which was about 80 miles from Bikini blast area. One fisherman broke died and the Japanese government paid the Japanese $600,000 in damages.

The giant explosion so shocked the scientists and military men that they made a protest that the size of future shots had to be reduced. The moratorium followed before the 1958 moratorium may have been about 10,000,000 tons.

Ghana Is Seeking Support For Move to Expel S. Africa

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Ghana sought support today for a resolution calling on the U.N. security Council to expel South Africa from the United Nations.

Ghana's Ambassador Alex Quaison-Sackey said his delegation will put the issue to a vote demanding the ouster of the white supremacist nation and ordering it to behave in accordance with the country Africa group today. He declined to say when the vote will be taken but it was based until he had consulted the rest of the group.

Presumably it says South Africa is unworthy of UN membership, flouting the charter's principles and "shamefully" rejecting its apartheid—race segregation—policy in defiance of repeated UN appeals.

Some Africans doubted Ghana would get the required support from their group for such a drastic demand. A number of African delegates, although they have opposed Jo South Africa's racial policies, have said privately they feel it is wiser to keep the republic in the UN where other — members can bring pressure to bear and perhaps eventually get reforms.

At least seven affirmative votes are required in the 11-country security council to expel South Africa. Observers believe that number could be mustered.

Ghana's resolution was drawn up before External Affairs Minister Eric Louw of South Africa, who is leading his country's delegation to the current General Assembly session, arrived in the United States and other Western powers for the opening of the session. The General Assembly against the vote of censure. Tax United States has indicated it will participate in the vote, Canada abstained.

The foreign minister warned that the censure vote was certain to trigger demands at home that South Africa pull out of the UN.

Canadian Guards Regiment Lives Down Reputation

OTTAWA (CP) — The Regiment of Canadian Guards, which earned its 100th birthday today, has managed to live down a reputation it never had in the first place.

"Return to feudalism" said Winnipeg Labor MP Stanley Knowles in 1953.

"They've never lost a battle because they've never been in one," thundered Julian Fergusson, former Progressive Conservative MP for Simcoe North, at that time. Both he and Mr. Herridge are ex - Canadian Guardsmen.

"Degradation" of the other five regular infantry regiments in Canada, proclaimed the Canadian Labor Congress in 1953.

Designation of the guards as the premier Canadian infantry regiment was an "affront and insult to the other five regiments," Thus from the start the Canadian Guards have been unpopular ready - made reputation for snobbery and put - on "British" airs.

All these initial reactions—based on the guards' history mainly based as well as in Civvy Street —have died away because the guards did not indeed live up to turned out not to be that way at all. The words have been on "Canadian," not on "guards."

Off duty, the regiment logic is probably the most informal unit serving in Canada. In the officers' mess, all officers are on a first - name basis. Privates

RCAF OFFICER WILL COMMAND NORTH REGION

Biggest of Eight Areas in NORAD

OTTAWA (CP)—North American Air Defence Command has been able to compress its original 11 regions into eight, authoritative sources said today.

Of these eight, an RCAF officer will command one — the northern region—and RCAF officers will be vice-commanders in three others.

By far the biggest region in NORAD, a joint Canadian-United States command with headquarters at Colorado Springs, Colo., is the northern. It comprises the Canadian Arctic archipelago, Yukon and Northwest Territories, the northern parts of the western provinces, Quebec, Ontario and Labrador, and almost of New Brunswick and the eastern section of Ontario.

The region will be commanded from St. Hubert Que., but the headquarters will be moved to an underground site at Trout Lake near North Bay, Ont., by 1963.

The northern NORAD region will undergo the stiffest workout of the eight this weekend, in exercise Skyshield II. It will test the ability of that bomber interception exercise-to-day defence of the North American continent.

Regions in which RCAF officers are vice - commanders include No. 30 with headquarters at Truro Air Force Base, N.S. This region includes a corner of Maine, the eastern seaboard of southwestern Ontario, Ile stretches as far south as the State of Mississippi.

No. 26 region lakes in a section from Thunder Bay, including Toronto, but does not have an RCAF commander or vice-commander. Quebec province prises mainly New England and the U.S. eastern seaboard as far south as Georgia.

In each of the regions will be electronic control systems for the collection of all information from radar sites in the area. The northern NORAD' region's control system now is being built at Trout Lake. It will be commander of each region will be able to control whatever he his area no matter what their nationality.

Gay Pastores Death Penalty For Girl's Death

OTTAWA (CP)—In a rare recitation of a death penalty, Justice Gerald Cox of Canada Thursday allowed a Crown appeal to set aside a jail term of forte, convicted last March at Prince Rupert, B.C., of the manslaughter of a 24-year-old Indian girl.

The court granted an appeal by the attorney-general of B.C. against a judgment of Mr. Justice Wilson at appeal ordering a new trial for Lefort. After being convicted by a jury, the accused Lefortc had been, sentenced to be hanged on Dec. 15.

The Supreme Court of Canada judgment ordered a new date for the 30-year-old accused's execution to be fixed by a judge of the Supreme Court of B.C.

Lefort was convicted of the death of Thu Marcelle McKay, 24, whose body was found in the following a beating. At the time of the girl's death, Lefortc was living with the girl's mother.

First Missiles for Bomarc Base At North Bay Arrive Next Week

OTTAWA (CP)—The first Bomarc anti-aircraft missiles for the Bomarc Base at North Bay are scheduled to arrive next week, the RCAF reported today.

The RCAF announcement confirms an earlier statement that the early summer that launching equipment for the missiles would be delivered there and would be ready for operation by this fall.

The Canadian base yet been reached by the government on whether American nuclear warheads will be provided for the weapon.

There will be 36 Bomarc launching pads at the North Bay base and 36 more at the other Bomarc base at La Macaza, Que. The Bomarc base is not expected to be ready until early next year.

The RCAF officer said there will be no test firings of the Bomarc in Canada, with or without nuclear warheads.

The Bomarc bases will be controlled underground at Trout Lake, 250 shots into West Berlin today in a futile attempt to prevent their East German bloc escaping through the border fence.

The barrage was described by West Berlin police as the biggest since the border was closed Aug. 13.

The nine refugees, all young men, managed to ram a barbed-wire fence in a truck, but the vehicle stuck in the wire. The refugees leaped out and ran for safety with bullets whining over their heads.

A large group of police ran to the border as soon as the truck was in the wire and opened up with rifles and tommy-guns at the fleeing East Germans but they made good their escape.

The incident occurred in the American sector of the city. Neither West Berlin police nor American military authorities would comment on the fire.

SHOOT WARNINGS

East German police shouted warnings to the Americans and West Berlin police to keep away from the fence where the refugees' truck was stuck in the wire, but continued firing.

The East Germans kept shooting for about 15 minutes after the refugees had escaped.

Spokesmen of the U.S. military police arrived and were warned to stay away from the fences.

The East Berlin guards have been shooting almost daily along the inner Berlin border, bringing warnings from both the East and West sides of the danger of setting off the powder.

DRAG TRUCK FREE

The shooting stopped shortly after the East German police had dragged the truck free from the wire fence.

Including the nine refugees, a total of 20 East Germans escaped to West Berlin in the 24 hours ending at 6 a.m. Among them was one East German border guard.

The shooting came amid reports of a stepped-up East German drive to stop the flood of escape routes between East and West Germany.

East German authorities were reported combining their evacuation of areas close to the West German border.

Dutch Expel Reds for Flight At Airport

THE HAGUE (AP) — The Netherlands government is taking as yet undisclosed steps against Soviet Ambassador Pantelleimon K. Ponomarenko, for his part in an airport free-for-all with Dutch police.

A Dutch note to the Soviet Embassy Thursday ordered two other embassy officials to leave the Netherlands by Sunday. It charged that both had a hand in the fist fight that erupted at Amsterdam airport Monday during an argument over the return to Moscow of the wife of defecting Soviet scientist Alexei Golub.

Ponomarenko left for Moscow Thursday and told reporters he would lay his case before his superiors there. The Dutch said he "not only made no effort to calm down, but actually participated in it."

The Dutch note said the government planned to pursue complaints against the ambassador's Soviet subordinates. A spokesman declined to specify the steps the government might take against Ponomarenko. However, that the cabinet might demand Ponomarenko's expulsion. Soviet commercial attache S. W. Chibaev and press attache A. D. Popov were expelled. The Dutch accused Chibaev of being the first to use force at the airport and said Popov manhandled Dutch police.

The Dutch made one exception to Popov's statement at a cress conference that Dutch officials had kidnapped Golub.

Golub told reporters he had decided to seek political asylum in the West because he was denied religious freedom in the Soviet Union. The scientist, a biochemist and his wife were visiting the Netherlands with a party of Soviet tourists.

The child is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Brant, 105 Centre St., Belleville.

Referee Forum Proves Success

The Ontario Hockey Association's referees' forum conducted here last night proved a decided success, when officials from all parts of eastern Ontario attended.

The City Hall Council Chamber was filled with referees and linesmen from points as far as Kingston, as far west as Oshawa and as far north as Peterborough. A large number of Belleville officials and officers from the immediate area also attended.

Pat Patterson, referee-in-chief of the OHA, was in charge of the forum while others attending included Lorne Cook of the OHA and Doug Patterson of the Ontario Minor Hockey Association.

All phases of officiating were discussed. Rule changes and new rules got a thorough going over and emphasis was placed on the functions of officials.

Suspend Sentence

WHITBY (CP) — George Lorne Trae, 37, who missed a bird he was shooting at and wounded a man on a passing railway work car, Thursday, was placed on a two - year suspended sentence for using a loaded gun.

Trae's was the first conviction in Ontario County on this charge under a new provision of the Game and Fisheries Act.

Karl Evans Brewster of Belleville, a Canadian Pacific Railway employee, testified he was shot in the head on June 30.

Trae, using a friend's rifle, said he saw no car coming along the track before he fired at the bird on a fence near the tracks.

R. Freeman to Head Branch Arthritis, Rheumatism Bd.

Officers for the Belleville Branch of the Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society were installed at the annual meeting and banquet held in the Tabernacle United Church on Thursday evening at which time Phil Stone of Radio Station CHUM, Toronto, was the principal speaker.

Officers installed were: president, R. Freeman; vice-president, John Haig; secretary-treasurer, Lionel Hinds. Presidents of the Ladies' Auxiliary, Mr. A. W. Hums; medical advisory board chairman, Dr. James Loynes, Dr. H. Williamson; directors, Miss Hilda Collier, Mrs. W. Williams, Miss Gladys MacDonald, Mrs. E. Dodd, Mrs. Zimmerman, R. Walton, Dr. J. Stone, J. Lennox, Q.C., Stuart Robb and Mrs. John Haig. Past-president, R. David. Greetings were brought by the mayor, A. McLean Haig.

"There was a time in radio when the title, public service director, was a casual one. It was given to a person on staff who arranged the public service announcements." In my position I had time at it" said Mr. Stone.

He dealt with the trend in all media-radio, television and press is to give more time to public service and less to sales. The station owners and newspaper publishers are keenly aware that as Canada grows, so grows its welfare needs, and the public duty is to donate the very roots of our prosperity and expansion."

"The doors of every Canadian radio station are open to you. The press is happily ready to expand the brief messages into stories of human interest type features. You can use names to a greater extent and publish still pictures. I need hardly labor the point," he said, "you have seen examples of the type I've just mentioned."

"Personally, I have found being full time on public service a most stimulating experience. I am particularly proud I have become associated with the Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatic Society and I have been consistently amazed at the vitality and need in the Arthritis and Rheumatic diseases picture. I know that some of you know the story to the last word, but I am equally sure that many of you have not been completely enlightened to the facts."

"Today, more than a million Canadians suffer victims of arthritis — almost all of us in this room will get it, eventually".

Mr. Stone said, "It is a disease for which no cause or cure has been found. The story of arthritis really begins millions of years ago with the largest beasts that ever walk the earth — dinosaurs. Those 30-ton monsters were among the first arthritis victims. Their skeletons show how the disease wielded their huge bodies together. Its pain and crippling were experienced by the ancient Egyptians. The thickened joints, deformed fingers and hard-spurred bones of their mummies tell us that. And so does, down through the centuries, Though medical knowledge has grown steadily, arthritis has remained a mysterious malady which keeps on torturing new victims. Generation after generation its crippling hand goes on unchecked. Only in the last few years have we been able to do anything at all about it. Arthritis is not a single, simple disease, but a whole group with more than 100 different forms."

"Arthritis and rheumatic diseases have been neglected because most folk they were non-killers. Today there is growing realization that the ballief, by some leading investigators, The big challenge of arthritis, they say, is that the challenge is facing us here today — to become one of forts to "Stop Arthritis", said the speaker.

"Is there a cure for arthritis? Let me state flatly that there is no known cure for any of the many different forms of arthritis. This is the purpose of the society which is current in the field. Control of these diseases has been achieved in many cases.

"A cure tomorrow can only come from increased research today. Fortunately, there is something that each individual citizen can do about this widespread problem. Now is the time to join hands and defeat the myth that "nothing can be done". Something can be done. We can conquer arthritis through the fruits of past research.

"Personally," said Mr. Stone, "I'd like to do some thing about it and I'm going to do something about it. The Initials for the Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society are C.A.R.S., which said, aloud comes An automobile. And gentlemen of Belleville, I ask you to join me in driving CARS to the top."

During the past year the Quinte Branch of the Arthritis Rheumatism Society visited the shut-in patients in Prince Edward County, Madoc, Stirling and the Belleville district as often as possible.

"Many needed articles that were required for emergency nursing were provided. Two patients from this area are in the Rheumatic Disease Unit of the Queen Elizabeth Hospital in Toronto, and small remembrances are sent periodically by the Auxiliary. The Women's Auxiliary of the Hastings and Prince Edward counties Medical Society donated a radiant heat lamp and last night a donation of $500 was given to the Ontario Division of the Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society which will be applied to the deficit of their medical treasury.

Representatives from Kingston, Trenton and Prince Edward County were present at last night's meeting.

200 Volunteer Workers Will Be at Banquet

Some 200 volunteer workers for the Belleville United Appeal are expected to be on hand at the Quinte Secondary School this coming Monday evening for the kick-off banquet of the 1961 United Appeal campaign.

The banquet, which is being sponsored by four local firms—Walker Hardware, Bell "A" Co. Ltd., Rolul's Music, Camera and Records and Quinte Sporting Goods Ltd., will feature Norman A.-Ballard of the Toronto United Appeal as guest speaker.

Mr. Ballard, who is executive director of training for the Robert Simpson Co., has been employed by his firm to the Toronto United Appeal for its current campaign.

Entertainment, provided by Belleville Collegiate Staff Sergeant Reid, will also be featured during the program which commences at 6.30 p.m.

Montreal Police Guarding Bomb

MONTREAL (CP)—Three police officers stood guard around a large vacant lot in suburban St. Laurent Thursday and waited for a tiny home-made bomb to either explode or burn itself out.

The bomb, with dynamite sticks and an old alarm clock rigged to it, was carried—was discovered Thursday on the doorstep of Joseph Lamberti, a friend of Premier de Paul Fostertiany.

The bomb was discovered by Mrs. Lambert at about 2 p.m. She waited until her husband got home. He examined the package and called police, who took it two miles to a clearing.

Police Chief Leon Prieur of St. Francois said he has asked the RCMP assistance from Canadian army engineers.

"There is nothing they can do," he said, "I believe we have to shoot at the bomb to make it explode."

New Air Cadet Squadron Being Formed

TRENTON — A new Air Cadet squadron is being formed in Trenton. Len McGaughey, commanding officer of 413 Transport Wing of the RCAF Association, said today that recruiting would start immediately. The new squadron will be designated No. 413 and will be sponsored by the association.

Mr. McGaughey said that for the first year membership would be limited to 50 boys, but what is termed an "open squadron" will be formed from Trenton, Frankford, Stirling and Brighton. Membership is also eligible to enroll. Boys who have reached the age of 14 (or students in grade nine) may enroll. All drill instruction will be held at the Marine Hangar at RCAF Station, Trenton, through the courtesy of Base Commander, D. J. Williams, commanding officer of the unit.

The first parade will be held on Monday night, October 16, when enrollment starts. Each Monday will be parade night.

"The opportunities available to the boys are tremendous," said Mr. McGaughey. The boys will be provided with literature outlining these opportunities.

Mr. McGaughey said that 413 Wing had been working on this project for months, in co-operation with Don Douglas Whitley, vice-chairman of the Air Cadet League of Canada.

Mr. Whitley is now busy enrolling may contact Jack Radcliffe at Quinte Electronics on Dundas St. E., and they will be given enrollment certificates.

Lions Hear Zone Chairman Jack Boyle

TRENTON — Jack Boyle of Toronto, zone chairman for area Lions, was the speaker at last night's meeting of the Trenton Lions Club.

Mr. Boyle urged the Trenton club to "think big in its plans." He said that each Lion should work on club projects and that he or she should be prepared to ready to "take chances to achieve its aims.

"Remember, you're selling the world's greatest service club," he reminded his listeners. "Advertise your club; see that all club activities get in the newspaper and on radio and over TV. Each member has a job to do, but some are leaders and some are followers. Work together for the good of the club," he urged.

Mr. Boyle was introduced by Don Linton, vice-president of the Trenton club and thanked by Tom Bedford. Mr. Bedford said the membership in the Trenton club had excellent coverage in both local papers.

New members Harold Pearce and Norman McKay were inducted and presidential past-presidents Rose Fortier, assisted by a team of past presidents, Walter Wright, Belville Weir, Roly Whitley and V. F. Carswell.

Guests at last night's meeting were Jim Johns, Lions International Councillor of Frankford Ed Loucks, Frankford, district deputy governor; Murray Burke, secretary of the Napanee club; Ray Murray, Don Burke and Archie Hill.

Val Carswell was asked to fill out the year as Lion Tamer, replacing Cliff Robinson who has been transferred.

Marine Plant Being Repaired For Operations

TRENTON — On Thursday, Bruce Payne, secretary-treasurer of Outboard Marine Corporation of Canada, said that company workmen were engaged in rehabilitating the Warner Williams boat building plant at Trenton for the manufacture of boats. He said that a sprinkler system was being installed; broken glass replaced and cement work repaired.

The plant is also being rewired to some extent. Mr. Payne said that heavy equipment to be used in boat manufacture would be installed in the plant within a few weeks and that it was hoped manufacturing operations would commence shortly after the first of the year. Tenders have been called for the repair of the roof of the plant. Mr. Payne called out negotiations with Trenton comptroller O. W. Larry at the time the plant was purchased.

On Wednesday night, the office of the J. W. Wright Insurance Company at Frankford was entered and $200 stolen from a cash box which was kept in a desk drawer. Entry was effected by breaking a bathroom window. Chief Constable Bill McGeachy of Frankford is investigating the robbery.

The Frankford office is a branch of the Whitely Insurance Company. Yesterday, Mr. Whitely said that ordinarily, all money was removed from the office overnight, but that Wednesday had been an exception, and a costly exception at that.

IN MEMORIAM

ADAMS. — In loving memory of our son, Jack, who left us so suddenly on October 13th, 1960.
Sometimes it's hard to understand
Why God takes those we love best
In His wisdom God has planned
Beyond our powers to see.
Only time can heal our sadly grief
But it never will.
Without farewell he left us all,
To him we will always be dear
Would he our dearest wish, today,
Be granted, he'd be here.
—Mother and Dad.

ADAMS. — In loving memory of our son, Jack, who left us so suddenly on October 13th, 1960.
Today brings back sad memories
Of that sad and bitter hour
When we were cast upon our memories
To live
Just a year ago today.
We who loved you, sadly miss you
In the home you left behind
In our lonely hours of thinking,
Memory turns to you and dear
Time will pass and years roll by,
But we shall not forget.
As long as life and memory last,
We shall remember you
And pray that the world be was only true.
But all the world to you.
—Always remembered by Dad, Mom, Sandra and Debbie Ann.

ROBBRACK. — In loving memory of a dear son-in-law and brother, Ronald Raymond Robbrack, who died a year ago October 13th, 1960.
Just when his days seemed brightest
God called him from amongst us,
He was not ready,
Sadly missed, but God knows best.
—Inserted by Mr. and Mrs. R. Smith and family.

TORONTO (CP) — Industrials slumped and speculative interests were already during another morning trading today.

Canadian Dyno, which rose melodramatically Thursday on rumors of a rich copper strike, turned over 125,700 shares by 11 a.m. and advanced 11 cents to $1.33.

Lake Dufault was unchanged at $6.80 and Wiltsey-Coughlan, which has property adjacent to Dufault, gained ¼ cent and traded 6,700 shares.

Utilities and banks and financial institutions led the industrial markets in strength with advanced fractional falls predominant in both groups. In the former, BC Power, Trans-Canada, CPR, Consumers Gas and International Nickel all dropped in the ¼ to ½ range in moderate turnover.

Among banks, industrials fell .06 to 60.01, golds .57 to 57.39 and base metals .01 to 202.44. Western oils rose .06 to 97.68, and the 21 a.m. volume was 536,000 shares compared with 827,000 at the same time Thursday.

In the senior base metals list, Geco, Campbell Chibougamau, Nickel all gained to ¾, while Noranda and International Nickel all slipped to ¼, while Labrador lost ½ and Steep Rock five cents.

Gold trading was light with McIntyre a fraction ahead at a point.

In weak western oil trading, Hudson's Bay Oil and Pacific Petroleum both advanced a point, while Calgary and Edmonton and Home "A" each lost a point.

On Thursday speculative interest returned in full force with Canadian Dyno sculpturing most all other activity.

Canadian Dyno rose 48 cents to 81.46 on a volume of 286,055 shares on rumors of a rich copper strike.

Lake Dufault and Wiltsey-Coughlan, favorites of the last few days, were:

Lake Dufault and Wiltsey-Coughlan, favorites of the last few days, were:

Lake Dufault and Wiltsey-Coughlan, Quebec properties, three weeks, traded 305,813 and set lost 30 and 1½ cents.

Elsewhere the market advanced behind the speculative surge and almost all groups showed strong gains.

Papers, refining oils and utilities mainly responsible for the upward swing.

Among papers, Bathurst A and B, Abitibi, Price Brothers and Anglo Newfoundland were all ahead from the ¼ to 1¼ range in moderate turnover. Among utilities, Gatineau Power, Consolidated Lakes Power, International Utilities and BC Telephone all rose as much as a point.

On golds, industrials gained .44 to 57.96, base metals .67 to 202.45 and western oils .07 to 97.69. Volume was 1,026,000 shares compared with 3,309,000 Thursday.

Golds in a two-sided market strong with Noranda, Labrador, Opemiska, Ventures and Falconbridge up from ¼ to a point. Gold trading was light with Dome and Hollinger both up ¼ to ¾.

Quinte Chapter Of Engineers Is Organized

The Quinte Chapter of the Association of Professional Engineers of Ontario held its organizational meeting yesterday evening at the Shrine Club with 38 district professional engineers in attendance.

Mr. D. S. Simmons of Toronto, immediate past president of the Association, spoke at some length on the necessity for the formation of chapter organization, which the Associate is in fact starting out as an endeavor to more accurately serve the interests of professional engineers throughout the province.

The guest speaker also outlined a number of services and advantages which the local chapter could provide for professional engineers in the Quinte district.

In addition to Mr. Simmons, Mr. Patrick Ryan, also of the Ontario association, spoke briefly on the mechanics of organization.

During the course of the evening's program both a provisional executive which will function until the first executives is held next spring, and the chapter's constitution were approved.

Chairman of the provisional executive is Edward Rickard of Northern Electric. City Engineer Malcolm Turnbull is the vice-chairman with Mrs. Mary Ubsha and Laverge Coles serving as treasurer and secretary respectively. Acting as executive members will be Eric Alderary of Trenton, Alan Hemmings of Picton and Tony Janitsch of Stephens-Adamson.

The next meeting of the new chapter will be in late November at which time there will be a discussion on the construction of the current engineering associations so that there will be but one body representing professional engineers across Canada rather than the present three organizations.

Macaulay Wants Ontario To Concentrate on Trade, Production and Expansion

WINDSOR—Immediate establishment of an Ontario Economic Council to concentrate on production, trade and industrial expansion in Ontario was advocated by Energy Resources Minister Robert W. Macaulay here. Meeting delegates from electrical ridings in this highly industrialized area, before the convention which will select a new leader of the Ontario Progressive Conservative Party, Mr. Macaulay, one of the candidates, said: "Should I become party leader I have no intention of presiding over a stagnant and declining economy."

Membership of the Ontario Economic Council, he said, would consist of four senior ministers, headed by the premier, the provincial treasurer, minister of commerce and development and minister of agriculture.

The council would be added representatives from industry, labor and agriculture, the Ontario Association of Mayors and Reeves and the deputy ministers of the four ministries. A highly competent research staff would be at the council's disposal, said the council, he said.

THREE MAIN ASPECTS

The Council, he continued, would concentrate on three main "aspects of our economy on which our continuing prosperity largely depends." They are:

"Production - and the steps we must take to improve quality and reduce costs in order to maintain and improve our position in the highly competitive world market.

"Trade: What new measures must be taken to actively expand the markets for our manufactured and agricultural products in Commonwealth countries, South America, Europe, Asia and Africa. Should we establish a permanent marketing branch for industrial trade and commercial produce in the Department of Commerce and Development?" he asked.

INDUSTRIAL EXPANSION

What types of industrial development should receive priority crate on in the next five years in order to get the best utilization and incentives for capital investment? What steps should be taken to effect a better co-ordination between the Department of Commerce and Development and the Department of Economics. I should also submit to the Council for study and consideration my proposal calling for the setting up of a multi-million dollar Ontario Development Fund to assist in the establishment of new industries in specified areas of the province," he said.

After a thorough examination of the three questions asked for study, he continued, "the council would then submit its findings and recommendations to the cabinet and the legislature a number of goals designed to maintain and expand Ontario's economy over a period of the next five years, the success of which the support of our people could be rallied.

"The five-year period has a very special significance for us since it would be climaxed by Canada's Centennial.

GREAT CAPACITY

"Let us face up to the fact that Ontario has the world's most modern productive machine and the capacity for turning out torrents of goods", said Mr. Macaulay, "it should be borne in mind that 60 percent of all products manufactured in Canada are made and sold in Ontario. The well-being and happiness of Ontario's 6,000,-000 people and of the Canadian people as a whole depends on keeping that productive machinery in motion.

ROBERT W. MACAULAY

We must maintain our present levels of production and expand. Production and trade are the lifeblood of our economy, while industrial expansion will be the main source of the 60,000 new jobs required annually to meet the demands of our growing labor force. If we neglect or slacken in our efforts, we face the danger of stagnation and ruin . . . I am thoroughly convinced that our people stand ready to make the supreme effort required of them. I am equally convinced they will rally with enthusiasm to keep Ontario's economy moving forward.

"It goes without saying," he continued, that in carrying out this program we must at all times work in concert with the federal level of government which is now so actively engaged in adjusting our trade practices to meet the conditions of a rapidly changing world."

Mr. Macaulay's statement was contained in a letter he had addressed to G. Davis, M.P.P. (Ft. Peel), chairman of his campaign committee, after Mr. Davis had asked for clarification of a previous statement in which the Energy Resources Minister announced he would seek to "promote a closer partnership between government, industry, agriculture and labor" for the purpose of improving stimulating trade and expanding industry

New Parking Signs Installed By Authority

New parking signs directing motorists to municipal parking lots are being installed by the Belleville Traffic Authority.

Parking Authority chairman Clarence R. Thompson noted that close to 25 of the new signs are being erected in different parts of the city with the view of directing motorists to the municipally-owned off-street parking lots on Pinnacle Street and at the rear of Front Street stores.

Depending on the location, the new signs bear arrows directing motorists to the parking lots.

The signs are being erected by the city public works department.

Drive Nets $4,911.78

News of the fund drive for Retarded Children highlighted the public meeting of the association held Tuesday evening at the School for Retarded Children on 391 John Street, with the president, Alvin Parkhurst, presiding. Speaking briefly, he expressed to the citizens of the district and area for the donation of $4,911.78 received from Frank Folliwell, general chairman of the campaign for directing the canvass of the business establishments now being carried on.

Mrs. R. Johnston, chairman of the "house to house" division of the campaign thanked the general chairman, Major Carter of Salvation Army Citadel Corps and the 300 canvassers. Thanks also to radio station CJ.H.Q. and to Mr. Ralph Bowerman for publicity chairman of the committee.

A Cub Pack will be organized next month under the supervision of Mrs. Jack Ward, Cub Master. There are seven boys at the school who are eligible to join a Cub Pack.

Classes for retarded adults are being held each week on Thursday afternoon at the school with Mrs. L. Gibson instructing the four adults enrolled.

ICE SKATES NEEDED

Ice skates are greatly needed at the Belleville School for Retarded Children, 391 John St., Belleville. Anyone having a pair of skates of any size not being used, please phone WO 8-5109 or WO 8-6992 and the skates will be picked up.

A pleasant close for the meeting was the showing of 35 m.m. slides taken by Mr. T. A. Macbold and his wife during a recent trip to Bermuda.

The next public meeting will be held on Tuesday, November 7, 8 p.m. at the School for Retarded Children, 391 John St., Belleville. Everybody welcome. Workshop in the Peterborough School for Retarded Children will be heard. All are invited to attend.

88-Pound Woman Describes Life of Marital Strife

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) — A verdict was expected today in the trial of Leslie Albert Steinke, 33, on a charge of capital murder in the shooting of his husband, Edward Robert, 31.

Defence evidence was completed Thursday and the final day of the trial, Mr. Justice F. G. Morrison was to deliver his charge today to the Supreme Court jury before it retired to consider a verdict.

In her testimony Thursday Mrs. Steinke, who weighs 88 pounds, described a life of marital strife punctuated with beatings by her 200 - pound husband. She said she married Steinke when she was 15 and he was 17. They have five children, four of whom are living.

Steinke, she said, started drinking about four years after their marriage. When he was not drinking he was a "different personality."

TAKES OVERDOSES

Once when she became pregnant she said Steinke beat her and beat her and tried to make her lose the baby. There was an overdose of sleeping pills "because I couldn't stand the stress and strain any more."

Mrs. Steinke said her husband came home drunk April 13 seeking a cheque she had put away so he could go out and drink again. She said he attacked her and struck her with a knife and a 13 - year - old son into indecent position.

On April 13 her husband came home drunk again, Mrs. Steinke said, and demanded the cheque. The husband then left the house and returned with a 12-gauge shotgun and placed it in the kitchen. She braced the back door with two large logs. Early in the morning her husband telephoned to say he was coming to Belleville, he has testified established by one year's experience in the field of Real Estate Sales. He is now in the process of completing a course in Canadian Business Management through the International Correspondence School. In making this announcement the Firm has indicated that Mr. Bate has been added to his Sales Staff so that the Firm can properly handle and service an expanding Sales Program.

RAYMOND J. BATE

Mr. W. J. McCormick, President of W. J. McCormick Realty Ltd., has announced the appointment of Raymond J. Bate to their Sales Staff. Mr. Bate originally resided in the Belleville - Trenton area, and received his early sales training with the Bata Shoe Company. He was later appointed manager of their Yonge Street Store in Toronto. Since his return to Belleville, he has gained considerable by one year's experience in the field of Real Estate Sales. He is now in the process of completing a course in Canadian Business Management through the International Correspondence School. In making this announcement the Firm has indicated that Mr. Bate has been added to his Sales Staff so that the Firm can properly handle and service an expanding Sales Program.

School Library Circulation Up 1,580 Books

Despite the fact school libraries were not opened until the last week in the month, library circulation in Belleville during September increased by 1,580 books over the same period last year.

Total circulation for the month at the Corby Public Library was 18,934 books.

Opening of the libraries in seven public schools and the preparation of 32 boxes of books for classroom use were the major library undertakings of the month, according to Librarian Miss Olive Delaney. The hospital library resumed on September 11th.

At the recent 39th National Marketing Conference of the H. Corby Distillery, this firm presented the Corby Library with a complimentary record player and radio. The machine is being used by the children in story hour, for language courses and for student "listening periods" and for entertainment plays. The occasional concert of recorded music is also being planned.

To All Members of Affiliated Unions:

At this time of year I would like to convey a message to all members of Organized Labor in Belleville and District, on behalf of the Belleville United Appeal.

The Executive Members of the Belleville and District Labor Council wholeheartedly endorse the work of the United Appeal. We urge the Members of Affiliated Local Unions to give a warm response financially and morally to this worthy appeal.

Once a year we are asked to give freely so that the less fortunate may receive the help so necessary to relieve the hopeless situation in which they find themselves.

We can never assess the value in a monitory sense of building character in youth, of helping the sick, bedridden with arthritis, the blind who walk in dark world, the people of common disasters etc.

We who are fortunate to have steady employment at a decent living wage and are of sound body, should be only too happy to give freely to such a worthy cause.

We urge the Members of Organized Labor to support the United Appeal through pay roll deductions wherever this is possible.

You, the Members of Organized Labor have been generous in past appeals of this nature, we can do even better this year, let us all help to raise the needed $80,000.00 necessary for next year's operations.

With your support, the eleven agencies which constitute the Belleville United Appeal shall be able to fulfill their responsibilities for the ensuing year of 1963.

Fraternally yours,
Arthur F. Whitehead

The Medicine — As Predicted

Mr. Donald C. MacDonald, who has been leader of the Ontario CCF, has now been elected leader of the Ontario New Democratic Party. Common courtesy, besides a sneaking admiration for his unlagging aggressiveness and never-failing persistence, demands that we pause to congratulate him before proceeding to endeavor to tear a strip off his hide. In the latter enterprise, if not in the former, we are acutely aware that we shall be acting in just the manner in which Mr. MacDonald would expect. We would like to disappoint him, but as he has attempted to tear a strip off our editorial hide, we feel it is only right and fair that we should pay him the tribute of caring enough to reciprocate.

Mr. MacDonald, in his address to the New Democratic Party convention at Niagara Falls, said one aim of the party would be to counter the propaganda "of big business interests and their editorial partners in pitting farmer against labor, city folk against the farmer and middle-class and professional against the industrial worker."

Now Mr. MacDonald may expect us to vigorously deny that we are engaged in any such activity as "pitting" one group of Canadians against another — and we could deny it with a clear conscience.

However, we prefer to use another approach. Does Mr. MacDonald, by this reference to big business and its editorial partners "pitting" one group against another, mean to infer that there are no real clash of interests between these groups? If so, this is a revealing confession. Mr. MacDonald is a socialist, but if he believes that there is no real clash of interests between farmer and labor, city folk and the farmer, middle-class and professional people and the industrial worker, he is certainly no believer in the Marxian theory of the class struggle.

One does not have to be a Marxist to accept the fact that there are very real clashes of interest between different groups in our free enterprise economy. In this respect, at least, the Marxist seems to us to be much nearer to the truth than the dream-world socialists who maintain that everything would be sweetness and life did not big business interests promote misunderstanding and strife between different groups, in order to divide and rule them.

We hope we shall never be caught "pitting" farmer against labor, city folk against farmer, middle-class and professional people against the industrial worker — but we also hope we shall never be caught denying that the short-term selfish interests of these groups do, with great frequency, conflict. It is this conflict of interests which causes many of our most serious economic troubles. If Mr. MacDonald intends to devote his energies to the healing of these differences, to the discovery of compromises which will encourage a spirit of give-and-take between the groups in the interest of a common advance, he is to be applauded and we wish him well. We think, though, that we ought to warn him any progress in this direction will only be attained after frank recognition of existing conflicts of interests — and certainly not by pretending that apparent conflicts are merely mirages painted by big business interests and their editorial partners.

A Hard Lesson

Cuban Government leaders are stepping up the flow of charges that the U.S. is training forces for a new invasion of Cuba. In Washington the U.S. state department has denounced these charges as "ridiculous" but this U.S. denial is being disregarded not merely by Castro and his followers but by much of the outside world. Since Havana has been charging with rumors for weeks, and since forecast "D-days" come and go without incident, Washington's failure to gain credence for its denial may seem strange. Can a man cry "Wolf, wolf" when there is no wolf and still be believed? Has something happened since Aesop's day? U.S. officials may ponder in this fashion. But there is a reason for Castro's ability to get a hearing.

The U.S. is being taught a hard lesson that once a man has been caught in a deceptive act, it is not easy for him to re-establish his reputation for veracity. No matter how far Castro's charges may be from the truth, the fact that the U.S. once denied similar charges, and that on that occasion the charges were true, means that present U.S. protests of innocence fail to convince many.

If one only wished to be happy, this could be easily accomplished; but we wish to be happier than other people, and this is always difficult, for we believe others to be happier than they are. — Baron de la Montesquieu.

Strictly Personal

A Person's Worth Does Not Change

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

No other article I have written in a year has evoked so much comment as my recent piece on "dollar and cents," hundreds of readers wrote in to tell me how much they liked it; it has been widely reprinted, and used as a text for many sermons in the last few weeks.

I mention this not by way of boasting, but to point out that most individual writing is deeply concerned with his personal and social "character — he knows the kind of person he wants to be, but he doesn't know how to reach this goal.

As a corollary to my previous piece, may I suggest that one of the impediments to becoming an "actor" instead of a mere "reactor" is what I call the "pinkey system" of evaluating people, including oneself.

On the pinkey system we go up when someone else goes down, and we go down when someone else goes up. We have no inner stability, because our emotional judgments shift according in relation to the outside world.

If I meet a man who writes better than I do, the fact does not diminish my talents. I still have exactly what I had before — no more and no less. His own gifts do not devalue mine, nor do mine devalue his, except in his own mind.

Yet most of us judge ourselves on this false relativistic shifting. If we meet someone richer, we feel poorer; someone handsomer, we feel uglier; someone more gifted, we feel tongue-tied. If we are up, we are down.

Conversely, most of us cannot feel comfortable unless we have a pathetic inferior to patronize only by their lowliness — if he is quiet, I am handsomer; if he is ignorant, I am richer; if he is ineffectual with women, I am a Casanova.

Those who have a tremendous need to depreciate others are doing it out of insecurity and feel genuinely superior, but because this is not real they can never achieve any emotional parity with the world. Unless others are made to feel inferior, these people cannot feel even normal.

But human society is not a pulley system. Each person has his own value, his own place, his own gifts and his own limitations. A pretty woman is no less pretty because a beautiful one enters the room; I am no poorer because I am lunching with a millionaire. My own writing does not become despicable when I am reading Shakespeare.

Things remain what they were; only our opinions of them change. To sit and wait passively to react, implies the acceptance of God's power, but not the knowledge that only He is the ultimate judge of our real worth.

Make It Dear To Sell More

A Department of Agriculture booklet on raising geese offers a glimpse of what producers behind the rising cost of living.

The booklet admits that for a generation geese have not been very popular with Canadian consumers. Because they have been unpopular, few have been raised.

The innocent among us might think that if geese are unpopular the few that are raised should be sold cheaply and that if they are sold cheaply they might become popular, the price of meat and other poultry being what it is.

Not at all. The thing to do is to package them attractively and sell them "as a luxury or novelty item at premium prices."

At a meeting of the City Council in committee on Thursday evening a recommendation was introduced respecting the payment of approximately $20,000 of profits in the possession of the Utilities Commission which had been under discussion. It is proposed that these funds will be returned to the Corporation and the building program laid over till after the war. The resolution was passed unanimously by the members.

Hurd; Treasurer — Percy Ranson; Warden — W. J. Mackenzie; Conductor — R. J. Goodfellow; Outside Guard — George Connor; Inside Guard — F. C. Fairman.

Prince Edward and Hastings Counties' tomato and grape growers wrote finis to a million dollar harvest yesterday. For the first time in a decade, canning factories stated they had "enough" before the black frosts put an effective quietus on these important canning crops. Farmers rushed preparations to gather the scarlet harvest. They worked twenty-four hours a day. Farmers were aided by high school students, city people and transient labor. Corn, likewise was an excellent crop, especially from a standpoint of quality.

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

A THRILLING CONVICTION

From the beginning of the Christian era devoted adherents of Christianity have been waiting for the return of the Lord. The New Testament both encourages and commands them to watch and wait.

Great importance is made in the twentieth chapter of Revelation to "a thousand years." Amazingly enough not all those watching and waiting for the Lord's return are called millennialists!

The time-and nature of the Lord's return is a type of Christian doctrine which readily arouses differences of opinion and sometimes controversy. Yet there is no reason why this should be. We all believe that Jesus will someday return, for he made it plain to his disciples that he would. But we do not know when he will return. We are simply told to watch and wait.

As the disciples looked steadfastly toward heaven during our Lord's ascension, two angels mildly rebuked them for this: "Why stand ye gazing up into heaven? This same Jesus which is taken up from you into heaven shall so come into like manner as ye have seen him go into heaven." (Acts 1:11).

The time and manner of our Lord's return is wholly in God's hands. We are daily to be filled with the thrilling expectation of His return. We are to live as if he might come at any moment, and we are always to be ready.

The question is not when He will come but how. He will find us living our lives when He does come.

It is all there in Kipling and Shakespeare, and in the two thousand members in between. Around the world, in those outposts the sun never sets, manage to get away from tea and toddies and people were quietly and according to the dictates of good form. The playing fields of Eton turned out in the oddest places, and the crack of the cricket bat was heard in many a puzzled land. Americans have succeeded in littering innumerable places with swimming pools and air conditioners but somehow it isn't the same.

So if those asses investigating our way of life had better not say so. But we are confident they will not find, for our every day life is hard and tedious but worth while. For it is true that history sometimes repeats itself as farce, farces can be uproariously good fun.

Cannot Blame Govt.

Know Little About Noise

Vancouver Sun

Our civilization may well go down in history as the Age of Noise, but a resolution before the Union of B.C. Municipalities stresses that we know very little about this major plague of our times.

North Vancouver complains, in a resolution to be discussed at the union's convention next week, that the Motor Vehicle Act provisions governing noise are vague almost to the point of being unenforceable.

Research in the literature of noise and acoustics shows this is only to be expected.

Noise has nowhere yet been adequately defined, let alone categories noise, but only by the opinions of those who hear it and don't like it. A current announcement by the RCAF in relation to muffling jet engines' attempts to give facts and figures to the engine noise, but it is unintentionally misleading because existing ratings of noise are subject to any of a number of different interpretations.

The RCAF's releases rates a whisper at 30 decibels, normal conversation at 65. Other scales give them as 20 and 60 decibels. Loud thunder has been rated at 115 decibels and a jet engine at a quarter mile at mile at 140.

But the layman the decibel system is confusing in itself. The decibel is not a unit, but is logarithmic scale. A 20 decibel 100 decibels is not 10 times as loud as a 10-decibel whisper, but 100 million times as loud.

The importance of noise is that much modern city and industrial noise approaches the 120 decibel level at which pain can become feeling and pain that way.

Even much below that level long exposure can have serious nervous and physical effects.

Jet noise at 140 decibels is 100 times as high decibel pain and injury level.

As the RCAF states, "it can damage body tissues, interfere with the senses, impair brain functions and even trip aircraft circuits."

The cumulative effect of noise far beyond the pain which can never been properly measured, but it has been blamed for the jangled nerves, the impaired hearing, nervous diseases and nervous breakdowns. North Vancouver resolution calls attention to one aspect of modern living that needs much more investigation and research than it now receives.

Noise is a continuous and damaging "fallout" on the human ear, against which no one has designed an adequate shelter.

Ask Double That Needed

From Saturday Night

We are amused by all the fuss which a Globe and Mail reporter aroused by his story in his paper's front page recently about manpower wastage in the Armed Forces. Some of the cocktail party conversation up he sauced reading of Board had cut this down to half "as a result of the new disposition of the Finance Minister."

The reporter obviously knows very little of the well established military rule: Ask for twice what you need or think you can get just a little more than you actually expect.

But his innocence was shown ed in the wide-eyed statement that we had "more than 50 per cent of the total in the armed forces — — in logistics (the Canadian word for supply, administration and training, leaving less than half available for a fighting role."

He then claimed that in the U.S. Army the figure of combatants was 33 per cent or less. The fact is that in the United States army only almost 70 per cent of the total strength engaged in logistics (their word).. administration and supply." The scaling down to 33 per cent is thus highly debatable to anyone who knows a modern army. It is completely derided by the U.S. authorities. Ask the cold anyone in the Pentagon. (Ask all places, do?)..

There is waste in our armed forces. There are unconscionable sums of trained personnel in unimportant jobs. But the Glassco commission will do a better job of estimating it than such unbattle-trained reporting horses.

To Your Good Health

Parents Should Never Push Their Tot Into Fighting

By Joseph C. Molner, M.D.

"Dear Dr. Molner: I have a boy, four and a half years old. He is big for his age and weighs 35 pounds. He is very soft-hearted and would rather give away all his toys rather than see some other child with none.

"My husband thinks because he is so big he should be able to fight every child on the block and punishes him when he refuses to fight back.

"He says I spoil him too closely, and should let him go more by himself.

"I think the boy has plenty of time to learn to fight and be cut by himself. If you say I am wrong, then I will listen to my husband and let him loose. — Mrs. T. B."

At four and a half he has plenty of time to learn to fight. What disturbs me most of all is the father pushing the boy. I can't help voicing the fear that it may lead to a problem of frustration on the child's part. He is too young yet to be punished for not fighting back.

The youngster's generosity may, of course, be a fault. This generosity is a fine trait, but it can go too far. Keeping track of and taking care of one's possessions is a good trait, too. But it is just as important to accept reasonable balance. A good trait carried too far can be a fault.

However, children of the average normally begin to fight when the situation demands it. I should not be encouraged to fight just because he is big for his age — to take advantage of his size, if you care to put it that way.

In short, I agree with you.

"Dear Dr. Molner: You may think I am silly or tell me to be thankful that my child is healthy, but I feel ill and know that a tall girl misses out on a lot of fun. Here I've heard that a person's growth depends on the pituitary gland and, if a person receives certain shots it can control their growth. Is that so? — K. S."

Yes, like think you are silly, because the pituitary is proper functioning condition is nothing with normally functioning glands exerts trouble. By the way, how tall is your husband? If he's of average height your daughter may be shorter than you are. Heredity is the main factor.

"Dear Dr. Molner: Can our street we are continually fighting pinworms because of neighbor who will do nothing about it. Yet she feels hurt because we have told her we will not allow our children to play with here. — Mrs. J. S."

Recollection from playmates is common — if others in your neighborhood have been checked. Are you sure the neighbor kids harbor worms? If they do, it is not unlikely that your child is responsible in not caring for her own children, not to mention yours.

I'm being ultra-cautious in this case, but it is a great believer in being sure about what we are our selves before we lay the blame on others.

Pinworm infection comes from one source: Almost invisible eggs which are swallowed. The eggs which are swallowed. Some are discharged, and a few are eggs swallowed.

Untreated playmates with pinworms do leave a trail of eggs which, if they are picked up and swallowed, start the whole misery cycle over again. Untreated playmates are a real menace. He doubly sure (if say!) before you blame the neighbor. But if keeping the kids apart puts an end to the trouble, then you'll know.

Popular Program by Golden Curtain Quartet Wins Audience

By EUGENE LANG

Few in number were the upturned seats in the Collegiate Auditorium as the regulars of many years standing filed in with the newcomers to usher in the 1961-62 series of musical events by welcoming the debut performance of the Golden Curtain Quartet which appeared here last evening. These four very talented young singers are all prize-winning artists of the Metropolitan Auditions that are held annually to cull the finest up-and-coming singers from the scores of vocalists who compete in this coveted contest. The singers who appeared here last evening have varied backgrounds in opera, musical comedy, oratorio, recital, radio and television and have made names for themselves individually in various roles that they have starred in from these related fields of the musical arts. Lucille Kaller, soprano, and Louise Pearl, mezzo-soprano, along with Robert Moulson, tenor, and Armand McLane, baritone, made up this entertaining quartet that presented a program that featured some of the most popular excerpts from the realms of opera, operetta and musical comedy.

The program was so arranged that the voices were not only heard individually in quartet entries and duets but also individually, so that the respective merits of each singer could be fully realized as to their vocal accomplishment, quality of tonal timbre and intensity of dramatic expression. In the concerted numbers the voices blended harmoniously and with a clarity that earned careful appreciation from the part of each singer. Well known quartets by Verdi, von Flotow and Lerner-Loewe were followed by appreciative applause from the audiences.

In the solo offerings all contrants choice familiar arias that could not fail to please. Mr. Moulson's "Che gelinda manlar" from "La Boheme" and Mr. McLane's "Largo al Facotum" from "The Barber of Seville" were both given traditional conviction. Miss Pearl's "Habanera" and Coquelin's from "Carmen" wrested more from these arias than did Miss Kaller in her "Doll Song" from "Tales of Hoffman" which did not seem too much in character with her voice.

Following intermission the second half of the program was made up of a potpourri of selections from the operettas and musical comedies of this era. Here all voices came forth with their best, be it in solo or ... offerings, and their appeal was attested to by the thunderous applause that greeted each song.

Very suitable and relaxed accompaniments were arrived at by Mr. Edward Shick, the pianist, who completed the keyboard balance to the various vocal interventions.

ARE HELD OVER

The Campaign chairmen, Mrs. Ralph Ketcheson and Mrs. Ann Berney, wish to announce that the Community Concert Association is sold out for the 1961-62 series. They wish also to express their appreciation to all Community Concert workers and the public who so generously co-operated. A waiting list is now being compiled for the next series. Anyone wishing to submit names for this waiting list is asked to contact Mrs. Berney, 39 Franklin E. Moore, by phoning WO 2-1985 for inclusion on next year's series of concerts.

Six Bands Accept Invitation To Participate in Parade

Deputy Fire Chief "Warpy" O'Brien advised the committee members of the Santa Claus parade at Wednesday night's meeting that to date six bands have accepted the invitation to participate in the Santa Claus parade being held on December 2. They are the Hasty Pee's, Army and Navy, Cobourg Legion, No. 6 Repair Depot, Kingston Grenadiers and the Salvation Army. Mr. O'Brien stated there were still several bands he had not heard from as yet.

The float committee under the chairmanship of Ted Poole, advised committee members there were 15 wagons available for use as floats in the parade.

Previous to the meeting, the committee members were shown a color movie film of the 1960 Santa Claus parade by Mr. O'Brien, followed by a black and white movie filmed of the 1959 parade. The black and white film is commissioned each year and is made available to any charity organization that wishes to borrow it.

After a lengthy discussion, it was decided to invite three independent judges, one from The Ontario Intelligencer, one from CJBQ radio station and one senior officer from RCAF Station Trenton to judge the parade. Judging will be confined to the float and walking personnel. There will also be three honorable mentions for each class which will be published in the Ontario Intelligencer.

Belleville Senior Citizens requested through Mr. O'Brien that they be included in the parade in some capacity, possibly on a float singing Christmas carols.

Chairman Chief Gerald Vance advised committee members that he had ordered 15,000 miniature chocolate bars to be distributed to children on parade day. A. Reid brought up the question of a theme for the parade and it was decided to leave it to the float contributors, most of whom would be representing a nursery rhyme.

A discussion was held on the subject of insurance for the parade and members were advised that a representative from the Lorne McDougall Agency would be present at the next meeting to advise on, and discuss the situation.

The float committee authorized the purchase of $150 worth of aluminum foil for the decoration of floats. It was decided that the secretary should write the mayor and the chairman of the traffic committee, advising them of the parade, giving details of plans and asking for their co-operation.

The route of the parade will remain the same as previous years, down Front Street to Dundas, up Pinnacle Street and back to No. 2 Firehall.

Tag committee members are having collecting boxes and tags prepared for November 17 and 18. They will be holding a meeting on Wednesday, Oct. 18 at 8 p.m. at the fire hall. Anyone interested in selling tags one day or both is asked to contact Mrs. Miller at WO 8-9702.

It was suggested that there was a possibility of securing free parking space and bus services. A committee was formed to discuss the matter.

The next regular meeting of the Santa Claus parade committee will be held Wednesday, October 25, 7.30 p.m., at No. 2 Firehall.

Roberts Attacks Proposal Made By Wintermeyer

KITCHENER (CP) — Attorney-General Roberts said Thursday that if purchases of less than $2 were exempt from Ontario's three-per-cent sales tax, the extra revenue would be small.

The attorney-general argued Mr. Wintermeyer of misinforming the public in claiming the $25 exemption would produce $115,000,000 in revenue compared with the $150,000,000 expected with the present 17-cent exemption.

"The $10,000,000 to $15,000,000 that would actually be collected would be split by the city. This scheme would scarcely be worth the bookkeeping the courts involved," he said.

The proposal was the Liberal leader's first real announcement since the party hired its "every lower brain trust" to advise Mr. Wintermeyer on fiscal policy, Mr. Roberts said. "It will be a long time before the public sees the big kind of financier."

The attorney-general renewed his attack on the proposed checkoff of union members' fees for the Democratic Party. He advised "sensible" leaders in the NDP to think twice before introducing a measure leading to "single-class government with compulsory membership."

Military Places Roadblocks In Path of Program to Give Communists Abundant Life

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
Associated Press News Analyst

The lengthy shadow of the Soviet military will hover about the 22nd Soviet Communist congress next week as it takes up a draft economic program advertised as heralding an abundant life for Soviet people within 10 years.

There are signs that the military has placed roadblocks in the path of the program, which the Communists call a prospective "fatal blow" to the Western way of life.

Premier Khrushchev has put up an extremely tough front for the last year.

Only recently according to reliable sources, Khrushchev told the West bluntly indirectly that he opposes war but that he does not fear that power for the aggrandizement of his own nation.

A TIGHTROPE?

The leads to suspicion that Khrushchev is now tightrope and that the Berlin crisis was a necessary one for him, dictated by urgent needs to release pressures from the career military and the U.S.S.R.

Only a year ago, the Khrushchev plan to demobilize 250,000 officers and hundreds of thousands of men from a conventional armed force was given great propaganda support. The manpower and investment bled were to go into grandiose programs for developing vast areas of the U.S.S.R.

Indications are that the officers didn't buy it. The Berlin crisis provided the excuse for revoking demobilization orders for beefing up conventional forces again, for resuming nuclear tests.

Pro - congress propaganda justified speculation that career marshals, generals and admirals have served notice on the party that the military's entrenched position is not suspendable in any measure for the benefit of economic schemes.

IS UNDER PRESSURE

Khrushchev appears to be tugged in two directions. Apparently he wants to go down in history as the man who started the U.S.S.R. "building communism." But he also is under pressure to push the territorial expansion of the Communist movement.

The two are contradictory. War expansion he needs an enormous military installation whose costs inhibit investment in the home development program.

If the military is satisfied for the time being — and chances are it is — Khrushchev probably will be permitted to let the Berlin crisis ease for a while, so he can make an attempt to get his program on the road.

Full Medical Care Given Jury's Verdict

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — A coroner's jury decided Wednesday that Hermyle Lalonde, 34, a suspect in the $232,200 Havelock bank robbery, died in Peterborough County Jail Oct. 5 of a heart condition and that jail staff carried out the full medical care prescribed for him.

The jury recommended that prisoners requiring medical care should be segregated in a proper ward which "appears to be lacking in the Peterborough County Jail."

Lalonde was one of five men charged with the armed robbery Aug. 31.

Dr. B. W. Hyatt, Peterborough Civic Hospital pathologist, testified that Lalonde had a condition of the heart that led him to believe he died of a coronary occlusion, similar to coronary thrombosis. Dr. Hyatt said pills Lalonde had with him when arrested would have had no effect on the occlusion.

12 Witnesses Tell Tales Of Kickbacks From Govt.

By JOHN YORSTON

QUEBEC (CP) — The Salvas royal commission has adjourned until next week after hearing 12 witnesses tell tales Thursday of kickbacks received under the former Union Nationale government.

The 13 witnesses—including a defeated UN candidate, a teacher, a farmer, salesmen, a lieutenant in Quebec City police commissioner's office, Quebec City and provincial government employees — mentioned the names of three party bigwigs in their testimony.

Several said they received cheques directly from UN Treasurer Gerard Martineau or in the mail through his intervention. Others said they were members of election teams of the party's interim leader Antonio Talbot and Armand Maltais, legislature member for Quebec East and former cabinet minister. Another mentioned J. D. Begin, the party's chief organizer.

LAST GOOD MONEY

A Quebec City teacher said he had worked for the UN in the lower St. Lawrence region in two elections and that he had received $2,115 in kickbacks "for services rendered to the party."

"What party?" asked government lawyer Georges Pelletier, QC.

"The Union Nationale."

Eugene F. Noel, defeated UN candidate in Quebec West during the 1956 election, said "He risked" himself in politics. He received a total of $18,000 in kickbacks which he considered "as political sub s c r i p tions." Noel said he got some of his cheques directly from Mr. Martineau.

Maurice Cloutier, 48-year-old Quebec City employee, said he received a total of $800 after seeing Mr. Martineau.

Weddings

CARTER — POIRIER

St. Joseph's Roman Catholic Church, Belleville, was the setting on Saturday, September 30, at 11.00 a.m. for a lovely wedding when Miss Ina Breen, and J. J. Buckley united in marriage Margo Ann Poirier, of Belleville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Ernest Poirier, to Russell Ewart Carter, of Marysville, Ontario, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert James Carter. Autumn flowers, 'mums and mixed gladioli formed a pretty background for the ceremony. While satin bows designated the guest pews.

Sister Mary Joan of Arc provided the wedding music, and accompanied Mrs. Gerard Kealey and Miss Anne Wright of Belleville, cousins of the bride, who were soloists.

Given in marriage by her father, the lovely bride was gowned in floor-length peau de soie fashioned with bouffant skirt and princess line bodice having three-quarter length sleeves, and scoop neckline accented with Alencon lace appliques. A silk studded organza rose held her short bouffant veil of illusion tulle, and she carried a cascade of yellow Sweetheart roses mingled with white feathered 'mums.

She was attended by her sister, Miss Julia Poirier, who was attired in gold peau de soie fashioned in bouffant style, with fitted bodice, scoop neckline, and short cap sleeves. She wore a matching headdress with tiny circular veil of gold tulle illusion, and carried a cascade of yellow 'mums.

Mr. John Carter, of Toronto, attended his brother as groomsman, while Mr. David Poirier, of Halifax, N.S. and Mr. Harry Green, of Belleville, ushered the guests.

The reception was held at Club Canara, also the wedding luncheon, where the guests were received by the bride's mother, who wore a Persian brown brocade princess line gown with detailed neckline; squamarine feathered pillbox hat, beige accessories and corsage of pink Sweetheart roses. Assisting in the receiving line was the mother of the bridegroom, gowned in a toast brocaded sheath with dark brown accessories, and corsage of dusty-pink roses.

The bride's table was appointed in the traditional style with white damask and centred by a three-tier wedding cake, flanked by bouquets of white baby 'mums, and white stephanotis and ivy.

For the wedding trip by motor to Niagara Falls, and other western points, the bride chose a royal blue wool sheath with hat and accessories in bone-beige, and corsage of bronze 'mums.

Guests attended from Ottawa, Marysville, Owen Sound, Brampton, Kingston, Toronto, Halifax, LaChute, Quebec, and Belleville.

The bride, previous to marriage, was entertained at a kitchen shower held at the home of Mrs. Thomas Woodward; at a miscellaneous shower at the home of Mrs. Patrick Halloran; by the Commercial staff of the Bell Telephone Company, of Canada; at a presentation of a floor lamp and a crystal cornflower patterned ash tray and cake platter, at the home of Mrs. Murray Wilson.

Mr. and Mrs. Carter are residing at 130 Albert Street, Belleville.

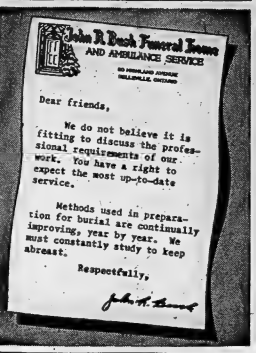
Belles of St. Trinians Not as Bad as Painted

VANCOUVER (CP) — Despite commercial lampooning in book and film, the Belles of St. Trinians are anything but mayhem - minded delinquents, says one of the belles of the famous Edinburgh girls' school.

Mrs. J. J. Mason-Brown of Edinburgh, here on a trip with her surgeon - husband, said Miss Fraser Lee, the school's founder, is known as an advanced educationist. Her school had a superlative academic record.



Mrs. Mason - Brown, sent from her home in Jamaica to be educated at the school, said the book and movie Belles of St. Trinians started in a strange way.

Author Ronald Searle was visiting former St. Trinians art teachers at Kirkcudbright and did cartoons to amuse a little girl attending the school. They grew until a cinema script was done for Alistair Sims.

It was a wild farce in which the young ladies of the school were depicted as undisciplined students beyond the control of parents and teachers.

MIXED - DOCTORS

TORONTO (CP) — Canada's medical schools aren't coping with the country's need for more doctors, Dr. John Hamilton, dean of medicine at the University of Toronto, said Thursday. He said the ratio of new doctor for every 850 population has been maintained in the last decade only by immigration. During the period 30 per cent of the physicians registered in Ontario were immigrants, he said.

Teen-Age Canada

No Place for Fads In Fall Outfits

By JACK BUTTON

Most clothing stores selling to teen-age customers should hang up a large warning sign as a public service: "Please Avoid Fads —For Your Own Good!

But few do.

We've just conducted a cross-Canada survey to find which teen-age styles are popular, asking both teen-agers and store owners to make confidential reports.

The overwhelming conclusion is the same: stay far away from those flashy fads which look great today but which are as Suitable as a floundering mackerel by next month.

Said one of Vancouver's main clothing dealers: "The important thing is to build up a basic wardrobe. And never let any salesman fool you into thinking this isn't true."

An East coast teen-age friend told us the rueful story of buying several blouses with "splashing colors" for school wear. "Before November rolled around, everyone in the school was calling me a clothes-horse," she reported.

Between seasons is a good time to re-assess one's wardrobe. So what should you buy? Here's what our cross-Canada advisors suggest: (They don't suggest, by the way, that you run out and buy this tomorrow!)

Boys — Concentrate on two or three pairs of slacks, a couple of sweaters and sports shirts for school wear. The other basics of a wardrobe are a sports coat and a suit.

Girls — This was more complicated — but most suggested skirts and tops which can be worn quite often in different combinations. Watch out for prints and plaids which are hard to match.

A Calgary 18-year-old advisor suggested: "First of all, choose a primary color (eg. brown), then a secondary color (eg. beige). Then choose an accenting color (eg. orange or coral, in jewelry or scarves).

"Large items such as coats should be in the primary color," she emphasized. "Choose co-ordinating and simple styles for a more versatile wardrobe. And stay away from fads!"

All agreed that the choice of a fall coat is an important one for any girl — although, of course, it doesn't worry those of us in the male section quite as much.

Are there any trends which can be noticed in teen-age clothes this fall? Here, according to our observers, are a few of them:

1. — Square-toed shoes are now "out." A Montreal high school girl told us: "Square-toed shoes look ridiculous. They look as if they haven't been finished — as if their fronts had been chopped off."

2. — The "continental" or casual look still seems to rule the roost for boys' clothing. At the same time many Canadian cities report teen-agers ordering trousers without cuffs.

3. — A large number of girls seems to be going in for extremely large handbags. These are often the ones who also favor "fat" heels.

Finally, whatever you do — don't go overboard. But a wise bet you'll be sorry you did within a few short months!

GOING STEADY

A Toronto friend followed up our column on going steady by submitting a poem with advice for his teen-age friends. Many is part of his poem, based upon the 23rd Psalm.

"Who steady that is all-important I shall not want;
He maketh me to think my friends
He maketh me take boring hours;
He giveth me nothing to
For though I walk through the teen-age life
I shall have no anxiety;
For many with me,
Their presence and company comfort me;
Thou shall need many friends later on in the presence of false enemies;
I shall prepare for one when my love runneth over.
Surely goodness and common sense shall tell you to have lots of friends
And you shall live in the house of happiness forever."

YOUNG ACTOR

Watch for a Walt Disney movie called "Big Red" which will be released next May. One of its stars will be a 14-year-old Montreal high school student discovered overnight by Hollywood.

Gilles Payant, who has just settled back into his Grade 9 classroom appeared twice in small parts on a French-Canadian TV network and was seen by a Disney scout.

Now the Disney studio, which has just finished "Big Red," has a seven-year option on his talent. And both Gilles and his family are wondering whether they may soon leave Canada for the bright lights of Hollywood.

Teen-age fashions don't need to be elaborate, designers say. This two-piece flannel outfit has a flared jumper with fringed pockets.

The members were told that the W.M.S. will be held at Shannonville on October 19.

The members reported sending 13 cards and two letters and making five hospital visits and two calls.

Mrs. Fred Campbell had the Thankoffering Worship service. The hymn, "O, For A Thousand Tongues To Sing" was sung after which Mrs. Frank Finkle read the Scripture from psalm 107, 1 to 9.

Mrs. Campbell gave some thoughts on "Thanksgiving".

Mrs. Leslie Finkle read "Everyone Has Cause For Gratitude".

Mrs. Ivan Clare gave the chapter from the Study Book, "The Household Of Faith" and Mrs. Allyn Finkle read "Thanksgiving Meditation."

After the meeting closed the hostess served refreshments.

POLIO CASES FEWER

OTTAWA (CP) — No new cases of polio were reported in Canada during the week ended Oct. 7, the health and welfare department said Thursday. Two cases had been reported the previous week, bringing the total so far this year to 130. The corresponding figures for 1960 and 1959 were 365 and 1,281 respectively. Polio has caused six deaths this year, compared to 71 at this time last year.

Soroptimist Club Elects Committees

The Soroptimist Club held the first business meeting of the summer vacation at the home of Muriel Yorke, with business including special committees for the various categories being selected as follows: Attendance, objective and ways and means — Muriel Yorke — chairman; classification and membership — Lasetta Sibbald — chairman; international relations — Ruth and understanding, Gladys McDonald — chairman; constitution and by-laws — Frances Bennett — chairman; public relations and publicity — Margaret Patterson and chairman; courtesy and program — Georgia Smith — chairman; transportation and attendance — Nora Earle.

Sally Caton was nominated to take the place of Eva Dunlop on the Board of Directors to serve for one more year.

President, Eva Corke, pointed out that the Soroptimists of the Belleville area are raising a special observance of the founding of the first Soroptimist Club, October 3, 1921. Starting October 2nd, Soroptimists throughout the world, including 23 nations are reviewing the services they have provided for the less fortunate communities and their countries, as they complete 40 years of work.

As a whole, Soroptimist have worked for international goodwill and understanding through their Sister Club program, correspondence with members in other countries; financial and medical assistance; and fellowship. They have worked for better understanding of public affairs; for better understanding of good government; for a better status for women, at work and in public service.

Soroptimists in the Belleville area are especially interested in service projects having aided under - privileged children in the O.S.D. Home; hearing aides and upkeep of them, as long as the children attended the school. They have aided the inmates of the County Home and have provided television for the use of the women. Although this is a small club, they have managed to bring cheer to old age pensioners every Christmas by donations and have held parties for the older people.

The Soroptimist club has not dealt entirely with older women; but every year a scholarship is given to the female graduating student in H.C.I. in the Commercial Department.

The regional conference which to be held in Toronto in May, was discussed by the president and president, Hon Corke, Muriel Yorke and Betty Cox were named as delegates with alternate delegates being Georgia Smith and Tilley Mercer.

The subject of a new project was brought up and discussed, but no final decision was made.

Refreshments were served by the hostess at the conclusion of the meeting.

Readers' Friday Column

As conducted by Mary Moore

QUESTION:

I wish to get a method by which to preserve whole the following: Cherry Tomatoes, Pear Tomatoes, both yellow and red. These are the miniature variety. Mrs. L. W. S.

QUESTION:

. . . recipe for preserving small tomatoes please . . . Mrs. Wilbur G. W.

ANSWER:

To both letters above).

PRESERVED MINIATURE TOMATOES (both yellow and red varieties):

Three or 4 lbs. yellow or red cherry or pear miniature tomatoes, 3 or 4 lbs. sugar, 1 lemon sliced paper thin, 2 one-inch pieces ginger root, (or ½ teaspoon ground ginger), 1 teaspoon butter. Cover tomatoes with boiling water and let stand 2 minutes. Drain. Cover with cold water and slip off skins. Squeeze out by hand as much juice and seeds as will come from each easily. Discard seeds and juice. Measure the tomatoes. Use 1 lb. sugar for each lb. tomatoes. Add sugar to tomatoes along with all other ingredients and bring slowly to boil, stirring gently often. Boil gently with asbestos mat under kettle until syrup thickens and tomatoes appear translucent. Pour into sterile jars and seal. Delicious with fowl.

QUESTIONS:

. . . from Mrs. J. L. K.; Mrs. G. W. and Mrs. L. B. . . . asking for

GREEN TOMATO PICKLE:

Seven and one-half lbs (about 30 medium) green tomatoes, 6 large onions, ½ cup salt (coarse — not iodized), 1 tablespoon each mustard seed, whole allspice, celery seed, whole cloves, dry mustard, peppercorns, ½ lemon, 2 sweet red peppers, 3½ cups brown sugar, 2 cups vinegar Wash and slice tomatoes and peel onions very thinly and sprinkle salt over them in layers and allow to stand overnight. In morning drain thoroughly, rinse with cold water and drain well again. Tie all spices loosely in cheesecloth bag (including dry mustard); slice lemon thinly; remove stem and seed cores from peppers and slice thinly. Add spice bag and sugar to vinegar, bring to boiling, then add tomatoes, onions, lemon and peppers. Cook very gently for ½ hour, stirring frequently. Remove spice bag. Pack pickles in hot sterile jars and seal.

NOTE TO MRS. J. L. K.:

If you prefer, a somewhat sour pickle reduce sugar by half.

QUESTION:

. . . recipe for (letter not signed).

CUCUMBER RELISH:

Sixteen cups chopped cucumbers (12 large), 1 cup chopped onion (2 large), 2 tablespoons salt, 2½ cups white vinegar, ½ cup water, 1 1-2 cups sugar, 1 teaspoon white pepper. Pare cucumbers, cut into quarters lengthwise and remove seed section. Chop finely or put through coarse knife of food grinder. Add onions and salt. Mix, place in sieve and drain thoroughly. Heat vinegar, sugar and water to boiling. Remove from heat and add pepper and drained vegetables. Blend well, pack into sterile jars and seal. Do not use for one month. Yield about 10 cups.

Successful Living

By Doris Clark

(A Canadian Social Worker Helps with Human Problems)

Daughter 1/ 'Wild'

DEAR DORIS:—My life up until six years ago was devoted to raising my three younger sisters, as our parents were killed in an accident while they were still at school. Now they are married and I still have my job.

I met a divorced man recently with a daughter of 14. He is a grand person and we are talking of marriage. Up to now he has kept house and earned a salary to support himself and his daughter, ever since his wife ran away with another man three years ago.

DORIS CLARK

My problem is the daughter. Joanie never does anything at home; acts like a smart aleck and is out till all hours. Is still at school but did not pass this year. She is rude to her father, and if dinner is not right on time she complains about it. I never even let my young sisters talk to me the way she talks to him.

I am afraid that even with the best of resolutions I would lose my temper with Joanie. Yet I know it would be terrible to come between them. Please tell me whether I should give up the whole idea of marriage to this man—WINNIE.

DEAR WINNIE—Joanie is normal—for what happened to her. From where she sits her mother rejected her and she resents this. Father overcompensates. Child-like she builds on this and bullies him. He is sorry for her and fails to discipline when he should.

She can still learn. If you raised your own sisters you know a little about handling teen-agers. If you expect great things of her you will get them. Be ready to stick by your guns when you want good behavior.

It will be rocky for a while, but if there's love there, you can make a home for both of them.

(Doris Clark, Master of Social Work, is a graduate of McGill, Toronto and McMaster universities, and has had broad experience in social work. If you would like help with your problems, write to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.)

CENTRE STREET W.A.

The ladies W.A. of Centre St. Church held their regular monthly meeting Wednesday afternoon in the church room, with average attendance.

The meeting was called to order by Mrs. Longhurst with this thought, "Service is the rent we pay for our room on God's earth". Scripture was read by Mrs. Vanderwater from Math. 26:16-30.

Topic by Mrs. G. Murrey, on "Commissioned for Service". "If we love God and our fellow human beings we cannot keep Christ to ourselves, for without the knowledge of God as mediated to mankind through Christ, their lives cannot be as rich or as full as possible. God's plan for each individual includes knowing Him as Father and through that knowledge possessing fullness of life. So we should our fellow men if we do not share with them what has been given us.

"We should not attempt to hide the light under a bushel basket; we must set it upon a hill for all to see. We must spread the good news to our families, friends and neighbors; to our fellow citizens, to strangers within our gates and to people of all nations, both the friendly and the hostile ones.

This can be accomplished by the services of those whom we send as our messengers, our missionaries, our friends of prayer, which work their miracles in the far corners of the earth; and through ourselves in living that we glorify our Father which is in Heaven".

Mrs. Wood gave the financial report.

After a short business session there were five readings given by Mrs. Ryliet, Mrs. Collins, Mrs. Wood, Mrs. Draddy and Mrs. Ferguson.

Lunch was served by Mrs. Bunnett and Mrs. Ryliet and enjoyable half hour was had by all.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Jay H. — It's all I can do to brave the homecoming I get each night.

Cassie H. — With four children, I can't offer clock-work precision.

Jay H. — If you want to know what bedlam is, you should see our home around 6:30 each evening. Those cartoons of pots boiling over, skates on the stairs and kids hopping at each other on the head while the dog yips and the phone rings are merely true-to-life photographs of the scene that greets me each day.

I know there's a lot of work for Cassie. But why can't she plan her day better? Weekends, when I'm home, things seem to come out more evenly. At least by supportime we're not surrounded by breakfast time mess. But Cassie won't even try to get organized.

Cassie H. — I admit I'm no efficiency expert. But eventually everything gets done — even if it means my being up half the night. The kids get their baths and shampoos, their shirts get ironed and each season the right articles go into and out of camphor.

It's just too sad that the work doesn't move along like automation, to suit Jay and his hours! Her night as well remember that it's a home he comes back to, not an assembly-line factory. The reason things go better when he's around is that I'm not hounded by the clock, trying to have dinner ready on his return. We eat early and he helps keep things smooth.

The Council — Jay is referring to what every young mother knows as th "hell hour." It represents the pile up of after-playtime and before-suppertime collisions, both physical and emotional. Dad's homecoming, especially when Dad considers himself "company," hangs over all almost as a threat instead of a lift.

But Jay isn't company. He isn't a guest. He's a fellow passenger or, if you will, a participating combatant in the evening free-for-all. Cassie can't be expected to run things like a stage director, setting the scene for a serene entrance. Like the bubbling soup on the stove, everything's cookin' And Jay must stand on his threshold, take a deep breath, flex his muscles and dredge up his sense of humor. "Here I am, Cassie — your hero — to the rescue!" would be the best opening line, accompanied by a block-tackle on the dog.

Then comes a talk-turkey session with Cassie, calm and unrecriminating. Subject? — how to take the heat off the after-6 hours; how to wind up with some of that "cool, cool, cool of the evening" they sing about.

Certainly each will come up with suggestions on how better to organize the day, on short cuts, on skipping non-essentials. Here's one however, we've just heard of as having worked magickly for one family. It involves an easy, no-cooking, light supper. This is possible, whenever the husband can obtain a nourishing hot meal at noon, as in some office buildings where inexpensive commissaries are set up by employers. Mother and children have their "big" meal at midday, too. Then evenings are relaxed. The pre-bedtime meal is simple, with the emphasis not on work, rush and cleaning-up, but on talk and sociability around the table, mother included.

Centenary 4-H Club Names 1961-2 Officers

The first meeting of the Centenary 4-H Club was held recently at the home of Mrs. J. Sargent. There were 14 members present.

An election of officers took place: president — Pat Sargent; vice-president — Marilyn Holes; treasurer — Coby Mywaart; press reporter — Dianne Windsor.

The leader, Mrs. Vanclief, told about the objections and requirements of the club project "Cotton accessories for the Club Girls' Bedroom." She showed a waste paper basket that she had made for her bedroom.

Miss Julia Lane, home economist, discussed the purpose of a bedroom and spoke on record books for this Club.

Man Bows Out When 2 Women Run for Office

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two ladies are pledged to campaign like gentlemen for the office of chancellor of the University of British Columbia.

The race became an all-woman affair when the lone male candidate bowed out gracefully.

"What chance would an ordinary man have in competition with two such exceptionally charming ladies," said Dr. Hugh Keenleyside, chairman of the B.C. Power Commission.

He cleared the way for Mrs. Frank M. Ross, wife of B.C.'s former lieutenant - governor, and Mrs. H. F. Angus, wife of the chairman of the province's Public Utilities Commission.

The ladies have agreed there will be no political hedgehopping.

"We're personal friends and there's no rivalry," said Mrs. Angus, nominated by a group that wants to see an election for the post for the first time since UBC opened in 1915.

Mrs. Ross, nominated by the executive of the Alumni Association, added:

"There's no question of rivalry between us."

Mrs. Ross hails from the university's class of '25 and was an honors economics student in a class conducted by Mrs. Angus' husband.

ALUMNI PRESIDENT

A native of Grand Forks, B.C., she was president of the Alumni Association six years ago.

During the Second World War, Mrs. Ross was the government's oil and fat distributor and served as economic adviser to the Canadian Tariff Board.

Mrs. Angus, class of '23, graduated in honors English and later won the Coronation Medal for her work as a child welfare specialist.

In her first venture into civic politics in 1952, she topped the poll as a candidate for Vancouver school board.

Both candidates are often described as a combination of beauty and brains. Both have one son and one daughter.

The winner will succeed the late A. E. (Dal) Grauer, chairman of the B.C. Electric Company, who had 18 months to go in his four-year chancellor's term when he died in August.

About 26,000 members of the UBC convocation including graduates, recipients of honorary degrees and faculty members, may vote. The result will be known Nov. 26.

SPEAKING of MANNERS

PATRICIA LEWIS

WHAT'S YOUR E. Q.?

Week-end guests have a unique status. They're part of the family, for the time being, but still have a fringe relationship. Do you know how to behave under the circumstances? Answer True or False.

1. A week-end guest should tidy up his own room and make the bed.

2. If children eat up, a guest may give them a drawing-down.

3. It's impolite to snack between meals.

4. A guest may toss his laundry in the hamper to be done along with the family's.

5. The week-ender should clean up the tub after taking a bath or shower.

6. It's perfectly correct to ask friends to drop over during a week-end visit.

7. The week-end guest may make a short visit to a friend who lives in the area.

8. A guest should retire when his host and hostess do.

9. It's impolite to pass up any of the family's activities.

10. A thank-you note should be sent immediately after an overnight visit.

ANSWERS:

1. True.

2. False. Parents may have turned over their guest room, but never their authority. Hands off.

3. False. The hostess probably will lead guests to the ice-box first thing and point out what's for nibbling.

4. False. All laundry should be tossed into the suitcase and taken home.

5. True.

6. False, if any invitations are to be issued, the hostess should do it.

7. True, if the hostess doesn't object.

8. True. A good hostess sees that a guest's schedule includes some free time if only for mopping.

9. False. A good hostess sees that a guest's schedule includes some free time if only for mopping.

10. True.

QUESTION: I have a very bad handwriting, and would prefer to type my correspondence, only I've been told this is not polite. Must all personal mail be handwritten?

Sunday School Lesson

Discussing Good Religion

By ROY L. SMITH

Religion, according to the devout Jew of Jesus' time, as well as to many a modern, was a matter of abstaining from evil and obeying certain laws. To Jesus, good religion meant the ordering of all of life according to certain holy principles.

THERE WAS TITHE

There was, for example, the matter of the tithe. The great religious leaders among the Jews believed the nation had been carried off into exile in Babylon because it had neglected its religious duties, the exile being a form of punishment. One of the neglects had been their failure to pay their tithes. The one way of restoring themselves in the good graces of God was a scrupulous and exact payment of the tenth.

Emphasis on the tithe had become so important in the Jewish religion that it was not uncommon to see a pious man counting out the grains of pepper he proposed to put into his soup, setting aside every tenth as "an offering unto the Lord."

Now Jesus had no thought of repudiating the idea of contributing to the support of the Temple system, but he did propose to lift the whole matter of giving up to a higher level until it became an expression of spontaneous gratitude.

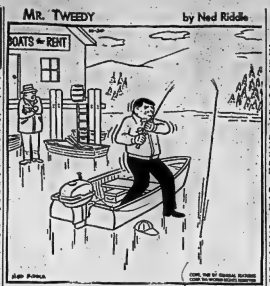
THERE WAS CLEAN MIND

Then there was the old Mosaic law concerning vengeance. Among the pagans it was commonly approved if a man killed another man to avenge even a small affront. Moses had ordered that the Hebrews should not strike a greater blow than they had suffered. If one's enemy knocked out an eye, then the avenger might destroy an eye in return. If a neighbor, in a brawl, broke out another man's tooth, that man was within the law if he broke out a tooth in revenge. But one eye never called for two eyes and one tooth mising never justified two other teeth broken out.

Jesus undertook to put the whole matter, again, on a higher level. It is better to accept affronts, He said, than to inflict them. It is better to be the one who suffers an injustice than the one who inflicts an injury.

Then there was the difficult question of lust. Jewish law, in most instances, portrayed the woman as the seducer and the man as the innocent victim in the case of sex vagrancy. Jesus went back to the source of the evil, and said that the lustful thought was the beginning of the lustful deed. Therefore, a man was to be judged by his unbridled desires, rather than by his actual offences.

Good religion is, first of all, clean mindedness.



THERE WAS FORGIVENESS

The prophets, teachers, scribes, rabbis and psalmists had done a pretty good job of impressing the Jews with the necessity of forgiveness. It was quite common to hear a sermon in the synagogue on the subject of forgiving one's enemy. But a serious problem still remained. So many of the forgiven went on inflicting injuries, working injustices and perpetrating wrongs. How far was one required to go in this matter of forgiveness? How many times was one expected to forgive another person for the repeated insults?

Jesus moved the whole matter over from the question of the enemy to the spirit of the one who found it necessary to forgive. Hatred inside the soul is a spiritual poison, He said, and one must forgive and forgive until all the spirit of hatred has been distilled out of the soul. Forgiveness is a little like our grandmother's poultice which was applied to a sore to "draw the poison out."

No man can harbor a grudge without setting up an infection within his own spirit. No one can indulge in hatred without developing a spiritual cancer. No one can seek revenge without making himself wretched in doing so. No person can plot evil against his neighbor without becoming infected by the very evil he proposes to export.

UP A TREE — is David Gordon seen picking McIntosh apples at the Don Dempsey orchard in Prince Edward county. Last of McIntosh apples are now being picked — about two weeks later than usual.

Mike Parker of Trenton, orchard helper on the Don Dempsey farm transfers apples into boxes from special half bushel picking basket. Apples will go directly into storage at Trenton.

Mrs. Vi Jones and Marjory Peck, two of several women employed as apple packers by the Ontario Northland Fruit Supply Company, are seen at work at sorting tables. Fancy grade apples only are packed for the northern trade.

FANCY MCINTOSH — packed in baskets and ready for shipment to Northern Ontario are displayed by Mrs. Marion Dempsey of Rednersville.

Army Needs Civilian Aid In Event of Nuclear Attack Municipal Officials Told

The Canadian army, permanent forces and militia, at its present strength, is not personnel-equipped to cope with the after-effects of a nuclear attack.

Brigadier A. T. B. Bailey, commander Eastern Area, told municipal representatives of three counties and others yesterday "We are desperately short of people and will need volunteer assistance from civilians."

The brigadier spoke to some 50 people, including wardens, mayors and reeves, at a special meeting held in the city's armouries officers' mess yesterday.

Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment Commander Lieut.-Col. Angus Duffy, was host for the meeting. Those present included Mayor A. M. Haig, Mayor James MacDonald of Trenton, Parney Hepburn representing Mayor H. J. McFarland of Picton; Warden Harleigh Hamilton of Hastings county and Warden R. W. Greene of Lennox and Addington.

The speaker outlined in detail the role the army would play and what was expected of civilian volunteers. He said in mobile survival groups and columns, roughly one-third of the personnel would have to be civilians.

"The army will supply leadership and a trained nucleus for survival units."

The Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment has been allotted the task of training 1,000 men in national survival. Details were published on Wednesday of this week.

In the event of attack three major tasks would fall to the army and civilian volunteers, the speaker said. These would be warning to the population, ascertainment of the point of attack and entry to the target area to assist those in need.

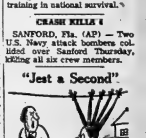
Warning to the population, the speaker pointed out, would be made through sirens and radio stations. "We had trouble with the siren situation a year ago," he said, "but since the Berlin crisis we have been going great guns and expect to have the entire siren system hooked up for a test on November 13."

He explained in detail the siren code of warning, with special arrangements made for department stores and other crowded areas. Rural populations would have to be warned by phone or radio.

With the aid of several maps, Brigadier Bailey pointed out target areas, expected route of fallout, disposition of troops, location of fallout posts and other important geographical detail.

He explained the duties of the army and attached civilians on entering a bombed area. Speed, he said, was essential in getting to the target city and establishing control.

The army would be responsible for evacuation of the bombed populace; sorting of casualties, first aid, traffic control and assisting police departments in maintaining law and order.



He said "fallout posts" will be named and explained the duties of fallout officials.

Actually Brigadier Bailey's address, while outlining in minute detail the duties of the army and its civilian assistants in the event of attack, was directed mainly to the municipal officials for co-operation in securing civilian volunteers for training in national survival.

Lack of Color-Giving Frosts Delays Apple Harvest Two Weeks in Quinte District

Although delayed up to two weeks by the absence of color-giving fall frosts, the annual apple picking harvest is now well underway in the Bay of Quinte district.

Early harvest varieties of apples are already packed while orchardmen are heading into the last of the McIntosh and soon picking will start on the spies and other late varieties.

Possibly the biggest apple growing area in the immediate Belleville district is along the south shore of the Bay of Quinte west of Belleville in Prince Edward county.

Here in a concentrated orchard area apple pickers are stripping the last of the McIntosh from trees. Some of the apples go directly into storage; others are sorted, graded for immediate sale to the domestic trade, while the grounders and culls go to the juicer to provide the raw material for apple juice.

Mr. Jerald Anderson, well-known North Prince Edward County farmer and apple grower, told The Ontario Intelligencer that absence of frost had this year held up apple picking. "With color so important we have to leave them on the trees as long as possible", he said. "But this year there has been no frost to speed up the coloring".

Leaving apples on the trees as long as possible to get maximum color and at the same time trying to avoid the dreaded "apple drop" is a game which orchardmen have to play every autumn.

If their timing isn't exactly right or if a windstorm comes up unexpectedly what today is a fine apple, can be turned into culls as the ripened fruit lets loose and tumbles to the ground.

Apples have to be carefully hand-picked. The slightest bruise can turn No. 1 fruit into culls.

This year orchardists have which will keep apples for a much longer period than has been previously possible.

Under this new system the apples are in effect put to sleep and they come out of storage next spring almost exactly as they went in.

Apples going into storage at Trenton are "tree run." That is they are taken into storage without sorting, exactly as they are picked from the trees.

Storage apples are put into special - type boxes holding slightly more than a bushel. The crates are brought in from Quebec in the knocked-down condition and are later nailed together.

timed their McIntosh crop just about right. With the big percentage of McIntosh already picked the fruit is just now beginning to drop.

PACK FOR EXPORT

Operating a specialty apple packing business in the North Prince Edward County area is the Ontario Northland Fruit Supply Company, owned by Gordon Dempsey, member of one of the several Prince Edward 'apple growing families of the same name.

The Northland fruit supply company makes a specialty of packing fancy grade apples for "export" to northern Ontario.

Every day trucks and tractor trailers leave the Prince Edward County packing house loaded with apples for Sudbury, Sault Ste. Marie and other Northern Ontario centres. Only fancy grade baskets are sold for the northern trade.

The fruit supply company purchases apples from neighboring fruit growers for the northern trade.

MANY IN STORAGE

A big percentage of the Prince Edward apples, however, go into storage, either in privately-owned houses in the county area, or to Trenton to a modern, co-operatively owned controlled-temperature storage utilizing a new gas method

Headwaiters Cannot Stand Lower Classes

SOUTHAMPTON (AP) Nine headwaiters on the liner Queen Elizabeth quit their jobs because they couldn't stand the lower classes.

The nine were all classified as headwaiters in the liner's first class restaurant. They balked when told that under a rotation system one of their number would have to work the restaurant in cabin class and another in tourist class on each voyage.

"We never expected," a spokesman for the nine said stiffly, "to be ordered down into tourist or cabin class."

"THERE IT IS, GENTLEMEN" — Brigadier A. T. B. Bailey, Eastern Area Army Command commander, points out an important place in the proposed national survival plan. The brigadier addressed several municipal officials yesterday on this important matter. Seen left to right are: Warden R. W. Green, Lennox and Addington; Brigadier Bailey; Mayor A. M. Haig; Warden Harleigh Hamilton of Hastings County; Mayor Jim MacDonald, Trenton and "Barney" Hepburn, representing Mayor H. J. McFarland, Picton.

Juniors Defeated

BCI Seniors Whip Quinte

By PETER CARVER

Belleville Collegiate Institute Seniors continued on their quest for the Bay of Quinte O.F.S.S.A. title by handing Quinte Secondary School fellow their biggest obstacle of the season, a 37-14 defeat. The Estate Juniors defeated B.C.I. 6-0 in the other half of the doubleheader played yesterday at the Q.S.S. field. A high spirited crowd of B.C.I. and Quinte supporters turned out for the games.

SENIOR GAME

A great run by BCI's Pete Weston moved the ball 65 yards to the Quinte 20 yard line early in the first quarter. A penalty and a powerful BCI ground attack moved the ball to the Quinte 1 yard line where quarterback John Peoples plunged over for the touchdown. Weston kicked the extra point. Quinte's Mike Chatland ran the kickoff back for a touchdown but he had stepped out of bounds at mid-field. Q.S.S. were forced to punt but Dave MacLauchlan recovered a BCI fumble in their end zone and registered Quinte's first score. Lee Hall's conversion attempt was no good.

Quinte moved into a second quarter lead when Lee Hall booted a 25 yard field goal. The lead was short-lived as BCI's Doug Billingsley in a series of plays moved the ball to the Q.S.S. 23 yard line. Bob Ridley carried to the five yard line. Peoples hit Larry "Soup" Campbell for BCI's second major. The convert was no good.

In the 3rd quarter BCI's Billingsley continued his terrific running. He took a double handoff and raced 65 yards into the Saints end zone. Weston kicked the extra point. Dave Chestnut's interception set up B.C.I.'s fourth major. He ran the ball to Quinte's 30 yard line where Bob Ridley skirted the end on the next play for the major. Weston finished BCI's scoring with the convert.

Quinte took over on the BCI 43 yd. line. Passes to Gary Davis and Wayne Gilroy advanced the ball to the 18 yard line. Don Skinner ran the ball to the 4 and Gilroy plowed over with the T.D. The convert was missed.

That was the first time since 1958 that Q.S.S. Seniors were defeated by a B.C.I. team.

Lineups

JUNIOR GAME

Both squads fought hard as the game hinged on the defensive squads. Neither offence seemed to be able to move the ball. Quinte's Bill Leslie lofted a good punt into the BCI end zone in the second quarter but the wind took it out of bounds and thus robbed the "Little Saints" of a single point.

The first half saw hard, rough defensive play, faulty punting, good Quinte passing and little running.

In the third stanza a short punt gave QSS the ball on the BCI 35-yard line. Ray Finkle ran to the BCI 3 on a reverse and QSS quarterback Richard Eves went off tackle for the only score of the game. Quinte tried a pass on the convert but Rathwell was tackled just short of the goal line.

BCI threatened in the dying minutes of the game as Don McCormack pulled down a pass and carried to the QSS 39-yard line. Dave Anderson moved to the Quinte S.S. 4 - yard line. On the last play of the game, Terry Mowbray was thrown for a loss and the BCI juniors were stymied for the fourth time in a row.

Lineups:

Soccer Club To Sue Airline

LONDON (AP) — Manchester United soccer club and British European Airways are preparing for a legal fight over damages in the 1958 Munich air crash that killed eight club players.

The club is suing the airline for $700,000. Lawyers for both sides discussed preliminary issues Wednesday night. A date is expected to be fixed for a main hearing later.

The team was returning from a European Cup match in Belgrade when its airliner crashed on take - off from Munich Airport in a snow storm.

NOTTS WINS

LONDON (Reuters) — Notts County defeated Bournemouth 2-0 in Thursday night's only English League soccer game. Both are in the Third Division.

Meet Sasky Riders

Eskys Seek End To Hurtful Slump

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Edmonton Eskimos will face their favorite opponents — Saskatchewan Roughriders — as they seek to end a damaging slump in the Western Football League this weekend.

The Eskis, who have dropped into second place one point behind Winnipeg Blue Bombers, play host to the Riders Saturday night.

The Bombers will be trying to take a stranglehold on the league title as they clash with the Stampeders at Calgary Saturday night and follow up with a game against British Columbia Lions at Vancouver Monday.

The Bombers, leading the league with 18 points, have five games left in the regular schedule compared with Edmonton's three. If Bombers win both weekend games, it will require only one victory in the remaining three to clinch first place and a bye into the league's best-of-three final playoffs. The second and third teams meet in a two - game, total-points semi-final.

The Eskimos have managed only one victory and one tie in their last six games.

Coach Eagle Keys has been working to patch up the Edmonton attack and defence, both of which turned sour after the Eskimos won their first seven games.

One glaring indication of the offensive plight is the failure of stay fullback Johnny Bright to score in the last five games. He counted 10 touchdowns in the first eight games.

Calgary and Winnipeg have been working hard for their battle. Coach Bobby Dobbs of the Stampeders says the Bombers are "the roughest team in the West. Physically, they may be the strongest team in Canada. We'll need the biggest effort we've been able to accumulate this year — otherwise, we'll be in trouble."

Varsity, Gaels Meet Sat.

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The two mbeaten clubs in the Senior Intercollegiate Football League, University of Toronto Blues and Queen's University Golden Gaels, tangle here Saturday in a game that should decide which team is the real threat to the title.

Both clubs pulled off upsets last week when Blues defeated University of Western Ontario Mustangs 6-3 in London and Golden Gaels edged the defending champion McGill Redmen 8-7 in Kingston.

In other Intercollegiate action Saturday Mustangs travel to Montreal for a clash with McGill.

Blues' coach Dalt White said: "This is a big game for us. I was pleasantly surprised when the boys played so well in London. But Western made many mistakes to help us out. We have a good, solid team, but we'll find out just how good we are this weekend."

Earlier this season White felt his biggest problems were at defensive tackle and lack of weight on the line. But it now appears he has a fine two-way line.

Tourney Ends Soccer Season

A four-team soccer tournament scheduled for the RCAF field this Sunday morning will wind up the senior club's season in this area for the year.

Belleville Parsons Cleaners, Trenton, Batawa and RCAF are the teams competing for the Trenton Cleaners Trophy.

The tournament will get under way at 10.00 a.m. Sunday morning and the team scoring the most goals will be declared the winner. The clubs will compete in a round-robin series.

McMaster Wins Track Meet

WATERLOO (CP) — McMaster University of Hamilton won the Ontario Intercollegiate track and field meet Thursday with a total of 72 points.

Ontario Agricultural and Veterinary College of Guelph was second with 39½ points, followed by Assumption University of Windsor with 36½, Waterloo Lutheran University 33, University of Waterloo 21 and Hamilton Institute of Technology 2.

McMaster picked up eight first - place finishes in the 17 events on the program.

Smoky Campbell of OAVC won the javelin, Bob Clarke of OAVC the discus, Bob Moore of Assumption the pole vault, and the OAVC team the mile relay.

Moore set the only record of the day, winning the pole vault with a leap of 14 feet, three inches.

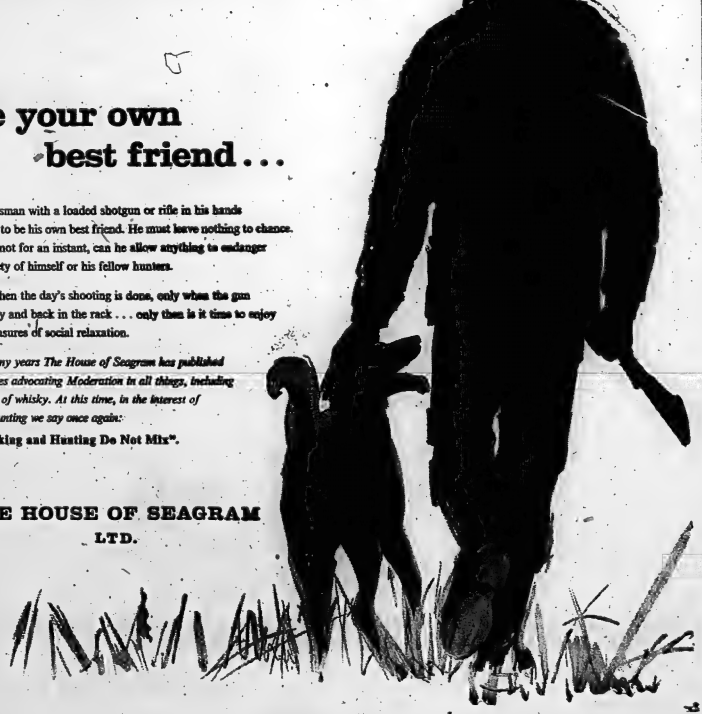
Be your own best friend...



A sportsman with a loaded shotgun or rifle in his hands has got to be his own best friend. He must leave nothing to chance. Never, not for an instant, can he allow anything to endanger the safety of himself or his fellow hunters.

Only when the day's shooting is done, only when the gun is empty and back in the rack . . . only then is it time to enjoy the pleasures of social relaxation.

For many years The House of Seagram has published messages advocating Moderation in all things, including the use of whisky. At this time, in the interest of safer hunting we say once again:

"Drinking and Hunting Do Not Mix".

Sport Slices...

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

The day hasn't had the municipal blessing but Saturday has all the earmarks of being "junior champions day" for city sportsdom.

The baseball Kemors, after coming inside the Kilgrim threat, have stroked their diamond bats and are ready and raring to met the Kitchener Dodgers in defence of their 1960 all-Ontario junior "A" championship.

In the evening the Glen Rays, all-Ontario junior "A" softball champions of 1961 will gather in reunion to honor officials and live again the thrilling milestones that marked their trail to the title.

The Kemmors will meet a determined young crew in the Kitchener Dodgers, a club that boasts a splendid record. The Dodgers have a well-balanced club scrambling along the line of the Kemmors with an established mound corps and a team batting average of over .300.

The youthful Dutchmen will send their ace left-hander Curt Holzbach against the Kemmers in the opening game of the championship series tomorrow afternoon. Holzbach, the Larry Sodon the Kemmer top flinger, has compiled a fine record. He has won 16 against two defeats said is regarded as one of western Ontario's brightest southpaw prospects.

Facing the Kemmers at the Fair Grounds here Sunday will be the Dodgers' crack righthander Gene Zanatta. It was Zanata, who held the powerful Oshawa Legionaires team to four hits in the third game of their semi-final series. He, too, is highly regarded in top baseball circles in the Kitchener area and has been one of the Dodger mound mainstays in their march to the finals.

The "fireman" of the Kitchener team is a smart righthander Gerry Denomme, who has done yeoman service for the Dodgers in a relief role.

Like the Kemmers the Dodgers have hitting ability straight down the batting order, according to Jim Creary of the Kitchener Record. But they were held to five safeties in that third semi-finals class by Jim Pipher of the Oshawa club.

The series should be a close hard-fought affair. Both teams are confident and with the Dodgers seeking their first provincial championship and the Kemmers determined to take the title for the second consecutive year, baseball addicts hereabouts will see two outstanding clubs go all-out for the top honors.

The Belleville team, it is hoped, will be at full strength. In a series like this with an Ontario championship on the line, nothing should be left to chance. Any club in any realm of sport that reaches a similar final stage cannot be expected as pushovers. This Kitchener club will likely throw all its power at the Kemmers in the opening tilt before its hometown supporters and that first win is a mighty important one.

With its full offensive and defensive strength available and the spirit and desire to win, I believe the Kemmers will repeat this year. They have a well-rounded hurling corps and their batting potential is well distributed. They have the power at the plate and let's hope it isn't dormant over the weekend.

Larry Sodai will likely get the parental nod to start the series in Kitchener tomorrow. Larry has a fine record of 14 victories and no defeats and will go all-out to keep his unbeaten record intact. The team leaves by bus from the CNRA Park at eight o'clock tomorrow morning. It is a two p.m. game in Kitchener.

The teams are back here Sunday for a two p.m. game at the Fair Grounds and it is hoped a large crowd of baseball fans of the city and district will be on hand. At this writing the venue of the third game, if necessary had not been decided. Ken Soden will likely select his Sunday hurler after tomorrow's game.

LEAFS BUY SLUGGER

TORONTO (CP) — Jack Kent Cooke, owner of Toronto Maple Leafs of the International Baseball League, announced Thursday that Rocky Nelson, 36, has been bought from Pittsburg Pirates. Nelson played first base for the Leafs in 1952 and hit 43 home runs. He was offered a minor league managerial position in the Pittsburgh farm system, but turned it down to continue playing.

Blues Blast Bruins; Leafs Nip Wings

Look Who's On Top!

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Are New York Rangers stronger than expected? Or are Boston Bruins weaker than ever?

These are questions confounding National Hockey League fans as the Rangers sit atop the standings—an unaccustomed position, considering they have failed to make the Stanley Cup playoffs the last three seasons.

The Rangers, powered by Andy Bathgate's three goals, dumped the Bruins 6-3 before 14,005 home fans Thursday night. The sight before, they clobbered the Bruins 8-3 at Boston.

Toronto Maple Leafs turned back the Red Wings 4-3 at Detroit in another game Thursday night. It was the first game of the season for both clubs.

The moment of truth could come Saturday when Sunday for the Rangers and Bruins. Each meets the Canadiens and Leafs —last season's top two teams. Saturday it's New York at Montreal and Boston at Toronto while Sunday the Leafs go to New York and Montreal goes to Boston.

HARVEY CAUTIOUS

Even freshman playing-coach Doug Harvey appears somewhat apprehensive about his Rangers' lofty position.

"Wait till this weekend," he said. "That's when we'll find out some things."

Harvey, who played on power plays, killed penalties and took his regular turn against the Bruins—also contributing more than his share, as usual — admitted the team was "skating well."

Then he quickly answered a question. "No, I'm not satisfied. I didn't say that," he said. "We're skating, and when you're skating things seem to go your way."

Bathgate, starting his eighth full season in the NHL, also had one assist. The goals were the 194th, 195th and 196th of his career.

Camille Henry, playing with a fractured left thumb, scored two Rangers goals and Andy Hebenton got the other.

Harvey set up one of Henry's goals with a beautiful backhand pass and helped the Rangers to a power-play tally—by Hebenton—when he provoked Boston rookie Orland Kurtenbach into a holding penalty midway through the second period.

The Red Wings, trying for the lying goal, removed goalie Terry Sawchuk in favor of a fifth attacker with 80 seconds left in the game. Sawchuk was beaten by Bower until Dick Duff slid the puck into an empty Detroit net with nine seconds left in the game.

Bower made 32 saves before a crowd of 10,284. Sawchuk stopped 31 Toronto drives.

'Can't Afford to Lose' - Clair

Riders May Have Trouble With Als

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ottawa Rough Riders have everything to gain and Montreal Alouettes, in the estimation of Ottawa coach Frank Clair at least, have little to lose.

That, Geroge Clair, is a setup that could spell trouble when the two clubs meet in the capital Saturday to open the Eastern Football Conference week-end.

"We're tied with Hamilton and can't afford to lose," Clair said Thursday. "Montreal hasn't much to lose now, and they'll probably be a relaxed and cash and that kind of team is always tough."

The Als, six points behind Toronto Argonauts with four games left to play, aren't exactly out of the third and last playoff spot yet but a loss to Ottawa, coupled with an Argos win over the Tiger-Cats Sunday in Toronto, would spoil their doom for the 1961 season.

Clair will field pretty much the same squad that dumped Hamilton 14-10 in five fearsome minutes last Sunday.

GRAHAM RETURNS

Milt Graham will be back at tackle in place of Fred Robinson but Mortie-Ann Ron Ross, due to come off the 30-day disabled list today, is a doubtful starter. He gave his injured right knee a stiff workout Thursday but Clair feels an extra week's rest might be worth while in view of the impending playoffs.

The Als are expected to trot out a new quarterback, at least for part - time duties Coach Percy Moss probably will find considerable playing time for Joe Francis, late of Green Bay Packers of the National League.

In support of Gerry Thompkins, Francis, tempered by a recurring leg injury, has made only a single-play appearance this season. He threw a pass into the end zone the last sequence of a game Montreal lost 6-3 to Calgary.

Montreal halfback Dick Cohee will remain out of action with a bruised instep sustain, a club spokesman says, may prevent him from playing any more this season. Jack Espenship will again handle the punting now that Gino Berretta, the Italian-born soccer player, has been dropped.

The Sunday game in Toronto may reveal a new look in the Argonauts offence — not their quarterback Tobin. Rote won't be throwing as much, but they'll be spreading his fire more.

Rote has been passing to Dick Shatto and Dave Mann so frequently that opponents have been covering them like a tent. The result is that while they've still been catching footballs, they haven't been able to get away for the long game of last season.

Rote now feels that his new ends, Bob Jewett and Ron Morris, have caught on to the passing patterns so well that they'll be prime targets from here in.

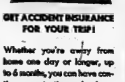
So Says Mr. Houk

Next Year Yanks Better?

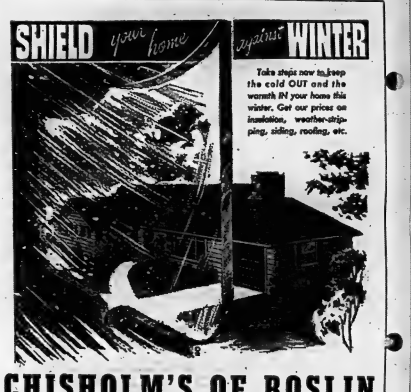
NEW YORK (AP) — Ralph Houk signed a new two - year contract to manage the world champion New York Yankees Thursday at a reported $4,000 a year and predicted the club should be even better in 1962.

"I got a helluva raise," said Houk, 42, who succeeded Casey Stengel as Yankees skipper just a year ago. "I almost fainted when they showed me the contract."

Roy Hamey, Yankees general manager, said the raise was "substantial" but didn't give any figures. It was understood Houk got $20,000 for 1961.



"This is the first time since I have been in baseball that I knew for sure what I would be doing for two years in advance."



Houk announced the coaching staff of Frank Crosetti, Johnny Sain, Wally Moses and Jim Hegan would be back. Hamey said Earl Torgeson, signed as a player and later made a coach, had been released because he is interested in becoming a manager.

"I am satisfied with the club as of right now," said Houk when asked about his future plans. "I won't say I am not eager to trade. I would like to get another starting pitcher but I don't think we would be willing to give up enough to get one."

Houk said he is not interested in trading any first - stringers or second - line men like Johnny Blanchard, Hector Lopez or Billy Gardner.

Trappers Snare Wolves

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

North Bay Trappers made a spectacular debut in the Eastern Professional Hockey League Thursday night, dumping Sudbury Wolves 4-1 in one of two season openers. In the other game Kitchener Beavers whipped Sault Ste. Marie Thunderbirds 7-3.

The Trappers, before a hometown crowd of 1,940 managed the win despite the absence of four key players holding out for better contracts. Coach Lou Passadore filled the ranks with overage juniors.

The six-team league's new entry, a replacement for the defunct Montreal Royals, showed lots of promise, grabbing a 2-1 first-period lead on goals by Joe Snava and John Longanesi.

Rookie Harold White and Bill Isbell notched the other North Bay goals. Sudbury's lone score was another ex - junior, Bob Dillabough.

The four Trappers holdouts are Greig Hicks, George Gosselin, Henri Richard and goalie Claude Pronovost.

Terriers Play 13 Exhibitions

MELVILLE, Sask. (CP)—Gar Terriers will play 13 exhibition games in Western Canada in February on their way to the world hockey championships at Colorado Springs March 8-18.

Secretary - manager Gordon Juckes of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association also announced Thursday that a Canadian team, yet to be decided upon, will tour Europe in December.

Terriers, last season's national senior champions, will play in every western branch. Juckes said the tour will provide Gar with pre - tournament competition and help finance their participation in the world championship.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A couple of rookies from Toronto St. Michael's Majors, last season's Memorial Cup champion, loom as key figures for Rochester Americans of the American Hockey League.

Larry Keenan and Les Kozak, former stars with the Majors in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series, scored all the Americans' goals Thursday night in a 3-2 victory over Buffalo Bisons.

The triumph sent Rochester into a four-point lead in the western division.

Keenan dashed half the length of the ice with 3 seconds left in the game to score his first professional goal and the tie-breaker. Kozak got the other two. Rochester scored, matching shots by Buffalo's Larry Wilson and Art Stratton.

The game, originally scheduled for tonight, was the only action of the evening.

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — Television, for an hour Thursday night, was at its brilliant best. Dwight David Eisenhower, 34th president of the United States, sat down with an intelligent interviewer, and talked about the position he held for eight years, of himself and his philosophy and beliefs.

The result was a CBS Reports program filmed at Gettysburg last spring which is an important historical document, first of a series of three conversations between the former president and Walter Cronkite. Eisenhower broke on the first thoughtful and often tough questions the well - prepared Cronkite threw.

ABC's new series, Margie, making its debut Thursday night, leans heavily on the fads and foibles of the 1920s for its humor. It is a sort of fantastic version of Dobie Gillis in the period dress. The first episode has 17-year-old Margie Clyndine Peggy-outfitted teenaged pangs about unpopularity with the boys.

The plot was routine but it may have a nostalgic charm (for over-40 viewers, anyway).

King of Kings Well Above Average for Film Epics

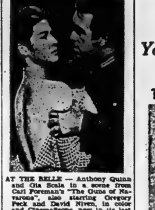
By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—King of Kings, 1961 version, had its premiere on CBS Wednesday night. The verdict: A tasteful religious pageant well above Hollywood's film epics.

Other biblical extravaganzas from Ben Hur, The Robe, Quo Vadis —have played around the edges of the Christ story, King of Kings is the first major film biography of Jesus since the Cecil B. DeMille epic, silent of the same title in 1927.

This King of Kings is the first big success of Samuel Bronston, a smart operator who has combined financial deals and cheap Spanish labor for the making of film spectacles. His first try was a dud—John Paul Jones. Returns aren't in yet on his third, El Cid.

SIMPLE SCENES BEST



King of Kings succeeds when it remains simple, as in a talkfest prologue and other scenes in which sight and not sound tells the story. It is less successful in the wranglings of the Roman and Judean tyrants; the film scenes are played thinner but similarly to their Hollywood predecessors.

The battle stuff, always a staple in these films, is by Steve Reeves out of DeMille. I suppose such sequences are necessary, but how many times can you wince at a spear going through an extra?

The film comes alive when it deals with simple matters of faith. Director Nick Ray has done a brilliant job in staging the sermon on the mount, making it play as a dramatic scene and not as an oration. The crucifixion has never been portrayed on the screen with better skill, avoiding both gruesomeness and Sunday - school art.

That brings us to the portrayal of Jeffery Hunter as Jesus.

The casting was controversial from the start, and will continue to be. Hunter seems unsure in the early portions. But the characterization grows. At 34, Hunter seems to fill the role as the vigorous, youthful leader of disciples. His face is a good mirror for the faith he inspires.

AT THE BELLE — Anthony Quinn and Gregory Peck star in Cinemascope production "The Guns of Navarone", also starring Gregory Peck and David Niven, in color and Cinemascope, now in its last four days at the Belle Theatre in Belleville.

Grid Reaper Takes 'High' Toll

STANFORD, Calif. (AP)—The rising toll in high school football fatalities in the United States is disturbing, Jack Curtice, president of the American Football Coaches Association, said Thursday.

"We've certainly got to find out whether any weaknesses in equipment or in training can be overcome so we can better protect these youngsters," he said.

Curtice's comments were made after the 15th high school player death of the young season was reported. Kenneth Crouse, 1, sophomore at Crandal, Iowa, died Wednesday night of a brain hemorrhage.

Kenneth was hit over the temple by an opposing player's knee while making a tackle. He was wearing a helmet.

Los Angeles, Dr. Floyd Eastwood of Los Angeles State College said 72 per cent of football fatalities are caused by head injuries. He heads a committee on injuries and fatalities which reports to the coaches association and says improvements in helmets seem to be necessary.

Plus for commercial educational and spiritual pursuits. Be direct, outgoing.

Aries (March 21 to April 19) Raise your level of consciousness now so that you can expand in various directions in your life and the world becomes far more interesting for you. Later, delve into new sports and cultural pursuits that are fine for body, mind.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) Seek out that expert who is hard to reach during week and get advice concerning that new plan you have in mind. Make sure it is practical in every way. Be with the one you love in P.M. and have a wonderful evening dance.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) Shy sitting down. Mentally with partners now, you will be able to reach some excellent conclusions. Then rit with friends in the evening for a gay evening at the amusement that most appeal to all. Be generous but not extravagant.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) So many vital matters need your attention today, so please get up early and start and put them behind you quickly. Also, find some way to do a favor for a co-worker. Be sure that den or play room is nicely arranged for comfort, relaxation.

Leo (July 22 to August 21) Delight others with your less serious and highly amusing side; relax today and lift their burden somewhat also. Use your ingenious mind to find some amusing entertainment that will lift your spirits for a short time to come.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Use your energy to make home more comfortable and immaculate so that you will also delight close ties. Then step out and buy little gifts. Give a little party tonight, if you are not too tired. Have lots of fun.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23) Plan day for all sort of dealing about making calls on others, whether it is for social or business reasons. Also, get important shopping done early.

Scorpio (Oct. 24 to Nov. 21) An ideal day to concentrate on new ideas for greater advancement in the future and to discuss them with authorities as well as study the details connected therewith thoroughly. Get up a good budget in P.M. and avoid money worries.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Do whatever is necessary to improve appearances today so that you can be ready for a busy and happy future. Make plans of a constructive nature for expansion. Evening is fine for social happiness and increasing prestige.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) This is one of those days when it is best to forego social activities in order to renew vitality and get things better organized at home. Derive inspirational hobbies tonight or simply watch television. Be at ease.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) A day for every kind of opportunity to assist others or simply have a good time with a group, in true Aquarian fashion. You are full of vitality and can really have a wonderful time. However, seek only the most worthwhile individuals.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) Here is a day when you can easily confer with powerful individuals of extensive background and get their advice and backing for any projects that will mean greater success for you in the future, or else how to improve self at own job.

If you're child is born today he, or she, will be loaded down with talents in both artistic and business fields, and there is every ability to commercialize on them wisely, once you have worked a tendency to be so outspoken and somewhat cutting with others. Otherwise the great potential here can be early dissipated if all this energy and intellect is not channelled in proper directions.

COSSA Football

Picton Beats Moira Twice

By JOE CLAPP

Moira Secondary football squads lost both ends of a Quinte COSSA twin bill to the Prince Edward High School on the former's gridiron yesterday. The city seniors went down to a 19-10 defeat while the juniors were barely squeezed out by a 20-19 score.

SENIOR GAME

Picton wasted no time in getting underway. They took possession of the ball after a beef snap from centre on a Moira punt on the Moira 15-yard line. Brown scored up the middle for Picton on the first play. The convert attempt was missed.

After the kickoff Moira was held and punted, but they regained possession when Picton was forced to kick. Good runs by Turner and Allen kept the keep a drive alive and finally Allenby went over for the T.D., on a fine run up the middle to complete a 65-yard march. Jones made the point after good.

Both teams showed fine defence in the second quarter. Neither team could move. Picton picked up two Moira fumbles and Moira had a pass intercepted by both teams and Moira intercepted a Picton pass. W. Rath well showed his mettle for Moira in the punting department. He kicked one punt through the Picton end zone for a single point and kicked another 50 yards ensuring a safety touch for two points.

The second half began with the score Picton 8, Moira 1. The third quarter was a repetition of the second quarter. Both quarterbacks were forced to eat the ball on a number of occasions because of the strong rushes put on by the defensive lines.

Picton scored halfway in the last quarter. The Picton team drove 45 yards to the Moira 20-yard line and Brown scored up the middle for his second major of the day. The convert was missed.

After the kickoff, Moira sustained an 80-yard drive to the Picton four-yard line only to lose possession because of a fumble. Moira moved in close again late in the fourth quarter to the Picton 8-yard line but again they fumbled and Picton recovered. Moira moved to the Picton 15 in the dying moments and the last play of the game was an attempted field goal by G. Jones which was blocked. Picton's best player of the day was B. Brown who scored both touchdowns and ran well all afternoon. A good performance was turned in for Moira by Wayne Rathwell who scored three points with his toe, intercepted a key pass, and was in on a good number of tackles.

JUNIOR GAME

Moira got started in a hurry. They kicked off but held Picton who kicked. Moira marched the yards to score. Fraser scored the touchdown in a keeper play from ten yards out. The convert was missed. The second scoring play came early in the second quarter. Moira was in possession in the Picton forty but they were forced to punt. Picton took over on their own 15. They were held. The punt was blocked. Moira moved in two plays to a touchdown. Lloyd scored the touchdown on an eight yard run through the middle. Faulkner made the extra point.

After the kickoff Picton drove to Moira one-yard line but they could not penetrate for the score. The ball was returned to the Moira 16 yard line and Picton scored on the next play on a drive through the centre to put them on the score sheet. The convert was missed.

In the second half, Moira, after the kickoff, moved to the Picton 18 yard line but they were held. Picton too was held and they kicked. Moira penetrated to the seven yard line and B. Harvey scored on a run up the middle for the T.D. The convert was missed.

On the kickoff, Picton started an advance from their own 25 which ended in defeat. They scored after eight plays. The convert was missed.

After the kickoff, Moira moved to mid-field but Picton intercepted on a fumble. Picton moved in 7 plays to the Moira 20 yard line. They scored the touchdown to tie the score 19-19. The convert was no good.

Moira had a golden opportunity late in the last quarter. After recovering a fumble they moved in to the Moira fifteen but the Moira defence held. Moira began a march up field that ended in another fumble which Picton recovered. They failed to move from the Moira 30, and they were forced to kick. Tom Faulkner was caught in the end zone which gave Picton a point — the point they needed. The clock ran out with Moira in possession.

Science at Work

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Twice this week: Cheese and the universe — traces of comets on earth, and curious facts from dietary rites.

BOTTOMS UP

Thanks to the camera and deep - diving undersea craft, man is getting his first close look at the ocean bottom. Scientists are finding it a remarkable place, full of the tracks of creatures, waves and the gradual accumulation of elements and minerals.

The millions of tons of ocean water that cover some 70 per cent of the earth's surface no longer are a barrier, nearoceanographer Carl J. Shipek of the U.S. naval electronic laboratory, San Diego.

Photographs at great depths have already captured the tracks of many bottom-living creatures. Worms, snail - like animals, sea urchins, brittle stars, crab and shrimp are found burrowing, plowing and crawling the bottom in search of food.

PUZZLE PIECES

Geologists have long wondered what created the small bits of glassy rock called tektites found in random locations over the earth's surface.

Now Dr. Thomas Gold, astronomer of the University of Texas says they may have been formed by bombs or chunks of planetary material hitting the earth. The impact melted silica at temperatures of more than 4,500 degrees Fahrenheit and formed droplets of fused quartz.

BROTHER RAT

Rats on a restricted diet lived 26 per cent to 35 per cent longer on the average than rats allowed to eat as they pleased.

Rats less than 800 days old which had been on the restricted diet showed a much lower incidence of various tumors than did free-feeding rats of the same age group. Beyond the 800-day age the tumors were found just as frequently in both dieting and free-feeding rats.

RENOVATE ARTERIES?

In rabbits, at least, doctors have been able to use a chemical to stop and even reverse the process of hardening or, narrowing of arteries. The chemical they used is vanadium, known to block the formation of cholesterol, a blood fat some believe causes hardened arteries.

Ivanhoe

IVANHOE — Thanksgiving dinner guests of Mrs. Philip McAvoy were: Mr. and Mrs. Grant Healy and family, Oshawa; Mr. and Mrs. Richard Bashall and family, Belleville; Mr. and Mrs. Roy LaChappelle and family; the Rev. J. F. O'Neill of Stirling; the Misses Rita McAvoy, Toronto; Helen of Oshawa; Mr. Danny McAvoy of Oshawa, and Mr. Jack Aylsworth of Stirling.

Congratulations are extended to Mr. and Mrs. John La Chappelle of Crookston who celebrated their 57th wedding anniversary on October 9th.

Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Woods, Meador; Mr. and Mrs. James Chappelle and Sharon of Foxboro, spent Sunday at the home of Mr. Wallace Fleming.

Miss Elaine Wickens of the Florence Highland School of nursing, Toronto spent the weekend at her home here.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Blakely and children of Peterborough were Thanksgiving visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Reg Haggerty.

Focus on Health

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Topics this week: What do do if you get the flu, how harvest yields may help stop some heart disease and a new aid for heart surgeons.

FLU THIS FALL?

Health experts warn that another flu season is approaching. While the chance of an epidemic cannot be predicted, certain protective measures can be taken. Stop and women, the elderly and people with chronic diseases should be vaccinated.

Here are other suggestions from the Connecticut state department of health:

Stay away from sick people. If flu breaks out, keep away from crowds. Be sure to wash your hands well before eating — and don't use glasses or other utensils that others have used. Get plenty of sleep. Avoid being chilled. If you do get sick, call your doctor and go to bed—for your good and the good of others.

MEDICAL MESSENGER

A new attack against rheumatic fever and rheumatic heart disease involves the U.S. post office department.

Chicago doctors are getting throat swab kits suitable for mailing as the latest aid to diagnosing the disease that brings on rheumatic fever. Caught in the early stages it can be cured.

A type of streptococcus germ sets the stage for rheumatic fever. Doctors will be able to take a throat swab from a sick patient, seal it in an envelope and mail it to a laboratory where the type of germ can be identified.

The mail-in system was developed by the Chicago Heart Association and board of health.

HEARTBEAT TRIGGER

In the heart there is a critical bundle of nerves which controls the heartbeat.

Some children are born with defective hearts. For surgeons trying to repair these hearts, the heartbeat centre is often a hazard.

An operation in which surgeons try to mend a hole between two chambers of the heart comes dangerously close to the heartbeat trigger.

Now a new electronic instrument can exactly locate the centre in a matter of minutes. Developed at the Children's Hospital Medical Centre, Boston, the device is expected to eliminate the possibility that the heartbeat trigger will be injured during open heart surgery.

Iodine Introduced Into Food Supplies

WASHINGTON (AP)—Fallout from Soviet nuclear tests has introduced radioactive iodine 131 into fresh food supplies in many areas in the southeastern United States and probably throughout the eastern half of the country, the public health service announced Thursday.

"However, present fallout does not warrant undue public concern, nor initiation of public action designed to limit the intake of radioactive substances," Surgeon-General Luther Terry said.

Iodine is a source of potential concern because physicians say extensive overdoses eight result in cancer or other injury to the thyroid.

North American Air Defence Will Be Tested In Raid

Hundreds of Bombers Will Attack Bases

WASHINGTON (CP) — Canada and the United States today open the biggest peacetime test of North American air defence in a 12 - hour mock raid by hundreds of bombers hauling 6,000 sorties against strategic bomber bases and key industrial centres in the two countries.

Simulating a surprise sunset strike, the attackers, assisted by about a dozen British bombers, will sweep down from the north over Canadian cities and from the east and west coasts in attempts to penetrate radar screens and intercepter defences.

On the alert will be about 1,800 interceptor planes, including some nine Canadian jet squadrons, along with about 90 American missile bases involving, all told, about 250,000 army, navy and air force personnel.

HAS SIGNIFICANCE

The exercise, called Operation Sky Shield II, has gained significance in the light of the recent Soviet tests.

Its importance also is increased by statements of U.S. officials that the U.S. is flying at least one type of new long - range interceptor and one new long - range interceptor that may be superior to those the U.S. recently has used over Soviet aircraft, flying at more than twice the speed of sound, were unveiled at the Moscow Air Show in July.

Not a shot is to be fired in the 12 hour exercise opening at 1 p.m. EST. The American "attacking" B-4f and B-52 bombers will take off early in the day from their regular bases and then attempt to manoeuvre past the defenses of the northern radar networks, piloting their assault aircraft, British bombers added to the simulated force.

Once the attackers' whereabouts are detected by radar each interceptor squadron, as the DEW, mid - Canada and Pinetree lines, reports will be flashed automatically to the North American air defence command headquarters at Colorado Springs, Colo. Defence officials there will then order up the interceptor and missile bases almost as quickly as warnings are flashed in.

Later, through photographs and radar sheets by attackers and defenders, NORAD will determine how effectively the attackers' damage was done to the aggressors and to the two countries.

During 36 hours all commercial flights in U.S. air traffic will be grounded to prevent accidents. Electronic devices used to foil bombers could also confuse commercial pilots. Some of the flights will hold "peace hours" at airports.

Aggressor bombers in the exercise will be armed with only clear carriers but will not be carrying warheads. No weapons

UN. KATANGA SIGN AGREEMENT TO CEASE FIRE

To Take Effect Immediately

ELISABETHVILLE, (Reuters) A cease-fire agreement between the United Nations and Katanga was signed here Friday night, it was announced today in this Congo city.

The effect of the agreement was to bring the two sides back to the political and military positions they occupied before last month's clash over UN efforts to remove white mercenaries from the Katanga armed forces.

The agreement, reached after 21 days of hard bargaining by President Moise Tshombe of Katanga and Mahmoud Khiari of Tunisia, chief of the UN's civil operations in the Congo, takes effect immediately and needs only approval by the UN secretariat in New York.

After the signing of the agreement, Tshombe received guests on the balcony of the presidential palace, but Khiari left immediately for Kindu, during bargaining session.

CAN DEFEND

The agreement clearly states that the UN recognizes the right of Katanga to defend itself against a UN attack, which was taken to mean any attempt by UN troops to disarm gendarmerie in Leopoldville to bring Katanga under its control.

Tshombe failed to press home his much stated demand that UN troops should have been in the secessionist province for 16 months be withdrawn.

The agreement was the 9th that Tshombe had signed and the signing was delayed till the last minute by a dispute over Kindu.

Khiari is expected to go to Leopoldville soon, presumably to make further contacts but is told to bring about a reconciliation between Katanga and the central government.

The central government said that on Friday night (Saturday) it would not feel bound by the Kindu agreement if it was violated and said it was still determined to end Katanga's secession by using military force.

Information Minister Joseph Ileo said the central government troops in Katanga would be purely a police measure to help restore authority in civil war.

Under the cease-fire agreement all prisoners will be returned, without their arms or equipment.

The 180 Irish UN prisoners held in Katanga have been transferred to Kolwezi from Jadotville—where they had been held by attackers previously more than three weeks ago—will probably be released.

The UN will return to the Katangese authorities buildings in Elisabethville that they seized Sept. 13, including the post office, which they had occupied by Indian Gurkha troops.

Canada Tables Plan To Measure Atom Radiation

Wants Data Circulated Like Weather Reports

NITED NATIONS (CP)—A Canadian formula for measuring atomic radiation and worldwide distribution of results was circulated among the 104 member countries of the allied Nations today.

Canada submitted its resolution to the UN secretariat Friday night, once again noting the global anxiety caused by fallout and the resumption of nuclear tests.

The plan—co-sponsored by 18 countries—envisages the collection of radiation data like weather reports and its prompt relay through world - girdling networks.

It would have the UN General Assembly express deep concern that tests have been sharp increases in the levels of radioactive fallout in the main parts of world.

DOESN'T MENTION

It does not mention the Soviet Union—accused of resuming nuclear testing in the atmosphere, nor the United States which followed with tests underground—but it:

"Declares that both concern for the future of mankind and the fundamental principles of international law require that responsibility on all states concerning actions which might cause scientifically biological consequences for the existing and future generations of peoples of other states."

The resolution refers to a report of the UN scientific committee on the effects of atomic radiation, which says the test resumptions "increase the urgency for intensification of relevant scientific studies."

Paul Tremblay, Canadian ambassador to Chile and delegate to the current session, scheduled to address the 101 - member political committee Monday in the first stage of piloting the measure through the assembly.

None of the major powers are co-sponsors but diplomats said the allied States and Britain the United States and Britain

Royal York Accused of Violating Act

TORONTO (CP) — The va

lty of strike action under the Labor Relations Act v called into question Friday the Royal York Hotel was cused in court of violating t act by dismissing six striki employees.

W. J. Jackett, counsel for nadian Pacific Railway w owns the hotel, argued bef Magistrate Thomas Elmore J the right to strike is not inqu in the legislation as a law activity of a union.

Magistrate Elmore postpo a decision until Wednesday.

The union, with permi from the Ontario Labor Re tion Board, has charged hotel with violating the Act by using the threat of dismissal in an effort to sup employees in the exercise rights under the act, and by dismissing strikers in violation the act.

Red Unions' Links to Hoffa Under Fire From McClellan

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senator John McClellan said today attempts to link alleged Communist-dominated labor unions and James R. Hoffa's Teamsters would yield "tainted and valuable power".

McClellan, Arkansas Democrat who is chairman of the Senate internal security subcommittee, called for enactment of legislation to curb them.

Hoffa testified Friday he is strengthening his "mutual assistance" pact with Harry Bridges' west coast Longshoremen's union and also has an alliance with the Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers Union.

Bridges' union was expelled from the CIO in 1950 on charges of following Communist policies. The Mine-Mill union was kicked out of the CIO the same year as subservient to the Communist line.

United Appeal Opens

Monday of next week the Belleville United Appeal opens its annual campaign for funds.

The campaign objective is $80,000. Every cent of this total is needed if the eleven member agencies are to be enabled to make their maximum possible contribution to the welfare of the community as a whole.

The welfare of the community as a whole — that is what is at stake. Too many people seem to think that any curtailment of the activities of these member agencies affects only certain small groups which they serve. Nothing could be further from the truth. It is impossible to have a healthy community if certain segments of it are neglected. In a very real sense, then, those who contribute to the United Appeal are contributing to their own welfare, physical, mental and spiritual.

The argument most frequently parallied as an excuse — we will not dignify it with the name of a reason — for not contributing to the United Appeal is that the critic does not approve of the work of this or that agency. In this very nature of things, it is inevitable that not all of our readers will be enthusiastic supporters of the work of all eleven agences. Surely though, it should be obvious, that objections of this nature cancel themselves out. The very agencies which one person may think least deserving of public support are the precise organizations which some other citizen favors with the greatest enthusiasm. Therefore, if both give generously, the final result is that the favorite charities of both receive the suport they need to continue their work.

No hard and fast yardstick for giving is possible. Everybody must be his own judge as to the amount he or she should contribute. The United Appeal, however, suggests that the average family might contribute one hour's pay per month. This works out at something like six-tenths of one per cent of income — surely little enough to be divided up between eleven different agencies.

It is still true, too, that the well-to-do have a special responsibility to discharge and the higher a citizen's income the larger, other things being equal, should be his or her contribution, not merely the actual size of the donation made but also in respect to its proportion of total income.

Just because today's conditions demand careful organization of such an appeal for funds is certainly no reason why those who give should be as methodical in determining the size of their contribution. Charity is a cold business unless the heart, as well as the pocketbook, is opened.

Macaulay Asks Cabinet Board To Set Goals

NEW LISKEARD (CP)—Energy Resources Minister Macaulay said Friday night he favors setting up a committee of the provincial cabinet to act as host for the economic development.

Speaking to the annual sessions of the Federation of Northern Ontario Municipalities he said he is concerned over the possibility Ontario's people feel cut off from a government which seems too big. He proposed the provincial cabinet tour the province periodically, holding sessions outside Toronto.

He also proposed creation of an Ontario development council to assist small business and the tourist industry, and an Ontario industrial commission to study world markets.

Mr. Macaulay, who said he had travelled 13,000 miles since entering the leadership race a few weeks ago, predicted a threefold increase in Ontario's electricity needs by 1980. Most of the demand would have to be met by nuclear power developments.

CLAIMS RECORD

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union Friday claimed a world air speed record of 1,690.85 miles an hour for jet planes flying a closed 62 - mile course. The Soviet news agency Tass said at times the speed reached by Pilot A. Fedotov was 1,706.35 m.p.h.

Prime Minister Assassinated By Gunman

USUMBURA Ruanda - Urundi (Reuters) — Louis Rwagasore, prime minister of the African kingdom of Urundi, was assassinated by a gunman in Usumbura here Friday night.

The prime minister was dining at the island's ministers at a lakeside restaurant when he was shot twice in the head by a rifle bullet fired from some nearby bushes.

Urundi and its neighboring territory Ruanda are bordered by Tanganyika and the Belgian Congo and are both Belgian trusteeships due to become independent next year.

Hundreds of Greek Reds Settle In Bulgaria in Frontier Regions

LONDON (AP)—Allied diplomats report hundreds of former Greek Communist partisans are moving from Iron Curtain countries into Bulgaria for resettlement along the frontier with Greece.

This development — coming after the defection of thousands of other ostetime Greek guerrillas — "is worrying the Athens government and other Allied countries.

Greek authorities fear the movement may be the forerunner of a campaign to unite all Macedonians — Greek, Bulgarian and even Yugoslav — under Communist leadership.

There also is concern among Atlantic pact powers that Communist exiles may become the hard core for disgruntled and disaffected Greeks ready to act against the anti-Communist Athens government.

Greek Communists made a big push for power after the Second World War and it took a long, costly campaign by the Athens government to crush the uprising. This was achieved with British and American help.

About 28,000 partisans in 1949 sid.

'Kambai' Chinese for Bottoms Up Sounds at Luncheon for Mission

OTTAWA (CP) — "Kambai" — bottoms up — sounded around a luncheon table Friday as Agriculture Minister Alvin Hamilton returned hospitality shown him earlier this year by the Chinese trade buyers.

The glass-clinking event provided a two - hour break from business rounds for the 13-man Chinese trade mission as it strikes out on its own today on a two-country tour organized by a one Canada's top-sided advantage in trade.

Taking a cue from Chinese practice, the Canadians at the luncheon Friday kept interrupting the toasts flowing thick and fast and there were 12 — give or take a few — before the last mainly Manchurian dry drop of good Rhine wine was drained. Mr. Hamilton carefully on the trade success-and-friendship level in line with the fact as-sured by Premier Chou En-lai and other diplomatically.

In a toast by Mr. Hamilton to Queen and "Chairman Mao" Tse-tung who heads the Chinese Communist government —was followed quickly by one to Chen Ming, minister head, and Li Yu-sheng, head of the grain party, the man who signed the long-term wheat deal.

"Kambei," intoned Mr. Hamilton.

Gil China hands declined the challenge in preparation for that was to come. Some of the Chinese pointedly flashed their empty cups.

Mr. Chen toasted "his excellency Mr. Hamilton." Mr. Li toasted the minister for this "rich and friendly banquet."

Douglas Fisher, Progressive Conservative member of Parliament for Port Arthur, Ont., and Canada's only MP of Chinese extraction, started to propose a toast in the Mandarin dialect of the Canton dialect of the south. The delegation speaker asked whether he should "interpret this into Chinese" — the delegation speaks mainly Mandarin — and Mr. Jung gallantly finished his toast in English.

John Small, trade and commerce official born in China of Canadian parents, was thanked the delegation in Chinese.

Defence Production Minister O'Hurley toasted the delegation in French.

Mr. Hamilton gave the final "kambai," urging the mission stay as long as necessary to line up expanded sales and expressing the hope it would be the first of many.

Says Cold War Will Continue For Generation

BRIGHTON (Reuters)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker today described Russia as the world's "greatest imperialistic power" and predicted the cold war would last a generation and perhaps longer.

Diefenbaker told the windup session of the annual conference of his Conservative party that peaceful coexistence between East and West could come only if Communist nations recover a "moral basis" for their outlook.

The 65-year-old prime minister, reviewing the party platform for the next 10 years, said he could not promise to be "at the helm" in 2071, but said "in our minds there is no lack of youthful spirits."

Today's Chuckle

Wallbridge Road-401 Cloverleaf Now Undergoing Construction

Following announcement of the contract award several weeks ago, construction on the cloverleaf at the intersection of 401 highway and the Wallbridge Road is now underway by the H. J. McFarland Construction Company of Picton.

Access to the 401 cloverleaf interchange have already been graded and fill for the ramps leading to the main overpass area is being hauled in. Construction of the cloverleaf bridge has not yet commenced, however.

Mr. W. E. Sandercock, member for Hastings West, said he did not know whether completion date for the cloverleaf construction had been set.

Completion of the Wallbridge Road cloverleaf will eliminate another dangerous intersection on 401 Highway in the Belleville area.

Still remaining, however, will be the Sidney Street intersection on 401 Highway which in recent months has been the scene of several serious accidents, including at least one fatality.

Originally the Ontario Highways Department had intended to close the Sidney Street intersection but in the last several years there has been considerable residential building in the Sidney Street area north of 401 and there has been continued agitation for an overpass at this point.

Sidney Street is the boundary between Thurlow and Sidney townships and requests for "fly-over" have been forwarded to the highway department by the two members, Mr. W. E. Sandercock and Clarke T. Rollins.

Nine Accidents In City Last Night

City police reported nine minor accidents in the city between 4 p.m. and midnight last night. There were no injuries reported.

Damage was extensive as the result of a truck-car collision on Front Street yesterday in front of Tompkins' service station.

Police said a truck driven by John Edward Malcolm of 313 Dundas Street West and owned by Percival Furniture Co., 390 Front Street, came out of the north exit of Tompkin's garage, crossed into the right lane and proceeded south on Front Street, and turned left to go into the south exit of the station when he collided with a vehicle driven by Hubert Alexander Watts, 30, of R.R. 2, Bellville.

Damage to the Watts vehicle was estimated at $400 and $75 to the Percival truck. There were no injuries reported as the result of the accident.

Prices Steady On Market

A small group of vendors braved the chilly weather this morning in the local market square with their various fruits and vegetables.

The fresh fruit and vegetable season is almost at an end and today's small quantity could be seen this morning. Prices have remained much the same as last week.

Blue grapes were selling for 35c a basket and tomatoes 70c. Yellow tomatoes, rarely seen, sold at 60c for an 11-quart basket. Cabbage and cauliflower remained the same as previous week, selling from 10-15c per head, according to size.

Carrots, beets and onions sold from 15-20c per peck and butternut squash, 10-15c. Red and green peppers sold at 3 for 10c and celery 3 bunches for 25c.

Apples sold at $1 a basket; peaches 35c; apples 75c and pears 60c for a 6-quart basket. Apple cider was plentiful again this morning selling for 31 per gallon and 15-20c for smaller bottles.

Eggs are holding a steady price; extra large 62, large 65 and medium 50c a dozen.

With winter just around the corner, Saturday morning shopping on the market square will be for ice and celery 3 bunches soon be over.

Obituaries

EARL CRONKWRIGHT

TRENTON — On Thursday a service was held at the Weaver Funeral Home for Earl Cronkwright, 51, of Stirling-Trenton, who died at Hotel Dieu Hospital in Kingston last Monday. Mr. Earl Cronkwright was 54.

The service was conducted by Rev. J. A. Payton and the bearers were Bill Donaldson, L. Davidson, Ken Anderson, Fred Logue, Ralph Waddell and John Soldier. Honorary bearers were Jack Colliver and Ron Birkett. All bearers are members of the Canadian Legion Branch 116, Trenton.

Mr. Cronkwright, who had been in poor health and the past 15 years, was a lifetime resident of Trenton. He was the son of the late Joseph and Harriett Cronkwright. He had been employed by and retired with the Department of National Defence.

Mr. Cronkwright served in the First World War in the 2nd Division, R.C.A. from 1914 to 1918. He was a former member of the Royal Canadian Legion Branch Trenton and was United Church by faith.

Surviving are his wife, the former Irene Horseford; two daughters, Mrs. Robert (Mary Lou) Allen of Trenton, Mrs. (Betty) Simpson, and Theresa, all of Trenton and Mrs. Percy (Agnes) Wall, Toronto, and Mrs. James (Bernice) Kent of Shannonville. Also surviving are his sons, Ted and Howard of Trenton, Charles of Brockville and Lake, Kenneth and Sam of St. Catharines; three sisters, Mrs. Alice Brown, Mrs. Tilley Ristoff and Mrs. Thomas LaPointe, all of Trenton; four brothers, Wesley and Cecil of Toronto, Oscar of Hamilton and Wilfred of Port Credit.

WILLIAM BROWN

TRENTON — On Wednesday, Rev. J. T. Irwin conducted a service at the Weaver Funeral Home for William (Bill) M. Brown of 94 Henry Street in Trenton.

Teen-Agers' Hallowe'en Dance Planned

The Belleville Recreation Committee announces once again this year the Hallowe'en dance will be held for the teenagers in the City of Belleville. The dance will be held Tuesday, October 31, in the Belleville Armouries from 8-11.30 p.m. with the entire proceeds to be donated to the UNICEF Fund.

At a meeting held last night it was decided that James Ketcheson from the Quinte Young Timers act as master of ceremonies. The Students' Council and Students' Parliament of the local high schools will look after the selling of tickets to the dance. The Police Association has assured their fullest cooperation with ample prizes for the many dances.

Attending the meeting were Forrest Smith and Jim Pickering from Moira Secondary School Students' Parliament, John Fraser and Dawn Forrester from R.C.I. & V.S. Students' Council, Steve Mullen and Bill Bottle from the Quinte Secondary School Students' Parliament, Gary Wilson from Tech Town, James Ketcheson from Quinte Young Timers, Constable Jack Parker from Belleville Police Association and Miss Pickering from the Belleville Recreation Committee.

This is the fifth annual Hallowe'en Howl which the Recreation Committee has organized with assistance from the Belleville Police Association and from the high school principals and students. Proceeds from all these dances have gone to UNICEF.

RED UNIONS

In questioning Hoffa, the subcommittee labelled both unions as Communist-dominated.

"I don't know whether they are Communist - dominated or not," Hoffa said of the two unions. "There will be no pact between the Teamsters union and any organization so convicted."

Hoffa said the pacts with the two unions were aimed solely at "labor solidarity" and had no political or ideological motivations.

At the outset of the hearing, Hoffa said he welcomed a chance to "publicly under oath that "Hoffa was not a Communist, has not associated with Communists, is not a Communist and never intends to be."

The Teamsters and Office-Mill union followed Hoffa to the witness stand.

Beck, research director Bern and Stern, swore he is not a Communist and wasn't one a year or two years ago. Moreover, he refused to say whether he was a member of the Communist party three years ago or in 1945, when he got his union card.

INVOKES AMENDMENT

Stern invoked the Fifth Amendment, protection against being compelled to give testimony that might incriminate himself.

The three other officials called to the stand were Irving Dreicher, Office-Mill secretary-treasurer; Harold Sanderson, comptroller, and Albert Skinner, Dreicher, vice - president. They have been convicted of conspiracy to defraud the government by filing false non-Communist affidavits.

Nathan Witt, their lawyer, objected that if the subcommittee questioned them about communism it might prejudice their cases in event of a retrial. Mc-Clellan overruled the objection, but ordered all four back for another hearing Nov. 8. Dichter and Sanderson gave some testimony, but Skinner said he was not feeling well enough to agree to return to November.

Hoffa testified he believes it is permissible to use strikes as a "political weapon" — against legislation opposed by labor unions, for instance.

Archdeacon J. B. Creegan Speaker at Commencement Of Moira Secondary School

There is no occupation so insignificant that it is not a worthwhile part of the whole scene, where in society, Archdeacon J. B. Creeggan told the graduating students of the Moira Secondary School at its second commencement exercises yesterday evening.

Each person is given a life, the guest speaker said, which he can either make or mar — use or waste. It is entirely up to the individual as to what he does with his life — as to whether or not he achieves happiness and success in the years following graduation, Mr. Creegan suggested.

To achieve such goals requires self discipline — the ability to rule out the unnecessary, not to waste one's time in the frivolous; and the will to work and the soul to dare, the rector of Christ Church emphasized.

Chosen a path which will take one the farthest, not the fastest, suggested the speaker. It is perhaps most important for one to become a real person above other goals which may appear to be superficially important, he concluded.

The valedictory address was given by Klaus "Nick" Quickert, who suggested that commencement was a time when a student should pause to both look back upon happy memories and associations and to look ahead to his future course in life.

He compared a student's development and progress with that of a ship making a journey through the seaway to the ocean. Parents and teachers, he suggested, might be considered as buoys, pilots or lighthouses en route, with the various levels of achievement a student reaches during his career representing the various locks.

During the early part of the ship's voyage, in the narrows of the water way, there is but one path which eventually broadens in scope as it gets closer to the ocean, which the valedictorian compared to life after the last lock, graduation, was passed.

Thanks should be given, he suggested, to one's parents and teachers for having provided a safe passage up to this point. The future, with its many different routes and possible storms ahead, would have to be mastered by the student himself, making use of the education he had received previously and with the maturity which he achieved through his experiences, Mr. Quickert said.

One must continue to be mentally active, even if one's formal education is over, and to be mindful of the fact that success is measured by the individual's contribution to society, he concluded.

CHAIRMAN SPEAKS

Mr. A. L. Greatrix, chairman of the Bay of Quinte High School Board, also spoke, expressing the congratulations of the board to the graduating students and prize winners.

He suggested that people might consider their lives to fall into four periods. First was the pre-school and elementary school stage, during which they were told and taught the fundamentals of a good life. The second stage consisted of the period at high schools, during which time they were told and taught in order to develop their character and aptitudes. Thirdly was the time spent at university during which period they were offered and taught such fields of knowledge as they chose. The final phase was when they got out into the world on their own and, through experience and learning, achieved that wisdom which was vital to a happy and successful life.

Mr. W. J. Musgrave, principal of Moira Secondary School, spoke briefly on the success which the school had achieved during the past year, the second of its life and the first year during which there was a grade 13 academic graduating class.

He attributed the past school year's success to a first-rate student body which had a very co-operative spirit, to a congenial staff of teachers, to an interested school board and to the establishment of a home and school association.

PRESENTATIONS MADE

Close to 500 persons attended the graduation exercises which were held in the school auditorium. Prior to the presentation of awards and prizes entertainment was provided by the school's glee club, under the direction of Mr. H. Adams.

Following the programme a reception was held for parents and guests in the school cafeteria and students attended the graduation dance in the gymnasium.

Those receiving certificates, diplomas, awards and prizes included the following:

Former Prime Minister Once Persuaded King Not to Quit

TORONTO (CP) — Former prime minister Louis St. Laurent says he once persuaded Mackenzie King not to resign as prime minister over Canada's participation in a United Nations commission.

He relates the incident in a review in The Globe and Mail of the book, The Art of the Possible: Government and Foreign Policy in Canada by James Eayrs, associate professor of political economy at the University of Toronto.

Discussing an incident reported in the book, Mr. St. Laurent writes that Mr. King was overcome in 1947 and Mr. St. Laurent, then justice minister, was acting prime minister when Canada was asked to join a UN temporary commission to supervise elections in Korea.

Along with J. L. Ilsley, now chief justice of Nova Scotia and then leader of Canada's UN delegation, and his principal adviser, Lester B. Pearson, Mr. St. Laurent "came to the conclusion that to maintain the wholesome influence we were attempting to exercise at the UN, we should accept the assignment . . ."

When Mr. King learned of the commitment, Mr. St. Laurent says, "he was very disturbed and even disposed to resign. The defendence will have to be found," he added.

Need Comprehensive Vote

Belleville theatre operators have asked City Council to arrange for a referendum on Sunday movies. This request has been referred to the Council's finance and executive committee. We suggest that the committee should recommend that such a referendum be held, and that the Council should act in accordance with such a recommendation. But we also suggest that the referendum should not be limited to Sunday movies, but should deal with the whole question of Sunday recreation.

At the same meeting of the Council at which the theatre owners presented their request, the Council decided to amend an existing by-law so that it will prevent bowling alleys operating on Sunday. There is no reason why operation should be permitted, when other recreational activities on Sunday are banned. But the question of opening bowling alleys on Sunday should be put to the people at the same time as they vote on Sunday movies.

Ald. W. E. Jarvah, in the discussion about bowling alleys operating on Sunday, said he was in favor of Sunday sports but that the people of Belleville had voted against them. Despite this fact, many sports, are played on Sunday. It is time that this question was considered again by the people — with the distinct understanding that their decision will be rigidly enforced.

Sunday sports, Sunday movies, Sunday bowling — all these should be the subject of a referendum at the next municipal election.

If the voters are consistent, they will either approve them all, or reject them all. This would mean that Sunday recreational facilities would either be greatly enlarged, or sharply curtailed. This is one of the few occasions on which there is no logical middle path, and certainly there is nothing which can be said in defence of the existing situation which involves sticking to the letter of the law while ignoring its spirit. Too often, at present, a privileged or fortunate few enjoy recreational facilities which are denied those less wealthy or less lucky in their choice of a pastime.

Now It's Ladies in Billiard Halls

Bowling has long since gone genteel, with ladies in the lounge and babies in the nursery, games replacing alleys while the gutter has become the trough.

Women — pardon us, ladies — have also infiltrated the pool rooms, now known as billiard halls, but the full-scale invasion is not yet underway. It won't be long now, if an Etobicoke bowling alley proprietor has his way. He has informed the township property commission that he plans a billiard hall with drapes in the windows and a "ladies welcome" sign.

We are not overly concerned about the invasion of the fair sex — billiards is the type of game at which women, with their sensitive touch, might easily excel. We are alarmed, though by hall of the prospective proprietor's announcement that, "There will be no profane language or loitering allowed."

The language in pool rooms needs cleaning up — not because it has been mainly but because it has all too often been childishly indecent. But a ban loitering of something else again.

Loitering is the essence of the pool room's appeal. Whether he just wants to come in out of the rain, whether he is using the pool room as a convenient place to meet his friends, or whether he is dedicated to the game and is playing the role of the silent disciple to the cue-wielding professors, the loiterer is as necessary in a well-equipped pool room as a ladies' aid. The day that they find some alternative name for that necessary tool of the game — and expel the loiterer — will be the day when the appeal and the standard of play in billiards starts to decline.

The objective, apparently, is to make sure that all habitues of the billiard-hall of tomorrow are helping to pay the rent — every moment they are in the building. One would be tempted to say that a billiard hall couldn't be run this way — until one remembers what the Canadian average room operators have managed to do to the leisurely peace of drinking which distinguishes the British "pub."

As the nature of foul weather lieth not in a shower or two of rain but in an inclination thereto of many days together, so the nature of war consisteth not in actual fighting but in the known disposition thereto during all the time there is no assurance to the contrary. All other time is peace. — Thomas Hobbes.

Opinions that are well rooted should grow and change like a healthy tree. — Irving Batcheller.

Arab Dream Shattered

Vancouver Sun

The Arab world, comprising 40 million people in the Middle East, is cracking up today. A dream of national unity which has persisted for generations appears to be fading as Syria breaks away from Egyptian Nasser's United Arab Republic.

The spectre of Communism sits on the sidelines, gleeful as European chancelleries are nervous. Arab nationalism is marching as a spirit grows that may be long in healing.

For several reasons, the United Arab Republic in its shaky way was a step to the realization of a goal cherished by generations of Arab patriots—the creation of a united, free Arab nation.

It has been a dream existent in the Middle East for many centuries. At one time, under the Arabian caliphs, it was practically synonymous with Pan-Islamism. But the gradual transformation of the ancient Shiekan empire into the Turkish empire, beginning in the 11th century under the Seljuks, and continuing under the Ottomans, has tended to separate Arab nationalism from Islam.

Modern nationalistic feeling was stimulated by Western influences, beginning in Egypt when the first American protestant missionaries landed at Beirut, Syria. The rapid expansion of both Protestant and Catholic missions, backed by elite promoted Arab culture among Arabs, resulted in a new and semi-independent under its leaders.

But it had its most important stimulus around the turn of the century when the Young Turks set out to modernize the Ottoman empire.

However, Young Turks could not make up their minds whether to Turkify the empire or to promote Pan-Islam. Some governments failed to satisfy the Arabs, whether they were Ottoman, Iraq, Yemen, the Hejaz or Saudi Arabia.

* * *

One of the great leaders of the Arab 19th century was Jamal-Din al-Afghani, was a revolutionary who sought political unity for the entire Moslem world.

Other Arab nationalists would have been content with a united Arab nation of which Syria was the core.

It was this spirit, plus the latent resentment which had been took, which brought the Arab world to Britain's side in the First World War.

An ironic twist is that as early as 1915 — even before war broke out — Syrian nationalists had appealed to secret Syria to Egypt. Dr. Georges Neid sought British protection in Cairo and Sherrif Hussein of the Hijz.

But unfortunately even then the dream of Arab unity was soon clashed with the rivalries of the Arab leaders. Hussein and his sons made conflicting promises. At war's end Hussein was proclaimed King of the Hejaz and Iraq as part of a united Arab kingdom. The French balked him. King Saud drove him out of Hejaz and united the Arabian peninsula save for Yemen and the British protectorates.

But Hussein's sons reigned — Feisal in Iraq and Abdullah in Transjordan.

These events, plus the partition of Palestine and the creation of an Israeli republic, alienated the Arab world from the West and set the scene for the revolutionary unrest which has swept the Arab world from East to West and the British protectorates.

The Hashimite kingdom of Iraq has vanished. But neither the Saudi family in Arabia nor Hussein of Jordan has given up dreams of uniting of a great Arab kingdom.

Their ambitions clash with those of Cairo. Nasser has been a picture of a Pan-Arab empire stretching from the Strait of Gibraltar to the borders of Iran. They clash also with those of Iraq's Kassim of Iraq, who is Nasser's inveterate foe.

The main hope for Arab unity was that it would unite in the Arab League. But it can only act when the self-interest of the major members permits.

There's an opportunity and even a duty, for the Western powers to use their best influences to promote Arab unity. Too often the West has supplanted Arab divisions in its own interests. The time has come to try another way.

In Moscow there are men who know how to exploit disaffection and unrest. Four years ago they nobly succeeded in subverting Egypt.

That they may try it again is what people in Europe mean when they say today that pro-Syrian revolt is a threat to world peace.

Doctors Use Sound Waves

St. Thomas Times-Journal

Science has brought a new device in medicine and surgery by the use of ultrasonics, or sound waves higher than the range audible to the human ear. Within the past three years both technology and medicine have advanced so rapidly that physicians now have at their disposal a powerful new surgical weapon with its use controlled with great precision and used for both diagnosis and treatment. Already in many cases, there has been difficulty in locating the exact source of trouble inside the human body. There may have been a lot of guessing as to what is done before a physician got the exact focus on minute targets.

Ultrasonics have been of great value in detecting breast and brain tumors so that with the most refined equipment, almost 100 per cent exactitude has been obtained.

Even moving targets such as sections of the heart, can now be investigated with ultrasonic waves. A beam is focused on the area under examination. As the soundstream hits the moving target, frequency changes. The reflected beam with its changed frequency is audited along with the original ultrasonic impulse, and the frequency much like that caused by doublingback of sound between two close notes on a piano can be detected. By comparing the characteristic rate of heart frequency from normal and diseased hearts, medical investigators can now detect coronary sclerosis, hypertensive heart disease, and conditions resulting from thyroid and liver disorders. Research has progressed to the point where they can be seen on an electrocardiogram.

One of the most successful uses of ultrasonics is in its application to mental diseases. In one large group in the United States they had not responded to all customary treatments. 80 per cent responded to ultrasonic treatment and were ready to resume work.

Congested sinuses, warts and bursitis have cleared after ultrasonic treatments.

Physicians who have specialized in ultrasonic medicine believe that it will become as much a medical specialty as X-ray therapy, and also as valuable

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

THINKING AND THINKING

I can see no excuse for any human being in this world who does not think and get pleasure and happiness from thinking.

There is no more practical discouraged mortal on earth if he will but do it. Thinking is the motive force behind all creation, all invention, all that there is in art and literature.

If you get "stumped," don't give up, don't entertain the idea that you have reached your limit. Just think. Think long and hard. Mistakes have solved the knottiest problems of all history.

The great profit derived from thinking does not lie in original ideas, nor in giving unique expression to words, but in exercising the brain cells that run from the back and forth through the paths of the brain.

The man who always thinks in the same mood, in the same way that you think always correctly, for who does? But if you form the habit of thinking things out for yourself, you will cultivate an independence of thought, a clear and exact purpose behind this thought, and make yourself felt as an influence wherever you go. A man who thinks always takes his stand apart from the crowd.

You should think as you are told, or as you have been taught to think, but as you see and believe. This applies, of course, to the adult mind.

How refreshing to meet a man or woman who has "original" ideas and the courage to express them! Yet if you closely observe or analyze such a person, you will find that these same original ideas are no more than the old natural ideas that rolled out without being greased, coaxed, or borrowed.

There is always hope for a man who will honestly think!

Not His Function

Brantford Expositor

Because he objected "on aesthetic grounds" to a policeman chalking his car tires, a Waterloo student was charged and by a magistrate as being a smoky-panhy. It is scarcely the function of a cadi to offer gratuitous insults to persons appearing before him. In any event the same magistrate should have been aware that those higher than he in the judicial scale but recently ruled that it was illegal for policemen to chalk tires.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

OCTOBER 14, 1941

Murney Green, Jr., fifteen-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs Murney Green, was the youngest youth in Point Anne on Monday night. For tangible recognition of his heroism in rescuing eight-year-old John MacDonald from the waters of the bay off Point Anne in June of this year and bringing the unconscious lad ashore with life after ten minutes of resuscitation, was made in the parish hall before a large crowd, when he was formally presented with the "President's Medal" of the National Safety Council of the U.S.A. and Canada, by the Canadian writer watch and a citation recording the details of the rescue.

Boldly stalking into the premises of Jos. Zanelli, confectionery store on Saturday afternoon, a youthful thief nonchalantly removed a coin pouch containing over $12.00. The container had been left in the office desk in the event that any employee might need to make change for a purchase.

Mr. A. Hearn of Zanelli's store, has found quite a number of large carrots in his garden, the largest of which measured 14 inches in length from top to root and 11 inches in circumference at the top.

Boys firing air rifles are believed responsible for the breaking of the glass container in one of the gasoline pumps operated by the Belleville Fruit Company on their Albion Street premises some time over the weekend. Only a small hole in the lower section of the glass cylinder was found, leading to the conclusion that the glass which had broken the glass had been fired at random.

30 YEARS AGO

OCTOBER 14, 1931

Twenty-three transients spent lazy night at the police station.

Mr. J. Raymond Carr of Chatham St., has announced that he will be a candidate for election to the city council at the next elections.

Mr. and Mrs. J. D. McIntosh and children spent the week-end in Toronto at the King Edward Hotel.

Ald. George Tice spent Thanksgiving week-end in Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Starke of Foster Ave., spent Thanksgiving with friends in Oakwood.

Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Rathbun and Betty Sully have returned to Toronto after visiting relatives here.

Miss Helen Sully spent the weekend with friends in Toronto.

40 YEARS AGO

OCTOBER 14, 1921

The annual reunion of the Boy Scouts in this city was a great success. At the head table were seated Commissioner W. H. Rinkle of the 1st Belleville Troop, Rev. Canon Greene, Rev. Mr. Cranston of Trenton; W. C. Mikel, K.C.; C. A. Gallagher, Provincial Field Secretary; S. C. Gay, and G. W. Henderson of the Belleville and Messrs. Jackson, Follwell, Frederick and Davis of Belleville. Assistant Scoutmaster Byng Hayes and Jack Crozier assisted in the programme.

At the school field day in Trenton, Grant Maidens, Cecil Facey, W. Wannamaker, Betty Williams and Gwen Lazier were chosen for the Belleville High School and won several events.

50 YEARS AGO

OCTOBER 14, 1911

At the meeting of the Belleville Cheese Board 1110 boxes of cheese were boarded and sold at factories, except two, sold at 13 11/16 cents. 38 factories were represented.

Prices on the city market have been a little higher than usual lately. Butter is selling at 38 cents per pound; eggs 25 to 27 cents per dozen, a high price for this season of the year. Dressed chickens are selling at $1.45 per pair.

Must Serve A la Carte

Montreal Gazette

Much is being said these days about the need for Canadian businessmen to get out and compete with the foreign producer. As an example of what is needed, a little story was told at the annual meeting of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce. The speaker was Mr. F. M. Covert, Q.C., of Halifax.

Mr. Covert recalled that 18 years ago he arrived at Manning Pool in Toronto to begin his training in the R.C.A.F. Shortly after his arrival, he and the others were ushered into a big dining hall. There he passed a place where they picked up their eating utensils and a plate. Then they handed their plates to the boys behind the counter who the boys put on the meat and vegetables.

"As my plate went down the line," says Mr. Covert, "it ended with a fellow who had a great big ladle and a potful of gravy. I said 'no gravy, please.'

"'Oh,' was the reply, 'a la carte, eh!' With that he completely smothered my food with gravy. 'Take it and like it,' said he.

And Mr. Covert asks: "Are we providing what our customers want, or are we leaving 'a la carte' to the foreigners?"

Quicker Than Telephoning

Letter to London Observer

The other night I was being driven from London to Billsbury, Ohio, in a vintage open Dutiller. On leaving Billsbury worth, where the road hairpins back on itself, my driver-host unclipped a gleaming copper cone-thing-horn which I had been noticing mounted on the outside hand-brake, and sounded a piercing blast.

"Four miles by road, halfmile by crow," he said. "When we hear this horn in town there will be open, the light switched on, the table laid, the fire bright, and the drinks poured out. You'll see." And it all happened just as he said. The same buses. They visit their friends and relatives in one or the market days, or festivals other than their own. They live and die without ever seeing or knowing more than a fraction, maybe a tenth, maybe a twentieth of the total population of the world. Yet every one would be ready to die for the right to vote, to take our stand knowing that the power of God and of all His holy angels is behind us.

Having done all, we stand.

Common Cause of Brittle Bones Is Osteoporosis

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

"Dear Dr. Molner: Is there anything one can do to keep bones from being easily fractured? It seems to me I have a fracture every time I fall, even usually a rib or ribs.

"I have found that bones get more brittle with age. I am now past 50, but I have had this trouble for years. — Mrs. L. A. W."

This is not an easy question to answer. The most common cause of brittleness in the bones is osteoporosis, a thinning of the interior of bones which allows them to become brittle.

The condition may usually be traced to a decline in ovarian hormones which occurs at menopause, or change of life. Osteoporosis is not uncommon in women in its age bracket.

However, frequent fractures are not common, if they were, it we would have a great many fractures, because bones, and this simply is not the case.

There are other, and distinct, kinds of brittle bones which reproduce what we call "pathological fractures", or breaks which occur at the slightest injury.

I recall a three-year-old girl in a state hospital who was kept in a crib with the guard rails in place at all times because even the smallest of falls would fracture a bone. At one time, she had suffered fractures of both upper arms, and had suffered something like 60 fractures.

X-rays of this bones and certain chemical tests may give a clue to the cause. Sometimes it may or may not be possible to do more than be careful to see that diet is adequate, and that the bones whatever strength they can acquire.

Now to move from the very unusual to a very simple explanation. It is well known that some people are accident-prone. The reason is not so easy to ascertain. Nevertheless they, for some odd psychological reason, have a d i s p o s i t i o n inclined for stumbling, falling or otherwise hurting themselves.

The best, and only simple answer is for such people to modify their activities to some degree, to look out for accidents. They should be careful on stairs, or learn to avoid getting in a position which makes the balance unsteady. That sort of thing.

If osteoporosis is found to be present, the use of hormones and a diet high in protein may improve the situation.

"Dear Dr. Molner: My mother's electrocardiogram shows that she has had severe heart attacks in the past but is normal now. Her doctor said she could easily have attacks in the future.

"I was under the impression that only the present condition of the heart would show up on the test. — Miss M. B."

Old scars (from prior heart attacks) can show on cardiograms. In fact, in some cases it may necessary to wait a day or two after a new coronary attack to show on the cardiogram.

"Dear Dr. Molner: Some years ago I had shingles. My doctor said the blood from my right leg and shot it into a vein in my left arm, and I've never been bothered since. — Mrs. E. S."

This is called "auto-hemotherapy." Confidence in always a great factor in the achieving of victory. So, there may be virtue now and then in the coincidence of life we have to be able to confront them with a confident and determined spirit which comes from long preparation and discipline. But in the best we can every day. When the evil day is upon us, we can take our stand knowing that the power of God and of all His holy angels is behind us.

Having done all, we stand.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

ON BEING READY

"Wherefor take unto you the whole arm out of God that you may be able to withstand in the evil day and having done all, to stand." (Ephesians 6:13).

"That we may be able to withstand in the evil day." We are not to wait until the evil day is upon us before we begin to stand. If we do, we may find ourselves terribly unprepared. It takes a lot of preparation for any nation to prepare itself for war. We are constantly at war against situations, tendencies, and temptations which assail our spiritual life. If our preparation is not continual, we may not be able to withstand when the evil day is upon us.

"And having done all, to stand." Confidence is always a great factor in the achieving of victory. So there may be virtue now and then in the coincidence of life we have to be able to confront them with a confident and determined spirit which comes from long preparation and discipline. But in the best we can every day. When the evil day is upon us, we can take our stand knowing that the power of God and of all His holy angels is behind us.

Having done all, we stand.

Building Highways of Hope

BUILDING HIGHWAYS
By DR. RALPH W. SOCKMAN

At first glance the world would seem to be going back to the jungle. The fighting in the Congo, the chaotic conditions in Cuba, the unsolved crisis in Berlin, the collapse of disarmament discussions in Geneva, the dangerous disunity in the United Nations — all combine to create a spirit of fear, even of despair. Who can show us a way through the wilderness of the world's disorder?

We look to leaders in high places. I spent some weeks in Europe this past summer. I have come back with the feeling that there is sufficient sane leadership to settle the situation in Berlin without resorting to bombs.

But there are highways of hope on the levels below the summit. We can see common people right around us who are building roads toward a better tomorrow even though the world picture is dark.

I think of family road makers. In my mind at this moment is one who bravely faced the hard ships of young widowhood, who held together a brood of five children, establishing a family tradition of high loyalties, who bore the responsibilities of middle years with such buoyancy that she became the comrade of her children, who ripened into maturity with such grace that her grandchildren compete for her company, and now lives the life of the fourth generation eagerly follow her. What a noble service to be such a maker of roads for the family!

To be a road maker for a nation, a finder of paths which the future generations will follow. This past week when we observed the anniversary of America's discovery, we remembered those who since Columbus have been opening this Western world, laying highroads now throbbing with traffic and binding the continent together with threads of steel.

Our nation is still producing pioneers. In every walk of life there are workers charting new ways of doing things.

A few weeks ago I travelled in Finland. That country is exposed to Russia along a lengthy ill-protected boundary. The Finns fear and dislike the Russians from whom they have suffered so much. But they are not paralyzed by their fear. They are building splendid roads and beautiful skyscrapers.

Wherever I went in Europe I found the people building. And on my return to America I find skyscrapers springing up like mushrooms. Despite the dangers of nuclear bombs we go on building. God has given human life a "deathless capacity for resurgence." This strikes me as a ground for hope.

Another trail of hope in our present wilderness is that of truth. The darkness of the future has not checked the pursuit of knowledge. However uncertain the opportunities of tomorrow, youth still kroud our colleges in preparation. The great currents of world hatreds have not blown out the lights of the laboratories. Our physical scientists pursue their search for truth, not deflected by dictators or mobs.

And the results are manifested. The hurricane Carla was one of the worst in our history. Yet the loss of life was but a fraction of the toll taken by the Galveston flood 60 years ago. Better methods of forecasting the weather, alerting the public and preventing disease are taking some of the sting out of our storms. Competent scientists are predicting much better control of the weather itself.

Another hopeful feature is the progress of science is its humility of its best leaders. They realize that technical knowledge is not enough: that science, however noble in origin, is neutral in result; that the growth of power without improvement of purpose is the suicide of civilization. Physical science has taught us how to take certain elements and make a fertilizer to enrich the earth. From the same elements it can teach us how to make a poison gas to decapitate a city. But science has no way of making sure that we will use the fertilizer rather than the poison gas.

More and more thoughtful people are waking up to the need of Road makers for God. What would have become of America if our westward-moving pioneers had not been accompanied by the circuit-riding preachers, the college-building teachers and the law-abiding Christians? Th God who guided our fathers in the days of the covered wagon is still available in the days of space travel and supersonic missiles. "Prepare ye the way of the Lord."

Mrs. J. Darvel and Mrs. W. Boyce read the Scripture lesson.

The guest soloist, sang "Is Thy Faithfulness," accompanied by Mrs. R. Boyce.

GUEST-SPEAKER

Mrs. R. D. McLean introduced the guest speaker, the Rev. N. W. Hutchison, minister of Colborne and Brewerton, who came to Canada one year from Rhiwlyn Presbyterian Church, Belfast, Ireland. His theme was "Thanksgiving." He based his talk on Paul's letters to Timothy, the Colossians and Philippians, stressing each letter the need for prayer and thanks. Paul believed in the God and tried through his letters to influence friends to worship God.

In our prayers we should thanks for the work our churches are doing in Belfast, British Guiana, Formosa, Mexico and pray them, as they depend not on our money but our prayers, and our faith in God, aids them."

He concluded by asking, about our conception of God? Is He a God Who we about to church on Sunday or do we, like Paul, glorify and follow Him in the ace of Christ, doing the of God from the heart?"

Mrs. Barlow thanked the ker for an inspiring address, appreciately chosen this Thanksgiving season. also thanked the guest Mrs. Boyce and her for their efforts, for an table meeting.

e meeting was brought to e by everyone enjoying of fare served by the in charge.

FAIRDALE BAPTIST

The construction of the new Fairdale Baptist church building is a fine 30 percent increase in Sunday School attendance, and the generosity of the members the highlights of the annual reports received at the congregational meeting of the new church, on night.

The new church was opened on February 5th and has been the object of many congregational visits since, from among churches contemplating building programs. Some six months ago, a group from the church came to inspect the new building and left impressed with the quality of workmanship. Others who visited the church were impressed with the beauty of the auditorium.

Y's Menettes Enjoy European Travelogue

An extremely pleasant meeting of the Y's Menettes club was held recently at the home of Helen Diamantides.

President Jean Hemiles presided over the general meeting during which a brief discussion finalized plans for the coffee party to be held in November.

The highlight of the evening was a most interesting travelogue given by Mrs. Jean Lowe, her trip to Europe this past summer. Mr. and Mrs. Diamantides attended the World Alliance of the YMCA in Switzerland and were able, after 28 years in Canada, to visit their families in Greece. They also visited points of interest in London and Paris; the beautiful slides and the delightful manner of the speaker proved most entertaining.

Delicious refreshments, served by Mrs. Diamantides brought this enjoyable meeting to a close.

Better Fitting Clothes Will Be Result

OTTAWA (CP)—Find it hard to choose clothes for your children that will fit?

The trade department may have the answer in a pamphlet ready to distribute to the general public.

The pamphlet, Be Sure It Fits, explains a revolutionary method of sizing and labelling children's clothes.

Based on individual body measurements rather than average age sizes," the method is expected to result in better-fitting clothes.

Most Canadian manufacturers have indicated they will adopt standardized method and the rest are expected to do so by the end of the year.

The change means parents or sales clerks will have to measure each child's height, waist or chest before selecting a garment of the right size.

COVERS UP TO 19

More than 30 sizes are covered, allowing for ease of walking age and less-ages up to 19 for girls. The standards for all the trade department now is developing similar methods for women's and men's clothing.

The pamphlet outlines three ways to take body measurements using the Canada Standard Size trade-mark label.

The number of sales clerk takes two body measurements (chest plus waist plus hip or neck-arm combinations). A glance at the correct chart reveals the size label corresponding to the combination.

For example, a girl with a 34 hip measurement and 26 waist measurement would use size 14 clothes. The nearest person size is 16 or 36.

WOMEN FIT HALF

The chest-hip system applies to garments that fit the upper half of the body or the whole body. These include sweaters, undershirts, T shirts, waist-length jackets, pyjamas, dresses and overcoats.

The waist-hip system has been designed for garments that fit at the below the waistline—shorts, slacks, skirts, jeans and boxer shorts, for example.

The neck-arm system is for boys' dress and sport shirts.

WEDDINGS

GRAY — HALLOWELL

Crono United Church was the scene of a very pretty wedding at 4 p.m. on September 30, when Miss Joan Hallowell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Sidney Hallowell, became the bride of Mr. Andrew Edward Gray, Tillsonburg, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Gray, Belleville.

Radiant in white satin peau de soie, the bride was married in marriage by her father. The full skirt of the floor-length gown was draped from the fitted bodice which had fine back-buttoning to the waist. Lace appliqne outlined the neckline and the same extended to the front hemline. The long sleeves ended in lily-points. A jewelled headpiece held the finger-tip veil and the bride carried white carnations, lilies and stephanotis.

In the double-ring ceremony the marriage vows were repeated to the Rev. Basil E. Long, Orono, assisted by the Rev. R. C. White, Newtonville.

With the young couple to the chancel, the bridal hymn was sung by Mr. Glen Allen, Newcastle, who also sang "Because" Dreden for the ceremony and "O Perfect Love" after. Mrs. Ross Howell, Bowmanville, was organist.

Miss Nancy Hallowell, sister of the bride, Miss Lulabelle Mathews, Toronto, bridesmaids and Mrs. Don Hart, Toronto, maid of honour were attired alike in hot pink peau de soie dresses, matching shoes and rosette headpieces with veiling. They carried white poms and white carnation roses.

Mr. Gerald Hallowell, brother of the bride, and Mr. Larry Gray, Belleville, brother of the bridegroom were ushers. Mr. Don Hart, Toronto, was best man.

The reception was held at the Oddfellows' Hall, Orono. Attendant with the bridal party were the bride's mother in blue lace, white hat and pink corsage and the groom's mother in figured green, green hat and yellow corsage.

After a turkey dinner the Rev. Basil Long, toast-master, the toast to the bride was proposed by Mr. Arthur Lawrence, Toronto, and the response was made by the Rev. R. C. White.

With the bride attired in a two-piece royal blue dress and white hat, the bridegroom received showers of confetti and best wishes, left for Washington and other U.S.A. points.

Guests were received by the bride's parents at their home during the evening.

The bride was secretary with the R.C.M.P. in Ottawa the past six and a half years and the bridegroom is an accountant with the Bank of Montreal of Canada.

Mr. and Mrs. Gray will reside at Tillsonburg.

The bride was given two miscellaneous showers in Toronto with Miss Lulubelle Mathews and Mrs. Don Hart as hostesses. A miscellaneous shower at Starkville was arranged by Mrs. Alvin Caswell with Mrs. William Hale, Mrs. Bill Wade, Miss Marilyn Falls, Mrs. Norman Andrews and Miss Norma Hallowell as cohostesses.

The office staff of the property division of the Ontario Hydro where the bride was employed, presented her with a beautiful mirror.

VANDERVELDE — DeMILLE

Pink and white gladioli, mauve and yellow and pink dahlias formed a pretty background in Sidney Street Church, on Saturday, October 7, at 2.00 p.m. for a lovely wedding when Edna Gail DeMille, of Halloway, R. R. 2, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Emory DeMille, was united in marriage to Ronald Robert Vandervelde, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Vandervelde, of Belleville. The ceremony was performed by the Reverend M. G. Clarke of London, Ontario.

The wedding music was provided by Mrs. F. McCannis, of Halloway, and included "The Wedding March" from Wagner's Lohengrin. The soloist Mr. Arthur Steel sang, "The Wedding Prayer".

Given in marriage by her father, the radiant bride wore a charming bridal gown in white accented by mother-of-pearl sequins and pearls. The long pointed-point sleeves were chenille, silk and her finger-tip veil was held by a crown headdress of silver and seed pearls. She carried a bible decorated with a white orchid and white feathered carnations.

Miss Carolyn Bible, cousin of the bride, was gowned in William (Bill) Ten Hoope, of Belleville, who was groomsman in mauve dark mauve accessories, and matching headdresses. She carried a cascade bouquet of pink carnations.

Mr. W. P. Vandervelde, of Belleville, attended his brother as groomsman and Mr. R. W. Ten Hoope, of Belleville, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, as usher.

Following the ceremony, the reception was held at the Legion hall, Halloway.

The bride's table was appointed with a three-tiered cake, centred by the traditional wedding cake, flanked by silver candelabras with tall white candles. Pouring ten were, Mrs. Violet Rose and Mrs. Claude Stirling. Miss Stirling cut the wedding cake.

The guests were received by the bride's mother, and the bridegroom's mother, the former in a floor length cotton lace over taffeta sheath featuring a portrait neckline, and satin cummerbund with matching brown accessories, and corsage of yellow roses and fern, while the latter wore gowned in a champagne sheath and jacket with matching accessories, and corsage of white carnations.

Guests were present from London, Ont.; Waterloo; Hamilton; Bath; Trenton; Allinston; Stirling; Corbyville and Belleville.

Showers honoring the bride, previous to her marriage, were held by the bride's mother, Mrs. Ten Hoope, Belleville and at the Sidney Street Church Hall.

Mr. and Mrs. Vandervelde are residing at Corbyville, R. R. No. 1.

In His Steps

By ALMA MASON

Some of us are softened by trouble and hardship and sorrow; others are congealed and hardened by it. Some of us meet stumbling blocks and hazardous adventures in a querulous and complaining manner, looking for easy and blameless ways to uplifting and we grow finer and sweeter by adding a daily awareness of parallel afflictions of fellow travellers.

I have a great admiration for a friend and neighbor who has surmounted many personal difficulties by giving her time to the sick and the blind in the community. When her husband died suddenly, she was deserted by her children. For a time it became painful for her sorrow, then her faith prevailed and she buried her perplexities in the greater crosses of those around her.

She visits the blind. She does their mending for them; sews on their buttons; reads to them; takes them food and invites them to her home for dinner. She makes pots of appetising soup for lonely elderly folk. She daily takes delicacies to the patients in a home for incurables. She is a happy, loving, lovely woman.

Our own wretchedness should not rob us of our ability but should act as a mirror to reveal the greater miseries of others. It should gentle us, soften us, humble us.

God help those of us who, having known great tribulation, can look at a brother chained in agony and with a heart of stone, pass by on the other side.

Trouble should not embitter us and make us serious and greedy; it should reduce us to a plain where we become patient and pliable, understanding where we realize that with thousands of others, we are being moulded for greater tasks ahead; strengthened for more stupendous endeavors and conditioned for greater joy.

The load we bear grows lighter When we lend a helping hand; The sun is always brighter When a storm has washed the land.

The mirror of our sorrow Should reflect another's pain And bring joy and hope to-day Like a rainbow through the rain.

Going Places

Caribbean Visitors Will Find Foreign Flavor and Bargains

By SHIRLEY and BOB SLOANES

The flavorful and colorful islands of the Caribbean will be getting a bigger play than ever this winter, with at least six new ships making the cruise circuit. An early survey revealed that some 25 per cent will be visited, with the ten listed below far and away the most popular. If you've never been to some of these places, here's what you should know about them:

1. St Thomas: Though the most populous of the Virgin Islands has a striking blend of Danish (the only one in the West Indies) and American culture, its primary appeal lies elsewhere. It's a free port bargain mart, and this is even more significant under the new U. S. duty-free allowances.

It's now the only tourist area where you can legally load up to the extent of $200, or $100 more than you can spend elsewhere. The best buys are in liquor, tobacco and some imported goods. Many Bible shopper since many so-called free port bargains are blatantly overpriced. Shop around before you buy.

2. Haiti: The most exotic and mysterious place in the Caribbean, and some think in the whole world. Port-au-Prince, the French Isle de Vieux, Latin temper and African voodoo, which fascinates most visitors. Amid abject poverty and jungle voodoo the island's capital rivals Nice Art in the Western Hemisphere Storiebree.

UNFORGETTABLE HAITI .....

Not everyone likes or feels comfortable in Haiti, but no one ever forgets it.

3. San Juan: The Puerto Rican capital is the largest and up-to-date city of the Caribbean, with sophisticated hotels that match those of Miami Beach. It's a delightful life and a proud Spanish culture is that has made it one of the most cheerful of the islands. A place of bright colors and unique European traditions; the port of Willemstad, which is the capital, is one of the busiest in the Caribbean and dancing is a fascinating pastime here.

4. Jamaica: There are two ports here, Kingston is the most populous and is the usual view of a typical British colonial commercial city in the West Indies. Montego Bay is more pleasure.

Many feel that Jamica's wild profusion of mountainous jungles and brilliant tropical foliage make it the most beautiful of all the indies. Its English-patois speech and songs are memorable.

5. Nassau: Famed for its beaches and coral formations that make for some of the world's best skin-diving, Nassau is the favorite resort area of Jamaica. But it's considerably more than a beach and cruise ship get to. It's a quiet, peaceful spot.

6. Martinique: A delightful corner of France, with tropical trimmings. The wine flows and thrown in. With its sleepy old capital of Fort-de-France, it is the most typically French island, backwash-step. Shopping for French products is excellent and the food, as French as Paris, is the best in the Caribbean.

7. Trinidad: Home home of calypso. this is probably the best spoken of the major island because of its remoteness, just a step from South America. The fantastic mixture of races and peoples from all over the world

St. Thomas' Senior W.A.

The October business meeting of the Senior W.A. of St. Thomas' Anglican Church, Mrs. A. G. McConnell invited the members to the Rectory.

The president, Mrs. Hollister, was in the chair. Seventeen members responded to roll call.

The Rev. Canon A. S. McConnell took the devotional service and Mrs. Acker read the Scripture lesson from Matt. 9th.

Mrs. Morton announced that the annual "Little Helpers" meeting will be held on October 28th, in St. Ages' Chapel, and the Parish Hall. All members are requested to bring their mite boxes to be received by the Rector at the devotional period. Mrs. Morton is anxious that the fathers as well as the mothers come to this service, and it is hoped that there will be a record attendance.

The Rector, Mr. McConnell, spoke of the hope that the organization of the Girls' Auxiliary would be formed at St. Thomas.

Mesdames Feather, Smith and Coleman were appointed to represent the W.A. at the meeting to be held in order to discuss this question. Some discussion took place, but it was decided not to form an outstanding operatic prima donna who would appear in Brussels in 1887.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Belle S. — I think we should order our own bomb shelter.

Wallace S. — It's a waste of money. It won't do any good.

Belle S. — I'm so confused. The other day the doorbell rang, and it was someone selling bomb shelters. He was quite convincing. He told me they run from around $400 to $4,000, but that the F. H. A. considers it a "home improvement" and gives you a loan and up to 30 years to pay it off.

When I told Wally about the proposition, he laughed. He says there's no real protection from a bomb, and the only think to do is work for peace and make sure one never is used.

Although the subject is frightening, I think we ought to be doing something about it instead of just waiting and hoping.

• • •

Wallace S. — This is some. thing so much larger than any of us that I'm willing to take what comes. What's the differ. ence whether a bomb hits you right off, or the fall-out gets you later when you come up out of your shelter?

No one can sell us any real protection. I was very much impressed by that salesman's charts and pictures, but what would fresh air, clean water and safe food?

I'm willing to sit tight and do whatever the rest do. Maybe if I were building a new house now, I'd talk the matter of a shelter over with the architect. But here, well, there's the basement.

The Council — Though at first flush this topic appears unpleasant, it's really a wholesome one because it deals with self-preservation. No one wants to spend money on bomb shelters. We hope a second car, a boat or a swimming pool would come first. But soon, Wallace, how many things people spend money on, not for good but for survival? To name a few: medicine cabinets, flea sprays, window washers, or, in another category, flu shots?

We agree with Belle that there's no need to be a sitting duck against attack, nor should one be an ostrich with his head in the basement. Both Mr. and Mrs. S. are ignoring one resource which can outlive the bomb, and that is the wholesome, undramatic Office of Civil and Defence Mobilization.

There one gets a fair picture, neither rosy nor hysterical. From Maj. Gen. Robert E. Condon, Director of the New York City office, we learn that a shelter can be built for as little as $150 but that it can be planned as a dual-purpose room (a playroom, den, music room) no defence against a direct hit.

To answer Wallace's despair, Gen. Condon admits that there's no defence against a direct hit, if one is squarely in its path. But there are effective measure against fall-out which can save great distances and cause more casualties than are feared. He urges a visit to the Civil Defence display to learn what protection, constructional, nutritional, medichal and electrical — meet the office's specifications.

As a minimum course, while Wallace is deciding whether to build a separate shelter, Belle might be helpful to select a sheltered portion of the basement in which to stock the recommended equipment for protection: a two-week store of canned food and water, first-aid supplies and battery-operated lights and radio.

We'll gladly stand ready to advise Belle and Wallace. "Ours is a good system of defence," Gen. Condon says. We hope we never have to prove how good thought!"

Q. Alexandra H-S Presents Bursaries

Last Tuesday the Queen Alexandra Home and School Association held its first meeting of the season.

Mrs. Watson spoke briefly on UNICEF, its origin and purpose and asked the Home and School to aid in its support by having volunteers use their homes for the collection of the pennies of the UNICEF cans.

The president, Mrs. Fisher, called on the past president, Mrs. Downing, to present bursaries to the following students who had the highest standing in Douglas Fraser; grammar, David Scrivens; spelling, Arlene Cathro; writing, Susan Miles and Gary McGee.

Mrs. Fisher introduced the guest speaker, Mr. Lloyd Doran, who spoke on the many recreational facilities available in Belleville for all ages from children to adults. Anyone with time on his or her hands and a desire to get rid of it, or learn to spend it, may call the recreation centre on Dundas Street and inquire about the various activities for the different groups.

Mr. Doran was thanked by Mrs. R. Boyes.

Mr. Hazzett, principal of the school, introduced the teachers on the staff for the 1961-62 season.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. M. Smith and her assistants.

Many View Exhibits in Official Tent

HAWDON—Mr. George Carlisle, president of Hastings County Federation of Agriculture, was busy with many duties in the county tent during the four days of the ploughing match.

The Hastings County cheddar cheese promoted by the county cheese producers and cheesemakers occupied one corner and here, cheesemakers, presidents of factories and assistants did a real fine job in selling both old and new cheese.

The 4-H Agriculture and Homemaking Clubs demonstrated articles of clothing and vegetables under the slogan, "Learn to Do by Doing".

The Ontario (Agriculture) Society displayed a large array of potted plants and cut flowers under the direction of both Toronto and district officers. Their slogan was, "Gardening is Fun".

The farmstead improvement competition occupied the next space and here were mounted pictures of the 'before' farming scenes and barns. A large number of Women's Institutes in the county contributed for the prizes.

The Junior Farmers displayed models of their work which demonstrated the value of 4-H.

"At another end of this gabled Norwegian Hall sparkled a massive potted plant display in the design of a gigantic Christmas tree. This was always greatly admired by the guests as they mounted the graceful stairway and viewed the composite end which led to a rather small dining-room situated at mezzanine level. Here the furniture was of famed oak.

The entertainment table with its eighteen chairs and 2 arm-chairs, of Viking design and Norwegian origin was flooded by candle light from an exquisite chandelier that gave a silvery gleam to the sterling cutlery, serving dishes and glass.

"This room was serviced by a spacious kitchen nearby hung with burnished copper pots and pans, row on row, from which appeared delicious dishes of mostly Gallic origin. A train of servants, (and I was among them) served all guests names from France, catering to their whims with the choice vintage kept cool in dark cellars beneath".

HENRY'S RIDE-A-WAY

"More than one tree gave wood to build this temple". Old Chinese Proverb.

"Have you ever witnessed a ceremony for burning a house on purpose?

The recent raging fires of Newfoundland so disastrous to its pulpwood tree wealth, depriving of the source for the next decade brings to mind Ann's visit to Ireland and its one time feudal mânsion—fated for just such an end.

Had anyone from Belleville been passing by on a certain day in 1953 (which isn't likely since Anti Cosi Island lies not only in the Gulf of St. Lawrence at its hundred mile width, but is 680 miles from Lake Ontario) one would have seen a group of people silent and respectful, watching a magnificent villa being demolished by licking flames greedily consuming it to ashes.

"I shall explain", one of the spectators might offer. "Money was of no account when Henri Menier of France built this splendid mansion back in 1900. For now he not living in a chocolate kingdom inherited from his father, comprised of sugar beet fields throughout France, not to mention cocoa plantations throughout the Caribbean? He bought this island with the wish to promote colonization, but perhaps he had read about the explorer Louis Golin de Fonteneuf who spoke here back in the 1670's or admired Louis Olivier Gamache, a Frenchman who spent 40 years on this island from 1810 until his death. He was a fisherman, hunter and built a good house overlooking this very bay, now named Point (Baie Gamache); Henri Menier used the ivory mens foundations of native stones for his wondrous house.

"Do I recall what this house was like? Well, I should indeed, for I came here from France as a young lad to serve in Monsier's household to become head or chief of all servants employed.

Monsieur Henri, a lover of Norwegian workmanship, imported such workmen from Norway to each his fabulous chateau exactly as his expensive tastes dictated, and he created a thing of beauty. It was constructed of wood, massive timbered and richly gabled with deep overhanging eaves, with slate shingles and knotted hardwood while pine for insulation between the walls, and windows heavily leaded.

"The Great Hall, for instance, was of one room, three stories in height, well lighted and braced with huge beams carried in Scandinavian theme throughout its interior. There were costly tapestries, and magnificent wood cuts. Rows of matched Euro-pean staghead looked down upon a finely-carved throne that controlled all from a graceful balcony at second story level, musicians from Norway were my friends in banses for Monsieur's aristocratic guests, brought over specially for hunting or fishing or the social season, in his grand "Bacchanale".

Lastly the Hall was filled with its eighteen chairs and 2 arm-chairs, of Viking design and Norwegian origin was flooded by candle light from an exquisite chandelier that gave a silvery gleam to the sterling cutlery, serving dishes and glass.

"This room was serviced by a spacious kitchen nearby hung with burnished copper pots and pans, row on row, from which appeared delicious dishes of mostly Gallic origin. A train of servants, (and I was among them) served all guests names from France, catering to their whims with the choicest vintage kept cool in dark cellars beneath".

150 Attend Fall Rally at Baptist Church

About 150 people, many of them teenagers, attended the fall rally of the Quinte Association of Evangelical Baptist Churches, held recently at Parkdale Baptist Church. The various young people placed third, out of the running for the quiz award given for knowledge of Mark, chapters one to six. Havelock and Picton went into the finals held in the evening meeting with Picton winning handily.

Special music was provided by the participating churches. Some of the features were the male quartet from Cobourg, and trumpet solos by Gerald Nichols, of Belleville. The Rev. Dan Cairns, of Napanee, led the singing in the afternoon and the Rev. Milton Trafford, of LaSalle Park Church, Kingston, led the song service in the evening. Mrs. Marion Foster played the organ and Mrs. T. Delaney of Trenton, was at the piano.

SPECIAL SPEAKER

The speaker for the day was Rev. James Boyd, of Guelph. In the afternoon he spoke to the young people on "The importance of the Word of God in the life of a young person." In the evening he referred to four things that make the heart cold towards God, and then four things that make the heart warm towards God. There was a ball game conducted between the afternoon and evening session. Hearty fellowship was enjoyed by the visitors at mealtime when they partook of the contents of their lunch baskets.

PARKDALE BAPTIST W.I.

The ladies of Parkdale Baptist Church Missionary Fellowship met at the home of Mrs. Harold Robinson for their October meeting with 11 members present. The president, Mrs. Robert Snyder, presided, and extended a warm welcome to all.

The Scripture, Psalm 116, "I Love The Lord, Because He Hath Heard My Voice And My Supplications," was read by Mrs. C. Breaton, vice-president.

At the conclusion of a brief business session, Mrs. Beverly Foster took charge of the devotional period, and read a selection, entitled, "The Day of Beginning Again," which stated "There are three times the "Day of Beginning Again" occurs in our lives: the first is at our natural birth when we begin to live by our own efforts, with outside assistance or those who gave us life; the second takes place on the day of our spiritual birth; the day when we, take Jesus Christ as our personal Savior, and we begin to live by the Spirit's efforts, but by the grace of the One who gave us the second natural birth, Jesus Christ. The third and final 'Day of Beginning Again' is when we not only see the kingdom of Heaven, but our Lord and Savior also, who will welcome us by: "Well done thou good and faithful servant, enter thou into the joy of thy Lord."

Following the conclusion of the message, a time of fellowship was enjoyed.

QUESTION:

. . . I saw a recipe somewhere called "Seven Layer Cas...role". There were meat and vegetables and they were put in a casserole in layers. Would you happen to have this?

. . . Mrs. Spencer D.

ANSWER:

Would you settle for a Six Layer Dinner? That is the best I can do.

Dinner Menus

SATURDAY

Swiss Steak with Carrots, Peas and Celery; Whipped Potatoes; Crushed Orange Ambrosia; Lettuce and Tomatoe Salad with Parmesan French Dressing; Cantaloupe Halves with Ice Cream; Tea.

SUNDAY

Northern Fried Chicken with Rice and Cream Gravy (see Wednesday); Cauliflower with Parsley Butter; Salad Greens with Cooked Mayonnaise; Angel Cake topped with Whipped Cream and Sliced Peaches; Coffee.

SIX-LAYER DINNER:

In a buttered large casserole or small roaster make a layer of each of the following in order given, seasoning each with salt and pepper as you go: 1 cup sliced raw onions, 1 cup sliced raw carrots, 1 cup thinly sliced raw celery, 1 cup raw hamburger (broken up or other ground raw meat such as chicken or veal), ½ to ¾ cup raw rice, 1 cup undiluted tomato soup, 2 cups boiling water. Cover and bake at 325 deg. F. about 1½ hours. More water may be added if desired.

QUESTION:

Recently "Janis" mentioned your Molasses Crackle Top Cookies. If still available would love to have this . . . Margaret M.

ANSWER:

I have had several requests for them so have decided they are worthy of a repeat.

MOLASSES CRACKLE TOP COOKIES:

Three-quarters cup half and half shortening and butter (or all shortening), 1 cup brown sugar, 1 egg, ¼ cup molasses, 2¼ cups sifted pastry flour, 2 teaspoons soda, ¼ teaspoon baking soda, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon cloves, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 1 teaspoon ginger. Cream well together shortening and sugar then beat in egg and molasses. Sift together all remaining ingredients and stir in until thoroughly mixed. Form dough into flattened compact cake, wrap and chill. Roll pieces of dough between plams stick 1¼" balls. Dip tops in granulated sugar. Placed sugar-side-up on greased cookie sheet, 3 inches apart. Carefully add 2 or 3 drops of water on each cookie. Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. about 10 to 12 minutes. Cookies should not be overbaked. Also see below.

LETTER:

Mrs. Mac E. enquired for cookies similar to pastry cookies. Below is one I have used for 30 years. The dough stores well and does not have to be rolled up all at one time.

GINGER COOKIES (Courtesy Mrs. C. E.):

Two cups light molasses (do not use dark), 1 cup shortening, 1½ teaspoons salt, 4 teaspoons baking soda, all-purpose flour (see below). At noon, put into a saucepan molasses, shortening, salt and ginger. Heat until shortening is melted. Remove from heat and add soda. Stir and when saucepan should be at least 2-quart size. Let stand until evening, then stir in about 4 cups flour. Turn out on floured board and knead in flour until dough is stiff and will knead without sticking. Cover and let stand until room. ing in the shape of a roll. Slice off 1 thin cookie and bake to test consistency. If there is not enough flour the cookie will be coarse and grainy and more flour must be kneaded in. Roll very thin on pastry cloth. Cut out and bake on slightly greased pan at 375 deg. F. for about 5 minutes. Cool on towel and store in covered container.

ANSWER:

Thank you for this tested recipe which I think will be popular. . .

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS:—My son has always done poorly in school. When he was small we tried to help him by such things as getting a tutor and working with him ourselves.

Now at 16 he is defiant and we have caught him in one lie after another. We have refused to let him stay overnight with a friend, because we felt we could not trust him out of the house. This makes him more resentful than ever. Then his anger makes his father blow his top.

We have also tried to help him find work. The only thing he stuck at at all was summer work in a day camp for little boys. But this was only mornings and it was more fun than work.

Things are so disagreeable that sometimes I wish he would leave home for my peace of mind, which is about the worst thing that a Canadian mother could wish.—LITTLE HOPE.

DEAR LITTLE HOPE—From where I sit, you've been pushing him too hard.

Your demands are too much for him. His defiance is his defence. He enjoyed work with children because he could safely feel superior to them. And why shouldn't work be fun?

Do you think you could persuade him to talk to a guidance counsellor? Some estimate of his capacity and some direction into the kind of work he might be equal to, is what he needs.

DEAR DORIS:—What can I do about a domineering mother-in-law? I didn't realize it when I married him but my husband is a typical mama's boy. He waits on her hand and foot, and takes advice instead of mine when it's something that concerns only us.

When she tries to do the same with me I tell her I won't have it. Then he is bewildered. Do I have to put up with interference from her?—RIGHT'S RIGHT.

DEAR RIGHT'S RIGHT—No, indeed. You have a right to assert yourself.

But has it occurred to you that your husband was first attracted to you by the same virtues he knew in his mother? You don't sound exactly like a doormat yourself.

Since you are in the strong position, you can afford to give some rope. Then try being more dependent on your husband. You look so competent it hasn't occurred to him you could do with a little waiting on.

DEAR DORIS:—The other night my parents had a fight about what time I should be in at night. I am going on 14 in three months and my mother said 10.00 o'clock while my father said 11.00 o'clock.

My mother then said she didn't want to have anything to do with me any more and doesn't speak to me. I love my parents very much and don't know what to do.

She hates my father and me now. She has an ulcer and I know she is really upset over this.

* * *

DEAR WORRIED—Your mother does not hate you or your father. Nothing would grieve her more than to have no more to do with you, ever.

When people are ill they say things they don't mean. She is concerned about her little girl being out late at night, and since she isn't very well this has upset her.

Take her a surprise cup of tea occasionally and make some other thoughtful gestures. And get your Dad to tell you whether I'm right or not.

DEAR DORIS:—A Miss K. R. wrote you not long ago. Her mother and father had died and her life seemed empty. She was so upset by changes at her office that she had to have a series of shock treatments.

Your advice to her was to start living an entirely new life and I agree with you that it is absolutely necessary if her pessimistic attitude toward life is to be changed at all, but I find it hard to agree with you when you say to her, "Otherwise you are a goner."

Less than a week ago I was discharged from a mental hospital where I was sent after an attempt on my own life. Everything imaginable went against me ever since I was born with the result that for 40 years I have been chronically ill mentally and emotionally.

I'm now faced with a brain operation and failing that probably I could spend my last days in a mental institution. I'm not a goner by a long shot. In fact, I'm beginning all over again to live as I always wanted to do and I'd be grateful if you could give me Miss K. R.'s address so that I could write her. My passion is to help others who are at the end of their tether.—J. Y.

DEAR J. R.—Good for you. Is it not because you are living an entirely new life, mentally and emotionally, that you are not a "goner?"

A certain man said, "The city of happiness is in the state of mind." And when you think of the trials people can work their way through and come up smiling, you realize how true that is.

Women's Institute

BAY OF QUINTE W.I.

END SIDNEY — The Bay of Quinte Women's Institute held its October meeting on Wednesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wills with a good attendance.

Mrs. Alva Dunn opened the meeting in the usual manner and arrangements were made for Pine Grove W.I. Chatterton W.I. and Bay of Quinte W.I. to each pay its share of adopting an overseas child. A tea and bake sale is to be held at the Hastings County Home, Belleville, and donations were requested. The Bay of Quinte Institute has planned a trip to the Ice Follies in Toronto, starting from Mrs. Morris Stickle's home on the 2nd concession of Sidney. They will also go on a guided tour. The November meeting will be held on the bus enroute to Orangeville.

The area convention of the W.I. will be held at Club Candara, Belleville, on Nov. 14 and 15. Mrs. Alva Dunn and Mrs. Alva Meyers were appointed as delegates for the first day and Mrs. R. Ketcheson and Mrs. P. Boulton to attend as delegates at the banquet and evening session. Mrs. Frank Wills and Mrs. H. Dickens are to be the delegates on the 15th.

The president explained the absence of Mrs. Clarence Holmes at this meeting, stating that she was organizing another W.I. at Centenary.

The meeting was then turned over to Mrs. Ross Stickle, convener of Canadian Industries, who spoke on the pulp and paper industry, stating in part that throughout the 19th century there was a great growth in the demand for paper, and at the same time there was a continual scarcity of rags from which it was made. Process was soon developed for making wood into paper and the first mill to make paper was in 1804, at Windsor Mills in Quebec, where pulp or wood fibre was obtained by grinding cakes in a large chamber of liquor. In 1869, at Valleyfield, Quebec, they were the first in Canada to produce pulp by pressing logs against a grindstone. Canada had more than 30 pulp and paper mills in 1930.

With the growth of the newsprint industry, the Canadian mills also greatly increased their output of books, writing paper, wrapping paper and others, also cardboard, the latter being five times greater than 25 years ago.

More than 90 percent of the Canadian output of pulp and newsprint is sold in foreign markets. Most of her production of other paper and cardboard, owing to tariff restrictions, finds its chief market at home. The great increase in the demand for these grads for paper shows the increasing use and also Canada's growing population, also for the higher standards of living.

Poems were read by Mrs. D. Sandercock and by Mrs. R. Ketcheson and Mrs. Stickle conducted a contest which was won by Mrs. Maude Jeffery.

Mrs. Dunn thanked the hostess after which a lovely lunch was served, followed by a social half-hour.

ask henry

The writer of this weekly advice column is an 11-year-old boy. The advice he gives is strictly his own. It has not been changed by his parents or the editor. He welcomes letters from readers. If you want him to discuss your problem write to ASK HENRY, in care of this newspaper.

Dear Henry—I live on a very small hill and I would like a bike. But my mother says no and my father has been saying maybe for a long, long time. Most of my friends have a bike. What do you think I should do?—KATHE.

DEAR KATHE—CAMPAIGN HINTS: Lesson VI (If it doesn't work out, write for Lesson II).

1—Since your father says maybe, work on your father.

2—Keep the newspapers, slippers and pipe ready when he settles in his chair.

3—When you think he is really happy and comfortable . .

4—START NAGGING.

5—Repeat 2, 3 and 4 seven times a week.

6—AND EVERY WEEK UNTIL YOU GET YOUR BIKE.—HENRY.

Dear Henry—Names do hurt, Henry, particularly if they are jeering, disparaging contemptuous and the like. They can hurt as much as a broken bone and do a lot more harm to the spirit and character of a child.

But there is a quick way to stop a name caller. Just call him the same name he calls you. If he calls you "Flabby," you call him "Flabby". He will stop mighty soon. — A FRIEND.

Dear Friend—Thanks a lot for your comment. You are right in part. If a much younger child calls "Flabby" to another it doesn't matter, she can ignore it. If an older one calls "Flabby" to her, she will be hurt and she should yell back something suitable like: Flabby, Knuckle-head, Leatherlegs, and I would rather not mention the others.—HENRY.

Dear Henry—I was an only child and I don't think I really understand my children fighting all the time. One boy is 9 years old and the other is 6. The older boy annoys the younger one until the 6-year-old hits the 9-year-old. This seems to be an excuse for the older one to haul off and hurt the younger one.

I think it might be a sign of something seriously wrong between the two boys. What should I do.—SINCERELY AND PERPLEXED.

Dear Sincerely—Don't worry. Your kids are kids. To stop the shooting you could try my dad's method. Warn your cowboys in advance that if any shooting starts, the oldest will be always blamed for the trouble, and will be convicted without trial. The older will then find that fighting doesn't pay and will be beating up his brother less frequently.—HENRY.

Dear Henry—I am 10 years old. My parents always make me do dishes and clean up the kitchen while they just loaf around the house. I dislike this very much and I would like to know what I can do about it.—DISTURBED.

Dear Disturbed—You can do the dishes and kitchen about it. The parent is the boss, I am afraid.—HENRY.

BELLEVILLE UNITED APPEAL

October 12th, 1961

To All Our Citizens:

We are familiar with the annual campaign of the United Appeal which embraces many of our charitable organizations. It goes without saying, that all of these charitable organizations are necessary to the well being of our city. In fact, during these days of International and National uncertainties, their services are more imperative than ever.

The United Appeal way is an easy way in which all can give towards the assistance and betterment of those who are less well off. It is impossible to calculate or to over emphasize the need and to those many of you who are interested and engaged in charitable work, this will be an understatement.

I therefore commend to your generosity The United Appeal for 1961 and hope that through the combined efforts of all it may be well over subscribed.

Yours sincerely,

A. McLean Haig

Neighbors' Aid Hears Talk on 'Dry Cleaning'

END THURLOW — The Neighbors Aid held its recent meeting on Wednesday afternoon at the Aid Hall. About 25 were present. The president, Mrs. Gerald Stratton, presided with Mrs. M. Mitchell at the piano. The president welcomed all, especially those who had taken extended trips this summer.

The secretary, Mrs. Lazaruk, read thank you notes from Keith Greatrix, Betty Anne Ferri, Mrs. F. Dorrington, and for sympathy cards from Mrs. G. Stratton, Mrs. Belnap. A thank you note from Retarded School for recent donation from the Aid.

It was decided the business meeting be held 3rd Wednesday in October instead of November, as usual.

Mrs. A. Greatrix, Mrs. M. Dent were appointed to bring in slate of officers.

A note of thanks was given to the eight ladies who house cleaned the Hall. It was also decided to buy a gas stove with Mrs. A. Mitchell, Mrs. M. Mitchell to look after same.

Mrs. A. Greatrix will be hostess for the Hallowe'en dinner in October. Everyone to bring her own dishes; a hot and cold dish, an dsheet plate. The Old Gray Mare", and When You And I Were Young Maggie" a reading entitled, "September" Mrs. Fred Mitchell; a humorous reading by Mrs. D. Aitken, who also, introduced the guest speaker, Miss Bessie Boldrick from "Lloyds", dry cleaners, who gave an interesting and informative talk on "How and When".

The 1st cleaning process was started back in the 18 hundreds, and its progress up to the present time with the new and many kinds of materials, it is most important that a study of each article to be cleaned is made to know what is the best method to use.

Mrs. M. Mitchell moved a vote of thanks to Miss Boldrick for the most interesting and informative talk.

Pot holders and a lucky cup prize were donated to the Aid by the speaker.

Miss Boldrick was presented with a cup and saucer in appreciation of her talk.

A contest conducted by Mrs. F. Mitchell with 1st prize to Mrs. A. Mitchell and consolation to Mrs. W. Lazaruk.

Lunch was served by the hostess, Mrs. R. Greatrix, and Mrs. Leeming, Mrs. Leeming, H. Grills, and J. Chumbley.

Mrs. F. Mitchell won the lucky cup prize of a dry cleaning ticket from Lloyds Cleaners.

SPEAKING of MANNERS

PATRICIA LEWIS

SOME DRIVERS HAVE DUAL PERSONALITIES

It's amazing how many perfectly well-behaved young men — and teenagers, particularly — park their manners the minute they get behind the wheel of a car.

The average young driver seems to go through a complete change of personality. One minute he's a courteous chap, kind to his mother and polite to his teachers the next, he's an exhibitionist, tearing up road and tossing manners to the wind.

If you fit the description, maybe you don't realize that lack of courtesy is dangerous. But the sad fact is that the impolite driver has the ability to kill and maim others as well as himself — and often does.

Mrs. M. Mitchell moved a vote of thanks to Miss Boldrick for the most interesting and informative talk.

If you're old enough to drive, that you're certainly old enough to observe a few rules that guarantee longevity.

1. Don't overcrowd. Try to keep the number of passengers down to the number of seats in the car. In other words, a six-passenger car should carry no more than six persons.

The front seat, particularly, should be free of crowding so the driver will have plenty of room to handle the controls. The legal passenger limit in most states is three in the front. You can be arrested if caught with more.

2. Don't show off. It's not only impolite to shout and wave at other drivers, but also dangerous to all concerned. If you're driving a convertible, insist that your passengers sit on the seats and not try to imitate a hero by riding on top.

3. Don't tailgate. It's a prime cause of accidents, and young drivers seem to be the worst offenders. Many try to see how close they can get to the car in front without actually hitting it. If you're going to pass, make up your mind well in advance, then, when the coast is clear, do so — and without a last blast on the horn which may rattle the other driver.

4. Don't race. If you like this type of sport, then locate the legitimate drag strip nearest your home. Many communities now have them. Don't turn a street or a highway into a race track.

It's dangerous, illegal and can cost you your license or your life.

EAST MINISTER W.F.

A beautiful Thanksgiving worship service highlighted the October meeting of the Woman's Federation of Ecclesiastes United Church which was held on Thanksgiving day. Mrs. Vivian Britton, and Mrs. Mervlan Russell were in charge of the devotional period.

"The Duty of Giving Thanks", an article written by the Rev. Mr. Nicholson, father of Mrs. Ruth MacMillan, was read by Mrs. Doris Glover. Mrs. Phyllis Diamond read the Scripture and Mrs. Russell presented a fine meditation on "Thanksgiving and the Church" which she had prepared herself.

Mrs. Esma Maybee, president, took the chair for the business period which followed. Mrs. Barbara McDowell, missionary treasurer, reported on the collection and the total amount handed in to date.

Announcements of events in the near future in which the ladies are interested were made as follows; on Tuesday, October 17, East Belleville Presbytery W.A. rally at Tabernacle Church at 7.30 p.m. when Mrs. K. J. Rose of Dominion Council W.A. will present the new constitution and Handbook. Zion United Church the W.M.S. Presbyterial Workers' Day, Tuesday, Oct. 24th at Shannonville United Church at 9.15 a.m. when the ladies of Eastminister Federation will conduct the worship service; on Saturday, October 21st a rummage sale at the Kiwanis Centre and on Saturday, November 18, Eastminister fall tea and bake sale.

At the conclusion of the business session, the ladies of Mrs. Ruth MacMillan's group conducted a timely contest on identification of spices, and served lunch from a lace-covered table decorated with a beautiful centrepiece of fall fruits, flowers and glowing candles.

COLLEGE HILL W.A.

The afternoon group of College Hill United Church W.A. held its October meeting on Wednesday at the church.

The president, Mrs. C. Bailey was in charge of the meeting and welcomed the members. Mrs. H. Thomson read the Scripture lesson from Matthew, Chapter 28:16-20. Mrs. Bailey read the lesson thoughts, the theme being "Commissioned for Service". "If we love God and our fellow human beings, we cannot keep Christ to ourselves, for without the knowledge of God as mediated in mankind through Christ, their lives cannot be as rich or as full as possible".

A prayer by Mrs. Bailey closed the devotional period.

A skit entitled; "New Styles For Women" depicted an informal meeting when a group of ladies were talking about the new association called the United Church Women. Those taking part were Mesdames Dickens, Baloour, Greenwood, Watson, Thomson and Neal.

Correspondence was read which included some thank-you notes from individual members and from the 31-6 group.

Invitations were received to attend bazaar at Rodney St. Church and also Wesley Church. Announcement was made of the South East Hastings Fall Rally which is to be held at Tabernacle Church on the evening of October 17th. An invitation was received from the evening W.A. to attend their November meeting when they will have a speaker.

A nominating committee was set up for new officers for next year. Plans were made and committees formed for the bazaar next month and some discussion took place concerning same.

After the meeting a social half hour was enjoyed accompanied by the usual cup of tea.

8th Cubs, Scouts MA Plan Party

The 8th Belleville Cubs Scouts Mothers' Auxiliary held its second meeting on October 4th at Queen Mary School with 17 members present. Mrs. Vale was welcomed all the new mothers, and hoped that they would be able to get out to all the M.A. meetings.

There will be a card party for all members and friends at Prince Charles School later in October. Please come and have a good time. There will be refreshments and prizes. The annual Hallowe'en party will also be held for the Cubs so don't forget to dress up. The mothers are also invited to come and join in the fun.

There were many lovely baskets displayed by the Cubs to use on Apple Day which was held on Saturday, October 7th, and the prizes went to: 1st, Michael Tripp; 2nd, Scott Reid, and 3rd, Ronny Jordon, for the best decorated basket.

After the meeting some refreshments were served, ending another enjoyable evening.

Busy Woman Sees Contrasts In Conferences

HAMILTON (CP)—Una MacLean of Calgary is seeing contrasts in conferences.

As president of the Canadian Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, she was the federation's delegate to the international board meeting in Southern Rhodesia in May.

Then last week, on her visit to Hamilton, she is attending the annual conference of the Business and Professional Women's Clubs of Ontario.

One of the main things would be the recognition of the emergent status of the native African women," Miss MacLean said when asked what was accomplished in the Rhodesia conference.

While the meeting did not deal especially with Negro women's problems, almost all the informal discussions were about African problems.

Negro women in Africa, she says, have had to make the transition from an almost primitive society to a highly industrialized one practically overnight.

"I talked to as many people as I could, and visited as many homes as I was able to," she says. She visited schools and hospitals, social welfare centres and nursing schools to find out at first hand what the women's problems were.

DISTRICT WOMEN'S ACTIVITIES

5TH SIDNEY W. F.

5TH SIDNEY—Scott's United Church Women's Federation held their October pot-luck dinner in the church hall last Wednesday.

Mrs. J. Martyn, the president, presided at the afternoon meeting. Eight members and one visitor were present. The calls and 13 cards were reported made and sent. It was decided to buy two dozen new hymnals for the church.

A provisional committee of three women was named — Mrs. A. Martyn, Mrs. C. Frost, Mrs. M. Giles.

Mrs. Alton Sine conducted the worship service as follows: Hymn 14, worship; included the hymn, "For the Beauty of the Earth" and a Thanksgiving prayer by Mrs. Martyn. Scripture by Mrs. Cooper, psalm 14; reading on Christian stewardship, Mrs. K. Faul; reading, "The Wonders of Autumn, Mrs. G. Pollard; reading by Mrs. M. Bruce, "The God Who Goes Before"; and a quiz on "Trees of the Bible".

SPRINGBROOK W.A.

The regular monthly meeting of Springbrook Woman's Association was held in the church basement last Thursday afternoon with Mrs. Harry Haslett as hostess. A minute of silence was observed in memory of Mrs. Edward Huff, a member who had passed away since the September meeting.

The worship period was conducted by Mrs. Claude Reid, using "Commissioned for Service" as the theme. The Scripture, taken from Matthew 28: 16-20, was read by Mrs. Reid and Psalm 72M was read in unison.

Mrs. Lorne Bailey read the theme thoughts from the folder. The missionary prayer was given by Mrs. Delbert Fleming.

An interesting topic entitled "Thanksgiving" was given by Mrs. Gordon Bailey. The roll call, "Fruits of the Bible." This weekend, on her visit to Hamilton, she is attending the annual conference of the Business and Professional Women's Clubs of Ontario.

ST. ANDREW'S GUILD

WELLINGTON — St. Andrew's Guild held their regular meeting at the rectory last Thursday evening. Mrs. R. A. Evans, the president, opened the meeting, with eight members present.

Minutes were read by Mrs. D. Boyle and the treasurer's report was given by Mrs. J. J. Rogers. Collection for flower funds, and talent money were taken. Thank you cards were received from Mrs. Hlower and Miss Ruby Nash. It was decided to hold a rummage sale in the Town Hall in October. Coffee and squares are to be served. A work meeting was planned for October 17th at the home of Mrs. Evans, to prepare for the bazaar in November.

A nominating committee, Mrs. J. B. Lavender and Mrs. D. Boyle was appointed.

Refreshments were served by the hostess.

Christmas cards were on display and orders will be taken.

ST. ANDREWS F.G.-W.M.S.

FOXBORO — The October meeting of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Guild and W.M.S. was held in the home of Mrs. Percy Johnson. In the absence of the president, Mrs. Bunkard presided, with Mrs. Johnson at the piano.

Call to worship was given by Mrs. Bunkard. Psalm 121 was sung, and Scripture read by Mrs. Wood and Mrs. Bartlett with the meditation by Mrs. Wannamaker.

Thank you cards were read, reports given, and business discussed. An invitation from Madoc W.M.S. was read inviting the ladies of the W.M.S. to their 78th anniversary on November 2nd. The invitation was accepted.

Reading were given by Miss Watt, Mrs. Johnson, Mrs. Wannamaker and Mrs. Bartlett; a duet by Mrs. Johnson and Mrs. Wannamaker, and solos by Mesdames Bartlett, Wood and Mrs. Wannamaker. Mrs. Juby closed with a Prayer of Thanksgiving. A contest, "The Disciples of Jesus," was given with Mrs. Wannamaker being the winner.

Next meeting to be held at Mrs. Wannamaker's home.

Mrs. Johnson served dainty refreshments and a social half hour followed.

A vote of thanks was tendered Mrs. Johnson.

TO ADD WOMANPOWER

NEW YORK (AP) — More women will be taken into the U.S. armed forces to free men for duty in combat units, says Undersecretary of the Army Stephen Ailes. He who addressed a meeting of the National Conference of Women Thursday said the Commander bloc's "formidable advantage in manpower" makes this necessary.

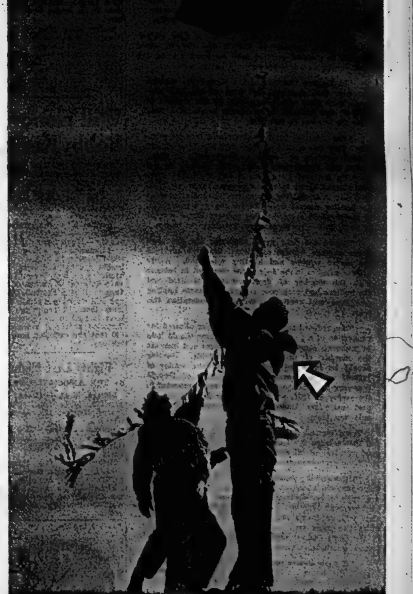
Scout Auxiliary Executive Meeting Held

BY ANNE M. McDONALD

Mrs. P. C. Smithorpe and Mrs. Dave McDonald of the Belleville and District Boy Scout Auxiliary Executive Board attended the Provincial Advisory Committee Conference held in Toronto on Thursday, Mrs. A. E. Standing Assistant Provincial Commissioner of Ladies' Auxiliary was chairman, who received an honorarium for her untiring efforts, devotion, years of hard work, and gifts of money to the Scout movement. Mrs. Standing was made president of the National Ladies' Headquarters Committee in Ottawa, and Mrs. C. W. Willsmell the secretary who is also supply secretary of the Provincial Advisory Committee.

It was reported that there are 1,171 Auxiliaries in Ontario. The Auxiliaries come under the Executive Board, the Executive Boards come under the Provincial Committee, and the Provincial Committee comes under the National Ladies Headquarters. The movement originated in Toronto, so there is a great satisfaction that Ontario is the pioneer of this organization, however, it is the most populated province. The higher executives of Scouting have decided that Executives Boards would be newly named as the "District Committee for Ladies Auxiliaries". Those members of Scout Auxiliaries in Belleville and District take note of this announcement, Mrs. Dlix, secretary reported that the Provincial Committee held the 78th anniversary for ladies auxiliaries this past year; one in London, Peterborough and Ottawa.

Mrs. Reesor, free lance writer and commentator was the guest speaker, and her address was on "Leadership". This very charming and effervescent speaker explained that leadership is not enough but that leadership is a skill acquired through knowledge by instructions, conferences, study, good officers, by initiation and pattern. She suggested that people should be good listeners and open their hearts and minds to people; feeling under what they are trying to say for most of us need kindness and assistance. But we also should be good listeners ourselves has to play the secondary role. And above all to use people for the work they do. Do the best you can, and in this way you will enjoy your work and the companionship of people. Time spent in laughter well invested. Mrs. Reesor also suggested that great care should be given to choosing good officers as this can lead to heartbreaking experience. In ending up her most enlighening address, Mrs. Reesor pointed out that distinguishes the man from the monkeys and seriousness they both have in common".



SLIDES SHOWN

At the banquet, Mr. Wakelin, Assistant District Commissioner Training showed slides and spoke to the ladies on the World Jamboree. He reported that the next Jamboree will be held in Greece on the seashore near Athens.

Special guests at the conference were Mr. and Mrs. P. H. Neville, of London, England who are touring Canada and the United States with Lady Baden Powell. Mr. Neville who is the founder of the Rovers explained that England has no Auxiliaries, but that men and women both form Group Committees. He also talked of the personal friendship between him and Baden Powell as he worked at headquarters with him in England.

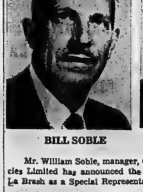
Moments in History



In 1856 — On October 27 — the Grand Trunk Railway made its first scheduled trip from Montreal to Toronto, passing through Belleville on this historic journey. Great crowds were on hand to meet the train as it puffed slowly into the station.

Some forty years later, the predecessors of the Schuster company first began supplying Belleville homes with wood and coal for winter heating.

Today, Moira - Schuster Limited continues this important community service with fast, modern delivery trucks . . . delivering fuel oil for use in modern, economical heating units . . . Throughout the Winter season, Moira-Schuster maintains a highly efficient service department, on call for your heating needs 24 hours every day. Call WO 2-4504 for all your heating needs—fuel oil, coal, new furnace installation — or drop in next time you're downtown.

"WHAT IS THE FAIR SHARE ONE MIGHT PLEDGE TO SUPPORT THE WORK OF THE ELEVEN AGENCIES COMBINED IN THIS ONE UNITED APPEAL?"

This is a question that comes to everyone's mind. And it is something which only you — and your conscience — can decide. Only you know your ability to contribute.

You might consider it healthy — and wise — to pledge the price of one package of cigarets or only 35 cents per week!

Or how about skipping just two coffee breaks a week and sending that 20 cents a week along to be distributed among our eleven agencies? It all helps.

For the executive type, we suggest a sup-duper hamburg instead of his usual (?) T-Bone Steak — just once a week — and send the saving to us. This $3.00 a week will really be money, honey!

Seriously, the Busy Bee suggests it's really quite easy to find some nectar in every day. The person with average family obligations might give 1 hour's pay per month. This works out as follows:

Earnings per hour	Your pledge per week
$1.00	.25
1.20	.30
1.40	.35
1.60	.40
1.80	.45

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Based on information gathered in spring deer yard surveys, predictions note the numbers of deer that will be available to hunters during the 1961 season have been announced by the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests. H. G. Cumming, of the Fish and Wildlife Branch, explains in the Ontario Fish and Wildlife Review that these are predictions only of the numbers of deer available and that hunters' success depends to a large extent upon the weather during the hunting season.

"The spring surveys were begun," he explains, "with the purpose of learning more about the status of deer and deer yards, especially during winters with deep snow. An unforseen dividend has been the information concerning availability of deer for the fall hunt.

"Prediction of natural phenomena is a risky business at anytime and we would hesitate to undertake it without the factual information of the spring surveys. Even with this information, we can only predict the numbers of deer that will be available to hunters. The actual hunter success depends to a large extent upon the weather during the hunting season.

"If it is favorable, hunters may have good success even when deer numbers are slightly reduced. On the other hand, if the weather is unfavorable, the success can be low even when deer numbers are quite high.

"The following predictions apply only to the number of deer that will be available. The resulting hunter success may be considerably modified by the weather.

"The outlook for northwestern Ontario is favorable. No deer yards from Kenora, Fort Frances or Sioux Lookout Districts have been cut-over in the tables because the past three winters have been extremely mild in that area. The deer were so little restricted that the yards could not even be mapped. Without snow, it is very difficult to obtain any information of value from ground surveys. Those mild winters have allowed the deer herds to increase at an alarming rate. Unless there is a heavy fall or winter kill, a 30 per cent increase is indicated. Even a drop to 50 per cent down the increase in deer numbers in northwestern Ontario, over-population of deer seems inevitable.

"The sequel will be another die-off of deer similar to those which occurred in 1949-50 and 1955-56. Since deer will be plentiful and the hunting will be quite good, the slogan for hunters this year should be 'go west.'

"In Eastern Ontario, in the Kemptville District, the deer have also benefitted from several mild winters. Their numbers showed slightly by the winters of 1958-59 and 1960-61. All evidence points to a good year for hunters in this area.

"The situation in Central Ontario is more complex. Very few dead deer were found in Lindsay and Trenton Districts, or in the northern parts of Parry Sound and Pembroke Districts. The survivors in the northern parts of Parry Sound and Pembroke Districts showed heavy mortality in some yards and little mortality in others. It is therefore difficult to predict what the hunting success would be for the past two years. In the southern areas, hunting was considered normal to good. In the northern areas, hunting was spotty.

"Where the deer yards supplying the deer had above average browse conditions, they survived the severe winters and hunting was good. Where browse supplies in the deer yards were not in balance with the deer herds, many deer starved and the hunters had very poor success. The same hunting conditions will continue with some moderation this year.

"The reduced snow depths just wildlife allowed the production of a good crop of fawns. These should help to make up some of the local shortages and increase the number of deer generally available. Hunting should be improved over last year. The winter of 1959-60 was not severe and the winter of 1960-61 was very mild. Because of the heavy losses reported in the spring of 1959, we forecast poor hunting for the past two years. Hunters found the prediction to be only too true.

There was an indication from the hunter checks last fall that a large fawn crop was produced last year. With good survival of all deer last winter, another, even better, fawn crop should be growing up now.

"Although the absence of the important two-and three-year-old classes will mean that low deer numbers are still to be expected, there should be a significant improvement over last year. Many of the deer which are shot will be fawns and yearlings of which probably require two more years with little snow before the deer in the Sault District begin once more to approach their former numbers.

"If snow comes early and tracking conditions are good, the hunters will be able to make full use of the available deer. If the season is warm and dry or with a great amount of rain, the success will be much lower since hunters will not be able to locate and shoot them."

Harvey's 'Hots', Habs Hassle Tonight

Hawks Meet Red Wings

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Doug Harvey leads his high-rolling New York Rangers against Montreal Canadiens tonight in the National Hockey League's weekend feature, 2 1/2 one of six games on tap.

The Rangers catch the Canadiens at something less than full strength. A pair of big Montreal guns, Jean Beliveau and Dickie Moore, are sidelined indefinitely with knee injuries.

But even at that it should still prove a severe test for New York. The Rangers bounded to the read of the standings with a couple of one-sided wins over Boston Bruins, last season's patsies.

Former prime minister Louis St. Laurent was to start the season in Montreal with a ceremonial face-off. There is likely to be a grand ovation for Harvey, who spent his New York apprenticeship in an off - season shuttle with teasons with the Canadiens.

Doug has in his lineup two other ex-Habs, defencemen Albert Langlois and left - winger Guy Gendron.

BRINGS OUT BEST

His coaching meanwhile appears to have brought out the best in Andy Bathgate, a six-point man in two games.

Tonight also marks the 1961-62 debut for Chicago's Stanley Cup champion Black Hawks. They go against the Red Wings in Detroit. Toronto Maple Leafs are hosts to the Bruins on the third front.

Sunday night Montreal is at Boston, Toronto at New York and Detroit at Chicago.

Aside from the two New York-Boston games, the Maple Leafs downed the Red Wings 4-3 in Detroit Thursday night in the only other NHL play to date.

Maniago Will Play For Hull

MONTREAL (CP)—Montreal Canadiens farmed out goalie Cesare Maniago Friday to their Hull-Ottawa farm club of the Eastern Professional Hockey League.

Maniago came to the Canadiens from Toronto Maple Leafs in the National Hockey League draft last summer.

Coach Toe Blake said he will start the season with veteran Jacques Plante who "looks much better than he did last year."

Plante last season was replaced for 30 games by Charlie Hodge. Behind that, he won the Vezina Trophy, awarded annually to the league's top goaltender, five years in a row.

Cardinals Purchase 7 Minors

ST. LOUIS (AP) — St. Louis Cardinals purchased the contracts of seven minor league players Friday, thereby replacing the seven lost to the two new National League baseball teams.

Bought by the parent club were pitcher Bill Dobbs, first-baseman Fred Whitfield and Joff Long and third - baseman Floyd Wicker from Charleston, Marlins; pitcher Paul Toth and catcher Ray Bond from Tulsa Oilers, infielder Ron Kaiser from Rochester Red Wings.

Charleston and Rochester are in the International League. Tulsa is in the American Association.

Will Honor Bobby Kuntz

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Argonauts announced Friday night they'll hold a Bobby Kuntz day Oct. 20 to honor his performance during five years with the Eastern Football Conference club.

Despite his comparatively small size — five feet 10, 190 pounds — Kuntz has established a reputation for ruggedness while playing in fullback, linebacker and halfback positions. Coach Jackie Parker, former Western-Waterloo Dutchmen of the Ontario Rugby Football Union and still works in a family business there. A committee has been formed in the Kitchener-Waterloo area and more than 600 fans are expected here for the day.

10,000 Watch California Hockey

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The veterans stole the spotlight in wholesale and large canvas Friday night as all eight clubs combined to launch the Western Hockey League's 1961-62 campaign.

The form chart held true except in Vancouver, where the light-drifting Canucks surprised 6,700 hometown fans by belting the rugged Spokane Comets to a 3-2 overtime tie.

At Los Angeles, 10,388 fans were on hand to see the defending champion Portland Buckaroos score five times in the third period to win a 7-3, victory over the Blades, and spoil California's re-entry into the WHL after a 13-year absence.

It was the largest turnout in history for hockey game in Los Angeles and surpassed by 1,388 the previous mark set by Toronto Maple Leafs and Boston Bruins at the National League game when they staged an exhibition game there last year.

LEADS WAY

At Seattle, crafty Rudy Pilous led the way with three goals as the Totems romped to a 6-4 the league's second California victory. They followed up an 8-3 triumph over San Francisco Seals. Edmonton Flyers trimmed Calgary Stampeders 5-3.

Playing - coach Phil Maloney scored Vancouver's first goal and tied the game with another with just 43 seconds left in regulation time.

Murray Wilkie fired the third Vancouver goal. Bev Bell, Gerry Melnyk and Steve White also tallied the Spokane scoring, all in the second period.

Gordie Gallaway, Portland's top major last season, added to the All-time scoring record with the tying and winning goals in Los Angeles. The two goals gave Gallaway a career total of 422.

Art Jones, Eddie Panagabko, Bill Davidson, Arlo Goodwin and Ron Matthews each scored for Portland. Jim Powers scored twice and rookie defenceman Connie Komljenovic for Los Angeles.

EACH COUNTS TWICE

Bill Mahoney and Hal Ebenreverth each scored twice for Seattle and Jim Baird added the other.

Harry Pidhirny, long-time scoring star with Springfield Indians of the American League, two and the darry San Francisco goals. Veteran Nick Mickoski got the other.

Chuck Holmes gave the Flyers their comeback victory over the Stampeders at Edmonton. He scored twice. Les Haley, Larry Jeffery, Roger Dejordy, Len Lunde and Lloyd Hedden scored singles for the flyers. Defenceman Doug Bartley scored twice and Bert Fizzell once for Calko.

Johnson To Defend Title

NEW YORK (AP) — Harold Johnson, National Boxing Association light-heavyweight champion, has agreed to defend his title against Tunheaten Doug Jones of New York in Madison Square Garden Dec. 2, match maker Teddy Brenner said Friday.

Brenner said the fighters have agreed to terms and will sign for the match shortly.

He said Miami promoter Chris Dundee will come to New York this weekend to complete arrangements for the 15-round televised bout.

Johnson won the NBA version of the title Feb. 7, stopping Jesse Bowdry for the vacant title. He has successfully defended twice, against Von Clay and Eddie Cotton.

Jones has 12 knockouts in his 20 professional fights.

Yankees Hold 6-2 Lead

LYTHAM, ST. ANNES, England (AP) —The United States stormed to a 6-2 lead over Britain at the end of the foursomes in the Ryder Cup golf competition Friday and became 4-1 favorites to retain the golden trophy after today's 16 singles.

Arnold Palmer and Bill Casper teamed brilliantly to win both their foursomes, including a 2 and 1 triumph over the highly-rated British pair of Dai Rees and Ken Bousfield, while Art Wall and Jay Hebert also won twice.

A crowd of about 17,000 excited fans streamed and surged over the 6,835-yard Royal Lytham and St. Annes links. Par is 35-36—71 but it varies with the weather.

The Americans took a 3-1 lead at the end of the morning matches, which were played in warm sunshine with only a gentle breeze whispering over the course.

Two 18-foot putts at the 18th green helped the Americans to their big lead. Hebert sank one for a 1-up victory and Dow Finsterwald rolled in another from the same distance in the last shot of the day.

Palmer won the foursomes, in which players take alternate strokes.

Morning rounds:

Christy O'Connor and Peter Alliss, Britain, defeated Doug Ford and Gene Littler, U.S., 4 and 3.

Wall and Hebert defeated John Paton and Bernard Hunt, Britain, 4 and 3.

Palmer and Casper defeated Rees and Bousfield, 2 and 1. Bill Collins and Mike Souchak, U.S., defeated Tom Haliburton and Neil Coles, Britain, 1 up.

Afternoon rounds:

Hebert and Wall defeated O'Connor and Alliss, 1 up.

Palmer and Casper defeated Paton and Hunt, 5 and 4.

Rees and Bousfield defeated Collins and Souchak, 4 and 2.

Jerry Barber and Dow Finsterwald, U.S., defeated Haliburton and Coles, 1 up.

American Tennis Team Shocks Italy

ROME (AP)—A second-string American tennis team shocked heavily favored Italy by taking a strong lead in the opening singles matches of the Davis Cup interzone final Friday. The underdog Yanks won the first match and were ahead in the second that was suspended by darkness.

Dan Douglas, a recently discharged Marine from Santa Monica, Calif., rallied from the brink of defeat and conquered Italian champion Fausto Gardini, 6-8, 6-4, 7-5, 10-8, 6-0, in a marathon, three hour-15-minute match. The 25-year-old Californian trailed 2-5 in the third set and was one game from defeat when he staged his comeback.

Whitney Reed won the first two sets from Nicola Pietrangeli, generally regarded as Europe's top amateur, 6-3, 8-6, and trailed 3-4 in the third set when it was halted by darkness.

The veteran Italians beat the U.S.'s best in the interzone final last year.

Douglas, ranked sixth, and Reed, ranked eighth among U.S. amateurs were Harry Hopman's top choices to face them.

Reed and Pietrangeli were to resume their match today. The crucial doubles were scheduled to follow.

But either team could ask for a postponement of the doubles until October 17 more than 36 singles games were played today. The final singles would then be Monday.

'Etch' Has Calcium Growth

OTTAWA (CP)—Citizen sports columnist Jack Kinsella says Sam Etcheverry, quarterback with St. Louis Cardinals of the National Football League is suffering from a calcium growth in the shoulder of his passing arm.

The condition, Kinsella says, has made Etcheverry unable to throw long passes.

The columnist says word of Etcheverry's ailment has leaked to other NFL teams and this was the reason the former Montreal Alouette quarter was "allowed" by New York Giants last Sunday. The Giants knew Etcheverry couldn't throw long passes and set their defence for short-range passing.

Kinsella says he learned of Etcheverry's condition accidentally while in Chicago last Saturday to attend the National Hockey League all-star game.

Watson Faces Tough Task

By JAC SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Sports Editor

Phil Watson said big league hockey is New York fans by doing what comes naturally to him—letting off steam when he's at his vocal best. Rangers resounded by making the National Hockey League playoffs three years in succession, 1956-57-58.

All of that appears to be gone and Phil, now coach of Boston Bruins, may be in for a rough winter. An indication of this came a few days ago when he announced that the Boston dressing-room would be barred to newspaper men after games and practices.

Watson said he'll be available for interviews, but this isn't likely to be the same, although betting around the NHL is that Phil will bust out with some choice quotes. And the targets most likely will be his players because Bruins aren't likely to improve their 1959-60 last-place finish.

LOST HIS JOB

Watson adopted a gut-'em-and-get-'em attitude for the first few weeks of the 1959 season and the results were disastrous. Rangers missed the playoffs, Watson went to hospital with a case of ulcers and lost his job.

Rangers were showing fans how easy it was to lose games —they were in last place at the time—and finally, after a 4-3 loss to Toronto Maple Leafs, Watson let go.

"I'm sick and tired of this club," he steamed, "that game with Toronto stinks and it was my brightest stars who were the stinkiest.

"They'd better wake up because this stuff isn't going to go on."

But it did. Two weeks later, Watson was in hospital and the Rhesbirts had won only three of their 15 games. Alf Pike, up from Winnipeg Warriors of the Western Hockey League, took over and things didn't get any better. Rangers finished sixth that year and fifth in the 1960-61 season.

Watson has a three-year contract with the Bruins and he was at his talkative best at the signing last June in Boston. "We may not win too many games at first—I'm no miracle man," he said. "This is a complete rebuilding program and the Bruins are going along with the youngsters. But I'm going to insist on a pleasing hockey team which will put on a good show.

"I love a fight. I'm not going to have a bunch of boxers, but nobody is going to push us around. . . . I'm proud of my hockey record as a player and hockey. Write what you think I can't read English. I'm in charge and I'll do what I know is right."

Watson realizes only too well what happened in New York when he stopped talking. The Bruins opened the season at home last Wednesday night with a 6-3 loss to the Rangers, and that must have hurt badly.

He was let out of the New York job by General Manager Muzz Patrick and lately was quoted as saying: "Muzz is my good friend still, but I want to beat him so much I can taste it. . . ."

Maybe things will start perking up again because the experts in the NHL cities call the Bruins to finish out of the playoffs for the third straight season.

Bayer Tops Tourney By Stroke

ONTARIO, Calif. (AP) — George Bayer slipped to a one-over-par 71 Friday but increased his lead to two strokes at the half-way point in the $20,000 Ontario Open.

Bayer, who set the course record with 64 Thursday, has a 36-hole total of 135.

Bobby Nichols was second with 137. He also shot a 71.

Tournament favorite Gary Player of South Africa slipped to a 72 and has a 142 total.

Jerry Magee of Toronto shot a 70 to go with his first-round 71 for a 141 and was eliminated.

John Berardino Made Big League in Baseball, Acting

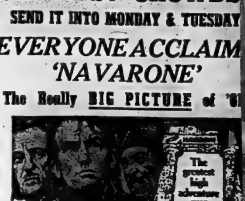
By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "[All] I had 15 years in baseball my life I wanted to be only two things — a ball player and an actor", says John Berardino, who now has made the big league at both.

"When we traveled [to] the country on trains I [was] always in the same car. Many [of] could say how much they [en]joyed it. I remember Lou Gehrig saying, 'Gee . . . if I only played in Chicago, I [would] have been like you guys'."

BACK TO ACTING

John came back home [to] return to his other love, acting. He had started young, as the University of Southern California journals by a scout who promised [him] "you'll be playing the majors in two years." A year later he was [in]veigled him to quit the next [year] acting his baseball pension. [$]50.



IN WORLD SERIES

After navy service in the war, he was back with the Browns, [who] peddled to Cleveland Indians [and] augmented his income by [$]1948 and played in the world [TV] series. In 1952 he was sold to [the] Pittsburgh Pirates. A leg injury [ended] his old act. He started [to] work in television.

Despite some lean years [he] stayed with it. He began to [get] cialties in TV heavies and in [the] cent years has bettered his baseball salary — $20,000 [to] $7,500 world series money. [He] peddled to Cleveland Indians [and] augmented his income by [$]1948 and played in the world [TV] series. In 1952 he was sold to [the] Pittsburgh Pirates. A leg injury [ended] his old act. Sunday, October 15, 1961

General Tendencies: Now you have a day when you would be wise to think out the philosophy that could best suit your needs and requirements at the bodies, services, worship of your choice. Be very sound and fundamental in using accepted principles of long duration. Then might be equally particular in scheduling coming week sen-

Aries (March 21 to April 19) — If you lift your level of consciousness and act in a most exemplary way, others will quickly emulate you and life be ence happier for all concerned, influential person will then eager to give you support u need in p.m.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) — Such spiritual growth can be yours if you get to the feet of ly Man in a.m. and drink in earls of wisdom. Also, get bout lately and meet interesti and highly successful people so that you enjoy greater cul- al attainment.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) — ute to the so-called Silence ld. Will be wise to permit ual intuitions to come rth. This will help you later n impress others most favor- bly with your wisdom and fine balance. P.M. be loyal to good friends.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 22) — Concentrate upon that is best to do so that you ave greater co-operation from and partners in the future. Do ote this free day to entertain- ge them, being altruistic. Din- at some charming restaurant would be ideal.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) — ook about you and see what you can do to best help suffer- or humanity on this blessed unday — many could use a elping hand or be grateful for word of cheer. Permit ft that comes from the heart. ll plan coming days wisely.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22)— e sure you get to church in orning; then plan to see those is who can be a help ttent of a hindrance to you in e future. Then tonight can be ery happy for you in the com- ny of good friends you love.

Libra (Sept. 22 to Oct. 22)— portant you devote most of your time to home and kin to- ay. Do all in your power to ease and delight them so that ey reach greater rapport. P.M. ve a little party at home.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21)— pend time thinking seriously bout your goals and what pro- ress you have made toward eir attainment. Hit on an idea at brings earlier and increas- d success. Curb that temper t be more objective. P.M. joy hobbies.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec.) — By following the stand- ds under which you were rear- d as well as the philosophies hich you have found to be ractically adequate, you can ake a wonderful impression on others now and in the fu- re. P.M. plan to increase in- come.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — You relax and let things hap- en for you instead of trying to force issues, you find that you ill have greater success in the future. Improve your appear- nce and health. Then get out in the sun for a fine social time.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — Morning is fine for deep con- centration and prayer, if you are to reach the goals you have set for yourself. Be sure later that you have a substantial din- ner and think more of personal comforts. Get out to the theater in p.m.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) — By listening to superlatives of good comrades and kin today, you will get wonderful ideas for use in the future. See that you get into group meetings where many of them can be found. Real sociability is the keynote right now.

If your child is born today— he, or she, will be literally born with good sense and will always want to quietly sit down and talk over any problems that may exist with others and find the most intelligent solution to them. Be sure you give us thor- ough and wholesome as you can, stressing the practical, the aca- demic, as well as the cultural subjects. The success here should be quite phenomenal.

Monday, October 16, 1961

General Tendencies: This is the day to really turn on your charm if you want to relieve the anxieties of others as well as gain a more productive place for yourself in the scheme of things. Men are apt to be pretty domineering today and tonight, but women have the planets with them and can show you new ways to replace present difi- culties with a better course of action.

Aries (March 21 to April 19) — Keep busy with personal af- fairs in a.m. and steer clear of that tense situation with an as- sociate. See that all about you is in good order and take treat- ments that will improve your health so that you can pro- duce more.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) — Work in general can be rather distasteful today, particu- larly in connection with some associate. However, it is better you get out for recreation with persons you enjoy and leave your work for another day, when it will be easy.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) — Spend only what you can afford for entertainment today. Extra- vagance would be very foolish— in fact, if you set your mind to more practical things and espe- cially in connection with home and family, this would be wisest to do.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) — Better step out early and do that shopping that is vi- tal right now and so avoid any arguments at home as well. Later, rear your paper and other printed media for good ideas to increase abundance. P.M. be devoted to close kin.

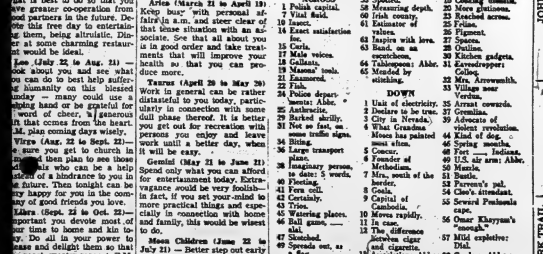
Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) — Be sure you listen to the ad- vice of experts today. You will learn to operate more efficiently and get along better with others so that you avoid arguments. Also, use greater courtesy on the road and with close ties in p.m.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) — Planetary forces are with you and you can accomplish a great deal, provided you do not search for entertainment when there is much work to be done. Do your very best and increase income appreciably. Grow.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) — By being of service and cheer to others as well as going after expert advice how to better your own lot, you avoid depres- sion and get on the right track again. Take it easy in p.m.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) — Your most constructive can come today from listening to the ideas of women, particularly among closest ties. If through self-pity you try to avoid keep- ing promises, you will find that the repercussions will be quite serious.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — Besides handling daily work efficiently, it behooves you to attend some civic function or duty to the best of your ability, also. This will help you to avoid a garrulous individual who wants to waste your time. Be active!



Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — If you shall seriously now some new and more efficient methods of operation for the future, you will find that success comes more easily and quickly. This will also keep you out of harm's way and help you to maintain prestige.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — Better follow your hunches to- day for greatest benefits in- stead of seeking advice from others. If you get into the so- called Silence for awhile, they will have an opportunity to come through nicely. Listen only to close kin, too.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) — It would be most wise to get together with associates at some charming spot and ex- change ideas for the future that will bring greater understanding between you and finer rapport so that you will know real suc- cess. Grow.

If your child is born today— the best outlet for your pro- gram's talents is to deal with the public in general and partic- ularly where women are con- cerned, or connected with ex- clusively. This can cover the whole gamut from specialized medicine to designing. Laborat- ory work is particularly fine here and research into the most modern trends and methods. Make college a must.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

By WINIFRED WILSON

A number of bird students in both Canada and the U.S. keep careful tracks of the dates when birds arrive from the south and depart from the north. Some kinds keep remarkably regular time. It actually depends upon the food supply. For instance, great blue herons are last seen in southern Canada when ponds and streams are frozen over, because their existence depends almost entirely upon frogs, fish, eels, and other animals found in shallow water, although they do occasionally eat snakes, insects, and even mice. In consequence, the height of migration seems to be around the end of September, but back individuals or small flocks have, in certain seasons, been seen passing through Canada as late as mid-November.

WAITING PATIENTLY

The early morning you may hear their long, harsh "honk", which bird lovers describe as "goosilike"; to some it sounds more like the barking of a dog. In fact, Canada geese are the possible fishing grounds for the single feather; and their necks may have the privilege of catching a family, standing ankle deep in water, waiting patiently for a fish to come their way. Sometimes they have to wait for this without wetting a single feather; and their necks may have the privilege of reaching back almost the same length as their bodies, to pull out the neck and point the bill forward. This manoeuvre looks remarkably like a stake sticking up on the beach. Juveniles have black caps and no plumes.

COMPELLED TO RETREAT

Great blue herons rely upon the camouflage position until compelled to retreat. If we approach, they fly away; finally, when but a few yards distant, majestically rise back into the bushes or reeds. Should we approach by land, they suddenly rise with a harsh, guttural "squawk", and fly off with neck tucked in and long legs trailing out behind.

The migratory bird treaty prohibits the killing or trying to its large size it is so easily spotted that the ruthless, nonlaw-abiding hunter still manages to get out, the heron colonies for the sake of the plumes, for the wings — to use as whisks!

Demorestville

DEMORESTVILLE — Many attended the Plowing Match at Belleville and the weather was perfect and wonderful display.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Fisher, Steven and Cathy, also Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Goodfellow, Mary were guests on Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Geraline and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Holmes were Monday tea-hosts in honour of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Holmes.

Mrs. Jack Holmes and Mrs. Andrew Holmes called Monday afternoon on Mrs. Lyons.

Mr. Horton of Ottawa, was a week-end guest of Mr. and Mrs. Andy Holmes.

Interest In Shelters Picking Up

TRENTON — While army heads and municipal authorities are concerning themselves with plans for area civil defence, an increasing number of Trenton residents are providing themselves, by one means or another, with some type of fall-out protection.

One local contractor reports that he has contracts to build a number of fall-out shelters. Another said that he had been approached on the subject by several people.

Building Inspector William Anderson said yesterday that no building permit was required for such a shelter. They are not assessable.

Prices for a professionally constructed shelter run between four and five hundred dollars.

Meantime, several citizens contacted admit that they have either gone to some trouble to outfit their cellars for an emergency or laid in the suggested two-week supply of canned goods. One housewife said that after her husband had brought home some bulletins on the survival from the plant in which he works, he had piled a supply of canned goods under the cellar stairs.

Those who have made some sort of preparation are strangely reluctant about publicizing the fact.

Others contacted said that they think that the whole idea is far-fetched and that "it just couldn't happen here."

Stamp Club Holds Party

TRENTON—Members of the Small Fry Stamp Club held a Hallowe'en party in the office of the recreation committee on Dundas Street. Bill Mitchell, director of the West Toronto Stamp Club was guest speaker. Mr. Mitchell will visit the Quinte Stamp Club at Belleville.

Recently, B. L. Copeland, one of the founders of the Trenton club received a letter of congratulation from a stamp club in Hungary. The Trenton club was formed by Mr. Copeland and Carl Weese and now has more than 100 members. One stipulation of membership is that each member must show improvement in his or her school work.

Foxboro

FOXBORO — Friends of Mr. Reg. Hicks will be pleased to hear he is a patient in the Belleville General Hospital. All wish him a speedy recovery.

Mr. and Mrs. Milton Watson and boys, Peterborough, were weekend guests of the latter's mother, Mrs. Mary Sherwood.

Mr. David Skinner, of Queen's University, Kingston, was a holiday guest of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. Skinner.

Miss Joyce Hollinger of Kemptville Agricultural College, was a weekend guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Hollinger.

Mrs. Kent, Belleville, was a Thanksgiving supper guest of Mr. and Mrs. Donaldson and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Benn and family, Toronto, were Thanksgiving guests of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Lyons. Mrs. Lyons, who had been visiting at the same home, returned to Toronto, on Sunday.

Drama Group Will Present Comedy

TRENTON — Members of the Trenton Drama Group and the Belleville Theatre Guild have decided, reluctantly, that a production of "Inherit The Wind" will have to be postponed until both groups have swelled their ranks.

Instead, the members will present a sophisticated comedy, The Little Hut at the Trenton Country Club on Nov. 17 and 18.

The next meeting of the Trenton group will be held in the Recreation Committee office, Ontario St. on Wednesday, Oct. 18. This will be an evening of play reading and the play will be "The Torch Bearers", by George Kelly — a satire on amateur dramatics. If enough people are interested in this project, it is planned to form a group which will meet regularly for this purpose.

Those who have made some sort of preparation are strangely reluctant about publicizing the fact.

Others contacted said that they think that the whole idea is far-fetched and that "it just couldn't happen here."

Fire Chief Instigates New System

TRENTON — Fire Chief Ellis said yesterday that he has instigated a new system concerning the official reporting of fires. Effective from now on, he would not only list the property loss suffered by fire but would also list the amount of insurance on the property in question. Chief Ellis said that this was designed to make the public aware of the necessity of fire prevention. These reports will be included in his annual report and will be published.

Moose Hunters Successful

TRENTON — Moose hunters from Trenton report a certain amount of success. Fred Bell, Bill Whaley and party bagged a moose and one year bear in Kapuskasing. Mr. Whaley brought down the wolf. Counting the bear, it was a 1300 pound moose last week while hunting with his hunting partner John Fetter near Chapleau.

GET TWO CALLS

TRENTON: The Trenton Fire Department was called out twice yesterday; once to a prowler stove flare-up and once to car fire on Dundas St. West.

MISSION WITHDRAWS

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The special United Nations mission in Laos has been withdrawn because its mediation functions have been taken over by the Laotian themselves. First public disclosure of the withdrawal — actually a gradual process accomplished simply by failing to replace officials as their tours expired — came in the General Assembly's budget committee.

Civil Servants Will Get Leave To Take Course

TORONTO (CP) — Provincial Treasurer James Allan Friday announced a plan to provide leave for civil servants enlisting in Canada's militia program for the training of personnel in civil defence and survival.

Under plan, recommended by the Ontario Civil Service Commission, the Ontario government will supplement military service pay to maintain each employee's rate of pay while on the six weeks' training course.

Ontario thus becomes the first employer to co-operate with the federal government since the new militia program was announced.

"This policy is in keeping with our responsibility in taking all necessary steps to safeguard the lives and property of the people of the province," said Mr. Allan.

There are some 35,000 Ontario civil servants. The leave plan applies to government boards and commissions, which have about 15,000 employees.

$7,500 Poorer But Richer In Experience by Tour

MONTREAL (CP) — Toronto car salesman Erno Varaljai has returned to Canada a $7,500 poorer but richer in experience by 26,000 miles.

He and his wife drove a Land Rover from Germany down to the tip of Africa, taking all the backroad jungle routes they could find.

Erno drove back alone after his 36-year-old wife caught malaria and had to return to Canada by ship from Capetown.

"We just wanted to see Africa," he explained, "so we spent our money until we had enough to pay our way—$3,500 for the Land Rover and $4,000 for all the expenses there and back."

Their route took them through Italy, Greece, Syria, Lebanon, Egypt, The Sudan, Kenya, Tanganyika, Northern and Southern Rhodesia, Nyasaland, Ethiopia, Eritrea and the Union of South Africa.

They carried no guns—"guns just get you into trouble with the regulations"—and had no trouble with man or animal.

"The animals don't attack unless you frighten them by hooting your horn at them or getting too close. We watched a lion as long as 90 minutes for a herd of elephants to move away from the road ahead of us."

The African jaunt lasted from May 1960, to May 1961.

Mr Varaljai plans to take off shortly on another trip, perhaps in South America.

THE GOLDEN YEARS

Knowledge of Your Real Age Is Important at Retirement

By THOMAS COLLINS

It is perhaps the most important single fact to the man becoming gradually closer to retirement. It is a fact that too many people treat lightly.

Many are the people who are getting into trouble over their age. . . . Along about 40 or so:

1. The man may add he was two years older than he actually was when he went off to war in World War I — and got stuck with the error.

2. The woman who began fabricating her age after her 25th birthday and has kept at it, only better, ever since.

3. The man who had a chance to get a fine 25-year-old job when he was 44. He trimmed his eyebrows and got it and has been six years too young ever since.

4. The men and women who have never had anything but artificial evidence of their age — the word of Mama when they were 4 years old that this was their fourth birthday. They've been building on that for a lifetime. Maybe Mama was right. But in 50-odd years she remembers little else about it.

4. The men and women who just don't know their age — because of one reason or another. Or because no vital statistics were born because the county was burned down or some such reason.

Persons who are now in a quandry about their age. But there are grounds for most of them. In addition to the above, here are some factors to help you remember:

HERE ARE PICTURES .....

1. The man who is two years older than he is — your life insurance agent. Maybe older by an hour. Ask can of the latter. Ask can of the former. Ask can of the latter. Ask can of the former. Ask can of the latter. Ask can of the former

Sky Shield Operation Proves Solid Success

One B-52 Bomber With 8 Aboard Lost

WASHINGTON (CP) — North American air defences proved solidly effective against invading "enemy" jet bombers in the weekend Sky Shield operation, biggest air exercises ever staged by Canada and the United States.

A squadron of British Vulcan bombers also participated.

Canadian and American air officers, confirming the 14-hour test from NORAD headquarters at Colorado Springs, Colo., said they were gratified by results, most of which will be kept secret.

Only one tragedy was reported as more than 200 bombers streamed in from the north and the two counts in attempts to reach pre-set areas. Missiles and interceptors to destroy attacking echelons bombers and key industrial communities. A U.S. B-52 jet bomber with eight persons aboard was missing and presumed lost over the Atlantic.

The eight - jet bomber, attached to Seymour Johnson Air Force Base at Goldsboro, N.C., was believed to have run out of fuel. Air and surface craft searched for it when 300 hours of simulated combat ended with no sign of the plane after it was reported missing.

WORK LIKE CHARM

Air defence officers said the "enemy" jet bombers, including the three big ones in Canada—the DEW, mid-Canada and Pinetree lines—worked like a charm."

They described the operation as "fully as successful as planned."

Lawrence Kotter, NORAD commander, was reported "tickled to death by operations which went so well." The deputy commander, Air Marshal Roy Slemon of Canada.

Both President Kennedy and Prime Minister Diefenbaker were given preliminary reports on the exercises between 10 am and at 1 a.m. EDT Sunday. The body was reported gratified.

SOME LOSSES

Air Marshal Sir Kenneth Cross, chief of Britain's Bomber Command, said the test "was extremely well conducted" and the attack and defence were handled "effectively."

Kept secret was the extent of penetration made by the attack. Long bombers and how much damage they would have done to their targets. Other secret answers carrying nuclear warheads.

KILLS ARE SECRET

Also secret were the number of "kills" scored by NORAD's 400 interceptors, including nine Canadian squadrons of about 20 each.

Burma's U Thant United Nations' New Secretary?

NEW YORK (AP) — United States Ambassador Adlai Stevenson said Sunday the U.S. and the Soviet Union have reached agreement on Burma's U Thant as the next secretary-general of the United Nations.

Speaking on his television program, ABC's Adlai Stevenson Reports, Stevenson said:

"There will be a secretary-general and, by the way, I should say we have agreed on him.

"Ambassador U Thant of Burma is acceptable to the Soviets, China and likely acceptable to the United States."

Stevenson added that the west "made an enormous concession in conceding the idea of a catalogue of powers in the new secretary-general. All that remained, he said, was to decide how many underneath there would be.

Russia earlier proposed a troika, or three-member committee, in place of a secretary-general. Stevenson would have had veto power.

Plumbers Refuse To Cross Lines At Royal York

TORONTO (CP) — Pickets with have been doggedly patrolling the strike-bound Royal York hotel for six months found this weekend they might not be construction of the University Avenue subway extension.

A picket at the striking hotel and Club Employees Union CLC unit set across the entrance of a tunnel when it was learned plumbers were to make a connection into the hotel's boiler plant today. The plumbers of Local 54, Plumbing and Steamfitting Union, CLC refused to cross the line.

Subway work within the hotel boundary was brought about by the need to enroute the hotel's underground boiler system to make way for construction. Pipes feeding steam into the CPR - owned Royal York had to be lifted.

New lines have been laid and it was only necessary for the plumbers to make the connection.

A spokesman for Canadian Commercial Limited, employer on the subway project, said negotiations probably will be undertaken with the union to make a temporary outside connection or to exchange the connection altogether.

Two Motorists Tangle With Deer on Road

MILTON (CP) — Two motorists tangled with deer on highway 401 near here Sunday in separate collisions separated by yards apart.

Ashley punctured the windshield of Ralph Pilkington's car as he was driving home to Galt. The deer "came right at me," he said. The deer died and damage to the car was estimated at $200.

Soon afterwards, motorist David Bartlett of Oakville hit a second deer nearby. That deer limped into the nearby bush. The damage likely will count about $350.

Bones of 849 Chinese Refused By Communists Buried in B.C.

VICTORIA (CP) — The bones of 849 Chinese were buried at a ceremony here Saturday which ended a search that will probably be the last of its kind to be held in Canada.

The burial in mass graves marked the end of a 25-year; search by Chinese organizations to have remains which had been stored in small boxes within vaults returned to the homeland.

The scene was Penzance Point 30 feet from the Pacific Ocean at a cemetery of tall sticks and candles on a prayer altar mixed with the aroma of roasted pork and fish.

There was a brisk gale and the noise of waves pounding against the sandstone shoreline frequently drowned out the voice of Rev. Mah Fong Leong of the Chinese Presbyterian mainland China relayed to her kept remains of citizens who claimed.

Bodies were first buried and left to the ground for eight years. Then they were dug up, interred and were to be returned to the old country for traditional burial ceremonies.

The mass of bones was held here after the Second World War and would have been shipped to China in 1946 had the Communists not seized power except them. They were collected by the Chinese Consolidated Benevolent Association in cities as far east as Montreal.

Most of the remains were of Chinese who migrated to California in the gold rush of the 1860's then moved north to Canada to work on railroad construction and pioneer mining operations.

The association advertised the burial in Chinese newspapers across the country for four months but only 58 sets were claimed.

Safety of Queen in Ghana Worries London Papers

LONDON (Reuters) — Two more London newspapers voiced concern today about the safety of the Queen during a scheduled tour of Ghana next month. Both the right-wing Daily Sketch and the Conservative Daily Telegraph questioned the wisdom of going ahead with the tour in view of strained relations between Ghana and Britain and the current unrest in the African nation.

Leaders of Britain's Liberal party have called for cancellation of the tour because of possible risk to the Queen.

The Sketch suggested today that Prince Philip might be asked to make the tour without her.

"How else can the Queen be spared possible involvement with party politics without appearing to slight President Nkrumah too much?" the newspaper asked.

It said the British government could play no part in the decision. "It is entirely a matter, right, as head of the government of Ghana, to give 'political advice' on the practicability of the Queen's visit."

The Telegraph said: "The tour would be off without question."

"To call off the tour against the wish of the government of the birth of Prince Andrew... might be taken as virtually breaking off a little war with Ghana."

The Telegraph said there must be "much graver doubts and anxiety" about the visit than about the tour.

"There was always the danger that her own might be misconstrued as expressing approval of the regime and its actions," the Telegraph added.

"It would certainly be a cruel mockery for those now suffering for ideals we share to see her chatting with their jailers.

"Perhaps this danger must be added another: the risk to the Queen herself. The air bristles with rumors of unrest in Ghana."

Conservatives in Britain Pleased by Annual Parley

BRIGHTON (CP)—The British Conservative party annual conference ended Saturday with the party's leadership generally pleased with the way things went. They had a right to expect when the sessions started.

Of the nearly 5,000 delegates gathered at this seaside resort for the conference, only a few made reason for concern, particularly among party leaders.

The Labor party, which concluded its annual conference with an outburst of left-wing fury behind the strengthened leadership of Hugh Gaitskell. There were rumblings of discontent in the Conservative ranks against the bid to enter the European Common Market and the country's economic position, vocal pressure for Tory moves to curb spending and flogging and for controls on the soaring prices of other Commonwealth countries.

And Prime Minister Macmillan's confident speech on Friday earlier had caused confusion or created any new issues.

But most observers agreed at week's end that the party "imagine had come through the week clearer than it had been for years.

The biggest assignment in handling the conference went to party chairman Iain Macleod, a home secretary the man responsible for immigration and law enforcement.

Possibly some of the support given Macleod in the sympathy since many delegates were of the opinion he had been promoted over his head when ceeded as House leader by Iain Macleod, the former colonial minister, in the cabinet shuffle. As the convention concluded, however, there was speculation or

'Thoughtless Card' Gives Peace Corps First Black Eye

IBADAN, Nigeria (AP) — A postcard that went astray has given the U.S. Peace Corps its first black eye in the field.

Nigerian University students demanded Sunday that the corps send a new group of volunteers be expelled because of criticism of primitive living conditions in this city of 600,000 in a public written by a girl in the group.

Her postcard home, dropped accidentally on the campus, reportedly described Ibadan's College to an angry demonstration denouncing the American Ambassador to Nigeria, Joseph Palmer.

Dr. Gregory Michelmore, 25, Smith College honor graduate from Pontoro, Mass., quickly apologized to the university authorities for writing the postcard and ordered to resign from the corps.

Peace Corps Director Sargent Shriver said in Washington he talked to the Nigerian ambassador.

She did not seem disturbed. He said it was the type of thing that would expect in a program of operation and I agreed with him.

The anti-American demonstration was organized after someone saw a report of it to have found on the campus grounds the postcard that Miss Michelmore's parents had received in Boston reacting:

"Well, all the training we had we were really not prepared for

DELEGATES POUR INTO MOSCOW FOR CONGRESS

Foreign Writers Admitted First Day

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Delegates poured in here today from abroad and from the remote corners of the Soviet Union for the opening Tuesday of the Communist party congress.

Some 4,000 Soviet delegates and representatives of 70 foreign countries are expected to be in their seats in the new Kremlin Congress Hall to hear Premier Khrushchev report on international and home affairs.

The speech was expected to underline the policies of Soviet thinking on Berlin and on other world problems in the wake of recent East-West contacts.

On the eve of the party congress, Khrushchev is expected to present a blueprint for building a Communist utopia in the Soviet Union in the next 20 years.

CHINESE ARRIVE

Top Communists from Soviet bloc countries have been arriving here for the last few days. Among the delegates headed up by Premier Chou En-lai, arrived Sunday and were greeted at the airport by Khrushchev and Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko.

Foreign reporters here were told unofficially Sunday they would only be admitted for the first day's proceedings.

The text of the power program for the Soviet Union was first published here last July.

It incorporates his theme of peaceful co-existence with a belief that communism will conquer the world eventually without war.

It paints a glowing picture of Soviet industrial production and the high level of Soviet workers after another 20 years of communism.

New Planning Needed Says Liberal Leader

VICTORIA (CP) — New planning arrangements with a view to greater economic stability and urgency are needed to help the private and private sectors of the Canadian economy together again, National Liberal Leader Lester Pearson said Saturday night.

Such planning through a federal agency set up for this purpose is an important part of the Liberals' new program, he said in an address closing the Liberal conference at the British Columbia Liberal Association.

"Ours will be planning for practical progressive action, not planning for unobtainable promises which are not or cannot be carried out.

Mr. Pearson said his party would establish a full time national economic council as a planning agency.

The main elements of Canada's economy-building, Agriculture, industrial growth, trade, resources and labor would be represented on the council.

"The functions of this council will be to conduct research into economic trends in all parts of Canada and to undertake systematic examination of new problems", said Mr. Pearson.

"It will be to make recommendations to the government about the policies and programs needed to ensure full employment."

Youth Kidnapped and Driven To Montreal in Trunk of Car

MONTREAL (CP) — An 18-year-old Greenby, Que., youth was safe at home today after being kidnapped, bound, gagged and driven 100 miles to Montreal in the trunk of his father's car.

Alvin Gray, unharmed after his "breath-taking and dangerous" trip, was found in the trunk of his father's car.

The 45-mile trip to Montreal took seven abductors in the car in a downtown parking lot, where they took time to make a phone call" and fled on foot.

Gray told police he walked in on the men at the Gray home shortly after 4 p.m. The house was empty while his parents spent the weekend at their summer cottage.

The men, one armed with a revolver, bundled him into his head with a bag, tied his hands and feet and emptied his pockets. Then they outbound their search of the house.

The car, parked near the house, and opened the trunk where I was bundled in and driven on the travel trip."

After parking the car near Victoria Bridge, the three opened the trunk, handed Guay the keys to the car and 10 cents and told him "give us 10 minutes before doing anything."

Guay climbed from the trunk with his hands still tied and walked to garage where a motorist freed him. Then he called his parents.—

Red Bloc Seeks To Slow Action On Radiation

Tries to Block Canada's Move for Quick Study

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—The Soviet bloc moved during the weekend to smother the interest of Canada's proposal for a world-wide study on the hazards of radiation.

Czechoslovakia presented a resolution suggesting that the report of the UN scientific committee on the effects of atomic radiation— which mentions anxiety caused by the resumption of nuclear tests—be treated in a routine manner.

A Canadian resolution presented to the UN secretariat Friday takes the opposite line, saying the committee's work should be accelerated in view of concern all over the world at the dangers of nuclear fallout.

Capsule Ejected From Satellite Caught in Air

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP)— A 300-pound capsule ejected from the orbiting Discoverer satellite No. 38 was caught in the air over the Pacific Ocean Saturday by a waiting United States Air Force plane.

A C-130 plane piloted by Capt. Glenn Schanstedt, 32, of Glenwood, Minn., snagged the space capsule's parachute as it fell. It was the second straight Discoverer payload recovered by Schanstedt.

The satellite was launched Friday from Vandenberg Air Force Base, Calif. Five hours, about the size of a kettledrum. was ejected from the satellite on its 15th circuit of the globe.

Reach Agreement

CHICAGO (AP) — The United Auto Workers union and International Harvester Company reached a tentative agreement on a new three-year contract early Monday morning, ending a 16-day strike by 22,000 production workers in 11 U.S. cities.

Agreement for the company and union said the new contract is subject to ratification by the union executive and by UAW locals. They said it provides for an annual wage increase of 2½ per cent or six cents an hour, whichever is greater, and other improved benefits.

Under the old contract, which expired October 1, hourly wages for production workers averaged $2.40.

200 missile bases providing the main defence. Bomarc, Nike-Hercules and Nike-Ajax missiles were aimed at the cities but no shots were fired.

While the defence was considered effective as an operation the exercise presumed only that the "enemy" tried to invade North America with unclear-armed jets of the B-52 and B-36 types. Mosquito-like unveiled faster bombers in its July air show.

The exercise also did not include the possibility of an intercontinental ballistic missile attack. There is no present defence against the ICBM.

But Kuter found the exercise "of inestimable value in improving weapons of defence in North America". Benefits achieved would mean success in fighting off a real aerial assault on the continent.

In war games the sector in the eastern parts of the continent had sunshine in the West more than 400 NORAD units responded when headquarters flashed orders to take to the skies against the invaders. About 250,000 air force army and navy personnel were involved.

The mock battle forced a 13-hour grounding of all commercial and private planes. Airlines cancelled 2,900 flights the largest cancellation in history.

Children Sleep In Car as 100 Hunt for Them

ANCASTER (CP) — Two children spent an icy back seat of a car at a service station near Hamilton after they became lost in the dark while more than 100 volunteers combed Ancaster Township searching for them before searching for them.

Debbie Marsh, 7, and Karen Washington, 5, reported missing when they did not return from an afternoon walk. They were found shortly after midnight, as police dogs were brought in from nearby Hamilton to aid in the search.

"We just took a little rest," the girls told searchers.

Reject Permission

TORONTO (CP) — The Communist Party has been refused permission to appear before board of control this week.

Acting Mayor Donald Summerville said the board will not allow it because the subject the Communist party wish to discuss has nothing whatsoever to do with the city's jurisdiction."

Board controller Lowell the board to pass resolution calling for halt to all steps leading to all-out war over Berlin and for negotiations on the Berlin question."

First Graduation Ceremony Held at Nicholson College

The first graduation from Nicholson Catholic College took place recently in the college gymnasium which had been attractively decorated with the school colors, emblems, ferns, and autumn floral arrangements. Dominating the platform was a shrine of the Blessed Virgin—the campus of "Queen of Hearts."

Following the taking of class photos by Mrs. J. McCabe, the graduates, clad in trim in their caps and gowns, proceeded to the gymnasium where they were welcomed and congratulated by the chairman for the evening, Michael Culligan. An expression of gratitude on behalf of the graduates and students was extended to the large audience of parents and friends.

The chairman referred with pride to the members of the senior graduating class and of the contribution they had made to maintain the college's high standards. He said it was just seeing students, four are attending university, five are in Teachers' Colleges, two are nurses' training schools, and one is in religious training.

The guest speaker, Rev. Harold O'Neill, STD, of Brockville, was introduced by Rev. Fr. McGee. In his remarks, Father O'Neill linked this first graduation from Nicholson Catholic College with the visits made to the Basilica of St. Michael's High School by the late Monsignor Nicholson. The speaker recalled the many inspiring quotations taken from Chesterton's Canon which the Monsignor so dearly loved, and which had made a lasting impression on the youth. The speaker challenged the youthful graduates to be leaders in the social apostolate for the betterment of the world and mankind.

Selections by the Glee Club, vocal solos by Kenneth Campbell, and instrumentals by Miss Leslie Fraser comprised the entertainment program.

Catholic Meet Asks Projects To Aid Jobless

HALIFAX (CP) — The ninth annual Canadian Catholic Welfare Conference ended Sunday night with resolutions ranging from a call for government initiation of employment projects to a need for education in social doctrines.

The three-day conference sought initiation of projects by federal and provincial governments in areas where unemployed is having "detrimental, psychological and spiritual effects." It also sought assistance for "hundreds" of men now living in legislation providing effective control of prices and markets.

The conference also urged a large - scale immigration program to exploit Canada's agricultural potential and the provision of subsidies, if necessary, to keep farm families in the family farm—"the cornerstone of the Christian social order."

The conference urged that Catholic educational institutions be free to develop courses in social doctrines of the church and the establishment in Catholic high schools of vocational sections departments was also urged.

GREEK PRIORITY

James MacDonald, executive secretary of the national labor co-operative movement, told the conference Saturday his organization is determined to see Greek national control given priority to co-operative purchases in meeting his consumer need."

Special Week Set Aside For Group of Canadians In Co-operative Movement

By JACK VAN DUSEN

OTTAWA (CP) — A special supermarkets where the buyer is in effect the owner. He gets his share of profits in the cost and receives dividends as a member of the co-op.

Lloyd Foster of Saskatoon, president of Federated Co-operatives Ltd., says he spent $2,000 at his co-op on beer, gasoline, furniture and other purchases and got $130 in "patronage funds," divi-dends.

The Co-op Union, formed in 1909, has national study committees in the fields of insurance, research, fisheries, education and employee development, to keep the movement up to date and ready to take advantage of marketing developments.

A women's branch, the Co-op Guilds, tests products for co-op distribution, and has a display gimmicks and studies cost-of-living problems.

ASSETS IN MILLIONS

The 2,883 co-ops across Canada have assets of $681,862,000, with 1,800 branches and retail outlets alone. Members' equity totals $267,104,000 in these fields: Agricultural co-ops total 1,000 regional wholesale co-ops total $73,000,000 in sales of farm supplies and farm products and reaching $295,000,000.

Out of Saskatoon farm co-ops have come such giants as Federated Co-operatives, wholesale distributors for Manitoba and Saskatchewan now building a $15,000,000 warehouse complex at Saskatoon.

Foster said in interview this month with Alberta Co-operative Wholesale Association, Then it built its own petroleum co-op and about 230,000 families from west of the Great Lakes in Ontario to the Pacific coast in British Columbia. Federated last year totalled $87,000,000.

United Co-operatives of Ontario, formed in 1944, now has 70,000 members, reports business of $11,000,000 in 1960 and $11,000,000 in 1961.

Fraser said it is meeting this Co-operative Wholesale Association. Then it built its own petroleum co-op and about 230,000 families from west of the Great Lakes in Ontario to the Pacific coast in British Columbia. Federated last year totalled $87,000,000.

United Co-operatives of Ontario, formed in 1944, now has 70,000 members, reports business of $11,000,000 in 1960 and La Co-operative Federee de Quebec had business volume of $117,000,000.

Italy Ousts United States From Davis Cup

ROME (AP) — Italy defeated the United States in Interzone Davis Cup play today and won the right to challenge Australia for the coveted tennis trophy. Nicola Pietrangeli scored the decisive third point as Italy defeated Dennis Ralston 6-3, 6-3, 6-2.

Italy won three of the final two singles matches Sunday 2-1, and needing to win only one more point.

Douglas, the sixth ranked U.S. player, was no match for the big Italian, who in the first set, which lasted for 38 minutes, did not lose a single point.

Douglas previously had won the first singles victory by defeating Fausto Gardini 6-4, 7-5, 3-6, 6-4.

The final singles match of the day, which pits Whitney Reed against Gardini, was reduced to a formality.

Plan to Develop North Needed Says Macaulay
PETERBOROUGH (CP) Resources Minister Macaulay of Ontario said Sunday the Progressive Conservative party needs a plan for developing the north if it wants to keep its seats in northwestern Ontario.

One of seven aspirants for leadership of the Ontario Progressive Conservative party, Mr. Macaulay told leadership convention delegates here that his plan to establish an economic council for development fund to set goals — previously lacking — and see they are achieved.

Mr. Macaulay also suggested: a program of retraining to cope with juvenile delinquency; a merging of the resources and economics and companies and development departments and, as an offshoot, some combined departments, a marketing board to seek new fields for exports.

I WON'T LEAVE UN

KIMBERLEY (AP) — Premier Hendrik Verwoerd said Saturday night South Africa will not leave the United Nations "in spite of all provocation."

He was referring to the vote of censure that followed South African Foreign Minister Eric Louw's speech before the United Nations Assembly in New York last Wednesday.

CONTINUE TO GROW

The movement that began "when the first farmers got together to build a barn" continued to mushroom in the year of Canadian centennial as 1 million farm and fisheries products and consumers got co-op services in such fields as health, housing, credit and insurance.

The 1961 co-op year was largely provided by immigrant farmers in the 19th century, said Mr. Staples, 54, son of a man who farmed in the Peterborough, Ont., area.

Farmers banded together to sell their produce and buy to bulk the supplies they needed. These small enterprises have grown to thousands sprinkled across the country.

Co - op groups now operate grocery stores, sell agricultural products and implements and run department stores. They have moved into such diversified fields as health and housing, transport and the distribution of electrical power.

BUILD SUPERMARKETS

About one-third of Canadian farm income passes through marketing co-ops—about 60 per cent of all grain, 30 per cent of livestock, 26 per cent of dairy products and 25 per cent of fruit and vegetables.

Public Audience With Pope Is Not Solemn Occasion That Many Might Expect

By ROD CURRIE

ROME (CP) — The Pope is not the solemn occasion one might expect. There is much hand clapping and laughing and shouting. "Viva Il-Papa!"

In his summer residence at Castel Gandolfo, in the Alban Hills about 15 miles southeast of Rome, Pope John receives visitors in audience Saturday mornings and sometimes of Wednesday mornings.

They come by the hundreds, most of them tourists, by bus and private car and on foot.

Groups who consider a papal audience a major part of their tour usually make arrangements in advance to ensure that they will be admitted. But many others—both the devout and the curious—discover after they arrive here that it is a fairly simple matter to gain admittance.

BUS RENT PLAN

The best plan is to take one of the sightseeing bus tours that include the Saturday morning audience. They cost $1,000 lire (about $2.75) and the three-hour guided tour takes in a ride through Rome and the trip along the Appian Way to the fertile grape-and-country area surrounding Castel Gandolfo.

From there bus climbs into the Alban Hills, passing the mirror-like Lake Albano which lies in the crater of an extinct volcano.

From the parking lot the visitors make their way up stone steps and along narrow, cobblestone streets to the entrance of the auditorium grounds where Swiss Guards in helmets and orange-and-blue uniforms tend the gate.

The informality for which the 79-year-old Pope is noted is evident in the manner which the audiences are conducted.

Tourists wear bright summer clothes, although no uniforms are required to have their arms covered or to be otherwise as they are upon entering any church or holy place in Rome. At the more formal Vatican City audiences men wear dark or formal suits and women never bare their heads. Photographers are allowed to take pictures.

During the bus trip the passengers are issued pink slips admitting them to the audience but no one collects these and it is supposed anyone can wander into the hall until it is full or until a few minutes before the Pope arrives.

The auditorium, set amid trees and flowers and terraced lawns, is a long, narrow building with a wide aisle leading from the doors to the red-carpeted steps and the throne at the other end.

Near the platform there are seats for several hundred persons — usually church officials and groups who have made previous arrangements. The rest of the hall is devoted to standing room with the floor sloping upwards from the center aisle.

At a recent audience, the Pope arrived 30 minutes late. As he does every week-end he was borne in on a portable throne, there was a great burst of applause, which grew in volume as many, surprised at first by this outburst, joined in.

START CHANT

Near the front a group of students priests started the chant, "Viva Il Papa"

The cries of honor near the Pope was a group of Boy Scouts from France, Other groups included students studying art in England, representatives of an athletic club in New York and a group of tourists from Spain.

The Pope addressed the audience for about 15 minutes and there was considerable laughter — his own and that of those who understood Italian. Later, a priest speaking in a heavy French accent gave a summary of what he said — but eliminated the bits was followed by priests speaking in French, German and Spanish.

The Pope then spoke briefly in French to the Boy Scouts from France so as give his blessing and depart.

Kiwanis Christmas Toy Project Now in 10th Year

Now in its 10th year of operation, the Belleville Kiwanis Christmas toy project is again underway and the Kiwanis Centre where for the next two months local Kiwanians and others will be at work repairing an estimated 4,000 toys.

The repaired toys are distributed by members of the Belleville Fire Department to city and district needy children.

Today Eric Cooper, originator of the Christmas toy repair project, appealed for repairable toys to keep the Kiwanis repairmen busy for the next two weeks.

The toy repair project got under way last Wednesday using a back log of toys left over from last year, but these will soon be all used up and the repairmen will then be dependent on a new crop of toys donated this year.

The Kiwanis toy repair shop operates four nights a week, Monday to Thursday, with four teams of six repairmen taking weekly turns.

HAVE MANY HELPERS

Although Kiwanians head up the project, many non-Kiwanis workers turn out to help the project along — many of them professionals in a particular phase of repair work.

For instance, Mr. A. Leland does all the toy painting, while Smiling Signs does the paint stripping, while employees of Stephen Lawson turn out to do expert repairs on tricycles. A local woodworking firm sets up the jigs for the manufacture or repair of wooden toys, while the work is all done gratis.

But there are still expenses involved in the toy project. For instance between 35 and 40 gallons of paint are used each year and repair materials have to be purchased. And it all takes money.

To help the project along penny boxes will this year be placed in downtown business places. Any spare pennies will be welcomed.

King Street Church 'Market' Raises Funds

TRENTON — In May of this year, the official board of King Street United Church in Trenton, backed up by the church membership, appointed a committee to carry out the ambitious program of raising approximately $13,000 for repairs and renovations to the century-old church.

On Saturday, the various organizations in the church staged an all day effort, "Project '61' to supplement funds realized by a house-to-house pledge canvass.

Members of the men's club, assisted by members of the church's youth clubs, ran an open-air market in front of the church; the CGIT girls sold candy in a basement booth; Women's Auxiliary members served a "businessmen's" luncheon and a "Harvest Supper", and an auction sale was held on the tennis court.

It is planned to build an edifice onto the back of the church which will house office space, a choir room and a garage.

Alterations to the basement Sunday school rooms will be carried out, also necessary are alterations to the front of the church to accommodate a new organ and modernize the choir loft, chancel, etc.

A renovation program is also being carried out at Grace United Church and some months ago the official board of St. George's Anglican Church announced that an addition would be built onto the present church.

Brighton Store Is Entered

TRENTON — Don Brintnell's men's store on Main Street in Brighton was entered over the weekend, Provincial Police reported today. Entry was gained by smashing a rear window in the store and a quantity of men's wearing apparel was taken. The loss has not been estimated as an inventory of the store has not been completed.

Women's Week Being Observed By Club

TRENTON — The 58 members of the Trenton branch of the Business and Professional Women's Clubs throughout the world are observing Business and Professional Women's Week, from Oct. 15 to Oct. 21.

Miss Eva Baker is the 1961-62 president of the club. Mrs. Ann Johnson, charter president, has just completed a term as regional advisor. The club was formed in 1953. Several club members attended the international conference in Paris two years ago.

Other club activities include attending United Nations assemblies, regional seminars and provincial and national conferences, where activities, aimed at the betterment of the status of women, are discussed.

Today, Miss Kay Patterson, past president of the Trenton Club, told of club activities in an interview with Ted Snider over the Trenton-Belleville radio station, CJBQ.

Donald Fraser To Quit Council At End of Year

TRENTON (Special) — Councillor Donald R. Fraser, member of Trenton town council for the past two years, will resign from municipal office at the end of this year, it was learned on good authority today. Reasons for the resignation were given as pressure of business.

Councillor Fraser was elected in the fall of 1959 and served the 1960 term and last fall was elected for a further two-year term of office.

He is council appointee to the town court of revision and this year is serving as chairman. He will continue in office until December 31.

Town Briefs

TRENTON—A local grocer reports that he received a shipment of 100 baskets of peaches on Saturday, from Bcamsville. He said that this was a record as he could never remember peaches being shipped later than Sept. 15 in other years.

This is Y.O.N. Week in Trenton. Canvassers will blanket the town with an appeal for funds to carry out the nursing service.

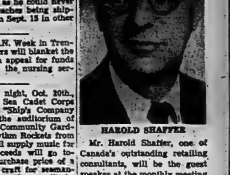
On Friday night, Oct. 20th, the Trenton Sea Cadet Corps will hold a "Ship's Company Dance," in the auditorium of the Trenton Community Gardens. The Rhythm Rockets from Belleville will supply music for dancing. Proceeds will go towards the purchase price of a large power craft for seamanship training. There will be prizes for spot dances and refreshments. Instructor Lyril Southwell is in charge of arrangements.

On Saturday, the Trenton fire department was called to Stanley Street where fire had broken out in the basement at the rear of one of the houses. Out of the building was negligible, but smoke from the furnishings in the immediate area were measured by the flash fire.

Woman Struck By Door of Car, Shaken Up

TRENTON — In Trenton on Sunday afternoon, Mrs. Lougheed, 70 of 30 Weeks Ave., was shaken up when she was struck by the door of a car by which she had been driven to Grace United Church. As she alighted from the vehicle, Mrs. Lougheed was knocked to the pavement. Another passenger in the car inadvertently struck the transmission lever, putting the car into reverse and touched the gas pedal.

Mrs. Lougheed's wife of Connecon was treated at Trenton hospital on Sunday afternoon for a fractured left forearm and a bruised ankle, sustained when she fell down the steps of the Coin Wash building on Dundas Street East.



Corporal Lloyd Lyle of the Brighton detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police reports that the village was accident free over the weekend.

Around 11.50 p.m. on Friday, Marcel Legris of Port Viau, Que., suffered a deep cut on the finger which he was towing with his own vehicle went out of control on Highway 401 at the intersection with Highway 30, striking the left car and causing extensive damage to both vehicles.

LEAVES HOSPITAL

NEW YORK (AP) — Indian Defence Minister V. K. Krishna Menon left hospital Saturday, a week after a small operation to remove a blood clot from a coronary of the brain. He was taken to a Manhattan hotel where he had been staying as chairman of the Indian delegation to the United Nations General Assembly.

Keep South Africa in UN

The United Nations General Assembly on Wednesday voted 67 to 1 to censure the speech of South African Foreign Minister, Eric Louw. The Assembly is to be commended for its initiative. We hope that this precedent is not forgotten and that in future, when representatives of other lands make speeches which indicate a contempt for all the principles for which the UN stands, the Assembly will have the courage to adopt other votes of censure. We hope, too, that Canada will not always be so timid as to abstain, as it did on Wednesday.

Not content with the vote of censure, Ghana announced plans to ask for South Africa's expulsion from the UN. We hope that this move is defeated by a decisive margin.

For too long the aim has been to make the UN an exclusive club, to which members are admitted only if their conduct meets certain standards.

This view of the UN conforms to the original intentions of its founders. The UN was to be composed of nations united in their determination to preserve peace. But the road to disillusionment is also paved with good intentions. Events have long since proven beyond a doubt it is impossible to achieve the sort of United Nations of which its founders dreamed.

The mature person recognses facts and adjusts his policies to fit them. Since the type of UN which we desired is not achievable, then we must build the type of UN which can be established. This is a grouping of all of the nations of the world, no matter what their policies or intentions may be. Far from trying to exclude any nation, the objective should be to include any and all. Only then will the decisions of the majority. The very same reasons which can be advanced for the inclusion of Communist China make it highly inadvisable that South Africa be excluded. Indeed, the fact that the majority of the member nations disagree with South Africa's policies should enhance, rather than diminish, their interest in seeing that South Africa remains a member of the UN.

If Canada had had the courage to vote in favor of the motion of censure on Louw's speech, she could have led the fight to keep South Africa within the UN. Now, though, the best she can do is to have the sense to remain silent. Any appeal by Canada to keep South Africa within the UN would now be open to misinterpretation and might have precisely the opposite effect from that desired.

Let Us Spend Wisely

All but our youngest readers will remember the time when Hon. C. D. Howe exclaimed "What's a million?"—They will remember the remark of the furor it caused.

Many of those who most vigorously criticized Mr. Howe are still members of Parliament and some of them are Cabinet ministers. They must have approved the government's plans to spend at least $100,000,000 on the celebration of Canada's centennial.

We are not opposed to Canada celebrating its 100th birthday in fitting fashion—and this will involve the expenditure of considerable sums of money. We do think, though, that when the costs of a birthday party run as high as a hundred million dollars, there should be something concrete to show for this expenditure after the party is over.

The government shares this view. Part of the centennial budget will be used to assist local committees in their centennial projects and these grants will only be made for projects of a lasting nature.

Unfortunately it is not at all certain that all, or even the majority, of these projects will be the type we have in mind. The Federal Government is proposing to create "a mile of living history" on Sussex Drive in Ottawa, and to restore buildings along the route to their appearance at the time of Confederation. As a national showpiece, this may be commendable. We hope, though, that local committees do not attempt to copy this theme on a smaller scale in their own communities. We should not forget that the fathers of Confederation were primarily interested in building for the future. We should retain this objective in the projects we undertake to mark the nation's centennial. The buildings and parks which are constructed to mark the occasion should be designed not so much to commemorate the past as to serve the community in the coming years. Let us get good value for that $100,000,000 birthday party bill.

Like music, poetry has its root in those natural modes of expression which accompany deep feeling. — Spencer.

Great Know Failure, Too

Montreal Gazette

In 1862 Herbert Asquith was writing to a friend about some of his early disappointments and defeats. By 1883 he was already a member of the cabinet and was on his way to become prime minister. But he was thinking back to the time when he was a young barrister, waiting for clients and wondering whether life would ever hold anything for him.

Of those years he wrote:

"I went by train to the Temple, and sat in my chambers, and dressed in my wig and gown, expectation for a knock on the door, hoping that it might be a client with a brief. But years passed on and he hardly ever came".

It becomes very easy, once a man is established and has his place, to believe that he could never have had moments of despair. Yet no one has reached achievement without many troubles. The taste of such troubles is always bitter, for they poison hope.

Today one of the most prized of books is that of Audubon's "The Birds of America". This tremendous work, with its more than 400 magnificent plates, is the triumph of Audubon as naturalist and artist. Yet when it was first issued, after, and the complete work is the treasure of a few great libraries.

Yet Audubon, in his own time, faced repeated rebuffs and frustration in seeking subscribers for his work. In 1838 he visited Oxford, hoping that the university would value what he had to offer. But in his journal on March 29 he wrote:

"Tomorrow, probably, I leave my native land, perhaps forever. There are here twenty-two colleges intended to promote science in all its branches. Nowhere have gangsels of a work acknowledged to be good, and not one of the colleges has subscribed".

Next morning he did leave Oxford. There is chill in the words of the journal: "Left Oxford at eleven this morning, the weather intensely cold".

Audubon hoped he had found a patron in Lord Fitzwilliam Kinsoul, who asked him to call by appointment. But again the journal records disappointment: ". . . he had sent for me to peruse my birds were alike" and he considered my work a swindle".

When a person feels sunk in failure even the kindest of friends may fail to give comfort. The person may truly believes his hopes are gone may feel he must conceal his failure, if he is to be honest with himself.

One day in 1886 Theodore Roosevelt called at the office of the Century magazine in New York. He had just been defeated in his first campaign. At the age of 28 he had been a candidate for the office of mayor of New York. Though he had fought well, supported by some influential friends, his defeat had been drastic.

After talking a little while about the campaign with the editor of the Century, Robert Underwood Johnson, he said: "Johnson, I do not disguise from myself that this is the end of my political career."

Johnson did his best to reassure him. "Oh, he will do well," he said, "that's nonsense."

But Roosevelt could not be convinced or even comforted. He kept repeating: "No, no, this is the end of my political career."

Most bitter of all, is the experience of those who try and find any who would comfort them in their disappointments, but find, instead, those who would persuade them to give up the struggle. Here is the ultimate hurt of pride.

In the lonely parsonage at Haworth on the Yorkshire moors, with the wind moaning about it, and the stones of the churchyard close by, Charlotte Bronte has given all her hopes to her writing. Starved for a word of encouragement, she had written in 1837 to one of the most prominent writers of the day, Robert Southey, the Poet Laureate.

After a long delay, Southey's letter arrived. He started to be kind, and kindness, to him, lay in persuading her to give up all thought of becoming an author.

To Southey's letter she replied. The bitterness of her defiance was concealed under a show of submissiveness.

She thanked him for "the wise and friendly tone" of his letter. Then she added: "I sometimes when I'm teaching or sewing feel as if I could do nothing but reading and writing; but I try to deny myself . . . Once more allow me to thank you for your sincere gratitude. I trust I shall never more see my name in print: if I do not, I shall think I'll look at Southey's letter, and repress it."

The capacity to outlast disappointment may be the fibre of success. Lincoln's persistence in them fail in endurance. And this, as Asquith believed, may be "the most tragic thing in life." It is more than the loss of what might have been. It is the gnawing awareness of talents that will never find a use, yet will never be at rest.

Sad Rebuff

Wall Street Journal

It is a little sad that Chancellor Adenauer should be rebuffed at the polls, but it is not a unique occurrence— even Churchill suffered political defeat at the very moment of military triumph. And whatever the political developments in West Germany, no one there or elsewhere is likely to forget will soon forget his contributing to economic wisdom and Western strength.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

There is something very mysterious about life, and hunters are the most mysterious with it. When you are deer hunting, craftily searching the bush over for your buck, and you see as many as a dozen ruffed grouse a day, and never lay eyes on a buck. After three or four days of this you decide to leave the rifle at camp and take a shotgun hunting with your shotgun. At least you will have some birds to show for your labors.

And all day you never see a single grouse, and maybe five deer will jump, half an hour apart; and all of them within fifty yards and perfect targets for a rifle.

There is no explaining this. It is comparable to the fishing experience of fishermen expected in the spring what is the best day for fishing? The day before you come, and the day after you leave.

But if hunting and fishing were a sure thing, the ranks of sportsmen would be reduced by more than half. It is the challenge of the uncertain that attracts the adventurous spirit. Nothing is more humdrum than certainty.

Humanity has known, for this is the first time that the war as a whole has been in jeopardy.

This means that we must make sure to support ourselves with inner forces which make the insistence of the tax collector not quite so terrible as to destroy. There will always be a remnant to carry on, and the remnant will be free. Above all, to remember that it is, people who have that inner security and power which will rise above any calamity devilish man may think up to torture his fellows.

Benign Kremlin

London Free Press

The Soviet Union has challenged the capitalist world in a new field. It has limited and expects to abolish income tax. What is more it has excluded dwarfs entirely from having to pay any income tax at all. Undoubtedly this is intended to show how concerned it is about the welfare of the little people.

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

It is never We who want the war. It is always They who want it.

They may be the Persians, the Spanish Carthaginians, the Yorkists, the Confederates or the Communists. There has always been a They.

But from their side, We have to make the war. And if We do it, We have always wanted the war, out of mutual fear, misunderstanding and dislike. We and They have always gone to war.

Obviously, there is only one way to end war before we end the human race. And that is for all of us to become a We. A World This is a fresh, impractical, impossible and idealistic solution. It has always been that.

But nothing else has ever worked. For thousands of years, the world has been guided by the practical, the possible and the realistic. And it has always failed. The next war has always been Now. There is no peace treaty of the old one.

We have tried everything else—alliances, defensive, extermination of the enemy, a League of Nations and a United Nations. We have patched and sewed, prayed and threatened and ended by making new weapons for the new war against the new enemy.

Only now we have reached the end of that road. War has now become mortifying rather than We and They. We can no longer reach out to war to protect our women and children — war is now coming to us and the women and children will go along with the men, who have no place to stay.

The human race is signing a suicide pact in its sleep. Events are rushing us into war. There No nation is "free", no nation is "overseas" any more. Every nation owns the seas and skies. The wind blowseth where it listeth, and no boundary has no citizenship.

War has suddenly become obsolete as a means of deciding a national difference. People everywhere are coming to be beginning to know that governments do not yet know it. Governments are at a loss to find the times, planning to fight with weapons they cannot control.

But there is no creative dialogue between the people and their governments — none in Russia, and very little in ours here. The people feel carried along by forces they can neither see nor really name nonetheless. In the great Democracy, we have learned that the cause of war and peace than in the great Dictatorship. "What can one person do to stop it?"

We can think. We can speak. We can write. We can vote. We can, on a personal, moral, humanitarian approach to world problems. If we are going to die, we want at least die as a consequence of our beliefs, not like animals, stunned and hopeless, in a war that nobody really wanted.

Child Labor?

Stockholm Aftonbladet

A telephone call to police headquarters in Kramfors reported that a strange man had locked a little girl in the trunk of his car and driven away. Police finally trapped the car and released the girl. She was the girl's father. He had asked her to ride in the trunk to console mysterious noises in the rear of the automobile.

Lung Elasticity Diminishes If Person Has Emphysema

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

"Dear Dr. Molner — My husband has emphysema. It is worse when he gets up in the morning. He coughs and nearly passes out. He went to the doctor five times last month. Is there anything we can do for him at home?" — Mrs. H. H.

Let me explain first of all just what emphysema is. When we breathe in air, our lungs blow up somewhat like balloons. When we exhale, the air is forced out. The lungs have some elasticity and this helps to force the air out. But in emphysema this elasticity is lost. The lungs can't blow up as much as they should and they can't force out the air as well as they should.

This does not mean that the lungs get smaller. Quite the contrary. The lungs get larger, and sometimes the patient gradually gets a "barrel chest."

If the sacs are going to you at first, think of it this way. Take a child's balloon. Blow it up and then let the air out again. Do it quite a few times. By the time the rubber loses some of its stretch. It no longer snaps back as easily as it did at first.

That is true of the lungs, if they lose their elasticity. They can expand just as much, or in fact more. But they don't exert enough force to make them remain in the lungs. And therefore there isn't as much empty space into which fresh air can be drawn. It isn't just air that the lungs need: it's fresh air.

Or to put it another way, it is as important to breathe out air out as it is to breathe fresh air in.

The cause of emphysema is usually chronic bronchitis, or asthma or a combination of both of that order. These problems should be treated early, when they don't seem to be too troublesome. Treatment then can prevent any further damage to the heart, while slightly on the left side of the chest, and is generally pretty much in the middle.

Are you bothered with ringing in the ears? If so, write to Dr. Molner in care of The Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P. O. Box 158, Dundee, Ill., for my booklet, "Ear Noises — Their Causes and Cures," enclosing with your request 15c in coin and a long, self-addressed, unstamped envelope to cover handling and postage.

TODAY'S TALK

LIVING UP TO YOUR BEST

Wouldn't it be fine if just as soon as we had risen to our very best, we might remain there — and then go no further up!

But the fact remains that it is one of the tragedies of human ambitions, our good and noble desires rise and fall like the tides, and in many times without apparent reason for doing so.

We wake in the morning. Our body seems refreshed and our soul seems hallowed and we bet we know it, clouds have appeared and the day grows in darkness before the afternoon and night. Then comes the test of character.

Climbing hills is hardest — both mental and factual. But it is the hill climbed that gives the most of all in building a man or woman.

Living up to your best isn't easy. And no one knows as well as you do just how hard it is to live up to our best.

Everybody should think of this. Just the thought of what others are trying to do much like you.

In an elevator at my office building one day I overheard a young girl remark to her companion that a certain man in the building — he was an elevator operator — was a "swell guy" because he always said "Good morning" to everybody.

Police Irked By Al Capp

Windsor Star

No man should allow himself to become so serious or so self-important that he can't laugh at himself. In even the most serious business, laughter is an aid.

Accordingly we view with some concern the reaction of the Police Chiefs of Police in passing a resolution censuring the activities of Fearless Fosdick, the comic strip creation of Li'l Abner.

Mr. Al Capp, the author of Li'l Abner, is capable of subtle and biting satire. His Fearless Fosdick, however, is the very broadest satire, drawn with a particularly heavy pen and unlikely to convince even the simplest. Fosdick is the perfect police officer, except one other fictional character, could ever be so dull, so regardful, or so ineffectual as Fosdick.

We hope that not all the world's police chiefs have felt their dignity must be affronted when we're sure that the majority of police officers aren't so impressed with their own important role that they can't take a joke.

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

WE CAN RISE ABOVE TROUBLE

There is a great deal of complaint today about high taxes. This is natural. People never liked high taxes and never will.

But we live in an age so replete with danger that huge military equipment is imperative. This costs money. Further, more, it increases the cost of other branches of government. Everything pyramids until taxes are indeed staggering.

Of two things we can be sure: Taxes will continue to be uncomfortably high for the foreseeable future; also pension systems of all kinds will prevail. Inasmuch as it is practically impossible for a person to "make a fortune" because of the tax system, something must be done to give people security in retirement. And the thing that will be done is some kind of pension system; some variety of the social security system.

We should become aware of the fact that we are living both in a new world and in a world by no means dangerous era that

Your United Appeal

The United Appeal's campaign is designed to accomodate everyone wishing to contribute in several different ways. Besides the payroll giving plan, which is now available to all, there is provision made for personal pledges, spread over a 12-month period, to be arranged.

On October 30th there will be a residential canvass by a large group of ladies, all of whom, volunteerily give of their time and effort to the United Appeal. Through this canvass those who have not had the opportunity to make a contribution previously may do so.

Income Tax Explained

Written and designed for the taxpayer who is not in a position to employ the services of a professional accountant or visit an Income Tax Office.

By C. A. MILLER
Former Supervising Assessor Income Tax Department

One certain section of the Income Tax Act deals exclusively with certain types of railway employees. These are relieving telegraphers, station agents and maintenance workers. These are jobs where the persons who are so employed, are required to travel from place to place.

In the case of a railroying telegrapher, or station agent, no sleeping quarters are supplied, so such persons may claim the cost of meals and lodging. If transportation cannot be supplied by the railways due to train schedules and the employees' personal car must be used, this cost is also deductible from the income. To claim for transportation to and from the place of his employment he should submit some evidence from the railway that suitable conveyance for him could not be made.

In the case of maintenance workers, such as "extra gangs" or the "bridge and building" crews who live in boarding cars and move from place to place as a unit, the lodging is supplied free by the railway and no claim can be made in this respect. Such gangs and crews can only claim for the cost of meals. No claim is allowable for the cost of transportation from their homes to the place of employment.

The men who are employed on trains, commonly known as the running trades, may claim the cost of their meals while away and also lodging if they are required to "lay over" at their away from home terminal. Any person employed in the running trades should complete form 79. Turn Date at each come tax offices, and attach it to their tax return. All of these claims should be made on Page 1 of the Short Form Return in the line "Other Deductions."

• • •

Question: I am a news agent on a passenger train. Can I claim, away from home expenses?

Answer: Yes. To the extent that you were not reimbursed by your employers.

• • •

Question: I am a railway engineer and have an 18-hour lay over at the away from home terminal. Can I claim my living cost at that end?

Answer: Yes. These are allowable "away from home" expenses.

WMS Honors President On Departure

WELLINGTON—The Afternoon Auxiliary W.M.S. held the regular meeting in the United Church parlor, at which time Mrs. William Hamel was feted by a presentation prior to her leaving to take up residence in Toronto, and is resigning as president. She is also a life member.

Mrs. H. Nash spoke briefly of the many contributions Jean has made to the society and to the work of the church and community, and stated that she will be greatly missed. Mrs. G. Stoneburg presented her with a lovely purse.

Mrs. Hamel opened the meeting with a Thanksgiving prayer and welcomed the guests, Mrs. Clarence Holmes of Belleville, Mrs. Ross of Manitoba, and Miss Langell of Toronto. The members also contributed to the used clothing collection, and also the fall collection of home canned goods. These are to be left as soon as possible, at Mrs. Bishop's home. The quilts for the fall bale are to be tied next Wednesday afternoon at the church. The thankoffering envelopes may be handed in at the next meeting. Mrs. H. Nash reported for the treasurer.

Before introducing the guest speaker, Mrs. Stoneburg presented Mrs. Hamel and Mrs. Holmes (the speaker) each with a lovely corsage. Mrs. C. B. Hicks, assisted by Mrs. Sherman Foster and Mrs. Frank Harris, led in a Thanksgiving worship service. Mrs. Holmes used the Thanksgiving theme and spoke of the early WMS workers, who in 1816 banded together to help other people in other lands and thus began the first work of the organization under the old Methodist Church. She spoke of Nehemiah who called his people together to count their blessings and to consider the loss by famine. She said, "If we are to achieve our goal and become a united people we must show in our talking, our doing and our sharing that we truly know of God's love. We must move onward into the future with the faith of Paul 'through the great power of prayer.'"

Mrs. Truax thanked the speaker on behalf of the group.

During the lunch period Mrs. J. L. Ross told of her visit to Woofer. Mrs. Ross is the only surviving charter member of the Women's Missionary Society of Wooler and therefore was an honored guest at the 50th anniversary celebration.

17th Scouts M.A. Elects Officers, Hears Address

The Ladies' Auxiliary of 17th Belleville Cub and Scout organization held their first fall meeting in Eastminster United Church with the president, Mrs. G. Hutchinson presiding. Mrs. Dave McDonald, secretary of the Belleville and District Boy Scout Auxiliary Executive, heard installed the new officers for the coming year. She was assisted in the installation by Mr. Murray Maw, Akela of "C" Pack.

Officers installed: president — Mrs. J. Barton; vice - president — Mrs. W. Nickle; secretary — Mrs. G. Bell; treasurer — Mrs. D. Duffy; sewing convener — Mrs. J. Dinn; social convener — Mrs. G. Hutchinson; telephone convener — Mrs. J. Locke.

A tentative project discussed was a request from the A.O.T.S. Men's Club for service at their monthly dinners.

It was decided that the Auxiliary purchase a bulletin board for the use of "3" Pack.

Mrs. D. Duffy agreed to act as chairman for the uniform exchange project.

Mrs. D. McDonald bought greetings from the Executive Board, and urged all to attend the "Workshop Meeting," to be held at St. Margaret's-on-the-Hill Church on January 25th, for all auxiliary members of Belleville and district.

Speakers for the evening were Mrs. G. Lachlin, who conducted a question and answer period and Akela Maw, of the newly formed "C" Pack. Akela Maw gave a most interesting and informative talk on "A Scout before being taught the Cubs of this Pack on an experimental basis.

Prize winners, for euchre, were; ladies, Mrs. R. Thompson; gents, Mrs. Cruickenbank; gents, Mr. R. Smith; low, Mrs. W. Davern. For cribbage, ladies, Mrs. J. Rogers; low, Mrs. R. Quick; gents, Mr. J. Hallworth; low, Mr. Alan Osterhout. The door prize was won by Mrs. Bill Adams and a number of grouped prizes by Tom Boyle. Delicious refreshments were served by the committee, Mrs. D. Boyle and Mrs. D. Murphy assisted by the ladies of the Auxiliary.

The highlight of the lunch was a lovely birthday cake in honor of Mrs. S. Tripp, president of the auxiliary, who was celebrating her birthday. Five lighted candles were on the cake, denoting her five grandchildren.

Club Activities
KUM-DOUBLE CLUB

HALLOWAY — The members of the Halloway Kum-Double Club met at the home of Coleman and Verna Townsend on Wednesday evening for their meeting. "Thanksgiving" was the theme for the worship period presented by conveners Ronald and Frances Kelly.

Psalm 68 was read by Earl Snider with the meditation given by Frances Kelly. The hymns used were "Come Ye Thankful People Come," and "For the Beauty of the Earth".

Readings entitled "All Nature's Work His Praises Swell," and "The God Who Goes Before," were taken by Charles Huffman and Gene Kelly.

Lois Morgan presided over a brief business period. It was decided to cancel the next meeting scheduled for October 30th on account of the Hallowe'en dance at Tobe's on the Friday evening. A box of groceries left from catering at the plowing match was auctioned off by G. Kelly.

Lunch was served by the hostess and a social time enjoyed.

Chief G. G. Commissioner Of Ontario Presents Highest Award to 27 Girl Guides

—CAMPBELLFORD — Twenty-seven Girl Guides received the second highest award in Guiding here on Wednesday night when Miss E. Hamlets Osler, Chief Commissioner of the Girl Guides of Canada, presented each of the girls with their "All Round Cord" at District Troop in Bellville, Peterborough, Madoc, Marmora, Stirling, Frankford, Trenton and Napanee each received awards. The presentation was held following a banquet at St. John's United Church.

Following the banquet, Mrs. A. MacLean Haig, Quinte Area Commissioner welcomed the visitors, as did mayor F. M. Rutherford of Campbellford. Mrs. M. Moore, chairman of Guide training for the Quinte area introduced the guest speaker, Miss Osler.

SIGNIFICANT HAPPENINGS

In her address to some 200 guides and their parents, and friends, Miss Osler outlined some significant happenings in the Girl Guide movement in Canada. She said that during the past few months, the name of the movement had been changed to "Girl Guides of Canada — Guide du Canada". This she said was important, since the Canadian Guides had always been dependent upon the Guide movement in Great Britain but since the movement was founded in Canada by governments of Canada. She said the Canadian group was still closely affiliated with Great Britain but that Canadian Guides were now a separate entity unto themselves.

Miss Osler said the change of name was a natural step to accomplish, and required a member of Parliament to sponsor a private bill in the Canadian Senate. She said the bill was held up for two years almost feated when former Bank of Canada governor, James Coyne, objected until the bill was finally passing. She gave no reason for Mr. Coyne's objection.

The speaker said that under the 'square inches' program in which Guides are issued cards for the purchase of a certain number of square inches of space, the Canadian organization will soon have a new headquarters building costing in Toronto. She said Guides from every country, on hearing of the Canadian plan, contributed funds for the new building. Work on the excavation was begun last week, and it is hoped to have Lady Baden Powell, wife of the late founder of Guiding, lay the cornerstone of the new building when she is in Toronto early next month. The new headquarters should be ready for occupancy by next year. It will afford better working conditions for the Canadian headquarters staff, something that has been needed for many years.

PROBLEMS

Miss Osler also told of the problems in continuing Guide training in remote places of the world, and spoke in the Canadian far north. The CBC now, she said, is providing a special program beamed to the Arctic every communities on Guiding. Leadership for Guide training is an ever present problem, too, she stated.

The Department of National Defence has asked the Canadian organization to take over Guide training on Army and R.C.A.F. bases in France and Germany.

Miss Osler urged those present to look beyond today, and even beyond the year ahead in providing for Guide training. She said the movement must not be allowed to become static, and said it was the duty of Guides and commissioners alike to think and plan ahead.

"We are planning Guiding a vital and living means of serving the youth of this country" she said in conclusion.

ARC CERTIFICATES

Mrs. A. McLean Haig of Belleville introduced each of the 27 Guides to Miss Osler as she presented them with their All Round Cord certificate. She was thanked by Division Commissioner Mrs. W. L. McArthur of Prince Edward.

Those receiving the awards included: Wendy Brady, Mary Louise Cosburn, Sharyn Drysdale, Marianne Fowler, Ann Marie Murphy, Moira McLaughlan, all of Belleville; Jacqueline Amyotte, Susan Bell, Sandra Downer, Karen Grierson, Sherry Harrison, Janey Hawley, Reta Lee Rowbotham, Joan Lead, Ann Moorehouse, Elaine Purdon, Cathy Robinson, Sandra Young and Sea Ranger Sharol Hall, all of Peterborough; Carol Hallworth of Madoc; Romany Brady of Marmora; Edith Anderson of Trenton; Harding of Stirling; Donna Chase of Frankford; Linda Duncan of Tweed; Leona Peavy of Trenton, and Edith Kay of Napanee.

Mrs. V. Newman of Campbellford, was convener of the event. She was assisted by Mrs. D. Davis of Napanee.

The All Round Cord is a blue and white cord, appropriately named, as it indicates that the Guide has "All Round" Guide in her badge work.

Before the girl qualifies for this award, she must be a First Class Guide, and hold the Queen Guide award. This done, she can then have a cord of blue and white which she must work, earning five or more to complete the All Round Cord work and win her award.

S. S. 2 Ameliasburg Graduates Receive Awards, Presentations

Ameliasburg School Section No. 2, was the scene of a "Barn-dance" on Thursday night, for the graduating class. The graduates, Kirk Lighter, Michael Talsma; Robert Landey; Wayne Wickson; Gwynne Ward; Gloria Thompson and Doreen Ward, received their diplomas presented by the chairman of the School Board, Mr. Orville Landey.

Gifts of books from the Home and School Association were presented to the graduates by Mrs. Earl Brett, president of the Association.

Wayne Wickson delivered the valedictory address and pointed out the value of the contributions their mothers made in their education.

At the close of his address, each graduate's mother came forward to receive a small corsage from her child.

Gwynne Ward presented the principal, Mrs. B. Teskey, with a leather briefcase from the graduating class, as a token of their esteem.

AWARDS PRESENTED

Several awards of silver dollars were made to the graduates and under-graduates during this assembly by Mrs. B. Teskey to Lynne Lightfoot for her outstanding hospital poster; to Velma Connor for her outstanding hospital poster and debate, and to Wayne Wickson for debate.

87th Anniversary Observed at Bethel-Rawdon

RAWDON — On Thanksgiving Sunday, October 8th, Bethel United Church on the Rawdon charge observed their 87th anniversary. Tall standards filled with autumn blooms and a large basket of flowers on the pulpit lent beauty.

The Rev. J. Alastair Haig, B.A., new principal of Albert College, Belleville, gave the morning message, based on the theme, "Thankful Hearts". Mrs. Harold Elliot A.T.C.M. officiated at the piano. She chose as a prelude, Lorenz's arrangement of "Come and Worship" for the offertory, a musical classic by Mozart and as a postlude, Weber's "Benediction". The choir of 12 voices rendered "Now Thank We God" by Bruce Carleton.

Assisting the minister, Mr. Lloyd Mills of St. Andrew's United Church, Marmora. His numbers were "Open the Gates of the Temple," by Knapp and "Teach Me to Pray," by Jewitt. The congregational hymns included, "Come Ye Thankful People Come," "So Shall My Walk be Close to God" and "Wonderful Words of Life".

In the evening the Rev. C. W. Coleman B.A. pastor of Holloway Street Church, Belleville and newly elected chairman of the Belleville Presbytery based his message on "The God of Our Fathers." The service opened with "God of Bethel" and the congregation also rendered "All Good Gifts Around Us Are Sweet Above," and "Path of Our Fathers". Mrs. Elliott played for the prelude, Hadler's "Faith Abiding," for offertory, Semlak's "Twilight Vesper," and postlude, Sheppard's "Thanks be to God". The Misses Linda Anne Morrow and Margaret Morrow of River Valley rendered a vocal duet by Blaker, "So Thou Liftest Thy Divine Petition".

A large group of the Stirling and Rawdon district high school choir under the direction of Mr. Edgar C. Hay-Ellis contributed a Negro spiritual, "Joshua and Battle of Jericho," with John Sebesta as soloist. The pastor the Rev. W. G. Fletcher assisted with the services.

Manager, Wife Honored By Employees

CROFTON — The Crofton Canning Company employees recently enjoyed a picnic lunch in the warehouse, and invited their manager, Mr. Heath Braden and Mrs. Morden to join them.

Following lunch, Clarence Vincent presented Mr. Morden with a gold signet ring, and Mrs. Morden with a beautiful earring and brooch set. Mr. Morden, although taken by surprise, sincerely thanked all for the lovely gifts, and also for the co-operation given him especially by Morley Breaking-ridge and Jim York who had carried on so well during the time of his illness.

He said that a lot of water has passed under the bridge in the 40 years of operation. He regretted the deaths of two faithful employees, Basil Ainsworth and George Oram and he paid tribute to those employees who had started with him.

Mrs. Morden expressing sincere thanks in reverse for the gift and also for the excellent co-operation shown by one and all, especially this year on account of Mr. Morden's health.

B and P President Denies Women Taking Jobs Away

HAMILTON (CP)—Man might be wise to have another look at his job now monopolized by women, Una MacLean of Calgary, president of the Canadian Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, said Saturday.

"I may even find myself dictating letters to male secretary," she told more than 500 delegates at the annual conference of the federation's 70 professional Women's Clubs of Ontario.

She denied that women take jobs away from men.

"Men are employed in forestry, farming, mining or manufacturing are not likely to go into the service field if they lose their jobs, she said. But there was nothing to stop such men from qualifying and competing for such jobs.

Women should be commended, Miss MacLean said, not criticized for answering the need in job producing areas.

"Any Canadian citizen who wishes to work should not be denied that opportunity because of mistaken public impressions about job opportunities, because of prejudice, because of longing for a long-departed social order, or for any other reason."

ENDORSE RESOLUTION

The conference endorsed a resolution favoring asking the Ontario government to establish minimum salary scales for clerks and to improve and control their conditions of work and pay.

In a statement, the association said it is concerned about the terms of the government's draft bill on portable pensions, particularly for those which would exclude people in groups of less than 10.

"The lack of complete individual coverage will mean that more and more part of social security will be required to meet this need," the statement said.

Mrs. Margaret Ashdown of Toronto was elected president of the Ontario group, succeeding Mrs. Helene Gibson of Sault Ste. Marie. Vice-presidents are Joan Wilson, Guelph; Connie McKitrick, Welland; Dorothy Milligan, Toronto, and Ethel Sumbler, New Liskeard.

The 1944 conference is to be held in Windsor.

Remarks a Supermarket Clerk Gets Tired of Hearing

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — One busy supermarket clerk gets tired of hearing:

"You don't stock automobile tires? What kind of a grocery store is this?"

"My husband just phoned and said he's bringing three of his bosses home for dinner. Do you have any of that Italian roast?"

"Say, take it easy on that cash register, Jack. Are you singing up the items I bought or playing a symphony concert?"

"All right, we'll leave it up to Jack. Jack, old pal, was this so-called lady first in the checkout line or was I, old buddy?"

"So what if my boy did cut off a few of your cat's whiskers with his barber? He didn't spill any of the cream. Hi ho!"

"Look, Jack, my wife has allergy to dust. Then coming packed with trading stamps. How much more do I have to buy to get that free 5-inch screwdriver?"

"I'm afraid I'll have to return this two pound box of crackers. They must be stale or something. I ate half of them and developed a slight cold. Didn't shop a while."

WEEDS HELP

"My head says he's tired of asking nothing but frozen foods. Do you have a little free booklet or pamphlet that tells how to cook food that isn't frozen?"

"I must have been some wise guy who put those four cans of tuna fish in my pocket. Why, I don't even like tuna fish."

"What if I am holding up the line, young man? I'm sure, lately you've had a $20 bill somewhere in my purse. . . . No? I can just find the purse. Oh dear, do you mind if I step it home again?"

"I know this is your rush hour, Jack, but can you take time out to count these 368 empty bottles I am returning for credit? I'm in a hurry, too."

"Mary Jane, I told you not to unwrap that Eth. Now. pick it up off the floor and put it back before. . . ."

"Hey, Jack, I made it all the way from the iceberg lettuce to the smoked hams, the mayonnaise, the rye bread, and back here to the checkout counter in a minute and 12 seconds flat. Is that a new course record?"

Grade1 Teacher For 39 Years Has Retired

VICTORIA (CP) — Miss Winnifred Pattison, who has retired after teaching Grade 1 for 39 years, said she thinks she enjoyed the day she started more than the first experience of formal education.

"I have never grow old teaching Grade 1," she said, "I have a memory packed with pleasant memories of those bright 5 year old children and a few of their parents, especially mostly home-made by pupils."

She enjoyed every minute of her work and feels that children take the first big, necessary step away from the familiar shelter of home into the outside world.

"This is an ideal way to stay mentally young," she said. "To be successful you must love also to see the world through the child's eyes.

"There's a new class every year and a changing pattern in that class almost every day. You can work be dull!"

Mrs. Pattison was born in Ontario, was educated in England and returned to Canada in 1912 to join her parents at Calgary. A year later, she attended teachers' college in British Columbia and taught her first class at Agassiz, B.C., in 1913.

She came to Willows school here in 1923 and taught there until her retirement last June.

SPEAKING of MANNERS

THE CASE OF THE PARLOR PEST

The past season may be off, chilly over, but the fly-begged variety never seems to go into hibernation.

The Parlor Pest is always lurking in a corner, ready to nip with an unwise remark. He's not invincible, really, but the Parlor Pest has a way of unsettling even the most poised composure, and can put a crimp in a good disposition.

Here are a few from my personal gallery. Recognize anybody?

The Trouble Shooter: He's Johnny-on-the-spot with solution made to order for any kind of problem-the more personal, the better. Nothing's too tough for him. In fact, the harder it is a problem, the quicker he comes up with an answer. The only trouble with our precocious friend is that no one has sent out an SOS. He won't face him a bit, though, any more than lack of a problem will stop his busy-bodying. Trouble's his hobby — even if he has to invent it himself.

The Inquiring Reporter—This charmer constantly has a question on his lips — about the hostess, the meal, the guest of honor. You mention a subject, and she's ready to probe a dozen angles. In fact, you don't even have to speak a topic. He'll dig anyway. The unique thing about this type is that he rarely has any opinions of his own. But he's always ready to quote yours.

The Interior Decorator — She reads the home magazines every month and knows exactly where every lamp and chair should go. The trouble is that the only furniture she wants to arrange is yours. As a wouldbe decorator, she's ready to point if you pooh-pooh her ideas. But how is she to know you've just spent two weeks and a hundred dollars doing over the room she has her redecorating eye on?

Women of India Enjoy Higher Status Says Doctor

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP) — Dr. Jogilah Shah and Dr. Hilam Shah, Indian husband and wife resident doctors at the Saint John General Hospital, say the women of India enjoy greater freedom and a higher status than Canadian women.

"We encourage our women to enter the profession," the husband said in an interview. "They have special talents, different from men's but equally valuable. Women doctors in India rank just as high professionally as men and have a series in our medical council."

They noticed that in Canada a professional woman, no matter how gifted, is almost invariably regarded as lower than a man in the same profession and usually because she is a woman.

Dr. Hilam, so known at the hospital to distinguish her from her husband, scorns Western romance "love" marriages and baby - sitters. Arranged marriages, as in India, succeeded because compatibility, kindred interests and background were deciding factors in both cases.

PARENTS APPROVED

"Ours was but a planned marriage, but it was founded on mutual interests and ambitions and it had the full approval of both sets of parents. The planned marriage is usually successful because the couple work to win each other's esteem and affection."

She feels mental illness is increasing in North America because the hope is no longer a haven or the family a close unit. Children lacked the security of a warm home life with affection felt and shown by both parents, especially the mother. There was lack of solidarity and firm guidance, such as prevailed in even the poorest home in India.

Full Gospel C.A.'s Take Service

FRANKFORD — Frankford Full Gospel Tabernacle CA's Sunnyschool Rangerschool on Friday evening to take service.

The Rev. Johns, pastor of Bannockburn Pentecostal church welcomed the visitors and led the song service. Mr. Glen Post led in prayer.

Frankford CA president, Keith Nelson was in charge.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Smith rendered a vocal duet, "I is Jesus and Me." Calvin Watson conducted a Bible quiz, "Misplaced Names." Mr. Johns led in prayer and Mr. Keith Helen read the Scripture from Psalm 138.

The Frankford Full Gospel choir rendered two selections, "Springs of Living Water" and "Beloved Sons of God." Miss Sandra Purvis sang a solo, "No Name Has Meant So Much to Me".

Mr. Johns introduced the speaker for the evening, the Rev. Ivor Spring, Frankford, who took as his text, St. Luke 18: 17, "The Man Who Talked to Himself." He declared "Jesus gives us the power to overcome the enemy."

Christmas Card Highly Prized By Women

GRANDE PRAIRIE, Alta. (CP) — Mrs. Hugh McDonald's prodigest possession is a Christmas card she received in 1907 from Queen Mary.

The card, framed, is a picture of a small Canadian boy posed on a goose in flight. Surrounding the plane and goose are small pictures of the boy's young pilots and some of their pets at the Dupperwell Aerodrome, Fort Simpson, Fort Resolution, Goldfields.

Mrs. McDonald's father was a roll of the famed names of the early days of aviation in Canada's Northwest.

Grant McConachie, Wop May, Punch Dickens, Jim Mahoney, Ken Vail Patterson, Walter Gilbert and Tex Berry were among those who shared "Aunty and Uncle" McDonald's home on Fort Murray, 250 miles north of Edmonton, for 10 years.

Only one of her boys died in a crash during the years from 1928 to 1939, Mrs. McDonald recalls, although the "airsick" flyers in spite of weather, were held together by "shoestrings and wire."

Mrs. McDonald now is widowed and living in Grande Prairie, but still cares for memories.

"We simply could not have made it without a Mother Hubbard," she says.

She remembers Fort McMurray in 1928 as a village of 50 in the northern wilderness.

She recalls the superstitions of the pilots about what to wear and how to wear it. Some would rinse a plane on one side only, but all but one would fly anywhere, anytime, in any weather, they says.

The exception was Archie McMillan. He was an extremely good pilot, but a careless one.

Archie would stand beside his aircraft scanning the sky. Then, at a hint of a weather disturbance, refusing to take off from the ground to the sky.

Mrs. McDonald tagged him "One-cloud-Archie."

Women's Institutes

MOUNTAIN VIEW W.I.

MOUNTAIN VIEW — Mrs. Allan Wallbridge of Huff's Island, opened her home for the October meeting of Mountain View Women's Institute on Wednesday evening. Fifteen ladies in attendance. The meeting was opened in the usual manner with the president, Mrs. W. Barber, presiding, and Mrs. Klaus Werkbeven, acting as secretary in (the absence of Mrs. Motley.

The number of thank-you notes were read from various members. An invitation was received and accepted from Greenbush Women's Institute for the next meeting. Mrs. MacIntosh had said black walnuts were especially good in her cake and just loaf. It decided to try this idea in another loaf and have.

Our local harvest of nuts is getting ready, so I would urge you who have not done so to buy them on your local market later your girls and boys "a-nutting"—to try this different nut loaf. Of course you realize you can use ordinary walnuts or pecans too.

Scientists Rapidly Discover Cause of Mental Retardation

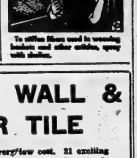
OTTAWA (CP) — Most retarded children would be normal if recent findings of child teachers could have been applied during pregnancy or at birth, an expert on mental retardation said today.

Dr. Leon D. Rosenzweig of New York told a conference of 220 Ontario teachers of retarded children that scientists are rapidly discovering the causes of mental retardation.

This knowledge, if properly applied, can lead to the prevention of a "great deal" of retardation cases, he said.

At present, three North American babies out of every 100 were retarded. Their intelligence did not develop beyond the level of a normal eight-year-old in most aspects, and they could not benefit from regular schooling.

Dr. Rosenzweig said causes of retardation uncovered so far are physical ones. They had nothing to do with heredity or the parents' intelligence.



These findings were helping to destroy popular misconceptions about retarded children. He said mental retardation is the most common child disorder. Victims were found at all levels of society and included a sister of United States President Kennedy and a daughter of novelist Pearl Buck.

But such children could lead useful lives with proper training and supervision.

He said children with an intelligence quotient under 75 are being neglected and treated because parents are ashamed of them and governments won't assume full responsibility for their education. (Normal children have a q u o t i e n t s ranging from 90 to 110.)

Most retarded children can be trained to care for themselves, lead an active social life and even hold down regular insured jobs, he said.

A Nutting We Should Go

By Mary Moore

Late last March I gave you two recipes for fruit and nut breads that had been made from recipes by Mrs. MacIntosh president of Kitchener-Waterloo Branch of Canadian Association of Consumers. Afterwards the request for extra recipes was heard. Since Mrs. MacIntosh had said black walnuts were especially good in her cake and just loaf I decided to try this idea in another loaf and have.

Our local harvest of nuts is getting ready, so I would urge you who have not done so to buy them on your local market later your girls and boys "a-nutting"—to try this different nut loaf. Of course you realize you can use ordinary walnuts or pecans too.

One lb. coarsely chopped pitted dates, 1 cup boiling water, 2 teaspoons baking soda, ½ cup butter or margarine, 2 cups granulated sugar, 2 medium eggs, 4 cups sifted cake flour, 3½ teaspoons each salt, nutmeg and cinnamon, 1½ cups chopped black Canadian walnuts or English walnuts or pecans. (You may reduce the amount of nuts to 1 cup if desired.) To facilitate chopping the dates dip your knife into hot water. Pour the boiling water over the soda in a bowl, you who have them cut the dates and let stand until cool. Cream the butter or margarine with the sugar until light then beat in the eggs Sift together the flour, salt and spices. Remove about ¼ cup of these dry ingredients and mix them through the chopped nuts. Add the remaining dry ingredients to the creamed mixture alternately with the water drained from the dates. Beat well. Then stir in dates and floured nuts. Grease well two 9 x 5 x 3" Salad Bowl Mould and half into them. Bake at 300 deg. F. for about 1¼ hours.

By ROD CURRIE

LONDON (CP) — Tubby Clayton's Toc H finds flourishing in many lands but floundered in Canada and he has decided to pack his bag and go over to see what can be done about it.

Rev. Philip B. Clayton, at 78, considerably less tubby than he was when he picked up his nickname, founded Toc H in 1915 in the Belgian town of Poperinghe, then the rallhead to the First World War slaughterground of Ypres.

Toc H had no definite design in those days and its objectives are still rather vague. There was no intention then of building it into a continuing organization but under the guidance of Tubby —everyone calls him that—it grew and now counts some 25,000 members in more than 1,000 British clubs and 1,000 overseas groups.

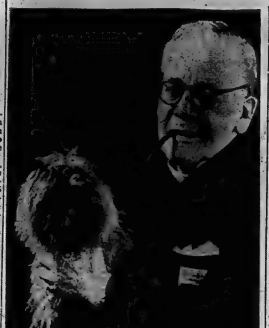
Certainly the most remarkable Toc H member is Tubby, a slightly stooped rather moonlike figure with a seemingly inexhaustible capacity for work. He keeps busy two secretaries, one of whom arrives for work in the evening after the other has left. Tubby always says an assistant that he crawls into bed before 2 a.m.

Tubby was born of a well-to-do English family in Australia and soon proved himself a fine scholar — and an agnostic. He read theology to prove his case against Christianity, was converted and now is chaplain to the Queen and vicar of All Hallows by-the-Tower, the post's ancient parish church in London.

His Canadian tour opens with a visit to Toronto Nov. 1. He is to sail for home from Vancouver Dec. 7.

He will preside chaplain to the British 9th Division in Belgium when he and a few others lift spade and axe for leasing an abandoned mansion in the almost deserted town of Poperinghe as a rest centre for men from the front.

The Queen named Talbot House in memory of Gilbert Talbot, a son of Clayton who had been killed earlier in the war. Toc H became the signallers' code for Talbot House and still the same stuck.



The attraction of Tubby's charm, wit and love of talk—plus the books, beds, food and warmth and quiet of the garden—drew more than half a million war-weary soldiers to the haven. It was open to all ranks from the countries and this rule was understood by the sign over Tubby's office door: "All rank abandon ye who enter here."

There was a makeshift chapel in the attic but there was no pressure on the men to attend services.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Grills spent a recent evening with Mr. and Mrs. Will Gray.

Mr. and Mrs. McNamee of Boston, Mass., are spending a few days with Mr. and Mrs. Bill Jose.

Mr. and Mrs. Morley Vallow were at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Vallow for Thanksgiving.

QUEEN'S CHAPLAIN — Rev. Philip B. Clayton, chaplain to the Queen and vicar of the most ancient parish church in London, has scheduled a visit to Canada November 1 - December 7. His aim is to boost membership of Canadian groups in Toc H, a flourishing aid society he founded in 1915. The organization now has more than 1,000 British clubs and 1,000 overseas groups. (CP from UKIO.)

his office and living quarters in a lopsided old building, once the residence of William Penn, near his parish church.

Slumped in the tattered, high-back chair at the head of the table, he gives the appearance of a combination kindly old family physician and a sort of elderly beatnik. His unruffled attire consisting of a scuffed brown boots, rumpled grey trousers, slightly tattered blue jacket, clerical collar and ill-fitting dicky front, many of the poor job of hiding the shirt and red braces underneath.

He conversed easily, monopolizing the conversation without offending his guests.

The trouble with the organization in Canada, he says, is that the original members kept Toc H as a sort of veterans club and it faded as many of the old vets passed on. In British and other places it took on social work and brought in young members down to age 16.

Even its founder finds it difficult to give a concise definition of the modern day Toc H organization.

Under the banner "unpaid, unthanked and unnamed," members seek to serve wherever and however they can—visiting prisoners, working with the blind, supervising children at beaches, doing favors for the old and infirmed.

Slumped in the tattered, high- | Shunned in the early days of the movement because they were considered "pinks," Tubby has returned to organize men and money to help in leprosy village.

He has travelled widely in connection with Toc H at work but this will be his first visit to Canada since 1925 when he made a lecture tour and was guest of Lord Byng, an old friend and then governor-general.

"They decided to teach me to skate" he recalls, "and so I skated around Rideau Hall on my backside."

During his November tour to Canada he will visit a number of friends, including former governor-general Vincent Massey.

Why Do Boys Get Fresh?

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS:—I started going with boys when I was twelve, and it has always been miserable for me. It wasn't bad the first two years, but after that it seemed that no matter what guy I went with, he always expected me to cooperate with him. I always laughed it off and got them interested in something else.

When I walked down the street I just got sick at all the boys whistling and calling out nasty remarks like "Hi Sexy" or "Look at that wiggle". I don't know what I did wrong to make the male clan think and act that way but they did and still do.

Soon they started setting traps, for instance one guy would pick me up then gather two or three guys up, drive out to some back road and recite their motto, "Either you come across or walk home!" God in His mercy spared me each time, though I doubt if I could count the many times I've cried before they let me go and took me home.

I lost one boy I liked because of talk, and now I've taken the altitude that tomorrow's just another day that I have to live through because I can't die. I am 15 and have always gone with older boys, around 23. Now what am I doing to do? Why do boys maul me and get mad if I don't neck? — SHATTERED.

DEAR SHATTERED:—You are living evidence that twelve is too young for dating. And it's a big mistake to go with men so many years older than you are.

If they call you sexy you must look or act that way. Too much make-up can look sexy and artificial; skirts too tight and too short show the figure too much for good taste. If you wiggle your hips when you walk you are asking for rude loud remarks.

Even though you are still a virgin, you may be making boys think you want them to touch and caress you. Do you give kisses easily?

Take yourself in hand with a determination to become, and act like a lady. More conservative clothes, less make-up, an interest in something besides boys; and no interest whatever in men over 18. You need girl friends and outdoor sports. You need to have a talk with your mother who can help you to entertain and make acceptable friends right in your own home.

I am sending you the name of a book which can help you to learn more about how to act and have fun at sixteen.

DEAR DORIS:—A woman who was a friend of my mother's moved in with us, — my two young sisters, my father and me, after she died and keep house for us. She said she wanted a home and would not ask for any wages.

Now we find she talks about us to everyone, although she is as sweet as sugar to our faces. I think she wants my father to marry her. If he should ask her to leave, can she sue for a breach of promise or for back pay? — KENNETH.

DEAR KENNETH:—Depends on the facts. You need a lawyer.

* * *

Did your father make any promise to her? Are you sure about her not wanting any money? The laborer is still worthy of his hire, and if your father wants to get rid of her he should pay her a reasonable sum for her services and give her notice.

* * *

DEAR DORIS:—I would appreciate it very much if you could answer the following questions:

(1) When receiving an engagement ring for Christmas, what is a proper gift to give in return?

(2) When invited to a shower and unable to attend, is it right to give a gift just the same?

(3) When invited as bridesmaid to a wedding, does she receive an invitation? Also, is she supposed to give a gift to the bride? If so, what type of gift would be appropriate?

(4) When about to be engaged, what is the correct manner to ask permission from the girl's parents? D.

DEAR C. D.:—(1) By now you must know something he likes besides you! Photography? Then a camera. Football or birdwatching? Then binoculars. Otherwise, personal jewellery, as cufflinks, tie pin or watch; or leather goods, a monogrammed wallet or suitcase, or a good pen and pencil set.

(2) Yes.

(3) Yes. Yes. Something for the new home.

(4) The girl should be the one to make it easy for the young man to have a talk with her father, and perhaps her mother too. These days young people feel they have the right to shake the decision about marriage without consultation. But the well-bred young man will want an opportunity to tell his girl's parents how he feels about her and seek their approval for the plans they have.

DEAR DORIS:—I am 25 years old and I don't think I have had much experience with men. I don't know how to act with them any more.

Every time I meet someone I like they are very nice to me and show they are interested, but say they will phone me and never do. I don't know whether I am too nice to them or not nice enough. I cannot seem to keep any of the ones I like. Please tell me what to do—MIXED UP.

DEAR MIXED UP—I don't know what you are doing wrong. It's hard to change at 25, but I can tell you some Ways That Win.

How you look counts: Do you bathe daily, keep your hair shining and pretty, wear clean, modish clothes?

How you think counts: Do you read the paper, so that you can carry on an intelligent conversation? Can you play any instrument? How is your bridge game? Men like girls who are good companions and know how to occupy leisure time happily. How about your cooking?

How you feel counts: Can you show a sincere liking for your companion by drawing him out about his pet enthusiasms? Men cannot resist a girl who finds them interesting and adds to their own self-esteem. None of us can.

Devote a season to unscrambling Mixed Up into a Symphony of Charm. Then report again.

CAUSE and RESULT

It is authentically true that VISUAL efficiency and GENERAL efficiency are one and the same thing. Either type of STRESS can be the cause or the result. The instant that either type moves in, personal efficiency drops as sea the result.

Both are closely interrelated activities of the mind.

A present-day analytical examination by a Vision Care specialist can at least banish a doubt!

Woman Locked In Car Trunk For Six Days

SEATTLE (AP) — An Alaska woman, her hand waving feebly through a hole punched through the back seat of an auto trunk, was found Friday locked in a car trunk on a ship that had been at sea six days.

The woman, identified as Francisca Marie, 40, apparently had been in the car trunk since the steamship Tsinan left Cordova, Alaska. She was taken to a hospital for treatment of stiffness and exposure.

The Alaska Steamship Company said the car was put aboard by Amos Uganiza, 35, a Fisherman who flew here ahead of the steamship. Uganiza said the woman apparently took it upon herself to follow him to Seattle.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Phoebe K. — I see no reason to get up and make his breakfast.

Russell K. — I'll eat out and give her that much less house money.

Phoebe K. — How do you like this? Russ gives me the ultimatum that either I get up early and make him a good breakfast every day or he'll have it at a restaurant and take the price out of my allowance!

We've been married three years. At first I dragged myself out of bed each morning and prepared an elaborate, full course meal — juice, eggs, toast, muffins and coffee. What happened? Russ was either too late to touch it at all, or he gulped a mouthful of coffee and ran. I wound up here to face with warm juice and cold eggs for myself every day.

Now let him make his own breakfast. Instant coffee isn't so bad. He can read his paper quietly and slip out. It's not worth a fuss.

* * *

Russell K. — Isn't it a wife's place to prepare a husband's breakfast? Just because it was train time and the coffee was too hot to get down, just because I had to skip the meal a few times, Phoebe has closed up shop for good!

Okay, I'll eat breakfast in town and take a dollar a day off her food budget. My spending money doesn't cover "breakfasts out." I drag myself out of bed to go to work to support us. Phoebe should get up and take care of her part of the bargain — the housekeeping.

In all fairness, however, I'll admit she has a clean house and a fine dinner waiting for me in the evening. But still, I'm entitled to a breakfast, at home or abroad.

The Council — We've glad to referee here and remind these two that they're stacting at few insignificant trees and ignoring the majesty of the forest as a whole. A wife's place, Russell, is shoulder to shoulder with her husband to build close relationship and comfortable home for the family. Making hot toast in the morning is one of the silliest details of the project, not necessarily the smoke signal of the good wife.

Some woman shine by the dawn's early light. Others spark to with the setting sun. Phoebe seems to be one of the latter. If she were a real chipper A. M., she'd get into a crisp, ruffled dress dress, take the curlers out of her hair and set about cajoling Russell out of bed early enough to shower, shave, dress and still enjoy a leisurely breakfast. Just as in the ads, she'd bring him the hot popovers and the morning newspaper — all with a gleaming smile. Then, she'd send him off with that goodbye kiss which makes men lick home.

So, why not settle for the gendertul things which P hoebe K. whips up at the other end of the day, and work out some simple arrangement — not a punitive one! — about breakfast? Many men prefer getting their own coffee, to having to drink it face to face with a disheveled yawning and even — let's face it — unappetising wife.

Don't be rigid about it. After all, Phoebe did try. The trouble was that she wasn't awake enough and/or made sure you were up in time to eat the breakfasts she prescribed. (And by the way Russ, you know you won't eat dollar breakfasts in town. The boarderies are quick and low priced.)

Whatever the weekly compromise, each must reach out a bit to make the other's course smooth. Phoebe might set things up for Russell the night before, for instance. Then both can look forward to some delightful late breakfasts together, on the weekends.

Mountain View

BAPTISMAL RITES

MOUNTAIN VIEW — On Sunday communion service was held with Rev. T. F. Townsend of Belleville, assisted by, Mr. Neddow in charge. There was also a baptismal service when four infants were baptized. They were: son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Barber; daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Reslou; son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Barber; two sons of Mr. and Mrs. D. Findlay and a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. McMurter.

After the service, Mr. and Mrs. G. McMurter entertained a number of their relatives and friends at their home for refreshments and a friendly social time. Their guests were: Mr. and Mrs. Roy McMurter (grandparents of the baby); Mr. and Mrs. Fred Brownson and children; Mr. and Mrs. Ben Anderson; Mr. and Mrs. W. Stanton; Miss Lillian Anderson; Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Poste and Mr. Lawrence Poste.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Young of Agincourt and Mr. and Mrs. Ross Bush of Consecon, were Saturday evening callers at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Norris Gibson and family.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Ascott of Tyrconly were weekend visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. S. Barber. Miss A. Bowen of Belleville, was also a Sunday guest.

Mr. Harold Werkhoven, of O.A. College, Guelph, spent over the holiday weekend with Mr. and Mrs. M. K. Werkhoven and Jack.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Todd of West Hill, and Mr. and Mrs. R. Hall of Cobourg were recent visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alford Poste and Lawrence.

Gomulka Admits Communist Party Has Long Fight Against Religious Belief in Poland

WARSAW (AP) — Communist party chief Wladyslaw Gomulka has admitted a long, hard road lies ahead in his party's struggle against religious belief in Poland.

In a rare interview with a Western journalist, Reber Beaver-Story of Le Monde of Paris, Gomulka says:

"Religion is deeply rooted in a major part of our population . . . It is difficult to say how long religious belief will persist in Poland—certainly for tens of years and possibly even longer."

Gomulka made these remarks after the latest public clash between his regime and Poland's Roman Catholic Church appeared to have left the Church strong as ever.

The controversy flared over the question of religious instruction eliminated from Polish public schools by government decree last year.

Stefan Cardinal Wyszynski, primate of Poland, bitterly complained that the decree violated the 1956 Church - state agreement but ordered his priests to comply "out of respect for legal directives."

The religion obstacle were then transferred to "catechism points" in church buildings, parish halls or private apartments.

Children flocked to the new classes despite the inconvenient locations. Priests confided to foreign journalists that they were happier because now they could conduct their classes free of state controls and interference.

But the disadvantages from early days in Poland's Communist leaders as well. In August the hierarchy reportedly issued an order requiring parish priests to register catechism points with the ministry of education.

He is the youngest of six children born on a farm near Pembroke, Ontario. He was raised on a farm for $14 a month, then went to put himself through the University of Toronto and Wycliffe College, from which he graduated in 1930. He was ordained in 1929. Before going to Dunstrom, he served the parishes of Eau Claire and Nipissing and served at a church in Scarborough.

With an easy laugh and flamboyant manner, Mr. Downer has been a successful politician. In 1937 he took Dufferin-Simcoe from the Conservatives. In 1943 when he was overseas as an army chaplain, his campaign there was so successful he was returned unopposed. In 1945

"He's tried to find a wall stud all day. I haven't the heart to tell him it's an experimental balsa panel."

Eagles Throttle The 'Rifle'

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Philadelphia Eagles' defense throttled Sam Etcheverry and St. Louis Cardinals Sunday as the Eagles took a 36-7 National Football League decision to avenge their only loss.

The defending NFL champions were beaten by the Cardinals 30-27 two weeks ago but have won their other four game and are tied for the Eastern Division lead with New York Giants.

In other NFL action, New York came back from a 10-3 deficit to defeat Dallas Cowboys 31-10; San Francisco 49ers turned back Minnesota Vikings 36-24; the surprising Chicago Bears rolled over Baltimore Colts 34-10; Green Bay Packers defeated Cleveland Browns 49-17; Detroit Lions squeezed by Los Angeles Rams 14-13 and Pittsburgh Steelers shut out Washington Redskins 20-0.

CARDS STACKED

Etcheverry, who came to the Cardinals after nine years with Montreal Alouettes, showed better form that against New York last week — but nevertheless it was another bad day for him.

The Cardinals made only one scoring threat while Etcheverry was in the game. This came late in the second quarter when they moved 52 yards and Gerry Perry missed a field goal attempt from the 31.

Twice in the first half Etcheverry badly overthrew his man, the Eagles intercepting. For the day he hit nine of 15 passes for 60 yards. He appeared over-cautious at times and reluctant to throw his long one.

In the American Football League the unbeaten San Diego Chargers downed New York Titans 35-10, Buffalo Bills edged Dallas Texans 27-24 and Denver Broncos rallied to down Oakland Raiders by dime score.

Houston Oilers, the league's defending champions, who fired coach Lou Rymkus Saturday after a 31-31 tie against Boston Patriots Friday night, showed better deception in their front [illegible] than in their backfield.

Beat Riders, Stamps

Eskys, Bombers Lead West

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

... The Saturday win both weekend games in the Western Football Conference, leaving the playoff picture up in the air.

Victories Saturday by Edmonton Eskimos and Winnipeg Blue Bombers left both clubs locked in a race for first place and a free kick in the finals.

Winnipeg threw a devastating first - half offensive at the Stampeders in Calgary for an easy 35-6 victory to retain first place. Meanwhile Edmonton, rallied behind the accurate, long passing of Canadian quarterback Jim Getty on their home field to beat Saskatchewan Roughriders 32-18.

The win gave Edmonton 29 points for the season, just one behind Winnipeg, but the Bombers have two games in hand.

Calgary, with 19 points, stayed two ahead of Saskatchewan in a nip - and - tuck battle for the third and last playoff spot.

The British Columbia Lions remained in last place to of the running, but they could give Eskimos a big boost by beating Winnipeg Monday night at Vancouver.

BOMBERS IN HIGH GEAR.

Before a crowd of 17,800 in Calgary, the Bombers rolled over the Stampeders with a powerful display of two - way football.

Farrell Funston took a pass for one Winnipeg touchdown. Ray Jauch dashed through the line for another and Ernie Pitts grabbed another pass for the third on the last play of the game. Gerry James added six points on two converts, a single and a field goal. Charlie Shepard kicked a single.

Earl Lunsford plunged for the lone Calgary touchdown.

A crowd of 12,338 saw Edmonton catch fire under the leadership of Getty as he clicked on seven of 11 attempts for 147 yards.

He tossed to end Jim Letcavits in the end zone for a touchdown with seven seconds left in the game. Fullback Mike Lashuk plunged over for two earlier touchdowns.

Jackie Parker, who shifted to halfback when Getty took over, kicked three converts.

Fullback Clair Branch scored Saskatchewan's only touchdown and Reg Whitehouse added a field goal.

'Mr. Soccer' Dropped By Club

BLACKPOOL, England (AP) — Stanley Matthews, one of the world's top soccer players, Saturday was dropped by his club, Blackpool, for its next English First Division game against Bolton Wanderers.

For the 46-year-old maestro, star of 38 international games for England, it was the first time this has happened to him in his 30-year career.

Last Saturday he had an ineffective game against Arsenal and Blackpool lost 3-0. Soccer reporters wrote that he had slowed up and was playing like a 46-year-old at last. He was even booed by some of the crowd.

Blackpool manager Ron Stirl, commenting on the omission of Matthews from his line-up, said:

"I have made changes to try and find more punch in the attack. It's as simple as that."

Mustangs Edge McGill

Gaels Blank Varsity

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Queen's Golden Gaels, slick and strong, trampled University of Toronto Blues 29-0 Saturday for their second victory in as many games in the Senior Intercollegiate Football League.

Rolling along at a touchdown-quarter clip and beating down a faltering Toronto offence, the Gaels took a two-point lead over the Blues and the University of Western Ontario Mustangs.

The Mustangs edged McGill Redmen 14-12 on halfback Whit Dickey's 20 - yard run in the fourth quarter of Saturday's other game. The Redmen, defending champions, lost 8-7 to Queen's in their opening game.

The Gaels clinched it by beating a Homecoming Day crowd of 12,717 at Toronto. They mapped up five Toronto fumbles and turned three of them into touchdowns.

Bill Edwards, who with Larry Burridge and Ian Reid, is Gaels' most potent backfield threat, got two touchdowns. Bill Sirman and Mike Pettit scored the others. Gary Strickler kicked two converts and a single and John Quinn kicked another single.

BLUES OUTCLASSED

Burridge, on 18 carries, accounted for 129 of Queen's 291 yards along the ground. The Gaels gained 94 yards passing to 43 for the Blues, whose ground attack was good for 208 yards.

The Blues unleashed only one scoring threat, rolling 65 yards in the second quarter with quarterback Norm Turner at the helm in relief of Keith Achcson. The drive petered out at the Queen's eight-yard line.

The Redmen, who dropped their first two games last year before going on to their first championship in 22 years, appeared to have things sewn up in Montreal with a 13-1 lead going into the fourth quarter.

But quarterback Ken Ryabko manoeuvred the Mustangs to the McGill two and halted over for the touchdown. A pass interference call that cost the Redmen 32 yards was the big play in the march. Trem Tucker and Don Keane and John Nash, who had scored a single on a wide field goal attempt in the second quarter, kicked the convert.

The Redmen, who went ahead 7-1 in the first quarter on Harry Haukkala's field goal, ran it to 8-1 in the third when Western's Gary Cranmer was dumped for a safety touch.

Quarterback Tom Skrypeck scored McGill's only touchdown, which was converted by Haukkala.

Reds Given Stimulants Says Pirie

LONDON (Reuters) — British distance runner Gordon Pirie said Sunday he had been assured by Russian trackmen that Soviet athletes were given artificial stimulants whether they wanted them or not.

Pirie made the statement in an article in the Sunday newspaper The People.

"Don't think the Russians are the only sinners," Pirie said, "I have heard American athletes in a dressing room talk openly about taking dope and pep pills."

He said Soviet runners had assured him "that the administration of artificial stimulants is standard practice in their country, whether the man himself desires it or not."

The 30-year-old Pirie, who recently turned professional, also said in the article that he suspected world - record - holding Russian distance runner Vladimir Kuts "was either doped or hypnotized when he ran his greatest races."

HIDING SCARS

During training for a race in London, Pirie said, "Kuts had been noticed using trainers's makeup to hide scars on his legs before he appeared in public . . . you didn't need to be a detective to guess those scars were caused by hypodermic needles."

Pirie said that Russian runners told him that in 1958 they could stick pins in Kuts' legs after he had run without his feeling any pain.

"A friend of mine who went to Moscow last year was told, openly, that Kuts had become a drug addict," Pirie said in the article. "All the facts add up to present a frightening picture and I am sorry for Kuts if it is true."

Kuts, who holds the world's record of 13 minutes, 35 seconds for the 5,000 metres, won both the 5,000 and 10,000 metres for Russia at the 1956 Olympic games in Melbourne, Australia.

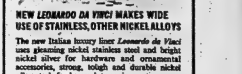
Modern transportation builds world markets for nickel



Nickel stainless steel is used widely throughout the world in the construction of modern streamlined trains, planes, ocean liners and automobiles—because of its bright beauty and ability to withstand corrosion and high temperatures.

Nickel alloy steels are the strong, tough, durable materials that carry the load in modern transportation. They're used for automotive transmissions and engine parts, for the heavy duty machinery and structural parts of ocean-going ships and lake freighters, for planes, trains, trucks and buses.

Canada is the world's largest producer of nickel. And Inco, through sales, research and market development operations, maintains a continuing program for the expansion of international markets for Inco nickel.

Rangers Top NHL With 3-1 Record

Trim Leafs Bow To Habs

By LAURENT CHIASSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Lorne (Gump) Worsley is a stubby, pleasant sort of chap who seldom plays a bad game in goal for the first-place New York Rangers in the NHL.

Sunday night when the Rangers' defence faltered for a while Worsley didn't let his team down. He stopped 43 shots in a sensational performance that gave the Rangers their third victory in four games—a 3-1 squabbler over second-place Toronto Maple Leafs.

The Rangers were not so lucky Saturday night when they bowed 3-1 to Montreal Canadiens, defending league champions.

The Leafs Saturday edged Boston Bruins 3-2 and three other weekend games ended in ties. In one of these, Boston gained its first point in four games by holding the Canadiens to a 2-2 deadlock Sunday.

Saturday, Chicago Black Hawks spotted Detroit Red Wings three goals, then came back to earn a 3-3 tie. Detroit reversed the process Sunday spotting Chicago two early goals and rallying for a 2-2 draw.

WHILE MAN SHORT

Worsley, 31, made 18 of his saves against Leafs in the second period. The only man to beat him was defenceman Allan Stanley, who scored at 8:12 of the third period on a screen shot while New York rookie Vic Hadfield was serving a tripping penalty.

By the time Stanley scored the Rangers had a 2-0 lead, built up on goals by Dean Prentice and defenceman Jean Ratelle.

At Montreal, the Ranger offence just couldn't seem to untrack, except for a goal to Guy Gendron, a former Montrealer, at 200 of the third period.

The Henri Richard - Claude Provost-Marcel Bonin trio took care of Canadiens' three goals. Richard scored twice, Provost once. Provost also had two assists while Bonin picked up three.

GETS WINNER

Frank Mahovlich, a 48 - goal man last season, got the winner — his first goal this season — in Toronto's win over Boston.

Red Kelly, Mahovlich's linemate led the way man in the Leaf attack, also scored. So did Stanley. The Boston scorers were Doug Mohns and Bob Armstrong.

Tom McKenney was the big man in Boston's attack against Montreal — scoring twice and setting up another. Mohns and Armstrong each scored another one. The Bruins went to rookie defenceman Ted Green, his first in the NHL.

Bernie (Boom Boom) Geoffrion, who tied retired Maurice (Rocket) Richard's record of 39 goals in one season in 1960, picked up his first this year in the tie, His linemates — Ralph Backstrom and Don Marshall — also scored once as did Phil Goyette and Claude Provost.

Provost's goal gave Canadiens the tie. It came at 6:37 of the third period after the lead earlier had changed hands five times.

Eddie Litzenberger, Alex Delvecchio and defenceman Pete Goegan gave Detroit a 3-0 lead in the first period in the Wings-Hawks battle Saturday.

GRACE LEAD

Ken Wharram and Ron Murphy sliced Detroit's lead to one goal with tallies in the second period and Murray Balfour earned the tie with a 25 - foot backhander at 17:13 of the third period.

Sunday, the Hawks forged ahead on goals by defencemen Bob Turner and Kraut, both in the second period.

Litzenberger more than made up for his defensive lapse in tieing up Gordie Howe for Detroit's first goal at the 17-second mark of the third and then scoring the tying goal nine minutes later.

Litzenberger, picked up in a trade from Chicago in the off-season, scored while Chicago defenceman Elmer (Moose) Vasko was serving a minor penalty. The goal came on a 45-foot screened shot.

Als Defeat Riders

Tiger-Cats Wallop Argos 37-10

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

With two of their backfield stars drafted into the United States Army and three straight losses under their belts, Hamilton Tiger-Cats trotted out a new backfield, ripped into the cloned Toronto Argonaut defence for a 37-10 victory and took over sole possession of first place in the Eastern Football Conference Sunday.

The Argos lost halfback Dick Shatto with a broken nose and had their margin for the third and last playoff spot cut to a precarious four points over Montreal Alouettes, who upset the Rough Riders 26-14 Saturday at Ottawa.

With three games remaining for each club, the point standings are Hamilton 16, Ottawa 14, Toronto 11 and Montreal 7.

To replace drafted Bob Jurus and George Scott, Hamilton coach Jim Trimble fielded fullback Larry Hickman from Green Bay-Packers of the National League and Carver Shannon from Winnipeg Blue Bombers of the Western Conference.

Hickman scored one touchdown.

On his first play after the opening kick off, quarterback Bernie Faloney ran up the middle 38 yards for a neither touchdown off a fake pass. Bo Sherris kicked four converts and two singles off field goal attempts.

Toronto could manage only a 29-yard touchdown pass from Tobin Rote to Dave Mann late in the fourth quarter and a convert and field goal by Gil Gideon.

RIDER DEFENCE FOILED

At Ottawa, the As came up with a 10 - point second half while holding the opposition scoreless to chill 18,500 fans. Fullback Don Clark and halfback George Dixon found the Rough Riders defence porous and contributed big chunks of Montreal's 395 yards on the ground.

Each smashed through on short plays for 16-yard downs. Guard Billy Rae Locklin converted an Ottawa end-zone fumble into another. Bill Bewley kicked a last-quarter field goal and three extra points.

Riders halfback Ron Stewart ran in a reverse around left end for his 10th touchdown of the year. It ran his league-leading scoring total to an even 60 points.

Bill Sowalski caught a 30-yard end-zone pass from quarterback Russ Jackson and Gary Schreider kicked two converts.

Reds Hand Indians First Loss

Fern Flaman may be old by hockey standards, but he still has plenty of mileage left as playing coach of Providence Reds in the American League.

The burly 34-year - old rearguard, a veteran of 15 campaigns in the National League, sparkled on defence, scored one goal and assisted on another Sunday night in guiding the Reds to a 4-2 victory over Cincinnati Indians. It was the Indians' first defeat in three games this season and they now are deadlocked with the Reds for first place in the eastern division.

Rochester Americans took over first spot in the western division despite a split of weekend games, beating Hershey Bears 3-1 Sunday night and losing 5-4 to the Bears in overtime Saturday.

In other Sunday games, Quebec Aces edged Cleveland Barons 3-2 and Buffalo Bisons shut out Pittsburgh Hornets 4-0. The Bisons beat the Hornets 3-1 Saturday, while the Indians belted the Barons 8-2.

George Ranieri, Danny Poilkinni and rookie George Boudreault scored for other Providence goals. Bill Sweeney, the league's leading scorer last season, and Jim Anderson accounted for the Springfield goals.

The Americans, picking up their lead in four starts this season, beat the Bears with's goal by rookie Bruce Draper early in the third period. The other Rochester goal came from Don Sherry. Claude Laforge scored for Hershey.

Goaltender Dennis Dejordy notched the first shutout of the campaign against the Hornets. He made a total of 42 stops. Barry Cullen, Brian Cullen, Larry Wilson and Billy Dea scored for Buffalo.

The Aces started off their 1961-62 season with a whooping spree with goals by Michel Harvey and Bag Grieg. Wayne Larkin scored for the Barons.

Mike Nykoluk's goal at the three-minute mark in overtime gave Hershey victory against Rochester Saturday. It was Nykoluk's second goal of the night. Marc Boileau, Jack McKenzie and Larry Zeidel scored the other Hershey goals. Larry Keenan scored twice for Rochester. Art Stratton.

Dick Gamble and Jan Pappin got singles.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

The night air was coolish, but the miniature Quebec hostile in "Wargy" O'Brien's comfortable, well-appointed cottage at Massassaga shed a warm glow.

"Wargy" and son Jack proved admirable hosts for the first reunion of the Glen Rays 1953 all-Ontario Junior "A" softball champions Saturday night.

They were all there except one. Besides Wargy and son there were Billy Gilbert, club secretary; Don Lee, current OASA president "who at that time was OASA convener here and president of the Belleville District Softball League, this reporter and "Red" Doran.

The two "Bubbas" looking healthy and well-fed headed the "absent" list. Messrs. Zimber and Green were the merry masterays of the 1953 champions. Down from Oshawa and not looking a day older, though married, was Ted McIvor. Gerry Geyer was the only non-softball fan. There were Lyle Wannamaker, Peter Green, Claude Carr, Coach Bill Spafford, Doug Hall, Don Barclay, Johnny Bridgeiser, Tom Lally, Frankie Donovan and Bill Nolan.

There was another there too, whom the boys specially honored. He is Don McNevin, who was a member of city council back in 1953 and who sponsored the club during its highly successful season and march to the championship.

Coach Spafford did the special honors. Bill paid fine verbal tribute to Mr. McNevin, stressing the generous attitude and unselfish disposition of the sponsor.

The coach then presented Mr. McNevin with a beautiful black-white and colored plaque bearing the names of each and the inscription with Mr. McNevin's name in bold script under the caption "To a Grand Sportsman."

The handsomely framed plaque was executed by the artistic hand of Don Lee. It was a work of art, and as Mr. McIvern said, in a brief address of approbation, "I shall never forget this, nor will I ever forget the fine young fellows who won the title for Belleville and me back in 1953."

OASA president Lee spoke also, recalling the days when these "20-year-old veterans" were shiny-cheed youngsters, grand sportsmen and players of more than ordinary ability.

The new famous "iron-man" stunt of Bobby Hunter in pitchdarky seventeen innings when the Glen Rays swept the all-Ontario titular series in two straight victories over North Bay were recalled as were the tougher series against Windsor, Oshawa and other hard-balls in the title.

The boys played and replayed the tough battles of those playdown days, the long hauls to Windsor and North Bay, the fun, glory and achievements on the diamond that led to ultimate championship success.

It was a grand night, a fine tribute to a "grand sportsmen" and an outstanding experience for the home who backed him to the max.

Nor have their appetites changed to any noticeable degree over a period of nine years. "Wargy" and his committee saw to it that the noshing bother groaned under a load of edibles that lacked nothing in variety and selection.

Then to the card tables where a number of strange games were played. Some liked the old parlor game of euchre. Others preferred an odd game where the expressions of "call" and "raise" were frequently used while reference was made at times to a volume that bore the name "Hoyle" on its cover.

However, it was good clean fun and a night to remember not only for the boys as individuals and a whole but for Don McNevin who was taken completely by surprise by the boys' fine gesture. It could not have happened to a finer man who has done so much for sport for his city.

The press and radio were invited. Unfortunately Jack Devine missed a grand party being on broadcast assignment in Kitchener.

Defeat Kenmors Two Straight

Kitchener Wins Junior OBA Crown

The Kitchener Dodgers are the 1961 Ontario Baseball Association all-Ontario junior champions.

The Western Ontario youngsters, showing brilliant pitching ability swept the titular series from the Belleville Kenmors in two straight games.

They defeated the Kenmors 2-0 in Kitchener on Saturday behind the sensational no-hit hurling of Cort Heinbuch.

At the Fair Grounds here yesterday righthanded Gerry Denomme blanked the Kenmors with a brilliant four-hitter.

Larry Soden, the Kenmor ace, deserved a better fate. He threw a two-hitter in Kitchener but the team's bats were silenced by Heinbuch's fine hurling. Kenmor hurlers gave up only four hits yesterday but their hitting power was again missing.

KITCHENER — (Staff)—In Saturday's thriller played here the Dodger's diminutive southpaw ace, Courtney Heinbuch, pitched a brilliant no hitter to register the 2-0 victory.

Heinbuch's mates got him a pair of unearned runs in the fourth inning to ruin another excellent pitching chore by Belleville's Larry Soden.

Soden matched Heinbuch's effort most of the afternoon, allowing just two singles, one of them an infield scratch. He struck out four, walked two and retired the last 14 men he faced after the Dodgers had scored their runs.

Heinbuch's control was off a bit in the first frame when he walked two men but after that he was unhittable. He struck out ten and passed three men in all. He did not allow a ball to be hit to the outfield until Gary Goyer lined out to left field with one out in the ninth. His control was excellent and the Kenmors never did try to bunt him.

Bob Follwell drew a leadoff walk in the fourth inning frame but Pat Asselstine popped out to first base and Gordie's infield shot was turned into a double play to end the inning. The only other Kenmors to reach base was Asselstine in the third and Mayer in the seventh both on infield errors. Both died on second base.

Heinbuch's record prior to Saturday's game included one other no-hitter and two one-hitters. He had won 14 games and lost three.

Kitchener threatened in the first when the Dodgers collected the only two free tickets Soden allowed and again in the second when Searth was hit by a pitch and Wally Moxner lined a single to left field. The Kenmors pulled out of both jams unharmed.

However, with one out, Bob Hunter made a good play to field the ball but rushed an error when he threw into the dirt at first.

The Kenmor infield remained back and Searth placed a good ball toward first base. He had it beaten for a single but Soden fired the ball to Moxon and it went on into right field, allowing McArdle to score and Searth to end up on third base.

With still only one out, Moxner made the obvious play, dropping a sacrifice bunt that scored Searth easily. Soden was again forced to field the bunt himself as Asselstine and Moxon remained safe. After that nary a Dodger reached base but the damage had been done.

Batteries—Soden and Mayes; Heinbuch and Litzgus.

Umpires - Ab Culiston (P) and Percy Schrum. Time - 1.35.

Although four errors helped the Kitchener cause, the Kenmors could do little or nothing with the right-hand shoots of Gerry DeNomme. The youngster gave up but four hits, struck out eleven and issued three walks in setting the Belleville team down with its second straight shutout.

The Kitchener bats did not fare too well either, touching the Kenmor hurling for four hits over the nine-inning route. Bobby Vaughn started for the homsters and gave up all four hits and three runs in the five innings he worked. Don Masters took over in the sixth but two errors and a walk cost the lefthander two runs without a sign of a hit.

Kitchener scored its first run in the third off a two-base error and Couch's single.

With one out Margetts singled in the fifth and Vaughn walked Fergot to put two aboard. Couch popped out but McArdle doubled to right centre scoring both runners and giving the Dodgers a 3-0 lead.

Masters went to the hill in the sixth and two errors and a long fly scored the remaining Dodger runs. The lefthander set the Dodgers down over the next three innings. He struck out five and walked two.

Goyer reached third base in the fourth on a single and passed ball with one out but Hunter and Mavety popped out at the plate.

The Kenmors threatened again in the seventh when Mavety and Moxon lined out back-to-back singles after Hunter had whiffed. But again DeNomme retired the side after loading the bases.

Goyer got his second hit of the game in the eighth with two out but again the Kenmor bats failed to come through in the clutch.

Goyer with two, Mavety and Moxon were the Kenmor hitters. Bester with a triple paced the Dodger attack. Margetts, McArdle and Couch got the other three hits.

Americans Win Ryder

LYTHAM, England (AP) — The United States defeated Britain 14½-9½ in the Ryder Cup golf competition Saturday with the red-hot putter of Art Wall clinching he golden trophy for the Americans once again.

The U.S. team went to lunch with an 11-5 lead and needed to win only one of the afternoon's eight singles to retain the trophy won at Palm Desert, Calif., two years ago.

Then Wall defeated Britain's long-driving Harry Weetman, 1 up, taking only 12 putts in the outward 9 holes. He was out in 4-under par 31, sinking putts of 12 feet on the 4th, next 30 feet on the 5th, and tank in 8f. Par is 36-36—71.

Start Training Wednesday

Junior Macs Ready

The 1961-62 edition of the Belleville McFarlands, entered in the OHA Eastern Junior league, will open their pre-season training camp at Memorial Arena here this Wednesday evening, according to coach Gordie Bell.

Bell, who along with team manager Kath MacDonald arrived home last week after visiting the St. Catharines Junior "A" camp, says he is all ready to begin the training grind.

Entered in the Eastern league with the Macs this year are teams from Kingston, Peterborough, Gananoque, Napanee, Trenton, Picton and Cobourg. The eight teams will play a 28-game schedule opening on November 4th. Belleville home games will be played on Friday nights.

The McFarlands will be losing a number of last years' regulars, such as Gary Geyer, Ronnie Hull, Pat Asselstine, Barry Titterton and Billy Moxon.

Bell is counting on a number of youngsters from the minor divisions and several hopefuls from the St. Kitts' team to help fill these spots.

In the goaltending department, Bell said that Ron Dulmage, last years' second-string goalie, will get first crack at the job. Other young locals will also have a chance to grab the all-important net spot but if none of these boys can do the job, help is expected from St. Catharines Jack St. Kitts and the McFarland are members of the Chicago Black Hawk organization.

Bell has already been assured of at least one defenceman from the Twepee. He is 17-year-old Alex Baron, a six foot, two inch, 210 pounder from London, Ontario.

"Baron is big and rugged but does not have the polish to catch the Junior "A" league yet," said Bell. He felt that the big fellow would be a decided asset to the Macs.

"While the club will need a lot of rebuilding this season, I think we will come up with a strong crowd-pleasing team. We have a month to find out what we need and then to go out and get it," added Bell. "And don't forget we will have plenty of last year's good young players, like Pete Weston, Gary Reid, Pug Kellar, to mention a few, right with us."

So, unless the weather turns unseasonably warm once again, the Macs should be talking to the ice the day after tomorrow.

Hull, Beavers Mix It

Eastern Pro Hockey

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Eastern Professional Hockey League has started its new season without last year's goalies. But the grit is still there.

In two weekend openers, Hull-Ottawa Canadiens and Kingston Frontenacs each won a game apiece - Waterloo Braves shared 44 penalties — 18 in one game and 26 in the other.

The new North Bay Trappers and Kingston Frontenacs were also mixing it up in their home-and-home series. There was a brawl in each game and North Bay's Doug Senior and Kingston's Tommy Williams were in both. One they earned Senior a match penalty.

The hockey, meanwhile, was so-so.

Kitchener - Waterloo whipped Hull - Ottawa 4-0 in Kitchener Saturday night. They went to Hull Sunday night and outplayed Canadiens, the defending champions, but had to settle for a 1-1 tie.

The Frontenacs won both their games — 3-1 in Kingston Saturday night and 3-0 in North Bay Sunday.

At Sault Ste. Marie Sunday, the Thunderbirds took their third straight loss, 4-3, at the hands of the Sudbury Wolves. Ron Ingram was the referee. There were only eight minor penalties.

The next EPHL game is Wednesday when Kitchener - Waterloo plays at Kingston. The Canadiens play the Thunderbirds at Sault Ste. Marie Thursday and the Wolves at Sudbury Friday.

WINS JUMPING HONORS

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP)—Argentina's spirited equestrian team, which threw perfect rides in five attempts, took a hard fought Saturday night for individual and team international jumping honors at the Pennsylvania National Horse Show. Dr. Hugo Miguel Arrambide guided Makalu to a clean sweep of 12 hurdles in 30.3 seconds. He followed that with a 33.4 second run on Sir Vou Platt.

One-Time Barefoot Girl From Oklahoma, Kay Starr, Going Along on Easy Street

By JOHN L. PEYTON

LAS VEGAS (AP)—Kay Starr rests easily these days atop her own intense little world of song.

But the scramble upward was far from simple.

"I worked all my life," said the husky-voiced brunette. "Now I enjoy the nice things."

The one - time barefoot girl from Dougherty, Okla. used to go on cattlehaul with her cousins.

Since then she's owned a 75-foot schooner.

She lives in a lovely home in a fashionable West Los Angeles hill community. The bar is stocked with scotch at $9 a bottle.

Two new Lincolns—one tan, the other black—sit in the drive.

She travels Europe annually.

Daughter Cathy, 14, is assured a college education.

"I'm content today," said the hazel-eyed Irish-Indian. "And I do all the things I don't have to belong to any wolfpacks."

"My friends are professional people: doctors, lawyers, architects—people I can talk to.

"Show business people are so shallow."

Her conversation is sprinkled about equally with intellectual references to good books and and homespun sayings laft over from Oklahoma days.

HEAT GETS HER

On Las Vegas's 110 - degree plus temperatures:

"I'm as limp as drug store lettuce."

On problems of owning a big home:

"Sometimes I'd like to sell it and get a nail someplace to hang my stuff on."

Kay's professional life is nice and easy these days.

She works less than half the year.

"I work night clubs three times a year," she said, "once at Lake Tahoe, twice at the Sahara Hotel in Las Vegas.

"If I can keep my records going and do three top television shows a year, I don't really need any more."

"I do a few personal appearances too for promotion with records—just to let people know I'm not a rumor."

Kay's records she usually films a television show or two for the label.

"Things are different over there," said international entertainment. "I've always had a lovely race of people. But they're changing. I don't know what everything and have tea."

Kay was asked about her style. She hurls, breathless voice, the intense gestures, she sometimes uses when describing them hard, bringing a live audience raptly under her spell.

"When I sing," she said, "I'm always pleading a cause but never sure what. I'm a very lucky woman like me too. They don't think I'm trying to steal their husbands from them.

"I try to capture the mood of a song in the best way I know. I have the upper hand on 700 people in a show room, holding their attention."

U.S. Senate to Open Fresh Chapter of Hearings on Drug Prices and Profits

By FRANK CAREY

WASHINGTON (AP)—A new round of a prolonged battle is coming up on the issue of whether drug prices and profits are too high.

Starting Monday, the Senate anti-trust and monopoly subcommittee will open a fresh chapter of hearings on a holly controversial bill to place the drug manufacturing industry under tighter federal police control.

The measure, introduced by Senator Estes Kefauver (Dem., Tenn.) and Representative Emanuel Celler (Dem. N.Y.) is an outgrowth of nearly two years of stormy and widely-publicized investigations by the subcommittee.

The bill calls for changes in the Sherman Anti-Trust Act, the patent code, and the Federal Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act. Backers say the intent is "to allow drug prices to conditions and to protect the protection afforded under present law."

SEES TOO HIGH

Kefauver's announced goals are: 1. To slap down allegedly monopolistic practices by drug companies which he contends have grossly inflated prescription drug prices; 2. Force more competition among drug makers and enable small manufacturers to compete on more equal terms with the large ones; 3. Make sure that medicines are safe and efficacious and that doctors are told the whole story of the good and bad points of a given drug.

He also says the bill would provide the means and incentive for doctors to prescribe by generic or official names—rather than trade names—and thus enable consumers to shop around for the best buy.

The drug industry contends that existing law is good enough, or if Congress will only vote enough money to let the Food and Drug Administration do the policing and inspection job needed.

FIREWORKS LIKELY

The hearings opening Monday are expected to produce major fireworks for these reasons:

1. They will be concerned at the outset with the patent law aspects of the bill. Both sides expect that such organizations as the American Bar Association will oppose the proposed changes on the score that such legislation might establish a dangerous precedent that could interfere with the patent system.

2. The drug industry in early December will offer its first testimony in formal opposition to the bill. Dr. Austin Smith, president of the Pharmaceutical Manufacturers Association, representing the drug industry as a whole, is to be the witness.

"We are prepared to bite back. Before, during the hearings and pending investigation of the bill, we just licked our wounds—and we had some deep ones.

"We know instinctively that we were right, but we've never always produce specific facts, and we better prepared next to speak to the proposals, rather than just answer criticism.

SAYS DRUGS REASONABLE

"Senator Kefauver has hit in public in 'is pocketbook with his allegations of excessive drug profits and prices. We contend that we,hit the 'public in the pocketbook too, and point out that, in terms of drugs that can save lives, shorten the length of various illnesses compared with years ago, and actually reduce the public expenditure for mental hospitals . . . the public is really getting one hell of a bargain."

Kefauver's drug patent proposal would reduce exclusive patent rights to a new drug from the present 17 years—for patents of any kind—to three. After the three years, the exclusive patent holder would be compelled to license other qualified manufacturers to produce and sell the drug, but would be entitled to collect royalties for 14 years.

The drug industry contends this phase of the bill would greatly reduce drug research.

Earlier drug hearings—beginning in December, 1959, and running off and on throughout 1960 — produced a typewritten record running to more than 10,000 pages.

Whatever develops from the latest series of hearings, don't expect any early showdown on Kefauver's bill. Parliamentary sensation may last into January and any floor action on the bill might not take place until next summer, some three years after the drug-price investigation began.

Spokane Comets are off to a fast start in the Western Hockey League's 1961-62 campaign.

They swept two games during the weekend to take the measure of Portland Buckaroos, defending league champions, and Los Angeles Blades in the southern division.

The Comets edged Seattle Totems 4-3 Friday night and defeated San Francisco Seals 3-1 Saturday. The Blades beat the Buckaroos 5-3 Saturday in the only other weekend action.

The double triumph gave the Comets five points, three more than Portland and Los Angeles. The Seals, along with the Blades the league's new entries this season, are winless in two starts.

Edmonton Flyers and Seattle Totems are deadlocked for the northern division, lead, followed by Vancouver Canucks and Calgary Stampeders.

The Comets lead in battle fronts behind with a three-goal outburst in the third period Saturday night. Ab Lawrence, Bev Bell and Red Johansen provided the scoring punch. Al Rollins recorded the shut San Francisco.

Stanley Saidle led Los Angeles with two goals, while singles were added by Jackie McLeod, Barry Cullen and Dave Keon. Gord Fashoway, Arnie Schmautz and Tom McVie scored for the Bucks.

Jayne Mansfield New Kind Of Star by Making Money Out of Opening Centres

By HUBBARD KEAVY

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — When you get what might be high pick with Jayne Mansfield as the main attraction, you expect an all pink hostess. But she is sunburned and her blonde hair is in wind disarray and she is wearing an orange bikini.

Her name is Jayne Mansfield. She is lying on her stomach near a hot-turf-shaped pool.

My visit was to find out about the new kind of star, one who opens shopping centres, hops new department stores, a new cities. She seems to turn up at everything new, to turn the spade or cut the ribbon or push the button to start wheels turning.

One source said to explain her multi - appearances, "She is a gal who can't say no."

In five years, Jayne has made one Hollywood picture, several in Europe, been in action Californis she has attended hundreds of openings. But first I must see the house.

The lobby, which would be called the living room in other homes is in white, pink and purple. The lamps by the sofa-fireplace are pink, one slightly smaller than those illuminating Kremlin.

HAS ELEVEN BATHS

Jayne is in awe of it all. She looks at seven bedrooms, eleven and bathrooms (all 31, if you pet detector tour) as Cinderella the first time she saw the palace. And it been parked out in front her fairy godmother.

The carpeting is three inches deep. Jayne didn't know its cost or the answers most questions without hesitation or embarrassment. Her husband, Mickey Hargitay is her husband and he refashioned the his own body. Hargitay is Mr. Universe.

Jayne's dressing room is the heart - shaped tub made of pink tile. It looked uncomfortable. The over - head mirror was glistened with brilliant and gold fixtures.

In her dressing room the pink, deep carpeting is not just on the floor. The part of the Thursday's dream come true has carpeted walls and ceiling.

We still hadn't seen it all and I have lost count of rooms. There's my guess is about 30. Mickey remembers the taxes on the 3 acres and house are about $1,000 a month.

DRAWS PREMIUM PAY

"Now," Jayne says as we finally sat down with two musical steins of beer, "what shall we talk about?"

"You, whom I shall call the new star of the new shopping centre opener. Why do you go to all of these openings? Can't you say no?"

"Oh, you're kidding, aren't you?" she said. "I get it for money."

You mean people pay you to cut ribbons and unveil statues and open shopping centres?"

"Sure they do."

"Like maybe $500?"

"Oh, so, much more."

"Like $1,000?"

"Now you're kidding."

"No, honest."

So that explains how Hargitays can, whatever they seems, indulge in gold - plated doorknobs on a table (and who goes a at one buying, pink marble from Mexico to put around the fireplace? Or do you use powder room doors over in etchorate ceramic. And to be not one, but crew of gardeners.

Gene Autry 'Not Hurting' After Buying Into Angels

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Gene Autry rode to fame with his singing and his horse Champion. Daddy of Milne. I expected him to look on the song after a year in big league baseball.

But no. His sandy hair was merely flecked with grey. His step was sure, even in his high-heeled boots.

"I'm not hurting," he said.

Numerous experts predicted he would be, after his first season with Los Angeles Angels. He and associated put up $2,500,000 (others invested a little amount) to found the new American League team. What they got was a grab-bag of players from other teams and an undersized (30,000 capacity) ball park to play in—Wrigley Field.

"But, you'll show a profit on our first season," Autry reported. "I think we did pretty good considering."

"Lots of folks were predicting we'd win 40 or 50 games. We won 70."

ATTENDANCE POOR

Home attendance was a disappointment. We admitted about 600,000 while 800,000 or 1,000,000 was the goal. The construction of the park was the principal cause, he said.

But wait until next year, Autry said, echoing a familiar phrase. In 1962 the Angels become stadium-mates with the National League Dodgers in Walter O'Malley's Chavez Ravine stadium, capacity 56,000.

"I think we should draw 2 million next year," the cowboy star said.

Autry hinted that the time might be coming for a comeback of the movie cowboys.

"Everything goes in cycles," he observed. "In the last few years western haven't done well in theatres because people get so much of them on TV. Now they're cutting back on westerns in TV, so folks might want to see them in theatres again."

Astrological Forecast

BY CARROLL RIGHTER

Tuesday, October 17, 1941

General Tendencies: After a rather dismal start, this gives to one of the best of days you have had for quite some time. Make sure that you early think out a new plan for having your life on a more secure foundation and basis. Then the rest of the day is fine for getting together with true and devoted allies to get their active alliance, co-operation.

Aries (March 21 to April 19) Day hours are best spent planning more successful ways to operate in the future, as well as to consult with higher-ups and experts who can give best advice. Get out socially in p.m. and progress while having fun, too.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) By studying your paper and other progressive printed media you will hit on splendid ideas that will increase success and abundance. Evening fine for getting out to see those influential persons who can give advice and backing.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) You are fortunate in finding just the right authorities who can assist you with personal and world matters. Spend evening looking into new plans of operation as well as making fine contacts that will be valuable in the future.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 23) — Morning is ideal for consultations with associates, both old and new, and working out more progressive plans for the months ahead. Afternoon starts the actual work connected with such plans and carry through until bedtime. Grow.

Leo (July 24 to Aug. 23) — Install new and more efficient methods and appliances that make your work easier and more profitable during a.m.—whether at home or in business. A conference with associates is then very fine for this evening. Expand.

Virgo (Aug. 24 to Sept. 23) — Important you use spare time in a.m. to get appearance improved and think over how to get greater returns for your work or talents. The latter part of p.m. and evening are best for doing the actual work necessary at this time.

Libra (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23) — You are inspired in a.m. how to make home and family life far more harmonious and beautiful. Be sure to get out socially in p.m. and have a good time.

Scorpio (Oct. 24 to Nov. 22) A particularly good day to shop, buy or sell, make important calls, redecorate, etc. Get an early start. Bring home little gifts for family in p.m., and then have a charming evening at home with them and close friends.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21) — This morning is fine for whittling those colossal ideas of yours to a constructive and workable basis so that you can soon command a greater income. Do the actual work involved this afternoon and evening. Expand.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) If you don nicely in a.m., you can then accomplish almost anything you set your mind to and have things the way you like them. Don't hesitate to express your ideas to the right people. P.M. work out finances constructively.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Endeavor to contact those influential persons you know and find out their secret for success. Follow along the same lines in p.m. and start a whole new upswing in your affairs. Don't neglect social contacts either that way fine.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) Seek advice from your most powerful friends in personal matters during a.m. Later, talk things over with authorities, too. Important you get out and relax at the movies or other amusement in the evening. Be happy.

If your child is born today—the nature is apt to be very retiring and shy, and it becomes necessary that you take particular care with diet as well as give good spiritual training so that your fine and sensitive youngster can mature into a more positive personality. Also, see that the right playmates are provided during early youth, then the chart becomes quite successful and life is a happy one.

FIND UNDERSEA CHAIN

WASHINGTON (AP) — The survey ship Pioneer has discovered a 1,000-mile chain of undersea mountains in the North Pacific ocean, Secretary of Commerce Luther H. Hodges reported Friday. There are 36 peaks in the range which rise from 5,000 to more than 6,000 feet from the sea bottom in the area just south of Alaska, extending about half the distance from Alaska to the Hawaiin Islands.

Iain N. McLeod Emerges From Cabinet Shuffle as Man to Succeed Macmillan

By ALAN HARVEY

LONDON (CP) — He speaks Gaelic, writes poetry, plays his bagpipes and used to be one of the hottest broker players in the country.

Yet Iain Norman McLeod looks like a shabby bobbed a domed forehead, the face is pale and sharp, almost gaunt, and the wound that is said to cause him constant pain.

But at first sight, he isn't overwhelmingly impressive. His voice is heard in the Commons with a trace of the brilliance that made him a star debater in the Scottish Parliament. Macmillan's admiration for his mordant, skilful cross and much disliked by Conservative backbenchers.

With all these apparent disadvantages, Iain Norman McLeod, 51, has risen to political stature than ever, as the cool probe who is the youthful strategist who is the youthful strategist who is the youthful strategist

MR. K. DROPS THREAT TO SIGN TREATY

Second Month Jobless Figures Below Last Year

Return to School Drops Number in Labor Force

OTTAWA (CP) — Unemployment in Canada continued to decline in late summer, falling to 306,000 at mid-September from 323,000 a month earlier, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported today.

The September jobless figure represented 4.7 per cent of the labor force, compared with 4.8 per cent in August and 5.1 per cent a year earlier.

There were 10,000 fewer unemployed than the 327,000 total in September, 1960. It was the second month in a row that the jobless picture had been brighter than a year earlier, following 17 months of year-to-year unemployment increases.

The report said the decline in unemployment between August and September was accompanied by a larger decline in numbers of Canadians employed—a 235,000 at mid-September from 6,381,000 a month earlier. But there was an increase in the number of persons from the labor force.

STUDENTS LEAVE

The labor department said the unemployment drop was largely a result of the withdrawal of students from the labor market.

The September decline in unemployment was the seventh consecutive drop in jobless numbers since the winter peak of 719,000 in January when the unemployment rate was 11.3 per cent.

The picture in brief, with estimates in thousands:

	Sept. Aug. Sept. 1961 1961 1960
Labor force	6,543 6,704 6,474
Employed	6,235 6,381 6,141
Unemployed	308 323 327
Unemployed	4.7 4.8 5.1

The report is based on a survey of 35,000 households across Canada.

ONTARIO PICTURE

Mid-September unemployment fell to 100,000 from 105,000 in August and the jobless rate was 3.5 per cent of the labor force, compared with 4.6 per cent a year earlier.

The department showed a "normal" seasonal decline during the month to 2,301,000 from 2,362,000. The number of the 100,000 decrease was in agriculture.

Among industries, most showing employment decrease was in trade. Manufacturing accounted for a large strength-ening, especially in canning plants, steel mills and electrical products plants.

Skilled machine shop workers were in great demand in many areas. Construction employment showed fairly steady but seasonal layoffs occurred in the farm implement industry.

REST ORDERED

U.S. Becoming Restive Over Selection Delay

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is becoming restive over the delay in selection of an acting secretary - general for the United Nations and believes most of the non-communist UN members are too, U.S. officials said Monday night.

If agreement on the Soviet is not forthcoming soon, within the next few days, then a move will be made to have the General Assembly name a secretary-general, officials said.

They expressed confidence there would be enough votes to put through a successor to Dag Hammarskjold.

The United States and Russia are tentatively agreed on U Thant of Burma, provided there is agreement on the secretary-general's role.

But there can be no selection of a man until the nature of the job is determined. If the question is swung to the General Assembly, it was indicated U Thant probably would not run.

Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Valerian Zorin and U.S. Ambassador Adlai Stevenson are expected to meet again soon in an effort to break the deadlock over the appointment.

PREDICTS MORE DEBT

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) Treasury Secretary Douglas Dillon broke the news today of a further expected increase in the federal deficit. This year's budget, he said, will be "somewhat more than $6,750,000,000 out of balance. Dillon said in a prepared speech before the American Bankers Association that record levels—requiring huge farm support outlays—and the growing postal deficit have caused the red ink to run deeper than expected.

THE WEATHER

Synoptic: Warmer air is spreading into the province and under mainly sunny skies, mid-afternoon temperatures today are expected to be around 70 degrees over most of Ontario. This weather is expected to continue into Wednesday in southern Ontario. In the north, there will be cloudy, and showery Wednesday as a weather disturbance now over Manitoba moves across Northern Ontario.

PEOPLE'S PARTY WINS 175 SEATS, NOT MAJORITY

Inonu Will Need Coalition Support

ANKARA (Reuters) — Unofficial final returns from Sunday's Turkish elections today left both major parties in need of coalition support in order to form a government.

According to the results, the Republican People's Party (CHP) of veteran politician Ismet Inonu won 175 seats in the 450 - member National Assembly while the Justice party gained 163 seats.

The New Turkey party of London-trained economist Ekrem Alican won 61 seats and the Republican Peasants Nationalist party 51.

Inonu's group was strongly opposed by the ousted premier Adnan Menderes' now - banned Democratic party. The Justice party incorporates most Democrate party supporters.

Inonu's supporters were believed in forming a coalition with the New Turkey party but Alican's party and New Turkey coalition would be two seats short of a bare majority.

However, the CHP had won enough seats to combine with either party to produce such a coalition. Observers said the New Turkey party leaders were Inonu's most likely partners.

In the Senate, unofficial results gave the position as: Justice party, 68 seats; CHP 43; Republican Peasants Nationalist 20; and New Turkey party, 19.

Leader of the Justice party is 64-year-old Ragip Gumuspala, former chief of general staff. He was "retired" by the military junta which seized power in a bloodless coup in May, 1960, and has been ruling the country ever since.

Accuse Workers Of Seeking Publicity

TORONTO (CP) — Plumbers who refused to cross a Hoover York Hotel picket line in connection with work on the Uniroyal Tire Company project are accused Monday of seeking publicity for the hotel's striking employees.

"When they've had their little publicity they'll go back to work as if nothing had happened," said Roland Carrington, manager of the electrical and mechanical division of Canadian Comstock Limited.

Members of the United Association of Plumbers and Steam Fitters (CLC) employed by Canadian Comstock were rerouting pipe and fittings destined to make way for subway construction. Uniroyal contracts will not be made two feet inside hotel property lines, but the workmen stopped more than a foot from a picket line maintained by the Hotel and Club Employees Union (CLC).

Nigerian Govt. Pacifies Students Irate at Girl's 'Foolish Writings'

LAGOS (AP) — The Nigerian government took a calm approach today to the row between the Peace Corps girl's postcard that went astray but declared that the young American who penned the critical view of Nigeria does not have to leave the country.

A government spokesman Monday night sidestepped demands by Nigerian students for the deportation of the 37 U.S. Peace Corps volunteers and the appeal for cool heads. But he said the girl "should be more sensible and right that . . . every Nigerian should be incensed and angered by such foolish writing." 23-year - old Margery Michelmore, of Boston, Mass., wrote to a friend in the United States.

Information Minister Theodore Beacon declared in the statement that the "friendly and cordial relationship" between Nigeria and the United States . . . must not be jeopardized by the foolish writings of one adolescent school girl. . . .

Saskatchewan Medical Plan Under Stiff Liberal Attack

REGINA (CP) — Saskatchewan's CCF government ran into stiff Liberal criticism of its proposed compulsory, comprehensive medical-care program Monday.

The plan was presented by the government at a special fall legislature session which also will consider a new federal-provincial tax-sharing agreement.

The plan was partially based on an interim report of the Thompson advisory committee on medical care, requested by the government and submitted Sept. 29. No date has been set for the scheme.

Liberal health critic Wilf Gardiner termed the committee's interim report "useless."

Mr. Gardiner said the most important point in the report was a reference by the committee chairman that insufficient time was allowed for presentation of a full report.

He said the document was "inadequately prepared and hasty" to the government under pressure. The committee had not had the opportunity to express its opinion as to whether a system of a tax-supported medical scheme was the wisest solution for Saskatchewan's health system.

Mr. Gardiner said the report indicated that the committee members felt there were more pressing problems.

J. E. Snedker, Liberal member for Saltcoats, said the health plan is a crash program for political expediency.

Canada Closely Studying Trade Group Affiliations

SEIGNORY CLUB, Que. (CP) — The Canadian government is studying industry by industry the results that would follow if Canada joined various trade groups, Trade Minister Gordon said Monday night in an address to the Canadian Exporters' Association.

"We are considering Canada as a whole," he stated, "and on that basis a prospect as to whether we will make our decision."

Mr. Hees, departing widely from a prepared text, said Canada probably has never been faced with a more important decision. Some Canadian industries, such as the pulp and paper industry, would be helped if Canada were in the European Common Market.

"But," he added, "when we make our decision we have to make sure that it will be of net benefit to the whole economy."

Mr. Canada went to join the Common Market, Canadians would have to face the competition of European manufactured wage rates and the skill, of European management and labor to sit down together and see what is needed to make industry efficient as well.

"We can, he said, "have that sort of situation in Canada as soc as management and labor stop fighting one another like cats and dogs."

He concluded:

"If ever there was a time when Canadians have to think in terms of Canada, this is it."

Commonwealth leaders at a conference of Commonwealth countries in London last week, Mr. Hees said no one tried to tell Britain what she should do, but that Canada must enter the Common Market.

"We believe that it was important to tell Britain how important Commonwealth trade is to Canada and to see that she would keep these representations in mind as she entered negotiations.

Canadians, Mr. Hees stated, have a reputation of good do in Europe and, if price production and workmanship were right "they like to do business with us."

Girl Taken To Hospital By Accused

GORE BAY (CP) — Doctors testified at an inquest into murder trial Monday that a woman whose neck had been slashed with a razor had also cut or received immediate medical attention.

The court was told that Rose Nahwegijig, 34, of nearby Cape Current, was taken to hospital by the accused, Glen Gould, and another man.

Gould appeared before Mr. Justice J. M. Kluge in this Manitoulin Island town on a charge arising out of a knife attack on the woman last July.

The trial was to continue today.

Joseph Negabo of Little Current testified that Gould visited Rose Nahwegijig at his home on the night of July 27 and before leaving threatened to kill anyone she refused to accompany him.

Early next day Gould returned, Negabo said he left the house and when he came back Gould was standing in the doorway with a hunting knife in his hand. Negabo found the woman on the floor, her throat cut in bed. He and Gould took her to hospital by car.

Castro Closes Gaming Joints, Dancing Booms

HAVANA (Reuters)—The last of Havana's once-famous casinos have been closed down and the premier has ordered a ban on a boom in business.

The Supervised Cabaret, with their normal outlets for pleasure whittled away in the name of the revolution and "socialism," are taking up dancing in a big way.

The closing of the casinos was not unexpected, but the premier brought about a drastic change in Cubans' social habits. Fidel's ire is directed at the transition for a country that had become so used to gambling—a part of normal life.

The casinos had been doomed since May 16, when a former law director against games of chance was re-enacted. But up to then they had been enjoying a great boom and were in full swing as one of Havana's tourist heyday.

NO OTHER OUTLET

With luxury goods impossible to find now in Cuba and with no chance of taking such goods out of the country, Cuban citizens preferred to take a chance on losing money on the green baize cloth.

Now the gaming rooms are being converted into more productive use."

Premier Fidel Castro admits the state has lost some income by the closing of the casinos.

But, he added, "why should the government profit from vice?" The green cloth when it can get it will bring in it, through the tax system?"

Now, even the new cabarets that remain open do not do the scores that only three years ago overbrimmed the city's nightlife, are wondering whether their nights are numbered. It is clearly that new employment would be guaranteed only to the extra staffs but also to "artists and musicians."

Crash Truck Through Barrier

BERLIN (Reuters) — Three young East Germans today broke through the Berlin Wall to their obedkopit in West Berlin.

They crashed their armored wheel shield with a thin iron plate, leaving only a flame-like obstacle in their path for the pursuing East German police said.

Monday's was the first admission of disaster since East German Communists over the Berlin Wall appeared in day in the main Communist newspaper Neues Deutschland.

According to the report, party members in an East Berlin factory heard of the measures were "too hard."

CZECH LAUNCHES RED ATTACK ON CANADA'S MOVE

Try to Take Steam Out of Test Motion

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — The Soviet bloc was expected to return to the attack today against a 25-country drive, led by Canada, for an intensive, world-wide study on atomic radiation.

Canadian delegate Paul Tremblay, piloting the anti-atom Station measure through the United Nations General Assembly's 101-member special political committee, said he expects more Communist speakers to rise when deliberations resume this afternoon. (3 p.m. EDT)

In a major speech Monday, Tremblay urged the study and then declared: "The basis for our urgent action is that the problem is the indisputable fact that sharp increases in radioactive fallout have occurred as a result of nuclear weapons testing."

Czechoslovakia's Jan Pudlak launched the counter-attack by Communist countries, a position which — while much more modest in scope than that of Canada — seeks to take the steam out of the anti-radiation drive.

CZECH MEASURE MILDER

Both the Canadian and the Czech drafts address themselves to an annual progress report of the 15-country UN Scientific Committee on the effects of atomic radiation.

But the Czech, aim was merely to take note of the committee's work while the Canadian initiative was to speed up its work. The Canadian resolution would take out collection of radioactive data through the global facilities of the World Meteorological Organization, of which 102 countries are members, and for analysing samples of soil, air

Hammarskjold Probe Is Asked

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Five countries proposed in a resolution made public Monday that the General Assembly set up an international investigation of circumstances surrounding the death of Dag Hammarskjold.

The UN secretary-general and 15 other persons were killed in a plane crash Sept. 18 in Northern Rhodesia.

Ghana, India, Nepal, the United Arab Republic and Venezuela submitted the proposal seeking that the assembly appoint a "commission of five eminent persons" to conduct the investigation.

Will Delay Pact Providing West Will Negotiate

50-Megaton Bomb Will Be Exploded Oct. 31

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Nikita Khrushchov today dropped his threat to sign a separate peace treaty with East Germany by the end of the year, but coupled the announcement with the disclosure of plans to explode a 50-megaton hydrogen bomb before the end of October.

Khrushchev told Russian and world Communist leaders at the opening of the Soviet party congress that Russia would not insist on the Dec. 31 deadline for signing a peace treaty if the West showed willingness to negotiate on the Germany problem.

But he declared that Russia would not cut short its current series of nuclear tests. Instead it will wind them up with the explosion of the 50-megaton bomb—equivalent of 50,000,000 tons of TNT—at the end of this month.

Khrushchev said Russia would not explode its 100-megaton bomb, although it had "such a device ready," "I might break our own windows."

FAST SOLUTION

Although Russia would no longer insist on its Dec. 31 deadline for signing a German peace treaty, Khrushchev said, "we would continue to insist "on the speediest solution of the German problem."

He also said that Russia, now believed the West was "displaying a certain understanding of the situation" and was ready to find a solution for the German problem and for the West Berlin problem on a mutually acceptable basis."

This understanding arose from talks Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko had with President Kennedy and Prime Minister Macmillan earlier this month.

Khrushchev said Russia was ready "to seek jointly with the Western powers a mutually acceptable and agreed settlement through talks."

But, he added, "a German peace treaty must be and will be signed by the two German powers or without them."

Khrushchev said the Dec. 31 deadline for signing a peace treaty with East Germany if no agreement was reached with the West had not been intended as an ultimatum.

"We and the Western powers display readiness to settle the German problem," he said. "Consequently the time limit for the signing of a German peace treaty will not be material," he said.

NO INSISTENCE

"We shall not insist then that the peace treaty be signed by all means before Dec. 31, 1961. The main thing is to solve the question of eliminating the remnants

Last of Ireland's "Keeners" Buried Today at Age of 100

BANTRY, Ireland (Reuters) — Mrs. Kais Connolly, the last of Ireland's "keeners" — professional wailers at wakes and funerals — died Monday at the age of 100.

Mrs. Connolly often earned five shillings as a young woman for leading the keening — wailing and wailing throughout the night.

Breast - beating and thumping the head on the floor were all part of the keener's act.

When the wake was over, the keeners would follow the coffin to the graveyard, where they would put on a final show of professional grief.

Sometimes they would fall on the coffin as it was being lowered into the grave.

The word "keen" comes from the Irish "caoin", which means "I wail".

"Keen" is described in the dictionary as a lamentation or dirge, an utterance in a loud wailing voice — sometimes a wordless cry or wail, sometimes a rythmic recounting of the life and character of the dead.

The last time Mrs. Connolly's professional services were employed at a wake was almost 40 years ago when she spent two day and nights "keeping" at the wake of a wealthy farmer in West Cork. The pay was 10 shillings (£1.40 a day).

Describing the occasion once, she said that with three other keeners she arrived at the house where the body was resting and before entering the door let out a loud wail.

Inside the house mourners and friends were smoking churchwarden pipes, drinking whisky and telling stories as they kept up their vigil.

The keeners also smoked clay pipes, drank whisky, took snuff — and wailed forlornly.

"In my day the keeners were looked upon as the most expert and the best in our parish", she said.

"And sure it was easy to cry and lament when one saw the poor people surrounded by what a fine man he was in his day".

She was once asked if she had any fall sorry when she lamented. Mrs. Connolly replied: "And why wouldn't I feel sorrow and 'I knowing every man, woman and child in the seven parishes?"

When Mrs. Connolly is buried today, there will be no professional keeners for her. She was the last of a dying profession.

Night Editor Of Telegram Protests Fine

BUFFALO (AP)—A Canadian newspaper man has protested to the U.S. state department over a $25 fine he drew after a hassle with police at a state thruway tollbooth.

Colin Murray, 30, a night editor of the Toronto Telegram, said he dropped a nickel and a dime in the exact tollbox near here Oct. 8. The judge who fined him said the state trooper who arrested him said he dropped two nickels in the basket, since changing the thruway five cents.

Murray said Peace Justice Joseph E. Pyszczynski of suburban Cheektowaga directed a few sarcastic remarks at him and then offered him a choice of a $25 fine or 25 days in jail.

In Washington, the office of Senator Warren Magnuson, chairman of the Senate interstate and foreign commerce committee, was reported to have demanded an investigation.

"Let them investigate — I'm glad they have nothing else to do," said Peace Justice Pyszczynski. He said Murray was treated courteously.

In most cases involving the normally unmanned tollbooths, the fines range from $50 to $250, Pyszczynski said.

CITY AND DISTRICT NEWS

SMALL QUANTITY OF MONEY TAKEN

A break-in was reported at the Superior Propane gas office on the Trent Road this morning, and a small quantity of money was taken. It is believed entry was gained by a rear door some time during the night.

Constable Fullerton of the Ontario Provincial Police said the incident was reported to their office this morning by an employee upon his arrival at work.

It is not known as yet just how much was taken and police are still investigating.

CHILD BEING HELD FOR OBSERVATION, STRUCK BY CAR

Marina Clarke, 9, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Clarke of R.R. 3 Belleville, was struck by a car driven by Rodger Field, R.R. 3 Belleville, early this Tuesday morning on highway no. 2 near Jones Creek.

Constable Hume of the Ontario Provincial Police said the child was crossing the highway from the north side when she was struck by the car. She was thrown onto the hood of the car and crashed for some distance, then thrown off into the ditch.

She was admitted to the Belleville General Hospital suffering from bruises. She is being held there for observation.

Constable Hume said no charges would be laid.

Boy Sustains Crushed Pelvis, Struck by Car

Gordon Stewart Royle, 14, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Royle, 190 Dufferin Ave., was taken to the Belleville General Hospital suffering a crushed pelvis yesterday after he was struck by a car driven by Bernice Adella Fox, 96 Catherine St., while he was crossing the street.

The accident occurred at the intersection of Bridge and Dufferin.

School guard Sheldon Smith told police he was standing on the southeast corner of the intersection when he saw two boys standing on the northwest corner across from him. He said he held up his stop sign and stepped from the curb into the Bridge St. crosswalk. The westbound car came to a stop and the boys started across the street.

The car driven by Mrs. Fox was said to have been proceeding on Bridge St. East and did not see the school guard in time to stop.

Your United Appeal

Through your support of the United Appeal such worthwhile organizations as the St. John Ambulance Association are provided with the funds necessary to carry out their work in the community.

The objectives of this association are to teach first aid, home nursing and child welfare as many adults and young people as possible, so that in an emergency life may be maintained or saved until the services of a doctor can be obtained.

Particular attention is given to the teaching of artificial respiration as the association urges to provide first aid procedure for the public and to provide trained help for emergencies in home nursing.

Lawrence Way Of Frankford Critically Hurt

Lawrence Way, 46, of the fifth concession of Sidney was injured in a car accident near Frankford early this morning.

He was taken to the Trenton Memorial Hospital by a Rusbell ambulance where he was pronounced in his critical condition by Dr. J. Beach of Frankford who attended at the scene of the accident. He was later taken to Kingston hospital.

It is understood a car ran into the rear of Mr. Way's milk truck.

Further details as to what actually took place were not available at press time.

The accident is still being investigated by Belleville Ontario Provincial Police.

Rev. W. Merrick Dies in Hospital, Ill Long Time

Former United Church minister and well known throughout the Belleville and Central Ontario district, where he was in the ministry for 45 years, Rev. Walter Richard Merrick, 102 North Front Street, died Monday in Belleville General Hospital following a lengthy illness. He was in his 78th year.

Born and educated in England, Mr. Merrick was ordained shortly after coming to Canada and began his ministry at Flinton. He then went to Queensboro for four years and was at Thomasburg for three years before coming to Cannifton where he served during the years of the Second World War.

Leaving Cannifton he went to Selby for 3 years before returning to Cannifton where he again ministered for three years before his retirement in 1955.

He was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Richard Merrick and is survived by his wife, the former Edith Elsie Russell; one daughter, Mrs. Harry (Mary) Warman of Ottawa; a brother, George Merrick of England and two grandchildren.

The funeral will be held Thursday with interment in Belleville cemetery.

Beaverton Man Dies in Hospital After Accident

Victor Cressbucher, 27, of R.R. 1, Beaverton, died of a fractured skull in Campbellford hospital early this morning following an automobile accident about five miles east of Campbellford on the Campbellford-Lindsay highway. The accident occurred about 9:45 o'clock this morning when Mr. Cressbucher's car collided head-on with an auto parked on the north side of the highway. Police say that he might have blown.

Mr. Cressbucher was on his way home from the livestock auction at Board's Station with four young calves in the back seat of his car when the accident took place. The calves were uninjured although one was knocked unconscious by the collision. Artificial respiration was given it by Bill Reid of Campbellford to bring it around.

Mr. Cressbucher is survived by his wife, Ida, and three small children. Ontario Provincial Police Constable Ross Bovay of the Campbellford detachment investigated the accident.

Public Skating Makes Debut Here Tonight

"Dig out the blades, Daddy, and take me skating tonight."

Just two days after the baseball season drew to a close here, the ice skating and hockey season is ready to make its official 1961-62 debut.

The ice is ready in Memorial Arena and tonight marks the first night of public skating, which runs 7.00 p.m. to 9.00 p.m. Public skating has also been scheduled for Thursday and Saturday nights of this week at the same times.

Meanwhile, the Belleville Mats Junior hockey club will be taking to the ice in their practice tomorrow (Wednesday) evening at 7.30 p.m. and Coach Murray Allen has been called for Saturday evening at the same time.

Looks like the baseball season ended none too soon.

Bomarc Missile Being Shipped In Secret

By HAROLD MORRISON

WASHINGTON (CP) — The first Bomarc B anti - aircraft missile to be delivered to Canada is being shipped in secret because of RCAF fears of possible pacifist demonstrations, it was learned Monday.

Well - informed sources said the ground - to - air missile was dispatched by truck late last week from the Boeing Airplane Co. plant in Seattle, Wash., en route to North Bay, Ont., where it is to be shipped later by the same method.

These sources said the RCAF decided on the route and time of shipment be kept secret because it feared that some Canadians might attempt to stir up demonstrations as they ran rifles along the truck's route.

The Canadian government's decision to obtain two squadrons of Bomarc-B missiles for sites at North Bay and La Macaza, Que., raised a bitter debate in Parliament.

The Bomarc can fire both conventional and nuclear warheads. Originally Canada was to get Bomarcs in 1962 but a speed-up in production has resulted in earlier delivery.

The Quebec base is to get the Bomarcs next year.

The Canadian government has not yet decided whether to acquire nuclear warheads for storage in Canada.

Revised Plan Is Approved For Police Station Project

TRENTON — Last night, town council considered the merits of a revised plan for the construction of a Trenton police station, submitted by the police commission and approved by town engineer Eric Alderson.

The plan calls for the overall expenditure of $9,000.

"I don't want to defend this year's operations," warned Councillor Ross Burtt, chairman of the committee to persons and property committee, "if there's a death after Division Street, somebody's going to get hanged, and I'm not old to hang."

Comptroller O. W. Larry explained that there was $6,372 in the budget for the work and that the town engineer had applied for a grant under the winter works program. He said that if some of the work was postponed until next year, council could easily stay within its budget.

By the proposed plan, the space at the front of the police station which is used to park cruisers at present, would be used for office space, etc., resulting in an additional 800 square feet of working space. A larger, squarer room and a bright new lunch room for the officers will result. A repair room will be added and the detective's room enlarged. The cell block will remain the same and the revolver range will be built. Stairs leading up from the inside of the station will be built and women's and men's washrooms built.

It was decided to postpone the building of the inside stairway and the washrooms until next year and the angel stone finish on the outside of the building will also be postponed. Block stone will be used for the exterior as a temporary money-saving measure.

SENSIBLE PLAN

"It's a very sensible plan," recommended Councillor Fraser.

"This way, there'll be no hard feelings," said Councillor McNair.

Fluoridation, New Fire Hall Put on Ballot

TRENTON — Trenton taxpayers will be asked to vote on the question of the need for an eastside fire hall.

At last night's council meeting, Councillor Burtt asked for a vote on the matter. He said that when he had proposed that the fire hall be built, his motion had been defeated. He said that he thought the people of the town, who would pay for the hall in the long run, should be consulted.

"The real question isn't the building of the fire hall," said Councillor Lloyd Worrall. "The real question is the maintenance of the hall."

"We'll have to buy a new fire truck," warned Councillor W. J. McNair.

"The people elected us to make decisions," said Council-lor D. R. Fraser. "I think this question is capable of being decided by us. We're setting a precedent by asking the people to vote on this. We're putting our feet in the water to see if it's cold."

"We'll need more men to man the hall," Councillor Worrall pointed out.

"I think we can control the number of men," said Councillor Burtt. "I don't think it's wrong to go to the people on such questions."

Council voted to have the plebecite carried out at the same time as municipal elections.

Another question facing the taxpayer in the December election will be a vote in favor of the fluoridation of the public water supply in the town of Trenton?"

Trenton Council Briefs

TRENTON — The Trenton Traffic Committee will be asked to look into the installation of a traffic light, which could control the school children, at the corner of Princess and Byron Sts. The committee has recommended this, but the town engineer will report on the cost of this system and the cost of alternate systems. Mayor James MacDonald said that the cost would be not more than 200 cars pass this point in a 20-minute period.

A request from Erie Realtor Corporation that no parking on the west side of Fraser Ave., be enforced. The traffic committee had recommended that parking be permitted on this side and not on the east side of the street. Now, the committee will consult with the company officials before coming to a final decision as to a recommendation.

A resolution advanced by the Windsor city council to the mayor, time will be limit before in school areas in municipalities throughout the province.

A resolution from the Weston council that the minister of municipal affairs introduce legislation to allow municipalities to set up a pedestrian crosswalk system.

Council voted to permit local cenotaph committee to hold a tag day on Nov. 25. This will be the first time the association has held such a tag day in Trenton.

A Bay Street resident, who has been asked to move out of his town owned home by council, came before council last night with the report that he had been unable to find accommodation which would be cheap enough. Council advised him to look around as the Board of Health has condemned the dwelling.

Council accepted, with regret, the resignation of Councillor D. R. Fraser. "He's been a wonderful asset to council," commented the mayor, "We're sorry to see him go."

In return for a clear title to a privately owned street in east Trenton, council will guarantee building permits for five houses to be issued to the street's owners.

Councillor Ross Burtt told council that the Trenton fire department had responded 18 calls in September. He said that he could not give a dog catcher's report until the report was organized.

Council approved the proposal that the Trenton Legion branch stage a Remembrance Day parade through the downtown streets on Nov. 11.

76 Appeals Will Be Heard By Court

TRENTON — Assessment Commissioner J. Allan Smith said yesterday that the 1961 Court of Revision will be asked to consider 76 assessment appeals this year. Sittings of the court will commence on October 24 and will be held on subsequent evenings until all the appeals against land and building assessment have been heard.

Mr. Smith said that there was a preponderance of commercial property appeals this year. Some town officials who were unsuccessful in appeals last year have entered appeals again this year.

Chairman of the 1961 court is Councillor D. R. Fraser and the members are: Councillor Lloyd Worrall, Harold Turney, Harold Blakely and Frank Miron.

ELECTED PRESIDENT

At last week's meeting of the Trenton Kiwanis Club, Howard Aziz, vice-president of the club for the past four months, was elected president for 1961-62. Mr. Aziz was elected vice-president when Fay Fensham resigned from the executive. He was appointed from RCAF Station Trenton. Norman Davis has served as president for the past year.

Health Food Sales Aired Before Council

TRENTON — Town solicitor Roderick Campbell has been asked to draw up a bylaw to examine the hawkers' and peddlers' by-law and report on its application in the case of persons who have been selling health foods locally.

Comptroller O. W. Larry said that he had been contacted of a piece of property in the area sales of the health food and that he had given to understand that sales were brought about by "a friend of a friend." Consequently, the company had not been asked to visit out a hawkers' and peddlers' license.

At last night's council meeting, a letter from the Trenton Druggists' Association was read to council. The town's druggists claim that the company has committed an infraction of the hawkers' and peddlers' by-law.

Mayor Larry commented that the local sales had gone beyond all expectations. He said that the company had been pretty well blanketed.

According to a report, one town citizen was contacted by a local drug store and asked to buy the goods.

Councillor Fraser said that he had been contacted by telephone and that he had seen an advertisement for salesmen for the company. He said that he thought the "friend's friend" phase of sales had been exercised.

FIRES FIRST MISSILE

CAPE CANAVERAL (AP) — The United States' largest Polaris fleet ballistic missile submarine, the Ethan Allen, launched its first missile on a successful 1,200-mile test flight Monday.

Credit Union Day Approved After Debate

TRENTON—Thursday, October 19, has been named "Credit Union Day" in Trenton. This was decided at last night's meeting of town council.

However the proclamation suggested by the Quinte and District Credit Union, by which the people of the area will be made aware of the benefits of loans, was defeated by council.

It was felt that the proposed wording of the proclamation carried certain implications which might offend other loaning institutions.

There are six credit unions in Trenton, with a membership of 2,000, according to credit union authorities.

"Does this refer to loaning companies?" queried Councillor McNair. "I've no use for present day loaning companies. Once you're in their clutches, you're lost."

"Did they say they had two thousand members?" asked Councillor C. V. Graham. "I've never heard of it."

"If the mayor issues this proclamation, it will carry significance, the banks might question our action," said Councillor Vagn Lange. "It might affect their business."

It suggest that the first paragraph and the last part of the last paragraph concerning credit union activity, "Trenton's credit union," said comptroller O. W. Larry.

Expropriation Of Apartments Site Is Planned

TRENTON — Trenton council last night heard and finally reading to a by-law, which will, in effect, permit the town solicitor to proceed with expropriation proceedings for the acquisition of a piece of property which Mrs. Helen Alyea. The land in question is located between Wreaks Ave. and Division St., and must be acquired by the town before construction work can be commenced on a senior citizens apartment block. The property is to be purchased from an adjacent piece of land for $1,500. Mrs. Alyea was offered $2,200 for the land but returned the $200 deposit cheque, stating that she had been offered $4,000 for the land. Town assessment commissioner, J. Allan Smith had appraised the land and reported that $2,200 was the "top" price.

It is expected that the expropriation will be carried through in early November and the senior citizens apartment block will be started in the spring. Trenton Legion has also been offered $4,000 for the land. Town assessment commissioner, J. Allan Smith, Harold Wyre, Doris Martin, Joan Dorothy and Donald Martin, Jr., Mrs. Alyea's children and grandchildren Carole, Cathy, Sandra and Brian.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — The stock market dropped on all fronts in moderate trading today with Lake Dufault and Investors Syndicate A standing out as losers. Dufault, the once-hot copper prospect in Quebec's Nordeco field, seemd to have lost a little lustre in the last two days. It dropped $1.75 Monday and today has fallen $1.00 to $4.00 on a volume of 138,054 shares.

Whitney-Coughlan, which has gained along behind Dufault because it owns property adjacent to the latter, lost a small cent to 19 with volume of 69,400 shares.

Investors Syndicate A, following the patter it set with Monday's drop of 2%, this morning fell another 2% to 51¾ on a volume of 500 shares.

Industrials lost ground behind falls in steels, utilities and food, with widespread fractional losses predominant.

On index, industrials fell .06 to 306.15 and western oils .12 to 97.29. Golds gained .13 to 87.15, base metals .04 to 202.18 and the 11 a.m. volume was 2,028,000 shares compared with 1,089,000 at the same time Monday.

The base metals market was lower in the senior list with Geco, Consolidated Mining and Smelting and Steep Rock all off 1 the 10 to 25 cent range.

Gold trading was light with a Giant Yellowknife ahead.

In weak western oil trading, Canadian, Central Del Rio and Great Plains all lost as much as 25 cents.

Monday, top industrials and fledgling speculatives contributed to a decline.

The speculative market fetured a $1.75 drop by Lake Dufault to 25 on a volume of 364,512 shares on news that the hols drilled 100 feet west of the discovery hole and studded ore and had been deiled to the 1,100-foot level.

Whitney-Coughlan, which owns property adjacent to Lake Dufault, has lagged along in the wake of the latter for the last four weeks, lost a paltry 10 cents to 20 cents on a volume of 261,525 shares.

Canadian Dyno Mines, the seldom - heard - from prospect which took off in a wild scramble for rumors of a rich copper strike east of James Bay, lost 27 cents to 81.25 on a volume of 66,250 shares.

Most dismal feature of industrial action was the index' drop—3.59 to 306.19—the largest fall since Sept. 18. Golds fell .27 to 87.02, base metals .39 to 202.16 and western oils .54 to 97.48. Volume was 3,664,000 shares compared with 4,027,000 Friday.

Industrials slumped with widespread fractional falls in steels, papers, utilities and foods. Moore Corporation continued the pattern it set two weeks ago and was down $1.50 to 146 on a volume of 13,350 shares. Powers Syndicate A dropped 2% in moderately heavy trading and Industrial Acceptance Corporation reached a new low of 31¼ with 2,000 shares.

The base metals market was steady in the senior list amid generally declining prices. Gold trading was light with Dome and McIntyre Porcupine ahead ¼ and ⅝ respectively and Giant Yellowknife off ¼.

United Reft featured trading in junior western oils with a rise of 3¢ to 34 on a volume of 63,067 shares.

DOLLAR RATE

MONTREAL (CP) — The U.S. dollar was at a premium of three per cent in terms of Canadian funds around noon today. Monday the noon rate was $1.03. Pound sterling $2.90, up 1-16.

14 BADGES — Going up to Scouts at a special ceremony this evening are the above two Cubs, Billie Fell and Vincent Moase, who have won their 14th badges. The boys belong to 24-member Bayside Cub Pack headed by Vincent's mother, Mrs. Betty Moase.

BIG TROPHY FOR A BIG PROJECT — At the Belleville United Appeal's kick-off banquet and dinner yesterday evening campaign chairman David Wright presented board chairman J. J. Trudeau (left) with an impressive trophy which is to be awarded annually to the division within the Appeal showing the greatest improvement over their previous year's campaign. Guest speaker Norman A. Ballard (centre) of the Metropolitan Toronto United Appeal looks on enviously.

Seven Inducted Into Rotary As New Members

Seven new members were officially inducted by the Belleville Rotary Club at their weekly meeting yesterday afternoon at the Hotel Quinte. Past president Harold Mott conducted the induction ceremony for new Rotarians C. H. "Bud" Trill, George Wakeling, Carl Ingimundson, William Slade, James Barker, Norman Keith and Robert Brennan.

Following the induction club president Virgil Jones extended the "hand of fellowship" to the new members and secretary Ernie Burnham presented them with copies of the Rotary "Four Way Test" and various pieces of club literature.

Special guests of honor were present at the meeting to hear Rotarian Bruce Gresham announce that the club's fund-raising effort through selling bats for the International Plowing Match had been a very great success, thanks to the enthusiasm of the members and interested citizens.

Dr. Russell Scott, chairman of the local plowing committee, together with Don Stanton, Stan Hart, Jack Fensome and Ken Monson were introduced by club vice-president Harry Burns as citizens who had contributed greatly to the success of the project. They were given a standing salute by the club.

It was announced that $900, collected through this project, was being donated to the Crippled Children's Merrywood Camp.

President James reminded members that this coming Monday will be the occasion that Dr. Henry Kingston, district governor for Rotary, comes on his official visit to the club.

United Appeal Campaign Gets Enthusiastic Kick-off At Banquet for Workers

Close to 300 persons were in attendance to give the 1962 Belleville United Appeal campaign an enthusiastic kick-off at a meeting held yesterday evening at the Quinte Secondary School. Norman A. Ballard, an executive member of the Metropolitan Toronto United Appeal, was the guest speaker for the occasion.

A former Anglican minister now employed with the Robert Simpson Store, Mr. Ballard explained that many people appear to be ignorant of the philosophy behind the United Appeal and the need for its existence.

This philosophy, he suggested, had its beginning back when Canada was composed mostly of rural communities and small towns. During this period Canadians always were able to take care of their own and their neighbors in need; and food, clothes or such other contributions as were necessary to ease misfortune in a family were always readily forthcoming from other members of the community.

"Now," the speaker said, "Canada has given a grown quite large and impersonal girth with little evidence of the neighborliness of the past —yet the same problems remain." Today the emergency needs of members of the community at home take care of by trained social workers, youth workers or interested persons, he suggested.

Through the United Appeal the monetary needs of the various welfare, youth and service organizations are taken care of so that they may carry out their work in the community. Through the United Appeal's efficiency some 93 cents of every contributor's dollar goes directly to the agencies—a higher percentage than any other campaign to date has been able to achieve, the University of Toronto graduate stated.

The problems, which those various organizations were first founded to meet, exist in the community no matter whether it is experiencing a time of plenty or a time of famine because human nature and problems remain the same.

The Salk vaccine, one of the greatest developments to immunize people against a previously deadly and crippling disease, was developed by an United Appeal agency, Mr. Ballard said, adding that there was lots of room for both public and private welfare.

KNOW FULL STORY

The principal advantage of such campaigns as are to be found in the United Appeal is that they have been created and are operated by citizens who are interested about some problem in particular and care enough about others to devote their time and effort to providing help for them when needed, he said.

Mr. Ballard urged every person working in the United Appeal to get to know the full story of their United Appeal so that they could provide ready and honest answers to every question which might be asked of them. "People who help people need your help," is a slogan which can be used throughout the United Appeal he concluded.

Mr. Enos David, campaign chairman of the United Appeal, acted as chairman of the rally. During his opening remarks Mr. David said that there is every indication that this year we will either come close to or over the top" thanks to the enthusiasm which was evident both amongst the volunteer workers for the United Appeal and many of the citizens who will be helped.

As early indication of this enthusiasm is the fact that over 60 per cent of the objective for the national corporations of Canada has been received before the campaign has actually started, the Wood Street merchant said. There are also more firms using the payroll deduction system than ever before and a system of payroll donations has been devised for those in firms whose organization is such that payroll deduction is inexpedient.

Mr. David suggested that a spirit of competition was always good in almost any endeavor and then matched his words by presenting J. J. Trudeau, chairman of the United Appeal, with a three-foot high trophy to be awarded annual competition between the divisions. It will be presented to the division which has the highest percentage increase in donations received over the previous year's performance.

THANKS EXPRESSED

Mr. Trudeau expressed his thanks to the board and all of the volunteer workers who had worked diligently to get the campaign off to such a very good start.

A member of the divisional chairman commented on the various stages of progress within their groups. Mrs. Jane Forrester advised that there were some 650 volunteers who would be taking part in the residential "blitz" which is the final canvass in the campaign. This takes place on October 30th.

Also reporting were Norman Kelly, A. O. Drysdale, Larry Beck, Gerry Wishart, Dr. Steve Morphy and Dave Gale.

Following these reports a dimsitrip, "This Is Your Story" which featured the various techniques and problems which a volunteer United Appeal worker should know how to use or face.

Musical entertainment for the evening was provided by Hazelmere and Robert Reid, local vocalists, with Alec Gordon accompanying them on the piano. There selections were very well received.

Prior to the meeting a dinner, provided through the generosity of Walker Hardware of the Big "A" Company, J. J. Trudeau Motors and Carl Roliff, was held for those attending the rally.

Macaulay Critical

Mankind Is Reaching for Moon While Earthly Problems Unsolved

TORONTO — In man's race to reach the moon it might be a sound idea if a few people sat down and asked what the race is all about, Robert Macaulay, Ontario Minister of Energy Resources, writes in his new book "The World of Energy," to be published next month. "A successful trip to the moon and return for a man will surely prove that man could have conquered delinquency, poverty and famine on earth," the vice-chairman of the Ontario Hydro Electric Commission writes. It might even prove that man could live in peace on the earth, Mr. Macaulay continues, but it will never prove that man has conquered the universe, much less himself. "But off to the moon we'll go," says Mr. Macaulay. "It's a little like paying for a new TV set while still owing the family doctor."

Chapters in Mr. Macaulay's book include: beginning of the universe; the ends of the earth; Einstein's universe; energy and man; the earth, sun and moon; a star is born; man's importance; fission and fusion; solar energy; and the future of uranium.

"One of the weaknesses of some religions is that these same religions attempt to place God's position too far along the assembly line and not at its beginning," Mr. Macaulay writes.

"In the layman's mind, there is much confusion between theology, philosophy, physics and chemistry. But if man in the 20th-Century is to avoid the witchcraft of Salem, he must learn to study new prospects. With what is man at war?, listing both mother and son as dead, said the bodies were beheaded. "No he's at war with himself, History hasn't taught man 60 feet of ocean water. The boy enough about war; he must appreciate the drive to survive and with better weapons. Man Neither was identified.

Mother, Son Killed in Crash

ST. JOEN'S, Nfld. (CP)—A mother and her son were killed Monday night, when a private plane on a mercy flight crashed in the Conception Bay near Carbonear, about 30 miles west of here.

The pilot, Donald MacKenzie of Halifax, escaped after being thrown through the glass cockpit into the water.

A search and Rescue report, listing both mother and son as dead, said the bodies were beheaded in the impact.

Two Types of Spectator

"Baseball is a boring game, not to be compared at all with hockey," writes Ted Douglas in his column "Now" in the Windsor Star.

This, coming just a few days after the conclusion of the World Series, is less majeste.

Moreover, it is not true.

We agree with Douglas that hockey has something that baseball lacks. "In the rink," he writes, "the action is quick, and you can yell your lungs out—a very therapeutic kind of thing. Like good deep laughter, it enlivens the circulation."

So say all true hockey fans. It is one of the most fascipating games in the world for the spectator. For players we are not so sure—but probable truth is that from the player's standpoint the best game is the one which he plays with the greatest skill.

Unfortunately, in his next paragraph Douglas reveals that he is not a true hockey fan. He speaks of old thrills "back home in Ingersoll," when it was possible to watch three full games in a night for a quarter.

We know those three-games-a-night shows well. It is a tribute to hockey's appeal that even this blood-and-thunder style of hockey can be interesting. But it is not fare for the real gourmet of the sports' world.

Douglas, in his praise of hockey, reveals why he considers baseball boring. He does not watch as a connoisseur, but looks only for the obvious thrills arising from the spectacle of bodily contact. There is no more interesting game to watch than baseball, if one knows the game and particularly if one also knows the playing abilities and peculiarities of the participants. (One has to be at the game; TV distorts distances so that it is impossible to anticipate where a hit or thrown ball is going, depriving the spectator of at least 80 per cent of the real thrills of watching a game.)

Hockey, like baseball, requires attendance at the game for full enjoyment. Television cannot show the whole ice surface adequately. But it is a better game to watch on TV than is baseball. Football, on the other hand, is better on TV than in the stadium—the camera gives one a closer view of the play.

All these games, and every other type of game, have one thing in common. If they are to be fully enjoyed by the spectator, he must know something about the game and the more he knows the greater his enjoyment. This does not mean, of course, those who are seeing a new game for the first time may not get thrills. But the true spectator is not so much interested in the obvious thrill as in the little thiffigs which reveal technique and high skill. Properly played, any game becomes almost an art—and it demands for the spectator just as great an appreciation of techniques and skills as is demanded of the visitor to an art gallery.

For Legal Minds Only

Ald. Margaret Campbell of Toronto, a lawyer, last week introduced a motion in council calling for stiffer penalties for prostitutes.

Thursday somebody telephoned her home and threatened her. Her husband took the call. He says he was too taken aback to note whether the caller was a crank.

"I waited long enough I'd have told him Margaret isn't trying to stop prostitution, she's just trying to get it into another ward," Mr. Campbell is reported to have said.

We fear that one needs that training in logic which we are sure lawyers must get before one is able to perceive how stiffer penalties for prostitutes will result in them moving from one ward in a city to another ward in the same city, where the same penalties prevail.

However, we must say that this is some kind of commentary on the ward system.

RAILROAD TO STEEPLE

Engine bells originated in England, but they were soon deleted. In North America, however, they became as much a part of the railroading sound as the whistles, and their pontifical peal often caused churchmen to covet them. Displaced from scrap engines, engine bells still toll solemnly from hundreds of church steeples.—Brian Fawcett in a BBC talk about railways.

The proof of a poet is that his country absorbs him as affectionately as he has absorbed it.—Walt Whitman.

Lemieux in the first case.

True humor springs not more from the head than from the heart; it is not contempt, its essence is love; it issues not in laughter, but in still smiles, which lie far deeper. — Thomas Carlyle.

They Depend on Vanilla

By JOHN R. GIBSON in The Wall Street Journal.

The world may be worrying about atom bomb tests and Berlin barricades, but as African island nation, the Malagasy Republic, at the moment is more concerned about vanilla beans.

There's nothing frivolous about the islanders' worries. The Malagasy produce about half of the world's vanilla, a flavoring ingredient for ice cream, candy and other processed foods. They sell most of it to the United States. The island's vanilla output has been growing faster than America's appetite for vanilla-flavored products.

The result has been a steep price decline, which in 1959 plunged the Malagasy government into a badly budget-unbalanced program. This nation, like others in growing Brazil and other commodity producing countries, is looking to a good customer, Uncle Sam, for price-support help.

The Malagasy Republic consists of the island of Madagascar, a cigar-shaped land in the Indian Ocean 240 miles off the east coast of Africa. The island has been swept along with African nationalist tide; it became an independent republic in the French Community last year. Before becoming most of this century as French colony, the Malagasy people don't consider themselves part of the neighboring African continent.

Most of the island's people were their ancestors, the Malays or the East Indies, rather than Africa. Anthropologists figure adventurous Polynesian sailors, Arab traders and others may have traveled to Madagascar first, maybe, 1,500 to 2,000 years ago. In the centuries since then, these early residents have mixed with such later arrivals as Arabs, Negroes, Chinese, French and Africans. The island still retains evidences of the Orient; many people of the elite tribe, the Hova or Merina, wear bright, wrap-around clothing and carry parasols to ward off the sun, in the manner of Southeast Asians. The Hova tribe ruled the island before the French took over.

Aside from the Malagasy Republic's vanilla sales to the United States, most of its business dealings are with France. France supplies about 70 per cent of the island's imports, buys 65 per cent of its exports, dominates local business and in 1958 pumped $20 million of private capital into the country.

It took a lot of hard work by the Malagasy vanilla farmers to get themselves into their present predicament. Vanilla, a member of the orchid family, must be hand-pollinated to produce the flavorful bean. Last year, the farmers pollinated 6,000 buds to produce 710 tons of vanilla, compared with an annual average of 400 tons in recent years.

As a result, the price which had risen as high as $13.00 a pound, slipped to $3.00 and less than $5 a pound. It might have gone even lower, but the Government stepped in to take direct controls on the prices and growers are to buy vanilla to support the market. The Government now is trying to sold the crop abroad.

Although the Government attempts to make occasional sales from its stocks, it expects to have about 300 tons still on hand when this year's somewhat small crop is being picked, reaches the market. Other countries, officials estimate the island cannot be stored for more than two years, or it becomes moldy, without spoiling. In addition, the government is running low on funds and is expected soon to will handle this year's crop, unless there's a sudden and unexpected — jump in world demand. For the present, many buyers are holding off, figuring that prices will decline.

Learn to Use Leisure Well

Manchester Guardian

The latest number of the "Economic Report" issued by the United States Information Service contains some formidable statistics about the ways in which American people spend their leisure time and money. With an average working week, more paid holidays, and a longer life, people have after meeting normal expenses — of living "the market for goods and services" — more to do with recreation has doubled in the past 10 years.

About a third of this money goes on travel at home and abroad, and the fact that American tourism seems to be turning away from Europe to towards the Pacific Islands and the Far East). But the most interesting sign is the tremendous growth of other active, outdoor pursuits. Spectator sports and television have ceased to make headway and cinema attendances have fallen for the first time in their pre-war mark.

But camping (especially in America's splendid national and state parks) and boating (there are now 8,000,000 private boats in America, twice as many as in 1950) have risen sharply in popularity; golf, now organized sports (from bowling to archery) and the theatre and concert-going and book buying (American expenditure on books is nearly 150 per cent since the war).

There is no time depressed by the contrast between the variety of American leisure pastimes and the monotony with which entertainment and demonstrable pleasure which seems at present to characterize a great part of the British public. But there are precedents in the trials which not so long ago we used to observe in American life. Most people in this country have been affluent for too short a time to have learned the simple accumulation of new physical possessions. Even so there are increasing signs that the British public (and particularly the younger generation) is beginning to look outside the confines of the home to more active kinds of leisure occupations, but it is not as ridiculous as the present programs of civil defence in many countries.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Conscription appears to be the only solution to the atom bomb shelter problem. The governments to provide the people with shelters would cost billions or billion spent on the manufacture of atomic missiles, a million or more would be required to build big and furnishing vast bomb-proof shelters in each section of the country in proportion to population.

That is where conscription comes in. Everybody is agreed that in the event of atomic war, millions will die. The problem, thus is to keep enough of the population alive so at still to be able to be described as nation. Therefore, as soon as the nation air shelter is completed, the populace will be conscripted, by families, so many hundred thousand at a time, to go down and live in the shelters for a prescribed period, maybe a month, so that there will always be a basic core of population in a state of preservation. But the principle is sound. If in time of war we are to be conscripted for death, so in time of peace people can be conscripted for conservation.

This plan may sound ridiculous, but it is not as ridiculous as the present programs of civil defence in many countries.

THINK THIS OVER

Why squabble?

There are families which squabble through the years. There are business associates whose lives are made unhappy over the fact that every day they squabble with someone.

There are churches which squabble because we let our differences be squabble because we say the first thing that comes into our minds. We squabble because we fail to think. We squabble because we have not taken property or by sufficient sleep.

Squabbling is one of those little-regarded realities which as a matter of fact is affecting the peace of the world more than the policies or actions of statesmen.

Cut it out, won't you?

"I think it's best not to tell you the truth about your condition, Rollo . . . you'd only start worrying."

Mankind Lives In a Constant Nightmare

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

We were walking down to the beach, on the last day of vacation. It was a morning fresh from the hand of God — sun, sky, wind, water and birds coasting above the cliffs and children tumbling about the sand.

It was impossible to believe at that clear, cool suspended moment in time, that the other world actually existed — the world of bombs and war planes, revolts and repressions, organized bitterness, official cunning and mechanized ferocity.

On a morning such as that, there was only one possible inner knowledge that mankind is living through its own nightmare, that everything we call "real" in the big world is a feverish fantasy and that the only truth of existence resides somewhere here, between above and us, and beyond.

Not that Nature is kind or benevolent — we do not subscribe to that sentimental fallacy. But Nature is at least indifferent to our needs; it provides a setting which we can enjoy, multiplate or obliterate entirely, it gives us a choice of action, for good or ill.

The other world — the world of the headlines — gives us no choice of action. We are mute wax-dolls in a global drama we have neither written or directed — we are, at best, the puppets controlled by forces we cannot comprehend.

Mankind has always known anguish and loss — but with a sense of purpose, with a feeling for the future and with a faith that goodness was recoverable, that the generations to come were the ultimate and attainable ends of the long and terrible human struggle to find a meaning and a place in the universe.

That sustaining faith is destroyed. We now think only of "survival" as a species — as human animals clawing their way underground. It's not even survival as a people or as a nation, but as a tribe, a clan, a family — dedicating its declining energies of water, food and air with machine guns aimed at their own neighbors.

In the Greek dream, the Hebrew dream, the Christian dream come to this — that we abdicate our humanity, call ourselves by a new name, invoke the forces of history and retreat to our underground caverns for the sake of a brutal "survival"?

Man was made to stand on the earth, to celebrate the sun and the sky, to use the wind and master the water and to care passionately for the children tumbling about the sand. He was made to look into the image of his father, to embrace his fellows everywhere, to open the doors, to feed the hungry and to relate good for evil. Nothing less. Nothing else. Anything else is sure damnation.

Surgery Is the Best Solution for Hernia

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

After reading an article concerning my lack of faith in "injection treatments" for hernia (rupture, the following letter came from a man:

"Dear Sir: I feel it is more or less my duty to relate my experience. I went to be fitted for a truss and mentioned that I was going to be operated on. The truss suggested that I go to a Dr. X., who specialized in injections, and that it would be cheaper and just as effective.

"I went to Dr. X. for three years. The hernia seemed to be held in place for a period of two or three months but in time it would always pop out again. The doctor used injection needles about four to six inches long and seemed to be crochety or pressed on when or from changes that may occur in the body. The doctor is a chronic deficiency, since some elderly people, due to finicky about their diet said don't eat some of the things they need.

Hemmorrhoids can be cured: If troubled with flesures, fistulas, itching and other rectal problems, write to Dr. Molner "After you have tried the Chicago Sanitarium, Box 1258, Dundee, Ill., requesting a copy of their booklet, The Truth About Piles and Rectal Disorders." For Hemorrhoids," enclosing a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope and 25c to cover cost of handling and postage.

Neighbors Too Kind

Presbyterian Life

A man we know bought a modest house on a modest quarter acre of land. He had a lawn mower, which he kept nice and sharp, and when he first moved in, he used to enjoy pushing the mower over his grass. He got a kick out of the rhythmical whirr of the blades, and a pleasantly muscle-stirring feeling from the weekly exercise.

But about the fourth week, the helpful neighbors across the street brought his power mower, which he offered as a loan. The would-be mechanic tried to explain why he liked his mower and why the borrowed mower wouldn't take no for an answer. The next week the neighbor's son brought his power mower over and lent it upon our friend, who weakly resisted, eventually yielded. "I was in the most awkward position," he told us. "I couldn't seem to make all those people understand. I couldn't turn down their kindness. But I hated being forever in debt to them. Finally I had to buy a power mower of my own."

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS.

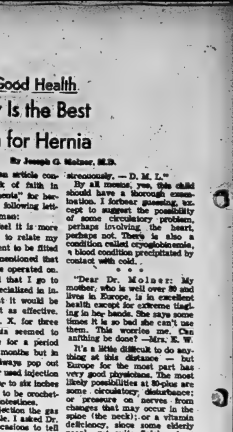
TEAM WORK

The individual may stand out to lead and inspire, but alone he can do little.

All great success is the product of team work. Even the baseball star depends for success with one or two brilliant stars, to umpire to win against the best team. Look at any organization in which each man shoulders his responsibility.

In business there can be no "star" system. Even the man in the humblest office job becomes a cog of importance in the wheel. Alas, when one member of an organization neglects any part of his work he does injustice to every other organization.

In the human body there is team work all worked out in the beginning, and unless the owner of that body keeps up with the plan of nature, there is sure to be failure in the end.



Team work runs throughout all of life's essentials. No man can live to himself alone.

The book you read is the product of team work. So is your newspaper. So is the play you so much enjoyed.

Everything made is the product of team work. And the better the team work the better the team work has been.

Team work is always unselfish, because everybody is looking out for the good of all.

The most successful life is one in which everyone has all its forces so as to make every effort count in the development and enlargement of the complete character.

Short-Lived Radiation Products to Be Studied

By JOHN BIRD

OTTAWA (CP) — A theoretical study has been initiated by the federal health department on a possible new health hazard that might result if Russia exploded atomic bombs in the atmosphere over a long period of time.

The study will be related to the effect on health of long exposure to high levels of short-lived fission products, a field in which there has been little research.

The work will be conducted by Dr. P. M. Bird, senior scientific officer of the health department's radiation protection division.

Dr. Bird said the study will be entirely fundamental in character and will not involve experiments for the time being.

Radioactive materials created by nuclear explosions are of two types. There are short-lived products which decay over a brief period and long - lived ones which remain active for many years.

DISAPPEAR RAPIDLY

Fallout levels rise rapidly following a bomb explosion mainly because of the large volume of short - lived fission products. The strength of such products is reduced by half over short periods and fallout levels drop almost as quickly as they build up.

Because the short-lived products retain their strength for only a short period, they have not been considered a health hazard.

However, this picture has changed as a result of the frequency of Russian atomic explosions. Since Sept. 1, the Russians have exploded more than 30 nuclear devices.

Health officials do not know at what levels short - lived fission products would be harmful. And they do not know how long they would have to be absorbed so be injurious to health.

George Wardrope, Seeking PC Leadership, Developed Great Interest in Penology

By DON BEENET

TORONTO (CP)—Prison reform is a difficult product to sell but George Wardrope, Ontario's minister of reform institutions, has made great strides in the humane aspects of penology.

The 61 - year - old insurance salesman has redirected his selling techniques to the rehabilitation of man with such vigor he has succeeded in abolishing corporal punishment in all provincial penal institutions.

Possessed of a big smile and a firm handshake, Mr. Wardrope has charmed prisoner and voter alike becoming minister of reform institutions in 1958.

Riots at the Guelph Reformatory in 1959 were surprised when a squat, friendly little man in a straw hat and silk suit spoke to them through a barred gate and reminded them that government had abolished the strap for their benefit. The inmates capitulated at once.

Soon as Mr. Wardrope promised to listen to their complaints.

One of the problems at Guelph was overcrowding and Mr. Wardrope went to work for more institutions. As a result, Camp Hendrie was built in Simcoe County and a start made on a reformatory at Elliot Lake.

MAY PAY PRISONERS

Mr. Wardrope has impressed departmental officials with his interest in penology and study of modern reform methods. He has given serious consideration to the payment of prisoners for work performed and improved visiting procedures.

His feelings have plunged him into trouble, too. After the conviction of youthful Stephen Truscott for murder, Mr. Wardrope said he often wondered whether the boy was really guilty. A few days later he went before the legislature to apologize for casting doubts on the integrity of the courts.

Born in Montreal and educated at London Collegiate Institute and the University of Toronto, Mr. Wardrope has lived most of his life in Port Arthur. He was a city alderman for 10 years. For some years he has carried on business as an insurance and real estate broker.

JOINED FORESTRY CORPS

During the First World War, he served for five years with the Forestry Corps of the Canadian Army, retiring with the rank of major. He was first elected to the legislature for Port Arthur riding in 1951.

His announcement that he will contest the leadership of the Ontario Progressive Conservative party at the Oct. 25-26 convention came as a surprise to fellow cabinet ministers.

Friends of Mr. Wardrope say it is difficult to tell just how serious he is about the leadership. He announced his candidacy only after being prevailed to run by the local riding association. On the other hand, Mr. Wardrope is an astute politician with the gift of the whirlwind might seem improbable ideas.

IODE Holds Most Successful 2nd International Fair

Club Commodore was "en fete" yesterday afternoon and evening for the International Fair under the sponsorship of the St. Julien Chapter of the I.O.D.E. convened by Mrs. E. Sutton as dotticity opened by Judge J. C. Anderson. Lovely sprays of autumn leaves bedecked entrance hall and surrounded the silken Union Jack; while inside, garlands of entwined red, white and blue bordered the various nationality booths, and adorned the tall pillars.

Receiving th throughing guests was Mrs. M. Patterson, Regent assisted by Mrs. E. Sutton, while the door tickets were taken by Mrs. George Hume.

The booths of the 12 countries, resembling in their appearance the Arabian Nights were overflowing with many beautiful objects of art, exemplifying the old saying, "A thing of beauty is a joy forever", whether in far-off Europe or in Canada.'

LAND OF SUNSHINE

Beginning with Italy, land of lovey sunshine, were fine China plates with slashed borders, trimmed with gold and centred by a colored painting of Romeo and Juliet; fine white lace bordered table cloths; Madeira cloths; a little Lenci doll dressed in gray uniform of an Alpine soldier; silver embossed trays; and beautiful velvet woven belt spreads in a riot of luxurious hues and materials; as well finely knit sweaters for children and adults. This was conveyed by Mrs. R. Ellis, with Mrs. Vane and Mrs. DeGenova assisting.

Lithuania and Estonia displayed beautiful woven tapestries, lace edged pillowslips embroidered table cloths; jewellery made from amber from the Baltic Sea; wood carving of tiny chairs, and spinning wheels, knitted scarf like as a spider's web; sets of hand-knitted gloves and bonnets with floral designs and large hand-knit sweaters. Mrs. George Gibbons and Mrs. Pashkauskas, from Mrs. Zalasova were in charge. Mrs. Zalasovas and little daughter, Douguia were in native costume. Two families combined to show three native articles, covered by Mrs. Kenny and Mrs. Lewis, while Mrs. Heyduck and little daughter, Sandra were in colorful costume.

Greece, the land of wines was convened by Mrs. P. Jeffreys and Mrs. D. G. Diamantides, and showed its national flag of white and pale blue; silver coffee spoons; pottery; tatted doiley; and among several others, a black skirt with gold embroidery, hand done and another in black with gold borders outlined with narrow red and blue.

A most beautiful garment, a picture of the Coryatides, on the Erechtheion Amphora of 1200 B.C.

Czechoslovakia, under the convenorship of Mrs. F. Brazoves, Mrs. Kavarda, Olga Zigmas, who displayed native costumes, had a wealth of lovely old world articles; national satin emblems; a painting of St. Anthony Cluseti; woollen handpainted scarves; an exquisite tea set in gold-colored glass; ash trays; wine set in pink decor; beautiful vase in same design; perfume bottles, and a handmade blouse of cream colored pure silk with yoke of lace. Mrs. Kavarda wore a native costume for special occasions.

Yugoslavia, displayed woodwork of toys; jewel boxes; crochet doilies; embroidered silken tea cloths; a hand embroidered picture of the thorn-crowned Christ; a wooden bouquet under cellophane, showing the dexterity of the wood carver. This included among the curled shavings, little pitchers; cups, plates and many kitchen gadgets; pottery vases; burnished copper vases; lustrous tapestry. Mrs. W. Slade in the Mrs. Marinelis and Mrs. Andelasic were in charge of these.

FRANCE

France, convened by Mrs. William Slade and Mrs. Forbes, showed a handknit white bedspread said to be over 100 years old; a skirt in floral colors, very pretty, as well as a number of other fine articles.

Germany was next with a collection of steins; wooden smoker set; tall stemmed wine glass; a tea service of burnished copper; cushions, and tea trays. Convening these were Mrs. H. Teschoben, Mrs. H. Bock, who wore a native peasant costume.

Holland, the land of tulips, and of olden times—windmills —was under the direction of Mrs. G. Vinc, with Mrs. J. ten Hoope in native costume, complete with white collar and headdress. Seen here was a beautiful Dutch scene worth approximately $500; an old-fashioned coal iron; a lovely burnished brass tea kettle; a little figurine set of a Dutch boy and girl with milk yoke carrying milk pails; a Venetian scene along the canal; little wall cupboards; wooden sabots, and of course the almost life-size windmill potted by yellow, red and rose lights.

SCANDINAVIAN DISPLAY

For the Scandinavian countries of Sweden, Norway and Denmark, these decided to mingle their displays, under the convenorship of Mrs. J. Tenny and Mrs. G. Vogel showing many articles from the "Land of the Vikings," which included dainty silver coffee spoons and spoons for all occasions, egg cups, a handmade arm chair; silver fruit bowls; candle centrepiece of nine candles in red, and a lovely candlelight in black wrought iron in vine style and white crochet tablecloth.

HOME COOKING

Besides the beautiful exhibits there was a home cooking table presiding over by Mesdames R. Taylor; H. Thompson; R. Quilliver; Mail E. Brisket; D. Rysima; D. De Boer; D. De-Genova; S. Quattrocioschi; Carmel J. Gajdicar; Mrs. Dicar; Mrs. S. E. Smith; D. Larsen; J. Zeth, D. Saffelis, Mrs. H. Tourouilli: Mrs. F. Tzichlas and Mrs. G. Fairman. Many of the delicacies offered for sale were samples of old-world confections.

Large baskets of red poinsettia formed a most lovely accent for the display, which included whipped cream rolls; apples in French pastry; angel cakes; individual cakes; nut rolls; thin as-paper cookies; gloria cake; delicemaids honeycomb balls; Greek pastry; Holland cookies, and white cubes of puff pastry.

Those convening the tea room were Mrs Charles Mott, and Mrs. William Oliphant, while presiding at the lovely appointed tea table were: Mesdames. E. Sandercock; H. Gilbert; N. Pinder; E. Doolittle; Charles Bishop; H. Thompson and Miss E. Coulter.

TEA ROOM HOSTESSES

The hostesses were: Mesdames. E. Putnam; L. Lenny; G. Vinc; B. Safe; E. Grant; G. Hune; R. Taylor; C. French H. Asellier; J. Darrell; W. Slade; P. Jefferies; G. A. McConell; G. Grimes; H. McKay; G. Watkis; C. Robson; Miss E. Coulter, and Miss M. Fairfield.

Replenishing were Mrs. C. Cox, Mrs. A. Hitchon, Mrs. J. Darrelle and Mrs. K. Putnam.

At the evening session, several were in native costume, with three children from Greece, little Manolis Tzichlas, Maria Tzichlas and Makis Tzichlas. The first was in the costume of the Royal Guards, the next in native costume, and the last in navy costume.

WALTZES DISPLAYED

Talent from Czechoslovakia, with Olga Zikman in costume, and the Eastern Ontario Quartet provided pleasing music including "Largo" from the New World Symphony; two guitars, a Slavic folk song; the two accordionists, little Donnella Zaliteis, of Belleville, and Frank DeGenova of Trenton who represented Lithuania and Italy. Mrs. Douglas K. Vanderwater, also of Lithuania delighted all with her rendition of "Wedding Day" by Edvard Grieg.

A fine, International Fair, well convened, and most pleasingly successful, with over 500 in attendance.

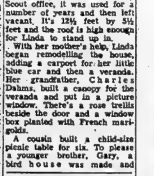
Girl Is Property Owner, Envy of All Young Friends

MILVERTON, Ont. (CP) — Seven-year-old Linda Graul is a property owner and the envy of all her young friends.

She has a little girl's dream home, painted green with yellow trim and equipped with child-size furniture.



The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Glen Graul, Linda took her savings three years ago and bought the building from Kenneth Arthur of Stratford.

Originally built for a Boy Scout office, it was used for a number of years and then left vacant. It's 12½ feet by 5½ feet and the roof is high enough for Linda to stand up in.

With her mother's help, Linda began remodelling the house, adding a carport for her little blue car and then a veranda.

Her grandfather, Charles Dahms, built a canopy for the veranda and put in a picture window. There's a rose trellis beside the door and a window box planted with French marigolds.

A cousin built a child-size picnic table for six. To please a younger brother, Gary, a bird house was made and

BABY OF THE WEEK

Here is little Johnny, 11-month-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Howes of Corbyville. Johnny felt very grown up and important on the day he had his first portrait taken. Your child's portrait is indeed a big event and is well worth the little bit of effort it takes to just pick up the phone and make an appointment.

Christmas is just around the corner and now is the time to make arrangements with Lumbers Studio to have those portraits done for Christmas. Don't wait! Phone WO 3-3054 and Mr. Lumbers will arrange your appointment.

placed on top of the house. The birds refused to nest there, however, and a plastic canary finally became the tenant.

After the outside had been completed, attention was turned to the furnishings. A chrome table with chairs and a china cabinet were installed. The cabinet contains a set of china, silverware and a full set of cooking and baking dishes. There is also a high chair for Linda's doll, a chesterfield and two beds.

As in a real house, Linda has found that upkeep is a problem. The roof has had to be repaired and the floor covering will soon have to be replaced. Next year a new coat of paint to the furnishings. A chrome is scheduled for the outside.

'The Curtain Rises'

By SYLVIA DOLAN

The Belleville Theatre Guild, chaired by Mrs. Alan Hall, held their annual meeting for the fiscal year, reviewing past activities and forming plans for future productions.

Mrs. Charles Wilson reported unqualified enthusiasm and response from the public of Belleville and vicinity. A particularly enjoyable prelude to the Stratford trip was an evening spent discussing plot outlines of "Love's Labors Lost" and "Coriolanus."

FUNCTION

The function of the Theatre Parties is to inspire public support for local activities, enhance finances for the Guild, provide a cultural stimulus for the community, and act as a simple cure for "tear-wall-fever." Arrangements are as simple as picking up your telephone and contacting Mrs Wilson. Patrons of the Arts, some known to one another, and many not, convene at the Quinte Hotel to board a special bus, and the magic has begun.

PERIODIC PROGRAM

Mrs. Alan Hall announced that Mrs. Mark Heitihu and Mrs. Roger Greig would combine their respective talents to replace the not-always-reliable landrie of the "grapevine" with a decidedly more up-dated and efficient form of communication — a periodic bulletin (mailed to members) that will capsulize and crystalize past events, present plans and future hopes.

Mrs. Mark Heitihu brought members up to date on the Eastern Ontario Drama League Conference which took place in Kingston's Queen's University, in co-operation with the Community Program Branch of the Department of Education, on September 15 and 16.

PANEL DISCUSSION

The conference encompassed a panel discussion on "directing," led by Mr. James Dean of the C.B.C. Toronto; a demonstration of papier mache cruft by Miss Nancy Hazel of Toronto, showing how this medium can be utilized for everything from small wax drips to large tree trunks; a discourse on set designing by Russ Walker of the C.B.C. Toronto; and following the performance of several scenes from "Dark Night" by the Ottawa Little Theatre group, a constructive criticism by Mrs. A. R. Duncan on effectively presenting plays in general, and Belleville in Eastern Ontario members attended the conference, ten of whom were from our own Belleville.

WORKSHOP NEEDED

Mr. Mark Heitihu, chairman of the Workshop Committee, also gave a report that, "the Guild has long been convinced that a permanent workshop program is necessary, and for such a program the Guild needs a home of its own, where members may meet and the results of their labors will begin to be apparent. Until such time as we can build' our own Festival Theatre and Green Room, it would be well to use the facilities we have — the rooms at No. 5 Campbell Street that we have used for storage over the last two years.

"On April 26, 1961, Russ Walker, Set Designer for 'Rashomon' the D.D.F. prize-winning play, and George Merrien, Drama Adviser for the community program branch of the department of education, saw the building before much had been done and called it a 'gem' of a theatre. They were thrilled with the possibilities of the place.

"In May the lighting director of Toronto's successful Centre Stage, Mr. Derek Fields, saw and praised our lighting arrangements and was excited about our building. He said many Toronto groups would give anything for a place like this

STORE ROOM ARRANGED

"A work party last March had straightened the store room and done some rearranging of the front room, and after the Guild nominated a committee in April, the work continued. Some 25 members raised dust, heaved rocks, carried lumber, climbed ladders and dusted furniture.

Mr. Heitihu paused at this point to offer Miss Ruth Night-ingale, on behalf of the Guild, thanks for the donation of 23 chairs.

Mrs. Alan Hall announced that a coming event was a dramatic piece of real estate — "The Little Hut". Architected by Andre Roussin (playwright), remodelled by Nancy Mitchford (translator), supervised by Jim Alexander of Trenton (director), with the assistance of Margo Hall, Harry Muthall and Mark Heitihu. The great Search, headed by Mark Heitihu, is now under way for a suitable "site" . . . but more on this at a later date.

'Nothing' Dress Very Much In at Designer's Showing

NEW YORK AP) — Women will be alluringly curvaceous and appealingly feminine in their fashion next spring.

This style message was spelled out Monday in terms of coats, suits and dresses as Herb Sondheim opened the spring fashion market by introducing his line to buyers.

The theme was behind a parade of bare - armed, often bare-legged models in ice cream pastel blouse, chunky knit challone and crisp rajah silk costumes.

The "nothing" dress — a collarless, sleeveless sheath with nothing much to it but the price tag—has been denounced as on its way out by many experts on bust couture. But at Sondheim's it is very much in —with a wider neck, and with stoles, jackets and coats to go with it.

The voluminous stoles tie at one shoulder or drape and loop low in front. Coats, worn in front, often dip and flare in back. Others are subtly fitted, are buttoned and belted to be worn by the woman in a hurry as a coat or a dress.

Women who wear Sondheim models won't need to shift their head lengths that much, though will they need girdles. Skirts are shorter and deceptively simple, either bias cut or gathered and tucked generously at the waist. Belts are on everything, worn high in front, to make short girls look taller, tall girls taller. Bows are abundant, too.

Black or navy blue checks and plaids and red, white and blue are this fashion house's and coat schemes. Egg shell white — the dry cleaner's dream — is also favored by designer Sondheim.

STUDENTS RIOT

CIUDAD TRUJILLO (AP) — Students at Santo Domingo University smashed desks and pictures of the late dictator Rafael Trujillo Monday night in a violent demonstration against the school's rector. The students have been demanding his resignation and autonomy for the university. It now is under the executive branch of the Dominion government.

Albert College Guild Holds Regular Meet

The October meeting of the Women's Albert College Guild was preceded by a potluck luncheon.

The blessing was asked by Mr. J. Alastair Haig, principal of the college, and after a social hour around the tables, the president, Mrs. R. Hickey, called the meeting to order.

The president welcomed the members and guests, extending a special welcome to Mr. and Mrs. Haig and to Mrs. Meyers, the new dean of women.

The minutes, read by Mrs. Hubbs, reminded the group of the Guild's accomplishments since the last regular meeting and particular thanks extended to those who had convened the coffee party, and the teas for convocation, and the installation of the new principal.

The coming autumn tea is under the convenership of Mrs. F. Wilson, Mrs. K. Bird and Mrs. Bowers.

Mrs. T. Colden had charge of the worship service, the theme being "Overcoming Life Worries." She read Psalm 107 stating that, "God does listen us out of our distresses and that we can be assured of His steadfast love."

She illustrated her point by reading one of Robert Louis Stevenson's stories which tells of the passengers on a ship being frightened in troubled seas, but when they looked on the face of the captain they felt assured that all was well.

It is estimated that about eight per cent of people who visit doctors with worries need medical attention. The rest of the fears are usually groundless.

INFORMAL TALK

Mrs. Colden introduced Mr Haig, who addressed the group informally, sharing his thoughts on the value of education to her being here a month.

He feels that Albert College has a great work to do. Besides providing a good secondary school education, it provides an atmosphere for youth to be developed in every phase of life.

Being a residential school, students learn to get along with others and to obey rules and regulations which are in the interest of the college as a whole. The student lives a disciplined life, and learns cooperation.

The school is a home where students find warmth and understanding, and are helped through the crucial years of their lives.

The approval of parents assures the principal and faculty that students are happy at Albert College.

He closed with a "thankyou" to the Guild for their constant support in aiding the college to help students to increase in wisdom and in stature and in favor with God and man.

Miss H. Sulman thanked the speaker, terming this the last June with the resignation of Dr. MacKenzie a chapter closed at Albert College, and now with the coming of Mr. Haig a new one is opening, after which the meeting closed.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Dwelle Burpee are shown signing the register in the Church of St. Thomas the Apostle, Ottawa. The bride is the former Miss Delia Anne Hunt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Brewer Hunt, of Ottawa. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence H. Burpee, Westmount, Quebec.

BURPEE — HUNT

The marriage of Delia Anne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Brewer Hunt, of Ottawa, to Mr. Lawrence Dwelle Burpee, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence H. Burpee, of Westmount, Quebec, took place on Saturday, October 14 at one-thirty o'clock in St. Thomas The Apostle Church, Ottawa. The Rev. Michael Peers and the Rev. Kenneth B. Keefe, Dean of Huron, officiated. Standards of white chrysanthemums and gladioli arranged with palm leaves formed the setting for the ceremony. Mr. Lawrence Virr played the wedding music, and Mr. Sherwin Robinson sang during the signing of the register.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of imported English brocade, having a fitted bodice with a jewel neckline and sleeves ending in points over the hands. The sheath skirt was fashioned with back fullness and a cathedral train. Her fulllength veil of tulle illusion was held by a circlet of matching brocade and she carried a cascade bouquet of pink carbidium orchids and white hyacinth bells.

Mrs. Robert Ross, as matron of honor, Miss Eleanor Gulliani and Miss Louise Dupont, as bridesmaids, wore sheaths of emerald green peau de rose having fitted bodices with portrait necklines and detachable overskirts. Miss Virginia Burpee, cousin of the bride, as flower bridesmaid, was gowned in the same material with a slightly flared skirt. They wore circlets of autumn leaves and champagne-colored gloves and carried crescent bouquets of pink gladiolla with shades of green and variegated foliage.

Dr. Anthony Ashworth acted as best man, and the ushers were: Mr. Robert Hunt, brother of the bride, Mr. Stephen Wigmer, Mr. David Hobart, Mr. Colin Barclay, and Mr. Carl Ohson.

Mrs. Hunt, the bride's mother,was in a gown of American beauty peau de sol having the new flared skirt and matching jacket. She wore black accessories and with an exquisite assortment of small flowers, a corsage of Happy Day roses attached to her purse completed her ensemble.

Mrs. Burpee, mother of the bridegroom, was in a gown of Dubonnet silk and wool brocade. She wore brown accessories and a hat of Dubonnet and shaded peau de sol with purse, corsage of Pink Sensation roses.

Following the reception at the Royal Ottawa Golf Club, Mr. and Mrs. Burpee left for Bermuda, the bride travelling in a salt and pepper tweed suit, and wearing antelope accessories, and a gardenia attached to her mink stole as a think stole.

Upon their return, they will make my residence in Welland, Ontario.

Out-of-town guests were from Montreal, Florida, North Carolina, Toronto, Hamilton, St. Catharines, London, Port Belleville, Smith's Falls and New York.

Women's Activities

SHANNONVILLE WA - WMS

The combined meeting of the W.A. and W.M.S. of Shannonville United Church was held at the church hall on Thursday afternoon with 24 ladies and three children in attendance. The president, Mrs. Stanley MacDonald, welcomed the members and visitors and gave a reading, "No Time To Be Too Busy To Present."

Mrs. Frank Doxtator, group leader, took charge of the devotional, with Mrs. Charles Kiel reading the Scripture from Matthew 28. Mrs. Doxtator gave the lesson thought from the devotional leaflet, entitled "Jesus Christ, the Light of the World."

Thanks were extended by Mrs. Doxtator to the ladies who sent cards during her illness, and also to the use of her brothers' death; the president also extended thanks to Mrs. Doxtator and her group, and took charge of the business. A letter of thanks was received during illness from Mrs. Russell Wescott and Mr. Fred Lawrence.

The secretary also read a letter from the UCW explaining their work. It was decided to send a donation and that some canvassing be done to help this worthy cause.

"Happy Birthday" was sung for the members who contributed to the birthday box.

Mrs. Charles Wood, WMS president, also extended her welcome to those present, and thanked Mrs. L. Cook for looking after the display at the Shannonville Fair.

Plans were made for entertaining the district rally on October 25th. A committee was appointed to convene the dinner.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Doxtator and her group, and a social time enjoyed.

Bridge St. W.M.S. Hears Reports, Presents Life Membership, Enjoys Rural Church Study

The thank-offering meeting of W.M.S. of Bridge St. United Church was held in the auditorium. The president, Mrs. H. M. Davis, presided and conducted the regular routine of opening service.

The treasurer reported $130.33 received since September report. The Sectional Rally of W.M.S. to be held in Shannonville October 19th was announced, with Mrs. Hall and Mrs. Gillmore appointed as delegates.

An interesting short service was conducted by the president who called Mrs. McGuire to the platform, and, in turn, asked her daughter, Mrs. Doyle to follow. Mrs. McGuire presented her daughter with a life membership in the Society, and told of being taken by her mother, when five years old to W.M.S. meeting. Her interest grew with the years and she has since been an ardent supporter. It was for this reason, having been made a life member, by her sons and daughter, some years ago, that Mrs. Howie might also have a life membership. Mrs. Howie joined the union of the two Societies at beginning of 1925.

Mrs. Doyle presented Mrs. Howie with the life membership pin and certificate, and presented the certificate.

While this had been kept a complete secret, and was a delicate surprise, Mrs. Howie expressed her gratitude to her mother and her pleasure in being a life member of the Society.

Mrs. Davis called upon the group secretaries for reports as follows:

Mrs. MacDonald, supply secretary, asked for used clothing: that another bale may soon be sent. Mrs. Hall reported having sent 29 cards since September; Mrs. Ribbard sent cheques for $10 and $5; written 30 letters since May 1st; Mrs. Adsett, literature secretary, gave the reading. She asked, "Do you read 'The Observer' and 'The Intelligencer'? some very interesting articles in the October issue. Are you following the issue suggestions for reading for children of different ages. We must have children play a goodly number of books belonging to the Book Shelf which should be in all homes"; Mrs. Williams as Christian Literature secretary spoke on "Stewardship in the Social Order," saying in part: "Stewardship has many angles. If we are to be the "stewards God would have us be, we must exercise our different ways of life as duty presents.

"Are we the Good Samaritan in the understanding of the elderly, the prisoner, to the poor? The Good Samaritan exercised a stewardship in practical need. Today we are too prone to do some deed-like kindness at the time and be fortunate instead of personally doing the deed. Stewardship keeps us in touch with real life and real need.

George Bernard Shaw said: "A Christian gentleman is one who has put back into life more that he takes out of life". It is a life of contribution to God's world and not a spells a successful life."

The group in charge of the program, under the leadership of Mrs. Howie and Mrs. Seldon, took charge.

Mrs. Denyes conducted the "devotional" exercise, assisted by using the General Prayer of Thanksgiving" read in unison.

Mrs. Lee read Deuteronomy, 6, when Moses was trying to impress upon the children of Israel how God had taken care of them in the past, and to not forget His care in their days of prosperity.

Mrs. Denyes led in meditation enlarging upon the Scripture lesson, and applying it to the present day. "Truly we are living in a land of promise; in a world of poverty we are in the land of wealth; we eat in abundance, we are clothed and warm; we enjoy the comforts of a home."

"In a world where many are deprived an education we have the highest, within our reach that money may be enjoyed without fear. We have a voice as to the choice of those who govern us. Those treasures and many more have been bequeathed to us from our forefathers, from men and women whose names we shall never know. But above all, 'every good and perfect gift is from above, and cometh down all gifts."

Mrs. Denyes also gave a beautiful wood picture of October. "Many people think October the most beautiful month of the year. An Oriental poet has described the beauty and glory of the earth' because he said, that then 'we must listen for beauty.' Trees, if we have listening ears we can hear the crickets making their music among the golden rods, and wild asters; we can hear the soft click of the trees as they bid farewell to their leaves; the honk honk of the wild geese and the mighty far off whirring of wings, as high over head they make their flight south, there are sounds in October.

"But in October we not only hear autumn sounds, but we see autumn glories. Nature has painted the hills and valleys with a riot of color. So not only is October a month of the soul but for us one of the head as well. Another reason for us to give thanks for the multiple blessings that are ours."

RURAL CHURCH—COMMUNITY

The study for the month was the "Rural Church and Enlarging Community." This study was led by Mrs. Howie assisted by Mrs Seldon and Mrs. May and consisted a question and answer pattern.

In introducing the study Mrs. Howie spoke of the bountiful harvest and of appreciation for those who work and produced it. It is with deep thanksgiving and humility we see the exodus of young people from the farm.

Mrs. Howie was asked why should one worry about a declining rural population.

The Rev. George James who has worked on a rural presbytery in Northern Ontario, and has been on one pastoral charge of eight churches, 2 miles apart, where there were once about 100 members in each congregation. Now six of the churches have about a dozen families, and two churches eight families each.

"Many farms have been enlarged to take in neighboring farms, in which case, the land is not lost to agriculture, but is once a rich farming district.

MECHANIZATION — DEPOPULATION

"Mechanization is not the only cause of de-population of rural areas. The many scientific aspects of farming, better breeding of plants, improved pesticides, have given rise to obtaining startling higher yields of farming products. Not only farm surpluses, such as butter and cheese but we still many people to think that the farm is less important than it used to be. Agriculture is as important as ever. Here are some reasons why worry about declining farm population. This can 'be answered two fold:

(1) Farm surpluses are not going to last. (2) The farmer who lives close to the land tends to develop a philosophy and outlook which is important to the stability of the nation as a whole."

Mrs. May was asked how mechanization has changed rural living.

In her answer, Mrs. May pointed out that in many instances mech a nization has made rural living more pleasant and perhaps happier. No longer does a farmer's wife do her work by hard way. She has many electric appliances; the world is brought to her door through radio and TV. The automobile enables her to travel in some comfort. Then there are changes not as beneficial. The loss of many young people to the cities has affected the community and the farm income affects the church leaders for community activities, the church organizations. The farmer and his wife are left lonely without the zest that youth gives to surroundings.

"This exodus from the farm has had as deep an effect upon the rural church as upon the farmers themselves. For centuries the church has been the centre of community life".

Mrs. Seldon endeavored to point out the real problem of the rural church in the following: (1) people in rural areas of Canada have provided support and strength for the United Church. (2) There is an immeasurable significance to the entire fellowship. (3) rural churches have provided more full time servants for the ministry (royal and non royal) than wart lay members. There is not a town or city church that has not been strengthened by people who received their first experience of life in christian fellowship in a rural communities.

Mrs. May concluded this part of the study by answering the question, "What can be best touch the rural problems and dealing with some of the goals rural churches should work toward: (1) dynamic leadership; (2) inner spiritual quality within the church fellowship; (3) adequate building and equipment; (4) a church count use proven methods; (5) there must be a full program, suited to the smaller number of people in the country the whole nation will depend heavily upon agriculture and upon the people working in that industry. It also depends upon their moral and spiritual ability.

"The strength of a nation is not in its armies, in many instances mech a nization has made rural living more pleasant and perhaps happier. No longer does a farmer's wife do her work by hard way. She has many electric appliances; the world is brought to her door through radio and TV. The automobile enables her to travel in some comfort. Then there are changes not as beneficial. SPEAKING of MANNERS

MAIL CALL

Question — The other day I was involved in an unusual problem in my favorite restaurant, where I have lunch at least twice a week.

As you can imagine, all the waiting and hopeless know me. Through many luncheons, I have evolved a tipping formula which runs between 15 and 20 percent of the check.

On the day in question, I visited the restaurant with a business acquaintance who instated I was to be his guest. I appreciated his "generosity" until he paid the check and I saw the meanly tip he left for the waiter on about 15 percent of the check.

If I had known my host better I would have suggested a large tip, but, considering the nature of our relationship, I said nothing. I'm sure the waiter did not hold me responsible for the puny tip, but nevertheless I had a guilty feeling because I had been associated with the poor service he rendered.

Should I ever return to that particular restaurant and, in fact, I had ever since I left the table served by my favorite waiter.

Should now I feel as though I'll never be welcome there again, am I wrong in feeling this way? And how can I remedy matters?

Name withheld.

Answer: Even though he may have been undertipped by your host, no waiter's going to hold his nose up at a steady customer such as you. Restaurants are in the tip department. So don't feel timid about going back.

The best what to do about the matter, frankly, I'd let it drop. Next time I'm in your favorite eatery I'll leave an even more generous tip the next time you go to this restaurant for lunch, and you wouldn't show good taste to offer a full explanation to the waiter in addition to a better tip.

Three Promise Women More Posts if Elected

HAMILTON (CP) — Three men seeking the leadership of the Ontario Progressive Conservative party each promised a women's meeting Monday that more women would get government posts if he is elected.

The 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. meeting of Conservative Women's Association heard the pledge from Provincial Treasurer Allan Dromey Resources Mi ii ister Macaulay and Rev. W. A. Downer, former speaker of the legislature. They, along with Health Minister Dymond and Reform Institutions Minister Wardrope, were given a chance to campaign for support from the meeting.

Mr. Allan said he would like the honor of naming the first woman to the Ontario cabinet, promising also a smooth transition of leadership when Premier Frost retires, a united party and the creation of a "government by team" to provide vigorous government.

CITES WASTE

Mr. Macaulay said he considers it a waste of human wealth that only one or two women have been appointed to the province's 85 boards and commissions. He would like to see more women nominated as election candidates so there would be a better chance for one to become a cabinet minister.

Agreeing with Mr. Macaulay that more women should be appointed to boards and commissions, Mr. Downer said the party must "keep our eyes on the rural voters" who elect 80 of the 98 members of the legislature. "If the farms can't keep what the cities produce, there will be trouble."

Dr. Dymond said the time is overdue for a reduction in the number of boards and commissions and a return of their powers to the elected representatives. The party must be strengthened at the local level, he said, and a continuing watch kept on government spending.

Mr. Wardrope said he would make sure the government did not fall into the hands of "great corporations" and that when power is concentrated in a few hands there are great dangers.

Help Needed With Yorkshire Tea Cakes

By Mary Moore

This started with a letter be from my niece Beverley, a post graduate student to eye surgery in England. She wrote: "We were quietly driving through the English countryside when we came to a town called Newcastle-under-Lyme. That was fine. We could take that in our stride. But when we came to Wooten - under - Lizard I said 'Stop!' Geoff said 'What's the matter?' Under-Lizard I can take but what's a Wooten?"

I'm in a comparable predicament, a reader wrote to me asking for the recipe for genuine Yorkshire Tea Cakes. I have a recipe for Yorkshire Muffins but no tea cakes. The Yorkshire Muffin recipe reads like this: "Take seven pounds of flour, an ounce of salt, two quarts water, and a quarter pint of barm." Right there I stopped. What's barm? The dictionary defines it as Brewer's Yeast. How do I transpose this to yeast cakes? Will some knowing English cook please come to my rescue with a recipe for Yorkshire Tea Cakes? Please be specific and sure.

Buttercakes as they used of be made by tall-hatted chefs in the windows of Childs restaurants have all the ingredients that comma Epicure would call for. So while I am stalling that comma Epicure you be getting Yorkshire Tea Cakes I will give the recipe for

BUTTERCAKES

(This is the first time I have given this in the column. I have mailed the recipe out several times to readers who remembered them and yearned for the good old days when you could buy them piping hot from the griddle with a cup of coffee for twenty cents.) One and one-half cups lukewarm milk, 1 teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons each shortening and sugar, 2 packages granular yeast, ½ cup lukewarm water, 4½ cups flour. To the scalded milk in a large bowl add the salt, shortening and sugar. Soak the yeast in the water 10 minutes, then stir it and add and stir. Add flour and beat 100 strokes. Cut down dough from sides of bowl, level top, cover and stand bowl in pan of warm water at 75 deg. F. Let rise until double. Now with a tablespoon grease a greased griddle that is quite hot but not smoking. Bake on griddle until bottom is golden brown, then carefully turn and brown other side. The griddle baking requires about 15 minutes. Buttercake lovers break them open while still warm generously with butter. I like them with unsweetened butter and comb honey. This makes 30 but if you have some left over, split and toast them for breakfast.

Successful Living

Bad-Tempered Husband

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS:—I am 21, married, have two kids and am expecting another. My husband and I fight all the time. He has a terrible temper and if things don't go his way he hits me. I am getting tired of this and I am thinking of leaving him.

My problem is a boy I used to go with. He is married now but I can't forget him. When we went together he was kind, and gentle. Most of all he treated me with respect, which I liked. He always made me feel like someone special. Now in everything I do I wish he was with me. I don't know if I love him, or I feel this way because he made me feel special, which my husband never does.

I am pretty sure that I don't love my husband and he doesn't love me. Please tell me if you think I should stay with him because of the kids (which is the only reason I have put up with him temper this long).—MIXED UP NUMBER THREE.

DEAR MIXED UP:—You must have married very young—before either of you were old enough to choose properly. But there were some things you liked about each other, surely!

Make every effort to make your marriage work. This is not done by putting up with physical abuse. Your husband is acting like an overgrown bully and the more you take the more he will hand out. Like any child, he must be disciplined, and will otherwise only be more spoiled as time goes on.

The reason you dream about the other boy is because you long for kindness and the respect which you associate with him. Since you are getting no kindness at all this seems the most attractive thing in the world to you. It is no proof that you would love him enough to marry him. Forget about him, because you can't have him anyway.

For the sake of yourself and your children talk this over. A counsellor can help you understand what is happening and how to cope with it. If it is all too hard for you, the law can step in for your protection when you ask for it.

See the counsellor at your Children's Aid Society, 62 West Moira Street, Belleville.

DEAR DORIS:—I have to propose the toast to the bride next month and would like some help.—FRED.

DEAR FRED:—A toast is a personal thing, depending on warm, personal detail for its charm. However, there are certain principles to follow.

It refers to the occasion: "It is an honor for me to propose a toast to the bride, a girl whom I have known and grown fond of myself over several years."

Then, perhaps, a story about how you have known her or the circumstances of her meeting the groom.

It speaks of her achievement: "Jeanie has won the hearts of all of us with her friendly thoughtfulness" —or mention an outstanding quality which has, indeed, contributed to her charm.

It offers goodwill: "All of us here feel privileged to be among those present on this occasion, when Jeanie and George take their marriage vows."

Then, formally: "I ask you to rise with me and drink a toast to the health and happiness of the bride."

Say it in your own words and add individual touches and humor which express your own personality.

* * *

DEAR DORIS:—For years my husband has accused me of going with another man. We have been married six years and have two children, but he keeps this up, although I have never given him any cause for jealousy.

I used to laugh it off, but now it is an obsession with him. Even if I mention the milkman he asks me what went on and how did I get rid of the children.

I am beginning to hate him.—JOANIE.

DEAR JOANIE:—Don't hate him. Keep on loving him. You do, you know, and he needs it. He harps on this subject because he's insecure himself.

Tell him nobody can equal him for your money. Say it over and over in a dozen different ways. Show him you care in every way you can think of. This way, he'll like himself better and not see every Joe who comes your way as a threat.

depth.

His club has devoted 60 per cent of practice time this season to defensive tactics.

From it have emerged 20 basic defensive formations with two or three variations of each.

"That gives you something like 50 alignments to choose from," he said in an interview. "You can see how complex it gets."

Moss's stress on defence is something of a departure in Canadian pro football, where teams generally stick to a 30-30 balance with offence in workouts.

But the Alouettes had a lot of ground to make up.

Last season, Moss's rookie year with Montreal, the Als were the weakest club in the country defensively, yielding an average of 22.7 points a game.

But guesswork or not, this year the club shapes up as one of the toughest to score against. Although able to muster only two wins and a tie through its first 10 games, Montreal gave up an average of only 17.5 points to the opposition.

At one point in the schedule after the halfway mark, the club actually led all nine Canadian Football League teams with a 25.8 average.

The big trouble has been offence.

Mims longtime stars Sam Etcheverry and Hal Patterson, the club has shown a woefully punchless attack, a scoring average of 15.8 points in the 10 games against almost 25 points last year.

Introducing the new Arrow Tericota

Terylene plus cotton equals a brilliant new wash and wear blend

Take Terylene, recognized master of wash and wear. Add cotton, for free-breathing comfort. What have you got? The best of both worlds — Arrow Tericota the most perfect blend in shirt fabric the world has ever known (65% Terylene, 35% cotton).

Tericota looks and feels like the finest imported English broadcloth. Yet you can wash it and dry it any way and be confident it will come out ready to wear, neat as a pin. And the wash and wear quality never washes out — it's there for good.

You can wear Tericota day and night. You can't ruffle its smooth, smart appearance. Tailoring details include a tapered body (flatters your figure), convertible cuffs, and a famous Arrow collar, fused or soft. Value? It will outlast two cotton shirts. White and plain shades $7.95.

Also new Tericota pajamas and undershorts

Tericota Pajamas. Sleep relaxed, calm and comfortable. Tericota pajamas "breathe" like the finest broadcloth, but last twice as long. In shades of blue, tan or silver $10.95.

Tericota Undershorts. Roomy and rugged, real easy to keep fresh. Tericota is cut for comfort and dries quickly and smoothly. In plain shades of white, blue, tan and silver. $3.95.

Cinderella's Wish and the Magic of Petrochemicals

Brightly-painted pipes, tanks, catwalks, futuristic control houses, cracking-towers reaching skyward like moon-rockets — these weird chemical labyrinths of a dozen magic-making companies sprawl for some thirty miles along the St. Clair river in southern Ontario. A 360-million-dollar enterprise, this is the heart of Canada's petrochemical industry. Sarnia, on the river just south of Lake Huron, first got started in the petroleum business in the 1850's when the first oil well in North America blew in at nearby Oil Springs. In 1897 the first company went into operation on the river bank. Refineries attract other industries and with the help of such essential endowments as water, electricity, salt, transportation and markets, Sarnia soon became the centre for a thriving oil industry. The big boom in petrochemicals came in 1942 when wartime shortages sparked the search for artificial rubber. Discoveries in plastics, synthetic fibres and detergents brought new plants clustering in the chain-reaction expansion that has marked all petrochemical boom centres. The petrochemical industry — fastest-growing in the world, increases at the rate of 19% a year. New processes produce new products and markets daily. Sarnia's population has doubled in the last 10 years as Chemical Valley provides the most stable labour force in the country with one of the highest average wages. The riverbank town with the weird chemical landscape has grown into a petroleum powerhouse. New uses for petrochemicals are being discovered at the rate of 300 a year. In construction, engineers predict an all-plastic house by 1968. A new plastic is hard enough to make into nails, beams, sheathing. New fabrics are strong, colourful, need no ironing. Tires are safer, wear longer. Toys are cheap, safe, indestructible. Petroleum — truly a magic river of riches, and it flows right down the middle of Sarnia's Chemical Valley.

Cinderella was upset. She so wanted to go to the Prince's Ball, but she didn't have a thing to wear. Suddenly, a voice behind her spoke: "What is your wish, my child? Name it and it shall be yours."

Cinderella jumped, and turned around. There stood a little round man smiling at her kindly. "I am your Uncle Petro Chemical", he said.

"O, Uncle", cried Cinderella, "I so want to go to the ball, but what will I wear?".

"Tsh", said Uncle Petro, and waved his hand. And there before her appeared the daintiest lingerie, a shimmering white gown, stockings, shoes, shining jewelry, and, since Cinderella was a little peaked from sitting around chimney corners, a dazzling cosmetic case with all she needed to make her the belle of the ball.

"O, thank you, Uncle Petro!" Cinderella cried, but even as she looked at him with shining, happy eyes, he vanished, and on the floor where he had stood remained only two tiny drops of oil.

Yes, all the pretty things that Cinderella wore, and with which she won the Prince, came from tiny drops of oil. And they are only a few of the 300 products discovered yearly that are made with Petrochemicals — Science's latest and most-magic wand.

The future for petrochemicals is bigger and brighter than ever. Chemists say only 3¾ of the half-million known organic chemicals have been exploited.

What are petrochemicals? The residue of hydrogen and carbon atoms resulting from the refining and cracking of crude oil to make gasoline. This residue, further refined, produces chemicals such as ethylene, propylene, butadiene, which in turn become plastics, detergents, synthetic rubbers and fibres. Eastern Football Figures

Stewart Increases Lead

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Fullback Don Clark, ball-carrier-in-chief for the cellar-dwelling Montreal Alouettes, is almost two lengths of a football field ahead of his nearest rival in yards gained rushing in the Eastern Conference.

His 11-game total is 830 yards on 157 carries for an average net gain of 5.9 yards. Ottawa's Dave Thelen, leading ground-gainer in 1959 and 1960, climbed to second place with 730 yards in 135 attempts.

Gerry Thomphins of the Alouettes leads passers with an average gain of 11 yards per pass thrown, although he has completed only 34 in 71 attempts.

Toronto's Tobin Rote has thrown more passes, completed more and perolced a bigger total gain in the air than anyone else in the league. Rote has completed 131 of 317 passes for 2,431 yards, but stands sixth in the average gain list with 7.8 yards. He has had more of his throws intercepted than anybody else—14.

TOP CONSPLETIONS

Red Rose Marks Death Spot

MONZA, Italy (AP)—Fluttering gently against the track's edge at Monza raceway is a red rose, replaced almost daily by a never-seen hand to mark the spot where a star German race driver was killed.

Track officials have been able to learn who places the rose at the track, but they suspect it is a woman mourning the death of Baron Wolfgang von Trips.

Von Trips, 33, was killed Sept. 10 when his car careered into spectators during the Italian Grand Prix. Fifteen spectators died with him. The first rose appeared a week after the accident.

The rose marks the spot where Von Trip's Ferrar racer bounced back, except down, and crushed him. The letters "W. T." were found printed in chalk on the edge of the track.

Four Yanks in All-Stars

NEW YORK (AP)—The 1961 Associated Press major league all-star team lists outfielder Roger Maris of New York Yankees and left - handed pitcher Warren Spahn of Milwaukee Braves as the only repeaters from last season's squad.

The world champion Yanks landed four players on the team named Monday in the annual poll of members of the Baseball Writers Association. They are outfielder Mickey Mantle, catcher Elston Howard and shortstop Tony Kubek, as well as Maris.

Others elected include first baseman Norm Cash of Detroit Tigers, second baseman Ken Boyer of St. Louis Cardinals, outfielder Frank Robinson of Cincinnati Reds and right-handed pitcher Joey Jay of the Reds.

Howard, near unanimous choice for catcher, polled 156 of the 171 votes cast. Mantle was named on 158 ballots.

Keenest competition was the battle for shortstop between Kubek and Maury Wills of Los Angeles Dodgers. Kubek won by

Patterson, McNeeley Sign For Bout

Gate Estimate $250,000 If...

TORONTO (CP)—Floyd Patterson and Boston strapper Tom McNeeley signed a 55-45 sharing agreement Monday with the promoters of their Dec. 4 fight in Toronto and accepted guarantees for a rematch if McNeeley should upset the world heavyweight champion.

Tom Bolan, president of Championship Sports Incorporated of New York, said Patterson will get 45 per cent of the gate and McNeeley 30 per cent. The rest will go to the promoters, Championship Sports and Toronto's Frank Tunney.

Estimates of the gate run between $250,000 and $300,000 if fight fans fill the 15,000 - seat Maple Leaf Gardens, Seats will sell for $50, $20, $10 and $5.

Patterson will get half the undisclosed price to be paid by Teleprompter of New York for showing the contest on a closed theatre circuit outside a radius of 100 miles from Toronto. McNeeley will take 30 per cent of the TV profits and the promoters 20 per cent.

Boston millionaire Peter Fuller, McNeeley's manager, said he will deposit $1,000,000 in a Boston bank as a guarantee of a rematch within 120 days if his boy should topple the champ.

Mayor Nathan Phillips, Toronto athletic commissioner, said he will prepare a slate of about six referees okayed by the fighters and then pick one.

Cus D'Amato, Patterson's manager outside of New York state, said the champion will select a training camp in Canada during the next few days and start work there the first week in November. McNeeley plans to come to the Toronto area to complete training about two weeks before the fight.

Garry Player Tops Loot List

With only a few major tournaments left, the South African leads the top winners with $64,540 for 38 tournaments. Second is last year's winner, Arnold Palmer, with $57,722.

Doug Sanders has earned $53,553 for third place, followed by Bill Casper Jr., $36,985, and Jay Hebert, $33,980.

LIFT BAN

MELBOURNE (AP) — The Lawn Tennis Association of Australia lifted its ban on professional promoter Jack Kramer Monday night. The association voted 8 to 4 in favor of allowing Kramer's troupe to use courts controlled by amateur bodies. The ban was imposed in 1958, lifted in 1959 and reimposed last October.

Indians Top AHL

After the first week of play, Springfield players hold five of the top seven spots.

League statistics released today show Floyd Smith and Brian Kilrea of the Indians are co-leaders with seven points in three games, with last year's scoring champ, Bill Sweeney, right behind with six. Two other Indians, Jimmy Anderson and Billy McCreary, are among five players tied with five points each.

Charlie Hodge of Quebec Aces is the leading goaltender, although he has played only one game. He permitted one goal.

Will Remove Bumps in Lord's Centre

LONDON (AP). — They're going to dig up the centre of Lord's, the world-famous cricket ground, to get rid of the bumps.

S. C. Griffith, assistant secretary of the Marylebone Cricket Club which governs world cricket, announced Monday the work will start immediately.

There have been strange happenings at Lord's this summer as the ball popped up at unexpected moments and hit batsmen about the head.

14 Years With Phillies

Robin Roberts Bought By Yanks

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Veteran Robin Roberts, after 14 years with Philadelphia Phillies, is going to be a New York Yankee. And the 35-year - old pitcher couldn't be happier.

"Playing with the Yankees is the only place to be," grinned Roberts Monday after general manager Roy Hamey announced the Yankees would take a chance on Roberts.

New York is believed to have paid slightly over the $50,000 waiver figure in the straight cash deal. Roberts, who won one and lost 10 while pitching only two complete games in 1961, insisted the Yankees wouldn't regret their decision.

"I've got three or four more good years yet," he said at a press conference at which owner Bob Carpenter of the Phillies announced the sale.

Roberts won 234 games and lost 199 in his 14 years with the Phillies.

WANTS TO PARTICIPATE

"Anybody knows that in baseball the goal is to win or lose. I've watched the Yankees win and I want to be part of it," Roberts said.

"This (baseball) has never been hard for me. That's why I'm still at it. If something gets too much for you, you fade out of the picture. I think I'm capable of pitching regularly. It was obvious this (Philadelphia) wasn't the place to do it."

Roberts was passed up last week in the player draft by the two new National League clubs.

Hamey said in New York the Yankees felt they had everything to gain and nothing to lose in taking Roberts.

"I know Robin well and he's a proud competitor," said Hamey. He's always is sharp and I know he'll make every effort to help our club. It's been a long time since he's pitched for a club that was in the pennant race and, of course, he's never been in the American League, which may prove helpful to him."

Carpenter disclosed all - National League clubs waived on Roberts last season. The Phillies president said calling Roberts "overcame the only sentiment I have ever had in baseball."

Cards Ask Waivers On Schoendienst to Coach

ST. LOUIS (AP) — St. Louis Cardinals of the National Baseball League asked waivers Monday on 17 - year veteran Red Schoendienst in order to make him a full - time coach.

The 38 - year - old second baseman said, "Well, I guess to Walker, Howard Pollet and Vern Benson for 1962.

Schoendienst batted .300 last season as a part - time player and coach with the Cards who signed him in the spring after Milwaukee Braves gave him his unconditional release. He has a career batting average of .289 on 2,406 hits in 8,321 trips to the plate.

He holds several fielding records, including a National League mark for second basemen of .9834 in 1956.

Cards all intents and purposes my playing days are over."

Coupled with the announcement about Schoendienst's unconditional release as a player was word that the Redbirds have signed coaches Harry Walker, Howard Pollet and

Eight Points in Four Games

Andy Bathgate Tops NHL

MONTREAL (CP) — Andy Bathgate, veteran right winger who has been up among the National Hockey League point leaders during the last six seasons but never has won a scoring championship, leads this year's race after one week of play.

Official NHL statistics released today show Bathgate has scored three goals and picked up five assists in four games for the league - leading New York Rangers.

The eight points are three more than the totals of runner-up Eddie Litzenberger of Chicago Red Wings and Don McKenney of Boston Bruins.

Litzenberger, acquired from Chicago Black Hawks during the off-season, has three goals and two assists in three games while McKenney has two goals apiece and three assists.

Eight players, including three from Toronto Maple Leafs and three from Boston, share fourth place with four points.

ROOKIE DOING WELL

The three Leafs are veterans Red Kelly, Frank Mahovlich and Allan Stanley. The Boston group consists of veterans Johnny Bucyk, rookie Cliff Pennington and Jerry Toppazzini. Claude Provost of Montreal Canadiens and defenceman Jack Caffery of Chicago also have four points each.

Bernie (Boom Boom) Geoffrion of Montreal — has two points on one goal and one assist. He has played two games.

Goalie Glenn Hall of Chicago has allowed the fewest goals, five in two games for a 2.50 average.

The best goalkeeper's average, however, belongs to Johnny Bower of Toronto, wearing his 40th birthday, last season won the Vezina Trophy, awarded annually to the goalie of the team that allows the least number of goals. He has an average of 2 for three games.

The most penalized player is defenceman Bob Armstrong of Boston with 14 minutes. The most penalized teams are Detroit and New York—each with 40 minutes.

Fish And Game Will Discuss 'Firearms'

Canada's fire arms legislation is now under review by the Department of Justice at Ottawa.

It is expected that will be restrictions placed on the sale of handguns, rifles and shotguns.

Anti-gun enthusiasts point out, that only resident of Canada not an allen can purchase fire-arms and ammunition without a permit.

They also point out that due to foolish shooting leading to property damage, loss of life through hunting accidents, and crimes of violence, there should be closer supervision of the sale of guns.

Some have suggested the government take a look at the sale of government surplus arms and ammunition at a price well below the cost of all but the cheapest .22 rifles and imported weapons.

The Belleville Fish and Game Club at its October meeting tonight at the Club Canara will discuss this important phase of hunting through the medium of a panel.

On the panel will be Frank Dempsey of Peterborough Guns Limited, Everett Ferguson, Department Lands and Forests, Napanee and Corporal Harold Hooting, OPP identification section Bowmanville.

Past president Bruce Kerr of the club will act as moderator.

There will be a number of interesting dealings with deer hunting; the usual door prizes and a Winchester carbine as the draw prize.

Members, particularly the hunting and gun section should be present tonight's meeting. Eight o'clock at the Club Canara.

Army Takes Browns' Mitchell

CLEVELAND (AP) — "Ever since the opening game in Detroit when Gene Hickerson broke a leg, our boys have had nothing but bad luck."

That was the reaction from coach Paul Brown when he learned Monday that the United States army is taking half of Cleveland Browns' powerful one-two running combination in the National Football League, fullback Bobby Mitchell has been called to active duty.

Mitchell and fullback Jim Brown make one of the NFL's most fearsome running duos. Mitchell is to report to the army at Fort Meade, Md., Nov. 2, making him available for only two more games—next Sunday against the Steelers at Pittsburgh and the following Sunday against the Cardinals at St. Louis.

The Browns have been plagued by injuries since the start of the season. Injured besides Hickerson were end Rich Kreitling, who had rib fractures, and ends Charley Ferguson and Bobby Crespino.

Last week against Green Bay Packers, quarterback Milt Plum had the finger on his passing hand dislocated. He is expected to be out of action at least a week.

Squeeze Out 16-15 Win

Blue Bombers Spoil Lions' Chances

VANCOUVER (CP) — Charlie Shepard's punting and their own fumbling have wiped out all hope British Columbia Lions might have had for a playoff berth in the Western Football Conference — regardless of the decision of Commissioner Sydney Halter on their protest of an earlier loss to Winnipeg Blue Bombers.

Shepard's last-minute single Monday night gave the Boomers a 16-15 victory over the Lions, who turned in their best home performance of the season but lost the game on two third-quarter fumbles that led to eight Winnipeg points.

The victory gave Winnipeg a three-point lead over the second-place Edmonton Eskimos in the Western Conference standings and left the last-place Lions with three points from 14 games.

Halter has said he will announce his decision on the protest Wednesday. But even if the Lions were awarded the win they couldn't catch Calgary Stampeders for the third and last playoff berth.

The Lions gave it a great try, keeping up the hopes of the 20,778 fans in Empire Stadium until the last second.

KILLED BY PENALTY

They trailed 1-0 in the first quarter, led 7-2 at half and were in front 15-7 before the Bombers tied the score as the third quarter ended. The Lions got to the bomber 30-yard line with 2 seconds left in the game, only to have a 25-yard gain wiped out by an offside penalty that kept them out of range for the tying single.

Shepard got two points, the single on a quick kick from the Lion 33 with 80 seconds remaining and another from the Lion 42-yard line in the opening quarter.

Frank Rigney scored the first Bomber touchdown, running from the 30-yard line after Eskie Pitts had recovered a fumble by Bill Britton at the Lion 45 and then lateralled.

The Bombers earned their second touchdown, going 72 yards in 10 plays, on a 13-yard pass from Hal Ledyard to Ray Jauch. Gerry James converted the touchdown and got a single when he was wide with a 41-yard field goal attempt that followed another fumble by Britton at the B.C. 34.

Nub Beamer scored both Lion touchdowns. Vic Kris topalis converted both and Neil Beaumont kicked a 45-yard single.

Diplomatic Sources Say Laos Negotiations Go Forward

By JAMES NESOM
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Nearly six months of patient and sometimes exhausting negotiation between East and West on the future of the tiny Asian kingdom of Laos is finally showing signs of progress, diplomatic sources in Ottawa say.

Negotiations are still a long way from being complete, but they indicate the kind of parley the world might expect if East and West ever agree to meet at the bargaining table on the Berlin crisis.

Possibly the real lesson in Laos is the necessity of perseverance.

Months went by during which nothing seemed to be accomplished and a breakdown appeared imminent in the 14-nation Geneva conference.

But the conference was held together by patience, a never-say-die approach by the diplomats, and one other important fact: Premier Khrushchev and President Kennedy agreed at their Vienna meeting to try to settle Laos' future by negotiation. It was one of the few firm agreements arrived at by the two leaders at Vienna.

Now, say the diplomats in Ottawa, if East-West negotiations on Berlin can be held against the same kind of background—a firm resolution by East and West to negotiate — the talks would have at least an auspicious start.

But they are bound to be exhaustingly long and exasperatingly detailed.

The bargaining in Laos itself and in the Geneva conference, which really got under way in May this year, has resulted in only a few, but basic, agreements.

One is that Prince Souvanna Phouma should form a 16-man cabinet, four of its members Communist. The United States is fearful the administration will be too leftist for its liking but conceded that the prince is the only candidate remotely acceptable to all sides.

Another point of agreement reached after long bargaining is that the three-power control commission composed of Canada, India and Poland, should be able to draw equipment from outside Laos if it is not available within the tiny kingdom. Russia at first staunchly opposed this.

As one of the co-chairmen of the Geneva conference which first created the three independent countries of Laos, Cambodia and Viet Nam to end the war in Indochina, Russia also insisted at first that it should have a veto over any decisions of the three-power control commission.

Russia now has dropped this demand for itself but still claims the commission should act only by unanimous vote, thus giving Poland a right of veto on behalf of the East.

West Berlin Talks in Disarray After Parley Cancellation

By HAROLD MORRISON

WASHINGTON (CP) — Western diplomatic sources suggested Monday that President Kennedy is partly to blame for the embarrassing public display of Western disunity over Berlin.

They said he prematurely held a press conference last Wednesday of a four - power policy - planning meeting to take place this week without first awaiting firm agreement of French President de Gaulle. Plans for the conference collapsed.

The meeting was to have attempted to resolve Western differences and to devise a unified position for possible negotiations with the Russians on the Berlin issue.

French diplomats tentatively agreed to the meeting but emphasized that the French government would have to give its approval. De Gaulle said a French representative would not attend, especially when the title of the conference was shifted to London from Washington.

Western consultation on the Berlin issue is being resumed through ambassadors here But each government will be free to send a higher spokesman in the almost daily talks if it so wishes, the state department said. Britain, reported to be angry with the unbending de Gaulle attitude, may send its deputy foreign secretary, Sir Evelyn Shuckburgh, here.

A more embarrassing element is that U.S. State Secretary Dean Rusk is seeking a renewal of the mandate given him by the Western powers to explore the situation further with the Russians.

This further exploration, it is to have been continued by Llewellyn Thompson, U.S. ambassador in Moscow, who is here for consultations. Instead of leaving Monday to be on hand for today's opening of the Communist party congress in Moscow, Thompson is being kept here for a further period and probably won't leave until the weekend.

De Gaulle is reported to feel that since the Soviet Union has shown no willingness to modify its original demands and take steps to reduce the crisis the West should not show any eagerness to make new approaches to Moscow which the Kremlin might interpret as a sign of weakness.

West Germany also opposes negotiations with the Russians, fearing an Anglo - American compromise that would enfeeble its military future.

U.S. and British officials fear an inflexible Western position may increase the danger of war. They likely will continue to press the French for a policy-planning conference.

mosphere, bone and other materials.

Tremblay, Canadian ambassador to Chile, said radioactive fallout has increased greatly in Canada and elsewhere since the Soviet Union resumed testing nuclear weapons in the atmosphere. He added:

"It may safely be said for the conduct of international relations, it cannot be accepted that any state by its actions should cause populations of other states, and their descendants, to be exposed to these inculculable risks. We firmly believe it to be a responsibility of this assembly to make this point sharply and clearly."

The United States says Russia has exploded more than 20 nuclear devices in the atmosphere since early September while the U.S. has exploded three underground.

Pudlak intimated that the Western resolution is aimed at Russia and, noting that the U.S. has conducted tests in the atmosphere in the past, said the "sharp edge" of the argument may yet be turned against the Western co-sponsors of the Canadian resolution.

Although Tremblay stressed the scientific character of the resolution, the Czech and Polish debate would lead to duplication of political discussion in another committee—the senior political one—where disarmament and a treaty or ban on nuclear testing is in progress.

In that committee, India proposed Monday that the UN plan for an end to all nuclear weapons tests pending agreement either on a test ban treaty or, general and complete disarmament.

The Soviet Union wants the test ban issue settled in a comprehensive disarmament agreement, while the U.S. and British want a test ban treaty with effective control machinery.

Rosanno Brazzi Is One Who Loves California Smog

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (CP)—"Smog? I love it," said Rosanno Brazzi, breathing deeply. "It cleans out my lungs."

Greater love hath no transplanted Californian than that he can't even say a bad word about Los Angeles smog. That demonstrates the extent of the love affair between the suave Italian and California.

He even goes so far as to say that if he had to choose between living in Hollywood or Rome, it would be "arrivederci, Roma."

"Yes, I know they won't like that in Rome," said Brazzi, "but I have reached the point in life where I say what I want."

"I love California because — well, first of all, because my wife loves it. But I also like the life here—it is like country living in the city. If you want Italian society, go to be alone, you can. If you want to give parties, it is easy. "And Americans are friendlier — friendlier than Italians. I think. In Italy, we are rather superficial about friendships. Here, it goes deeper. Your friends care more about you; they're not just people you have dinner with occasionally.

"The weather? It is the greatest in the world. Even with the smog."

Brazzi doesn't have to make the choice between Beverly Hills and the Via Veneto. He continues to bounce back and forth between the two. He's at Warners finishing up Livers Must Learn, which began in Rome.

Brazzi says Rome is fast becoming an American colony. He sometimes asks visiting friends: "Have you visited the Italian sector?"

Mental Illness Pattern Can Quickly Become Bore

By CYNTHIA LOWEY

NEW YORK (AP) — Television is turning into a form of prime - time casebook of psychiatry.

We're less than a month into the season, and already I'm educated in TV symptoms of mental illness enough to spot the madman the minute the suffering appears.

The emergence of the villain who is sick, not evil, is part of the medium's effort to avoid scenes of highly criticized violence; to substitute the flavor of violence for mayhem, fisticuffs and murder. But they are loading in mental illness as heavily, this pattern can quickly become something of a bore.

In the first three shows of 87th Precinct, the ex - menace were some kinds of nuts or screaming: A lady - killer with a penchant for having his fingers of the moment tattooed; an unbalanced woman determined to kill in revenge for her husband's execution, and an outpatient people who liked to use a knife.

Last week's Robert Taylor's Detectives was about an eye-rolling mental case avenging the death of his mother-in-law. Sunday night's Follow the Sun concerned a seriously disturbed widow who used a kaleidoscope frame-up to convict the fiancé she'd been in revenge for her husband's death. The New Breed the other night had a police commissioner bound to save a little girl held by a maniac determined to avenge his daughter's death.

Even Dr. Kildare, in his first TV visit in months, is faced with a lady alcoholic with suicide on her mind. And the opening show of the Fred Astaire series took place in the disturbed ward of a military hospital.

There seems to be a well-organized underground working to get the mentally ill into shows to the head of the list of candidates for TV guest appearement. Producer David Susskind also mentioned. But if NBC could swing the bargaining, it could do a lot worse than to tap Jackie Gleason for the job.

Astrological Forecast

General Tendencies: One of those days when considerable energy is released early and you would be wise to channel it in constructive directions, or you are apt to find that you are too nervous and restless. Fine for deciding what your personal desires actually are and then for getting the backing of friends and associates in such matters.

Aries (March 21 to April 19) - Steer clear of that new adviser who is really jealous of what you possess and would try to steal it. Confide in a good friend instead and get suggestions that you can follow safely. Have a fine time socially in pm.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) - Don't enter into any argument between an associate and a higher-up or you will be the one to suffer ultimately. Pretend to be extremely busy. Later, handle all worldly affairs wisely and better your reputation, too. Grow

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) - Altercation between co-worker could extend to you with disastrous results if you do not avoid same. Keep busy studying your paper and meeting important individuals instead and you will become more successful as well.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) — While you are anxious to enjoy yourself, it is important first that you come through with commitments to a partner. This will lead into more interesting and constant things and it'll be best for you to forget fun. Work and expand.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) — While some close tie who does not agree with your ideas may try to spoil a good opportunity you have to make a success of some venture with an associate, be smart and have a secret meeting and get things off to a good start.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 23) — By getting off to shop and making calls, you avoid a tiff with a peculiar-acting associate or co-worker. Evening is best time for actual work and you are then able to come to a far better understanding, too.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) — Be sure you are not extravagant where some temporary pleasure is concerned. A winning smile can open more doors for you than you think and thereby even add to your assets.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) — While a higher-up or some unexpected worldly affair may be very annoying, it will do you no good to get angry. Get in touch with those who are interested in your welfare. Instead and show you are more than willing to co-operate.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — There is no sense in fussing over some private worries. Think out objectively how best to solve the problem and seek the help and advice of higher-ups, those who really have the facts and know-how in the matter. P.M. be happy.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Steer clear of that too dynamic individual who could give you the wrong advice about some business matter. Spend time and energies resolving practical affairs with associates in a truly co-operative spirit. Be smart, alert.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Better be sure to get the approval of kin in whatever you must do in a.m., or you may get into trouble. See that your private affairs are handled properly, too. Courtesy with glean ties in p.m. pays big dividends. Be happy, relax.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) Going off with new acquaintances is only avoiding the issue instead of solving current problems, which can be done easily with the assistance and advice of experts. Do so confidentially and you will find great success, too.

If your child is born today—he, or she, will be one of those individuals who must always have people about and since there is tremendous energy in this nature, it is wise to plan education toward any profession that deals with ridding the general public of trouble of one sort or another. Give the benefit of fine sports to teach fair play and to develop a body. A wonderful radiance around this tot!

REORGANIZE GUARD

ADDIS A B A B A, Ethiopia (AP)—Four officers of the Indian Army have arrived to help reorganize Emperor Haile Selassie's Imperial body guard. Members of the unit participated in last December's unsuccessful revolt, and its commander, Gen. Mengesta Neway, was executed as the ringleader.
